PREFACE

THIS book is the result of an invitation from the publishers to prepare for their well-known series of collected plays a volume to cover the period lying before that represented in Professor Neilson's Chief Elizabethan Dramatists. I have aimed to tell, as clearly as may be in selections, the story of the origin and development of the English drama, to render the plays as intelligible and as vivid to college students as I could, and to make the texts so accurate as to be of genuine service to scholars. In order clearly to illustrate the origin of the drama, I have necessarily had to include a few liturgical plays from the Continent, since the corresponding English plays, though known to have existed, have not survived; here my procedure is justified by the fact that the early drama, as a part of the service of the Roman Church, was international in its development. In order to render the plays intelligible to college students, I have furnished translations of the mediæval Latin texts, have modernized the punctuation, have added, in brackets, stage-directions, and have explained in footnotes all words that seemed to offer difficulty. Finally, in order to make the texts accurate and serviceable, I have tried to print from the most authoritative sources, and have spared no pains in collating the proofs with the originals. In general, the proofs have been compared at least twice with the indicated sources; and the result, I hope, will gain for the volume the confidence of scholars.

I wish to acknowledge, as of right due, my indebtedness to the excellent collection of a similar nature, Specimens of the Pre-Shakespearean Drama, issued by my former teacher, Professor John M. Manly, to whose instruction and abiding inspiration I owe more than I can well express. Without his earlier labors in charting the sea, the present volume would have been more difficult to prepare, and not nearly so effective. Some of my detailed indebtedness I have been able to indicate in the footnotes, but not all; and hence I here wish to make this general acknowledgment.

To various friends and colleagues I am also under obligation for assistance generously rendered. In translating the very bad Latin of some of the liturgical texts, I have had valuable aid from Professor George Lincoln Burr and Professor Charles Love Durham; in elucidating difficult words in the Middle English texts, I have had no less valuable aid from Professor William Strunk, Jr.; and in collating the proofs with the originals, I have been assisted by Mr. Horace Mack. To all these I wish to express my sincere gratitude.

THE QUEM-QUÆRITIS TROPE¹

DE RESURRECTIONE DOMINI

Int[errogatio]:

*Quem quæritis in sepulchro, [o] Christi-
colæ?*

R[esponsio]:

Jesum Nazarenum crucifixum, o cælicolæ.

[Angeli:]

Non est hic; surrexit, sicut prædixerat.

Ite, nuntiate quia surrexit de sepulchro.

OF THE LORD'S RESURRECTION

Question [of the angels]:

Whom seek ye in the sepulchre, O followers of Christ?

Answer [of the Marys]:

Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified, O celestial ones.

[The angels:]

He is noi here; he is risen, just as he foretold.

sepulchre.*

¹ In the ninth century, words were set to the wordless sequences, thus making "tropes." The one printed above, commonly referred to as Quem quæritis, and belonging to the Introit of the Mass at Easter, is from the St. Gall MS. 484, of the ninth century (see the facsimile in Léon Gautier, Histoire de la Poésie liturgique au Moyen Age, 1886, p. 216). The text is the earliest we have, and doubtless represents the original form of this particular trope. The lines were sung in the manner of dialogue between the angels and the three Marys at the sepulchre on Easter morning (see St. Mark, xvi, 1-8). From this simple dialogued song of the Easter Mass service the modern drama developed.

THE EASTER SEPULCHRE¹

I

DEPOSITIO CRUCIS

[Good Friday.]

Within the Abbye Church of Durham, uppon Good Friday, there was marvelous solemne service, in the which service time, after the Passion was sung, two of the eldest Monkes did take a goodly large CRUCIFIX, all of gold, of the picture of our Saviour Christ nailed uppon the crosse, lyinge uppon a velvett cushion, havinge St. Cuthbert's armes uppon it all imbroydered with gold, bringinge that betwixt them uppon the said cushion to the lowest greeces in the Quire; and there betwixt them did hold the said picture of our Saviour, sittinge of every side, on ther knees, of that, and then one of the said Monkes did rise and went a pretty way from it, sittinge downe uppon his knees, with his shoes put of, and verve reverently did creepe away uppon his knees unto the said Crosse, and most reverently did kisse it. And after him the other Monke did so likewise; and then they did sitt them downe on every side of the Crosse, and holdinge it betwixt them; and after that the Prior came forth of his stall, and did sitt him downe of his knees, with his shoes off, and in like sort did creepe also unto the said Crosse; and all the Monkes after him, one after another, in the same order; and in the mean time all the whole quire singinge an himne. The service beinge ended, the two Monkes did carrye it to the SEPULCHRE with great reverence, which Sepulchre was sett up in the morninge on the north side of the Quire, nigh to the High Altar, before the service time; and there lay it within the said SEPULCHRE with great devotion, with another picture of our Saviour Christ, in whose breast they did enclose, with great reverence, the most holy and blessed Sacrament of the Altar, senceinge it, and prayinge unto it upon theire knees, a great space, settinge two tapers lighted before it, which tapers did burne unto Easter day in the morninge, that it was taken forth.

II

ELEVATIO CRUCIS

[Easter Day.]

There was in the Abbye Church of Duresme¹ verve solemne service uppon Easter Day, betweene three and four of the clocke in the morninge, in honour of the RESURRECTION, where two of the oldest Monkes of the Quire came to the Sepulchre, being sett upp upon Good Friday, after the Passion, all covered with red velvett and embrodered with gold, and then did sence it, either Monke with a pair of silver sencers sittinge on theire knees before the Sepulchre. Then they both rising came to the Sepulchre, out of which, with great devotion and reverence, they tooke a marvelous beautifull IMAGE OF OUR SAVIOUR, representing the resurrection, with a crosse in his hand, in the breast wherof was enclosed in bright christall the holy Sacrament of the Altar, through the which christall the Blessed Host was conspicuous to the beholders. Then, after the elevation of the said picture, carryed by the said two Monkes uppon a faire velvett cushion, all embrodered, singinge the anthem of Christus resurgens, they brought it to the High Altar, settinge that on the midst therof, whereon it stood, the two Monkes kneelinge on theire knees before the Altar, and senceinge it all the time that the rest of the whole quire was in singinge the foresaid Raine, in the Surtees Society, xv. For a more primitive form of the Depositio Crucis and the Elevatio Crucis, see the Latin text from the Regularis Concordia of St. Ethelwold, printed by E. K. Chambers, The Mediæval Stage, ii, 306.

anthem of Christus resurgens. The which anthem beinge ended, the two Monkes tooke up the cushions and the picture from the Altar, supportinge it betwixt them, proceeding, in procession, from the High Altar to the south Quire dore, where there was four antient Gentlemen, belonginge to the Prior, appointed to attend their cominge, holdinge upp a most rich CANNOPYE of purple velvett, tached round about with redd silke and gold fringe; and at everye corner did stand one of these ancient Gentlemen, to beare it over the said image, with the Holy Sacrament, carried by two Monkes round about the church, the whole quire waitinge uppon it with goodly torches and great store of other lights, all singinge, rejoyceinge, and praising God most devoutly, till they came to the High Altar againe, whereon they did place the said image, there to remaine untill the Ascension day.

[Easter.]

Post hæc [tert. resp.] duo pueri in albis, unus ad dextram altaris, alius ad sinistram, cantant:

Quem queritis [in sepulchro, o Christicolle]?

Tres capellani cum dalmaticis albis, cooperitis capitibus, ante altare respondent:

Jesum Nazarenum [crucifixum, o celicole].

Item pueri:

Non est hic; [surrexit sicut predixerat.

Ite, nuntiate quia surrexit a mortuis].

Deinde illi tres accedentes ad altare, et intro aspicientes, versi ad chorum dicunt alta voce:

Alleluia, surrexit Dominus!

Post hæc cantor incipit:

Te Deum [laudamus].

After this [the third responsory] let two boys, in albs,¹ one at the right of the altar, the other at the left, sing:

Whom seek ye in the sepulchre, O followers of Christ?

Let three chaplains, garbed in white dalmatics,² with covered heads,³ standing before the altar, reply:

Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified, O celestial ones.

Then the boys:

He is not here; he is risen, just as he foretold.

dead.*

Then those three, approaching the altar and looking within, turning towards the choir, say in a loud voice:

Alleluia, the Lord is risen!

After this the cantor ⁴ begins:

We praise thee, O God.

² A vestment resembling the alb, but with slits in the side.

³ Probably in order that they might the better represent women.

⁴ The leader of the choir, who regularly sang the Te Deum marking the end of the Matin service.

¹ Performed at Tours, in France. I have reproduced the text from Carl Lange's Die lateinischen Osterfeiern, 1887, p. 24. Under the influence of the "Easter Sepulchre" just described, as well as because of the more appropriate time, the Quem queritis trope has been transferred from the Mass to the Matin service, and rendered partly dramatic by having the lines of the angels sung by two choir boys standing at the altar, and the lines of the Marys by three chaplains who advance up to the altar. Since the Te Deum laudamus closed the Matin, it is obvious that the song was inserted just before the conclusion of the service.

LITURGICAL PLAYS DEALING WITH THE STORY OF CHRIST

SEPULCHRUM ¹

[Easter.]

Dum tertia recitatur lectio, quatuor fratres induant se, quorum unus alba indutus ac si ad aliud agendum ingrediatur, atque latenter sepulchri locum adeat, ibique manu tenens palmam, quietus sedeat. Dumque tertium percelebratur responsorium, residui tres succedant, omnes quidem cappis induti, turribula cum incensu manibus gestantes ac pedetemptim ad similitudinem querentium quid, ueniant ante locum sepulchri. Aguntur enim hæc ad imitationem angeli sedentis in monumento atque mulierum cum aromatibus uenientium ut ungerent corpus Ihesu. Cum ergo ille residens tres uelut erraneos ac aliquod querentes uiderit sibi adproximare, incipiat mediocri uoce dulcisono cantare:

Quem queritis [in sepulchro, o Christicole]?

Quo decantato fine tenus, respondeant hi tres uno ore:

Ihesum Nazarenum [crucifixum, o celi-cola].

Quibus ille:

Non est hic; surrexit, sicut prædixerat:

Ite, nuntiate quia surrexit a mortuis.

Cujus iussionis uoce uertant se illi tres ad chorum dicentes:

*Alleluia! resurrexit Dominus [hodie,
Leo fortis, Christus filius Dei. Deo gratias dicite, eia!]*

While the third lesson is being chanted, let four brethren vest themselves; of whom let one, vested in an alb, enter as if to take part in the service, and let him without being observed approach the place of the sepulchre, and there, holding a palm in his hand, let him sit down quietly. While the third responsory is being sung, let the remaining three follow, all of them vested in copes, and carrying in their hands censers filled with incense; and slowly, in the manner of seeking something, let them come before the place of the sepulchre. These things are done in imitation of the angel seated in the monument, and of the women coming with spices to anoint the body of Jesus. When therefore that one seated shall see the three, as if straying about and seeking something, approach him, let him begin in a dulcet voice of medium pitch to sing:

Whom seek ye in the sepulchre, O followers of Christ?

When he has sung this to the end, let the three respond in unison:

Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified, O celestial one.

To whom that one:

He is not here; he is risen, just as he foretold.

Go, announce that he is risen from the dead.

At the word of this command let those three turn themselves to the choir, saying:

*Alleluia! The Lord is risen to-day,
The strong lion, the Christ, the Son of God.
Give thanks to God, huzza!*

¹ From the Regularis Concordia of St. Ethelwold, written between 965 and 975. According to the Proæmium of the document, it was prepared by the bishops, abbots, and abbesses of England at the request of King Edgar at a Council of Winchester. I have reproduced the text from that printed by W. S. Logeman in Anglia (1891), xiii, 365 ff., and have followed Manly in expanding the songs from the cues given; the expansion of the second song of the Marys I have based on the text of the Winchester Troper, Bodleian MS. 775, dating from 979. Lines in italic type were intended to be sung. See St. Mark, xvi, 1-8.

Dicto hoc, rursus ille residens, uelut reuocans illos dicat antiphonam:

Uenite, et uidete locum [ubi positus erat Dominus, alleluia! alleluia!]

Hæc uero dicens surgat, et erigat uelum, ostendatque eis locum cruce nudatum, sed tantum linteamina posita quibus crux inuoluta erat. Quo uiso, deponant turribula quæ gestauerant in eodem sepulchro, sumantque linteum et extendant contra clerum, ac, ueluti ostendentes quod surrexerit Dominus et iam non sit illo inuolutus, hanc eant antiphonam:

*Surrexit Dominus de sepulchro,
[Qui pro nobis pependit in ligno].*

Superponantque linteum altari. Finita antiphona, Prior congaudens pro triumpho Regis nostri, quod, deuicta morte, surrexit, incipiat hymnum:

Te, Deum, laudamus.

Quo incepto, una pulsantur omnia signa.

This said, let the former, again seating himself, as if recalling them, sing the anthem:

Come, and see the place where the Lord was laid. Alleluia! Alleluia!

And saying this, let him rise, and let him lift the veil and show them the place bare of the cross, but only the cloths laid there with which the cross was wrapped. Seeing which, let them set down the censers which they carried into the same sepulchre, and let them take up the cloth and spread it out before the eyes of the clergy; and, as if making known that the Lord had risen and was not now therein wrapped, let them sing this anthem:

*The Lord is risen from the sepulchre,
Who for us hung upon the cross.*

And let them place the cloth upon the altar. The anthem being ended, let the Prior, rejoicing with them at the triumph of our King, in that, having conquered death, he arose, begin the hymn:

We praise thee, O God.

This begun, all the bells chime out together.

SEPULCHRUM¹

[Easter.]

Finito iij Responsorium cum suo Ψ et Gloria Patri, venient tres persone in superpelliceis et in capis sericeis capitibus uelatis quasi tres Marie querentes Ihesum, singule portantes pixidem in manibus quasi aromatibus, quarum prima ad ingressum chori usque sepulcrum procedat per se quasi lamentando dicat:

*Heu! pius pastor occiditur, Quem nulla culpa infecit:
O mors lugenda!*

Factoque modico interuallo, intret secunda Maria consimili modo et dicat:

*Heu! nequam gens Iudaica, Quam dira frenet uesania,
Plebs execranda!*

Deinde iij Maria consimili modo dicat:

*Heu! uerus doctor obiit,
Qui uitam functis contulit:
O res plangenda!*

Ad huc paululum procedendo prima Maria dicat:

Heu! misere cur contigit Uidere mortem Saluatoris?

Deinde secunda Maria dicat:

Heu! Consolacio nostra, Ut quid mortem sustinuit?

Tunc iij Maria:

Heu! Redemptio nostra, Ut quid taliter agere uoluit?

At the end of the third responsory with its verse and the Gloria Patri, let three persons enter, in surplices and with their heads covered with silk copes, as if they were the three Marys seeking Jesus, each one carrying in her hands a censer as if they were filled with spices; of whom let the first proceed alone from the entrance of the choir up to the sepulchre, and say as if lamenting:

*Alas! the good shepherd is killed,
Whom no guilt stained.
O lamentable death!*

After a short interval of time, let the second Mary enter in like manner and say:

*Alas! vile race of Jews,
Whom a dire madness makes frenzied,
Detestable people!*

Then let the third Mary in like manner say:

*Alas! the true teacher is dead
Who gave life to the dead.
O lamentable fact!*

At this let the first Mary, advancing a little, say:

*Alas! why has it pitiably befallen us
To see the death of the Saviour?*

Then let the second Mary say:

*Alas! our Consolation,
Why did he suffer death?*

Then the third Mary:

*Alas! our Redeemer,
Why did he choose to pursue such a course?*

¹ Printed by E. K. Chambers, The Mediæval Stage, ii, 315, from Bodleian MS. 15,846, described as "a Sarum processional written in the fourteenth century, and belonging in the fifteenth century to the church of St. John the Evangelist, Dublin." Another, and somewhat inferior text, is reproduced in facsimile by W. H. Frere, Winchester Tropes, 1894, from which it is printed by Manly, Specimens, i, xxii. The play is of interest as illustrating textual expansion by the introduction of new tropes, and dramatic expansion by the introduction of a new scene, the Race of Peter and John. Lines in italic type were chanted or sung; in the manuscript they are accompanied by musical notation. See St. Mark, xvi, 1-8, St. John, xx, 1-10.

Tunc se coniungant et procedant ad gradum chori ante altare simul dicentes:

Iam, iam, ecce, iam properemus ad tumulum
Unquentes Delecti corpus sanctissimum!

Deinde procedant similiter prope sepulchrum, et prima Maria dicat per se:

Condumentis aromatum
Ungamus corpus sanctissimum,
Quo preciosa.

Tunc secunda Maria dicat per se:

Nardi uctet commixtio,
Ne putrescat in tumulo
Caro beata!

Deinde iij Maria dicat per se:

Sed nequimus hoc patrare sine adiutorio.
Quis nam saxum reuoluet a monumenti ostio?

Facto interuallo, angelus nixus sepulcrum apparuit eis et dicat hoc modo:

Quem queritis ad sepulcrum, o Cristicole?

Deinde respondeant tres Marie simul dicentes:

Ihesum Nazarenum crucifixum, o celicola!

Tunc angelus dicet:

Surrexit, non est hic, sicut dixit;
Uenite et uidete locum ubi positus fuerat.

Deinde predicte Marie sepulcrum intrent et inclinantes se et prospicientes undique intra sepulcrum, alta uoce quasi gaudentes et admirantes et parum a sepulcro recedentes simul dicant:

Then let them join together, and advance to the steps of the choir before the altar, saying in unison:

Now, now, behold, now let us hasten to the tomb
To anoint the most sacred body of the Beloved One!

Then let them advance in similar fashion almost up to the sepulchre, and let the first Mary say alone:

With preservatives of spices
Let us anoint the most sacred body, —
With the most costly ones possible.

Then let the second Mary say alone:

Let a mixture of spikenard hinder
Lest in the tomb putrefy
The Blessed Flesh!

Then let the third Mary say alone:

But this we cannot accomplish without assistance.
Who shall roll us away the stone from the door of the sepulchre?

After an interval, an angel, leaning on the tomb, appears to them; and let him speak in this manner:

Whom seek ye at the sepulchre, O followers of Christ?

Then let the three Marys answer, saying in unison:

Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified, O celestial one!

Then let the angel say:

He is risen; he is not here, just as he said.
Come and see the place where he was laid.

Then let the aforesaid Marys enter the sepulchre; and, bowing themselves and looking on all sides within the sepulchre, in a loud voice as if rejoicing and wondering, and withdrawing a little distance from the sepulchre, let them say in unison:

*Alleluia! resurrexit Dominus!
Alleluia! resurrexit Dominus hodie!
Resurrexit potens, fortis, Christus, Filius Dci!*

Deinde angelus ad eas:

Et euntes dicite discipulis eius et Petro quia surrexit.

In quo reuertant ad angelum quasi mandatum suum ad implendum parate simul dicentes:

Eya! pergamus propere Mandatum hoc perficere!

Interim ueniant ad ingressum chori due persone nude pedes sub personis apostolorum Iohannis et Petri indute albis sine paruris cum tunicis, quorum Iohannes amictus tunica alba palmam in manu gestans, Petrus uero rubea tunica indutus clauis in manu ferens; et predictae mulieres de sepulero reuertentes et quasi de choro simul exeuntes, dicat prima Maria per se sequentiam:

*Victime paschali laudes Immolant Christiani.
Agnus redemit oues:
Christus innocens Patri Reconciliauit peccatores.
Mors et uita duello Conflixere mirando:
Dux uite mortuis Regnat uiuus.*

Tunc obuiantes eis in medio chori predicti discipuli, interrogantes simul dicant:

*Dic nobis, Maria,
Quid uidisti in uia?*

Tunc prima Maria respondeat quasi monstrando:

Sepulcrum Christi uiuentis, Et gloriam uidi resurgentis.

*Alleluia! the Lord is risen!
Alleluia! the Lord is risen to-day!
He is risen, the powerful, the strong, the Christ, the Son of God!*

Then the angel to them:

And, going, tell his disciples and Peter that he is risen.

Whereupon, let them turn towards the angel as if ready to execute his command, saying in unison:

*Come on! Let us go quickly
To perform this command!*

Meanwhile let there come to the entrance of the choir two persons barefooted, impersonating the apostles John and Peter, clad in albs without ornaments, with tunics, of whom John clothed in a white tunic, carrying a palm in his hand, Peter clad in a red tunic, carrying the keys in his hand;¹ and the above-mentioned women returning from the sepulchre, and as if going forth from the choir together, let the first Mary say alone the sequence:

*Let Christians offer the sacrifice of praises
To the Paschal Victim.
The Lamb has redeemed the sheep:
The innocent Christ, to the Father
Has reconciled the sinners.
Death and Life have fought
In a wonderful duel:
The Prince of Life, having died, Reigns living.*

Then let the above-mentioned disciples, meeting them in the middle of the choir, questioning them, say in unison:

*Tell us, Mary,
What hast thou seen on the way?*

Then let the first Mary answer as if pointing:

*The sepulchre of the living Christ,
And the glory of the Resurrected One, I saw!*

¹ The keys to heaven and hell, symbolical of papal authority.

Tunc ij Maria responde[al]t similiter monstrando:

Angelicos testes, Sudarium et uestes.

Tunc iij Maria respondeat:

Surrexit Christus, spes nostr., Precedet uos in Galileam.

Et sic procedant simul ad ostium chori;
interim currant duo ad monumentum;
uerumptamen ille discipulus quem diligebat Ihesus uenit prior ad monumentum, iuxta euangelium: "Currebant autem duo simul et ille alius discipulus preecurrit cicius Petro et uenit prior ad monumentum, non tamen introiuit." Uidentes discipuli predicti sepulchrum uacuum et uerbis Marie credentes reuertant se ad chorum dicentes:

Credendum est magis soli Marie ueraci Quam Iudeorum turbe fallaci!

Tunc audita Christi resurrectione, chorus prosequatur alta uoce quasi gaudentes et exultantes sic dicentes:

*Scimus Christum surrexisse
A mortuis uere.
Tu nobis, uictor Rex, miserere!*

Qua finita, executor officii incipiat:

Te, Deum, laudamus.

Tunc recedant sanctae Marie, apostoli, et angelus.

Then let the second Mary answer, likewise pointing:

*Angelic witnesses,
The sudarium and the vestments!*

Then let the third Mary answer:

*Christ, our hope, is risen!
He will go before you into Galilee.*

And so let them [i.e. the three Marys] proceed together to the door of the choir;
meanwhile let the two [i.e. John and Peter] run to the tomb; but that disciple whom Jesus loved [i.e. John] comes first to the tomb, according to the evangelist: "Moreover they ran both of them together, and that other disciple outran Peter, and came first to the tomb; yet he did not enter."
Let the above-mentioned disciples, seeing the sepulchre empty, and believing the words of the Marys, turn themselves toward the choir, saying:

*It is better to believe a single truthful Mary
Than all the lying host of the Jews.*

Then, having heard of the resurrection of Christ, let the choir follow after, in a loud voice, as if rejoicing and exulting, saying thus:

*We know that Christ is risen
From the dead in very truth!
Do thou, O Victor King, have mercy on us!*

This having been finished, let the manager of the office begin:

We praise thee, O God.

Then let the holy Marys, the apostles, and the angel withdraw.

SEPULCHRUM ¹

[Easter.]

Ad faciendam similitudinem Domini sepulchri, primum procedant tres fratres preparati et vestiti in similitudinem trium Mariarum, pedetentim, et quasi tristes, alternantes hos versus cantantes:

PRIMA eorum dicat:

*Heu! pius pastor occidit,
Quem culpa nulla infecit! ¹
O res plangenda!*

SECUNDA.

*Heu! verus pastor obiit,
Qui vitam sanctis contulit!
O mors lugenda!*

TERTIA.

*Heu! nequam gens Judaica, Quam dira frendens vesania!
Plebs execranda!*

PRIMA.

*Cur nece pium impia Dampnasti sava invida?
O ira nefanda!*

SECUNDA.

*Quid justus hic promeruit
Quod crucifigi debuit?
O gens dampnanda!*

TERTIA.

*Heu! quid agemus misere Dulci magistro orbate?

To make the representation of the Lord's sepulchre, first let three brothers, prepared beforehand and clothed in the likeness of the three Marys, advance slowly and as if sad, alternately singing these verses: the first of them shall say:

*Alas! the good shepherd is killed,
Whom no guilt stained.
O lamentable occurrence!*

The second:

*Alas! the true shepherd is dead
Who gave life to the upright!
O lamentable death!*

The third:

*Alas! vile race of Jews,
Whom a dire madness makes frenzied!
Detestable people!*

The first:

*Why condemned ye to an impious death
The Holy One with savage hate?
O direful rage!*

The second:

*How has this righteous man deserved
To be crucified?
O race accursed!*

The third:

*Alas! what are we wretched ones to do,
Bereft of our sweet Master?
Alas! lamentable chance!*

¹ The manuscript, of the thirteenth century, is from Orléans, France. It shows the development of the Sepulchrum into a play of three episodes, the Visit of the Three Marys, the Race of Peter and John, and the Appearance of Christ to Mary Magdalene. I have reproduced the text from Carl Lange, Die lateinischen Osterfeiern, 1887, p. 160. The lines in italic type were sung or chanted. See St. Mark, xvi, 1-8, St. John, xx, 1-18, St. Luke, xxiv, 1-12.

PRIMA.

*Eamus ergo propere,
Quod solum quimus facere, Mente devota.*

SECUNDA.

*Condimentis aromatum Ungamus corpus sanctissimum,
Quo preciosa.*

TERTIA.

*Nardi vetet commixcio,
Ne putrescat in tumulto
Caro beata.*

Cum autem venerint in chorum, eant ad monumentum quasi quærentes, et cantantes omnes simul hunc versum:

*Sed nequimus hoc patere sine adiutorio.
Quisnam saxum hoc revolvat ab monumenti hostio?*

Quibus respondeat Angelus sedens foris, ad caput sepulchri, vestitus alba deaurata, mitra tectus caput, etsi deinfulatus, palmam in sinistra, ramum candelarum plenam tenens in manu dextra, et dicat moderata et admodum gravi voce:

*Quem quæritis in sepulchro, O Christi-
colæ?*

MULIERES.

cola.*

Quibus respondeat Angelus:

Quid, Christicolæ, viventem quæritis cum mortuis?

Non est hic; surrexit, prædixit ut discipulis.

Mementote quid iam vobis locutus in Galilea,

*Quod Christum oportebat pati, atque die
tertia*

Resurgere cum gloria.

The first:

*Let us therefore go quickly,
To do the only thing we can do,
With mind devout.*

The second:

*With preservatives of spices
Let us anoint the most sacred body, —
With the most costly ones possible.*

The third:

*Let a mixture of spikenard hinder
Lest in the tomb putrefy
The Blessed Flesh.*

When they have entered the choir, let them go towards the sepulchre as if seeking, and all singing together this verse:

*But we cannot open this without assistance.
Who shall roll us away the stone from the door of the sepulchre?*

To whom let the angel respond, seated without at the head of the tomb, clothed in an alb gilded over, his head covered with a coif, yet unadorned with the infula, holding in his left hand a palm, in his right hand a candelabrum full of candles, and let him say in a modulated and very grave voice:

Whom seek ye in the sepulchre, O followers of Christ?

The women:

*Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified, O
celestial one.*

To whom let the angel respond:

Why, O followers of Christ, seek ye the living among the dead?

He is not here; he is risen, as he foretold to his disciples.

Remember now what he said to you in Galilee,

That it behoved the Christ to suffer, and on the third day

To rise with glory.

Mulieres, conversæ ad populum, cantent:

*Ad monumentum Domini venimus
Gementes; angelum Dei sedentem vidimus Et dicentem quia surrexit a morte.*

Post hæc Maria Magdalene, relictis duabus aliis, accedat ad sepulchrum, in quod sepe aspiciens, dicat:

Heu dolor! heu! quam dira doloris angustia

Quod dilecti sum orbata magistri præsencia!

Heu! quis corpus tam dilectum sustulit e tumulo?

Deinde pergat velociter ad illos qui in similitudine Petri et Johannis præstare debent erecti,¹ stansque ante eos quasi tristis, dicat:

*Tulerunt Dominum meum,
Et nescio ubi posuerunt eum.
Et monumentum vacuum est inventum,
Et sudarium cum sindone intus est repositum.*

Illi autem hoc audientes velociter pergant ad sepulchrum ac si currentes; sed junior, S. Johannes, perveniens stet extra sepulchrum, senior vero, S. Petrus, sequens eum, statim intret; postquam et Johannes intret; cum inde exierint, Johannes quasi mirans dicat:

*Miranda sunt quæ vidimus!
An furtim sublatus est Dominus?*

Cui² Petrus:

Imo, ut prædixit vivus, Surrexit, credo, Dominus.

JOHANNES.

Sed cur liquit in sepulchro Sudarium cum lintheo?

² Omitted by Lange; supplied from Milchsack.

Let the women, turned about towards the people, say:

To the sepulchre of the Lord we have come Lamenting; we have seen the angel of God sealed

And saying that he is risen from the dead.

After this let Mary Magdalene, having left the other two, draw near to the sepulchre, into which looking many times, let her say:

Alas the grief! alas! how dire the anguish of grief

That I am bereft of the presence of my beloved Master!

Alas! who bore away the body, so dear, from the tomb?

Then let her go swiftly to those who in the likeness of Peter and John should present themselves with heads erect; and standing before them as if sad, let her say:

*They have taken away my Lord,
And I know not where they have laid him;
And the tomb is found empty,
And the sudarium with the muslin cloth lying within.*

Then let these, upon hearing this, proceed swiftly to the sepulchre as if running; but let the younger, Saint John, upon arriving, stand without the sepulchre, but let the elder, Saint Peter, following him, immediately enter in; after which John also enters; when they have come out, let John, as if wondering, say:

*Marvelous are the things we have seen!
Hath the Lord been taken away by stealth?*

To whom Peter:

*Nay, as he predicted while alive,
The Lord, I believe, is risen.*

John:

*But why did he leave in the sepulchre
The sudarium with the linen cloth?*

PETRUS.

*Ista quia resurgenti[s]
Non erant necessaria,
Imo resurrectionis Restant hæc indicia.*

Illis autem abeuntibus, accedat Maria ad sepulchrum, et prius dicat:

*Heu dolor! heu! quam dira doloris angustia!
Quod dilecti sum orbata magistri præsentia.
Heu! quis corpus tam dilectum sustulit e tumulo?*

Quam alloquantur duo angeli sedentes infra sepulchrum dicentes:

Mulier, quid ploras?

MARIA.

Quia tulerunt Dominum meum, Et nescio ubi posuerunt eum.

ANGELUS.

*Noli flere, Maria; surrexit Dominus.
Alleluia!*

MARIA.

*Ardens est cor meum desiderio Videre Dominum meum;
Quæro et non invenio
Ubi posuerunt eum.
Alleluia!*

Interim veniat quidam præparatus in similitudinem hortolani, stansque ad caput sepulchri, dicat:

Mulier, quid ploras? quem quæris?

MARIA.

Domine, si tu sustulisti eum, dicito mihi ubi posuisti eum, et ego eum tollam.

Peter:

*Because to one rising from the dead
These things were not necessary;
Nay, they remain here
As tokens of his resurrection.*

Then, as they are going out, let Mary approach the sepulchre, and let her first say:

*Alas the grief! alas! how dire the anguish of grief,
That I am bereft of the presence of my beloved Master!
Alas! who bore away the body, so dear, from the tomb?*

To whom let two angels sitting inside the sepulchre speak, saying:

Woman, why weepest thou?

Mary:

*Because they have taken away my Lord,
And I know not where they have laid him.*

Angel:

*Weep not, Mary; the Lord is risen.
Alleluia!*

Mary:

*My heart is burning with desire
To see my Lord;
I seek, and I do not find
Where they have laid him.
Alleluia!*

In the meanwhile let one come, prepared beforehand in the likeness of a gardner; and standing at the head of the sepulchre, let him say:

Woman, why weepest thou? whom seekest thou?

Mary:

Sir, if thou hast borne him hence, tell me where thou hast laid him, and I will take him away.

ET ILLE.

Maria!

Atque procidens ad pedes ejus, Maria
dicat:

Rabboni!

At ille subtrahat se, et quasi tactum ejus
devitans, dicat:

Noli me tangere, nondum enim ascendi ad Patrem meum et Patrem vestrum, Dominum meum et Dominum vestrum.

Sic discedat Hortolanus, Maria vero, con-versa ad populum, dicat:

Congratulamini mihi omnes qui diligitis Dominum, quia quem quærebam apparuit mihi, et dum flerem ad monumentum vidi Dominum meum. Alleluia!

Tunc duo angeli exeant ad ostium sepul-chri, ita ut appareant foris, et dicant:

*Venite et videte locum ubi positus erat
Dominus.*

Alleluia!Nolite timere vos:Vultum tristem jam mutate:Jesum vivum nuntiate.Galileam jam adite:Si placet videre, festinate:

Cito euntes dicite discipulis quia surrexit Dominus.

Alleluia!

Tunc mulieres discedentes a sepulchro di-cant ad plebem:

*Surrexit Dominus de sepulchro,
Qui pro nobis pependit in ligno.*

Alleluia!

Hoc facto, expandeant sindonem, dicentes
ad plebem:

Cernite vos, socii, sunt corporis ista beati Lintea, quæ vacuo iacere relicta sepulchro.

And he:

Mary!

And falling prostrate at his feet, let Mary
say:

Rabboni!

And let him draw himself back; and as if avoiding her touch, let him say:

Touch me not, for I am not yet ascended to my Father and your Father, to my Lord and your Lord.

Thus let the Gardner go out; but let Mary,
having turned toward the people, say:

Rejoice with me, all ye who love the Lord, for he whom I sought has appeared to me, and while I was weeping at the tomb I saw my Lord. Alleluia!

Then let the two angels come to the door of the sepulchre in such a way that they are visible without, and let them say:

Come and see the place where the Lord was laid.

Alleluia!Be not affrighted:Change now your sad countenance!Proclaim Jesus living!Go now into Galilee.If it please you to see, hasten!

Go quickly, and tell his disciples that the Lord is risen from the dead.

Alleluia!

Then let the women, going away from the sepulchre, say to the people:

*The Lord is risen from the sepulchre,
Who for us hung upon the cross!*

Alleluia!

Having done this, let them unfold the muslin cloth, saying to the people:

Look you, friends, these are the cloths of the blessed body

Which lay abandoned in the empty tomb.

Postea ponant sindonem super altare, atque revertentes alternent hos versus:

PRIMA dicat:

Resurrexit hodie Deus Deorum!

SECUNDA.

Frustra signas lapidem, plebs Judaeorum!

TERTIA.

Jungere jam populo Christianorum!

Item PRIMA dicat:

Resurrexit hodie Rex angelorum!

SECUNDA.

Ducitur de tenebris turba piorum!

TERTIA.

Reseratur aditus regni celorum!

Interea is qui ante fuit Hortulanus, in similitudinem Domini veniat, dalmaticatus candida dalmatica, candida infula infulatus, phylacteria pretiosa in capite, crucem cum labaro in dextra, textum auro paratorium in sinistra habens, et dicat mulieribus:

Nolite timere vos; ite, nuntiate fratribus meis ut eant in Galileam, ibi me videbunt sicut praedixi eis.

CHORUS.

Alleluia! Resurrexit hodie Dominus!

Qui finito, dicant omnes insimul:

Leo fortis, Christus, filius Dei!

Et Chorus dicat:

Te Deum laudamus, etc.

Then let them place the cloth upon the altar; and turning themselves about, let them sing alternately these verses: let the first say:

The God of Gods has arisen to-day!

The second:

In vain do ye seal the stone, O race of Jews!

The third:

Join now with the people of Christ!

Likewise let the first say:

The King of the angels has arisen to-day!

The second:

The throng of the righteous is led out of hell!

The third:

The door of the kingdom of heaven is opened!

In the meantime let him who had previously been the Gardner come in the likeness of the Lord, clothed in a dazzling-white robe, adorned with a white infula, with a precious phylacterium on his head, holding in his right hand a cross with the labarum, in his left hand a *paratorium*¹ woven of gold, and let him say to the women:

Be not affrighted: go, tell my brethren that they shall go into Galilee; there they shall see me, just as I foretold to them.

The choir:

Alleluia! The Lord is risen to-day!

Which being ended, let all say in unison:

The strong Lion, the Christ, the Son of God!

And let the choir say:

We praise thee, O God! etc.

¹ The pall used to cover the sacramental chalice before and after the celebration of Mass.

PEREGRINI¹

[Monday of Passion Week.]

Nota, fili: Officium Peregrinorum debet hic fieri hoc modo.

Duo de ij sede, qui sint scripti in tabula ad placitum scriptoris, induti tunicis et desuper cappis transversum [cant], portantes baculos et peras in similitudinem Peregrinorum, et habeant capellos super capita et sint barbati. Exeant a vestiario, cantantes hymnum:

*Jhesu, nostra redemptio, [Amor et desiderium,
Deus creator omnium,
Homo in fine temporum,*

*Quæ te vicit clementia
Ut ferres nostra crimina,
Crudelem mortem patiens
Ut nos a morte tollerens,*

*Inferni claustra penetrans, Tuos captivos redimens,
Victor triumpho nobili
Ad dextram Patris residens.*

*Ipsa te cogat pietas
Ut mala nostra superes
Parcendo, et voti compotes Nos tuo vultu saties.*

*Tu esto nostrum gaudium,
Qui es futurus premium;*

Observe, son: The office of the Wayfarers [to Emmaus]¹ should at this point be performed in the following manner.

Let two of the lower row,² whose names may be written on the bulletin-board at the pleasure of the scribe, clothed in tunics and copes, go across, carrying staffs and wallets in the likeness of travelers; and let them have caps upon their heads and be bearded. Let them advance from the vestry singing the hymn:

*Jesus, our Redeemer, Love and Ardent Desire,
God, Creator of all things,
Man in these final times,*

*What mercy has o'erwhelmed thee
That thou shouldst bear our sins,
Enduring a cruel death
In order to free us from death,*

*Entering the gates of Hell, Releasing thy captives,
Conqueror in a glorious triumph,
Sitting at the right hand of the Father!*

*Let sheer compassion impel thee
To overcome our wrong-doing
With forbearance, and to satisfy us,
Our desire thereby fulfilled, with thy countenance.*

*Be thou our joy,
Who will be our reward!*

¹ See St. Luke, xxiv, 13-35; cf. St. Mark, xvi, 12-13. I have retained, in so far as possible, the language of the King James' version.

² Who sat in the lower stalls of the choir; of the lower rank, here petty-canon.

¹ The Peregrini, in existence by the twelfth century, was performed, we know, in England; but no English text has come down to us save the late and transitional fragment reproduced on page 73 to illustrate the introduction of the vernacular. I have selected the Rouen text (printed from A. Gasté, Les Dramas liturgiques de la Cathédrale de Rouen, 1893, p. 65) as being the most interesting one available. The Saintes text (see Bibliothèque de l'École des Chartes, 1873, xxxiv, 314) is more primitive in form, but is almost entirely devoid of descriptive matter relating to its method of performance. It contains only the single scene of the appearance of Christ to the two disciples, and ends with the supper at Emmaus. The Rouen text, it will be observed, adds the interview with Mary Magdalene. The Benedictbeuern text, from Germany, introduces all three Marys; and the Beauvais and Fleury texts, as well as the Benedictbeuern text, are expanded by an additional scene, the incredulity of Thomas, a suggestion of which appears in the English fragment mentioned above. The lines in italic type were sung. See St. Luke, xxiv, 13-35.

Per cuncta semper secula!*

venientes lento pede per dextram alam ecclesie usque ad portas occidentales, et subsistentes in capite processionis. Et cum cantaverint hymnum usque ad eum locum Nos tuo voltu scies, tunc quidam sacerdos de majori sede, scriptus in tabula, indutus alba et amietu, nudus pedes, ferens crucem super dextrum humerum, voltu demisso, veniens usque ad eos per dextram alam ecclesie, et subito stet inter illos et dicat:

Qui sunt hii sermones [quos confertis ad invicem ambulantes, et estis tristes?]

Peregrini quasi admirantes, et eum respicientes, dicant:

Tu solus peregrinus [es in Jerusalem, et non cognovisti quæ facta sunt in illa his diebus?]

Sacerdos interroget:

Que?

Peregrini respondeant:

De Jhesu Nazareno [qui fuit vir propheta, potens in opere coram Deo et omni populo, quomodo tradiderunt eum summi Sacerdotes et Principes nostri in damnationem mortis et crucifixerunt eum; et super omnia, tertia dies est quod hec facta sunt.]

Sacerdos, utrimque respiciens, dicat:

O stulti! et tardi corde [ad credendum omnibus quæ locuti sunt Prophetæ! Nonne sic oportuit pati Christum et intrare in gloriam suam?]

Quibus dictis, statim recedens Sacerdos, fingens se longius ire, et Peregrini, festinantes, prosequentes, eum detineant quasi ad

*In thee be our glory
Through all ages, forever!*

coming at a slow pace, through the right aisle of the church, as far as the western doors, and taking their stand at the head of the procession. And when they shall have sung the [above-quoted] hymn to the line "Our desire thereby fulfilled, with thy countenance," then let a priest from the upper row, whose name has been written on the bulletin-board, clothed in an alb and an amice, barefooted, bearing the cross upon his right shoulder, with a downcast countenance, come up to them through the right aisle of the church, and let him suddenly stand with them and say:

What manner of communications are these that ye have one to another as ye walk and are sad?

Let the wayfarers, as if in wonder, and gazing at him, say:

Art thou only a stranger in Jerusalem, and hast not known the things which are come to pass there in these days?

Let the priest inquire:

What things?

Let the wayfarers reply:

Concerning Jesus of Nazareth, which was a prophet, mighty in deed before God and all the people, how the chief priests and our rulers delivered him up to be condemned to death, and have crucified him; and beside all this, to-day is the third day since these things were done.

Let the priest, looking fixedly at both, say:

O fools! and slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have spoken! Ought not Christ to have suffered these things, and to enter into his glory?

With these words, immediately let the priest walk away, making as though he would go further, and let the wayfarers, hastening, following after him, detain him hospicium invitantes et trahentes, baculis ostendentes castellum, et dicentes:

Mane nobiscum [quoniam advesperascit, et inclinata est jam dies. Sol vergens ad occasum suadet ut nostrum velis hospicium; placet enim nobis sermones tuos, quos confers de resurrectione magistri nostri.]

Et ita cantantes, ducant eum usque ad tabernaculum, in medio navis ecclesie, in similitudinem castelli Emaux preparatum. Quo cum ascenderit, et ad mensam ibi paratam sederint, et Dominus inter eos sedens panem eis fregerit, [et] fractione panis agnitus ab illis, subito recedens ab oculis eorum evanescat. Illi autem, quasi stupefacti surgentes, versis vultibus inter ipsos, cantent lamentabiliter:

Alleluia!

cum versu:

Nonne cor nostrum [ardens erat in nobis, dom loqueretur in via, et aperiret nobis scripturas? Heu! miseri! ubi erat scriptura noster quando intellectus abierat?]

Quo reiterato, vertent se versus pulpiti, et cantent hunc versum:

*Dic nobis, Maria,
[Quid vidisti in via?]*

Tunc quidam de majori sede, indutus dalmatica et amictu, in modum mulieris caput circumligatus, respondeat:

Sepulchrum Christi [viventis Et gloriam vidi resurgentis;

*Angelicos testes,
Sudarium et vestes.]*

Tunc ostendat et explicet unam syn-

as if inviting and urging him to be their guest, pointing to the village with their staffs, and saying:

Abide with us, for it is toward evening, and the day is now far spent. The sun declining towards the west urges that thou accept our hospitality; for we are pleased with what thou sayest to us concerning the resurrection of our Master.

And thus singing, let them lead him to the structure in the middle of the nave of the church, prepared in the likeness of the village of Emmaus. When they have ascended into it, and are seated at the table ready there, and the Lord, sitting between them, has broken bread unto them, and has been recognized by them through his breaking of the bread, then let him suddenly vanish out of their sight. Moreover, let them, rising up as if dumfounded, with faces turned towards each other, mournfully sing:

Alleluia!

with the verse:

Was not our heart burning within us while he was talking by the way, and while he opened to us the scriptures? Alas! wretched we! where were our senses when we did not comprehend?

Having repeated this, let them turn themselves toward the pulpit and sing this verse:

*Tell us, Mary,
What hast thou seen on the way?*

Then let one from the upper row, clothed in a dalmatic and an amice, his head bound about after the fashion of a woman, answer:

*The sepulchre of the living Christ,
And the glory of the Resurrected One, I saw!*

*Angelic witnesses,
The sudarium and the vestments!*

Then let him hold up to view and unfold a donem ex una parte, loco sudarii, et aliam ex alia parte, loco vestium, et projiciat ante magnum hostium chori. Deinde dicat :

*Surrexit Christus [spes mea!
Præcedit suos in Galilæam.]*

Chorus cantet duos versus sequentes residuos:

[Credendum est magis soli Mariæ veraci Quam Judæorum turbæ fallaci.

*Scimus Christum surrexisse
A mortuis vere.
Tu nobis, victor Rex, miserere!]*

Et interim recedant Maria et Peregrini.

muslin cloth from one side, to represent the sudarium, and another muslin cloth from the other side, to represent the vestments; and let him cast them before the main entrance to the choir. Then let him say:

*Christ is risen, my hope!
He goes before his disciples into Galilee!*

Then let the choir sing the remaining two verses, which follow:

*It is better to believe a single truthful Mary
Than all the lying host of the Jews!*

*We know that Christ is risen
From the dead in very truth!
Do thou, O Victor King, have mercy on us!*

And, in the meanwhile, let Mary and the Wayfarers withdraw.

[Christmas.]

Finito Te Deum laudamus, peragatur Officium Pastorum hoc modo secundum Rothomagensem usum.

Presepe sit paratum retro altare et ymago sancte Marie sit in eo posita. In primis quidam puer ante chorum in excelso in similitudinem angeli nativitatem Domini annuncians ad quinque canonicos quindecim marcharum et librarum vel ad eorum vicarios de ij sede, pastores intrantes per magnum hostium chori per medium chorum transeuntes, tunicis et amictis indutos, hunc versum ita dicens:¹

Nolite timere: ecce enim evangelizo vobis gaudium magnum quod erit omni populo: quia natus est vobis hodie Salvator, qui est Christus Dominus, in civitate David. Et hoc vobis signum: Invenietis infantem pannis involutum, et positum in præsepio.

Sint plures pueri in voltis ecclesie quasi angeli qui alta voce incipiunt:

Gloria in excelsis Deo, et in terra pax hominibus bone voluntatis.

Hoc audientes, pastores ad locum in quo paratum est præsepe accedant, cantantes hunc versum:

¹ The MS. reads: "Nolite timere, ecce enim, usque in præsepio." I have replaced this with the full text; and have followed the same procedure throughout the play.

The Te Deum laudamus being ended, let the Office of the Shepherds be performed in this manner, according to the usage of Rouen.

Let a manger be prepared at the back of the altar, and let a figure representing the Holy Mary be placed in it. First let a boy, dressed like an angel, from a lofty place in front of the choir announce the birth of the Lord to the five canons of fifteen marks and pounds,¹ or to their proxies of the second row;² and let the shepherds, entering through the main door of the choir, and crossing through the middle of the choir, vested in tunics and amices, say this verse:³

Fear not: for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people; for unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord. And this shall be a sign unto you: Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, and lying in a manger.

Let there be many boys, as if they were angels, in the roof of the church, who in a loud voice shall begin:

Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will to men!

Hearing this, let the shepherds draw near to the place in which the manger has been prepared, singing this verse:

³ St. Luke, ii, 10-11. I have retained, in so far as possible, the language of the King James' version.

¹ Printed from A. Gasté, Les Drames liturgiques de la Cathédrale de Rouen, 1893, p. 25. The text is found in two manuscripts (Rouen MSS. y.110 and y.108) of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries respectively. The play, which probably came into existence not later than the eleventh century, existed in England (there are allusions to it in the twelfth-century Statutes of Lichfield), but no English text, so far as we know, has been preserved. The lines here printed in italic type are set to music in the manuscript. See St. Luke, ii, 1-20.

*Pax in terris nuntiatur,
In excelsis gloria!

Mediante gratia.*

*Mediator homo Deus

Ut ascendat homo reus
Ad admissa gaudia. Eya! Eya!*

*Transeamus, videamus

Transeamus ut sciamus Quod hic² nuntiatum est.*

*In Judea puer vagit, Puer salus populi,
Quo bellandum se presagit
Vetus hospes seculi.*

*Accedamus, accedamus Ad presepe Domini,
Et congaudentes² dicamus:
Laus fecundæ Virginii!*

Quod dum intraverint, duo presbyteri dalmaticati, de majori sede, quasi obstetrices quid ad præsepe fecerint, dicant:

Quem quæritis in præsepe, pastores, dicite.

Pastores respondeant:

Salvatorem Christum Dominum infantem, pannis involutum, secundum sermonem angelicum.

Item obstetrices, cortinam aperientes, puerum demonstrant, dicentes:

Adest hic parvulus cum Maria matre sua, de qua dudum, vaticinando, Isayas dixerat propheta:

hic ostendant matrem pueri dicentes:

² Added by Du Ménil.

*Let peace be proclaimed on earth, Glory in the highest!
Earth is leagued with heaven,
By means of grace.*

*The God-Man as mediator Comes down to his own,
That condemned man may ascend
To the admitted joys. Huzza! Huzza!*

*Let us go, let us see
This thing which is come to pass.
Let us go that we may know
What has here been announced.*

*In Judea a boy is crying,
A boy-saviour of the people,
For whom that he would wage war
The ancient heathen stranger foretold.*

*Let us draw nigh, let us draw nigh
To the manger of the Lord,
And rejoicing together, let us say:
"Glory to the fecund Virgin!"*

When they enter this [the place of the manger], let two clerics of the upper row, clothed in dalmatics, as if they were the midwives who had served at the manger, say:

*Whom seek ye in the manger, O shepherds?
Tell us.*

Let the shepherds reply:

The Saviour, the Christ, the infant Lord, wrapped in swaddling clothes, according to the words of the angel.

Whereupon let the midwives, drawing aside the curtain, show the boy, saying:

The little one is here with Mary his mother, of whom long ago in prophecy the prophet Isaiah spoke:

here let them expose to view the mother of the boy, saying:

*"Ecce virgo concipiet et pariet filium."
Et nunc cunctes dicite quia natus est.*

Tunc, eo viso, inclinatis cervicibus, adorent puerum et salutent, dicentes:

*Salve, virgo singularis;
Virgo manens, Deus parvis!
Ante sæcla generatum Corde patris,
Adoremus nunc creatum Carne matris.*

*Nos, Maria, tua prece
A peccati purga face;
Nostrum cursum incolatus
Sic dispone
Ut det sua frui Natus Visione.*

Deinde vertant se ad chorum redeuntes et dicentes:

Alleluia! Alleluia! Jam vere scimus Christum natum in terris; de quo canite omnes, cum propheta dicentes.

Hoc finito, incipiatur Missa, et Pastores regant chorum.

"Behold, a virgin shall conceive and bear a son." And now, as ye go forth, announce that he is born.

And having seen him, with bowed heads let them worship the boy, and salute him, saying:

*Hail, virgin unparalleled!
Remaining a virgin, the bride of God!
Before the ages he was generated
In the heart of the Father,
Let us worship him now embodied
In the flesh of his mother.*

*O Mary, with thy prayers Cleanse us from the impurities of sin;
Our life of exile
So fashion
That thy son may allow us
To see his face.*

Then let them turn themselves about, returning into the choir, and saying:

Alleluia! Alleluia! Now we know in very truth that the Christ is born into the world; of whom let all sing, saying with the prophet: . . .¹

This ended, the Mass is begun, and the Shepherds rule the choir.

¹ Apparently a song, in which the choir was invited to join, is omitted.

MAGI¹

[Twelfth Day.]

Officium regum trium secundum usum Rothomagensem. Die Epyphanie, tercia cantata, tres de majori sede more regum induti, — et debent esse scripti in tabula, — ex tribus partibus ante altare convenient, cum suis famulis portantibus regum oblaciones, induti[s] tunicis et amictis, — et debent esse de secunda sede, scripti in tabula ad placitum scriptoris.

Ex tribus regibus medius ab Oriente veniens, Stellam cum baculo ostendens, dicat alte:

Stella fulgore nimio [rutilat].

Secundus rex a dextra parte respondeat:

Que regem regum [natum demonstrat].

Tertius rex a sinistra parte dicat:

Quem venturum olim [prophetiæ signaverant].

Tunc Magi ante altare sese osculentur, et simul cantent:

Eamus ergo et inquiramus [eum, offerentes ei munera: aurum, thus, et myrrham].

Hoc finito cantor incipiat R̄:

Magi veniunt [ab Oriente Jerosolimam, quærentes et dicentes: Ubi est qui natus est? Cujus stellam vidimus, et venimus adorare Dominum].

The office of the Three Kings, according to the usage of Rouen. On the day of Epiphany, after Tierce, let three, of the upper row, clothed in the manner of kings — their names should be written on the bulletin-board — come from three parts of the church up before the altar, with their servants bearing the offerings of the kings, clothed in tunics and amices — and they should be from the second row, their names written on the bulletin-board at the pleasure of the scribe.

Let the middle one of the three kings, coming from the east, pointing with his staff at the star, say in a loud voice:

This star blazes with an exceeding brightness.

Let the second king, from the right side, reply:

That shows that the King of Kings is born.

Let the third king, from the left side, say:

Whose coming long ago the prophets foretold.

Then let the Magi greet each other with a kiss before the altar, and sing together:

Let us go, then, and seek him, offering to him gifts: gold, frankincense, and myrrh.

This being ended, let the cantor begin the response:

From the East the Magi are come to Jerusalem, seeking, and saying: "Where is he who is born? We see his star, and come to worship the Lord."

¹ Acted at Rouen in France. The text comes from a manuscript of the fourteenth century entitled Ordinarium seu liber ordinarius Ecclesie Rothomagensis (reproduced by Armand Gasté, Les Drames liturgiques de la Cathédrale de Rouen, 1893, p. 49). The play of the Magi, which was developed before the end of the eleventh century, appears in its simplest form in the Limoges version (printed by E. Du Ménil, Origines latines du Théâtre moderne, 1849, p. 151), but I have chosen to reproduce the Rouen version as being more interesting. The lines here printed in italic type were sung or chanted. See St. Matthew, ii, 1-18.

Et moveat processio.

Ÿ: Cum natus [esset Jesus in Bethleem Judæ, in diebus Herodis regis, ecce Magi ab Oriente venerunt Jerosolimam, dicentes: Ubi est qui natus est rex? Cujus stellam vidimus, et venimus adorare Dominum].

Sequatur aliud R̄, si necesse fuerit:

Interrogat Magos [dicens ipsis: Quodnam vidistis signum de rege genito? Dicite mihi. Et dixerunt illi Magi: Stella ejus nata est magna et illuxit super stallas cæli].

Processio in navi ecclesiæ constituta stationem faciat. Dum autem processio navem ecclesiæ intrare ceperit, corona ante crucem pendens in modum stelle accendatur, et Magi, stellam ostendentes, ad ymaginem sancte Marie super altare Crucis prius positam cantantes pergant:

Ecce stella in Oriente [prævisa iterum præcedit nos lucida. Hæc inquam stella natum demonstrat, de quo Balaam cecinerat dicens: Oritur stella ex Jacob, et exsurget homo de Israel, et confringet omnes duces alienigenarum, et erit omnis terra possessio ejus].

Hoc finito, duo de majori sede cum dalmaticis, ex utraque altaris parte stantes, suaviter respondeant:

Qui sunt hii qui, stella [duce], nos adeuntes, inaudita ferunt?

Magi respondeant:

Nos sumus, quos cernitis [reges Tharsis, et Arabum, et Saba, dona ferentes Christo,

And let the procession move. Verse:

When Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea, in the days of King Herod, behold the Magi came from the East to Jerusalem, saying: "Where is he who is born king? We see his star, and come to worship the Lord."

Let there follow another response, if it shall be necessary:

He inquires of the Magi, saying to them: "What sign do you see of the king who is born? Tell me." And those Magi said: "His great star has arisen, and shines above all the stars of heaven."

Let the procession, having been drawn up in the nave of the church, make a stand. Moreover, when the procession begins to enter the nave of the church, let the *corona*¹ hanging before the cross be raised in the fashion of the star, and let the Magi, pointing to the star, proceed up to the image of the Holy Mary previously placed upon the altar of the cross, singing:

Behold the star, already seen in the East, again leads us on, brightly shining. This star indicates the birth of him whom Balaam foretold, saying: "There shall come a star out of Jacob, and a man shall arise out of Israel, and he shall break to pieces all the leaders of the gentiles, and all the earth shall be his possession."

This being ended, let two of the upper row, vested in dalmatics, standing on either side of the altar [impersonating the midwives], reply in courteous tones:

Who are these, who, star-led, approaching us, bear strange things?

Let the Magi answer:

We, whom ye see, are the Kings of Tharsis, and of Arabia, and of Saba, bearing gifts to the Christ, the new-born king,

regi nato, Domino, quem, stella deducente, adorare venimus].

Tunc duo dalmaticati, aperientes cortinam, dicant:

Ecce, puer adest [quem quæritis. Jam properate adorare, quia ipse est redemptio mundi].

Tunc procidentés reges ad terram, simul salutent puerum, ita dicentes:

Salve, princeps seculorum!

Tunc unus a suo famulo aurum accipiat et dicat:

Suscipe, rex, aurum [regis signum].

Et offerat. Secundus ita dicat, et offerat:

Tolle thus, tu vere Deus.

Tercius ita dicat et offerat:

Mirram, signum sepulture.

Interim fiant oblationes a clero et populo, et dividatur oblatio predictis duobus canonicis.

Tunc, Magis orantibus et quasi sompno sopitis, quidam puer, alba indutus, quasi angelus, illis ante altare dicat:

Impleta sunt omnia que prophetice [dicta sunt: ite viam remeantes aliam, nec delatores tanti regis puniendi eritis].

Hoc finito, cantor incipiat ad introitum chori. R̄:

Tria sunt munera [pretiosa quæ obtulerunt Magi Domino in die illa, et habent in se divina mysteria. In auro, ut ostendatur Regis potentia; in thure sacerdotem magnum considera, et in myrrha dominicam sepulturam].

the Lord, whom we, led by a star, are come to worship.

Then let the two in dalmatics, drawing aside the curtain, say:

See, here is the boy whom ye seek. Now hasten to worship him, for he is the redeemer of the world.

Then let the kings, falling prostrate on the ground, salute the boy together, saying thus:

Hail, prince of the ages!

Then let one take from his servant gold, and say:

Receive, O King, gold, the sign of a king.

And let him offer it. Let the second in like manner speak and offer:

Accept frankincense, thou very God.

Let the third in like manner speak and offer:

Myrrh, the sign of thy sepulture.

Meanwhile let offerings be made by the clergy and the people, and let the offering be divided by the two above-mentioned canons.

Then, after the Magi have prayed and, as it were, have fallen into slumber, let a boy, clothed in an alb, as if he were an angel, say to them before the altar:

All things are fulfilled which were spoken of the prophets. Returning, go another way, and ye will not be informers to bring punishment on so great a king.

This being ended, let the cantor, at the entrance to the choir, begin the response:

Three are the precious gifts which the Magi brought to the Lord on that day, and they have in them divine mysteries: in the gold, that the power of a king shall be manifested; in the frankincense think of the High Priest; and in the myrrh, of the sepulture of the Lord.

Ÿ Salutis nostre autorem [Magi venerati sunt in cunabulis, et de thesauris suis mysticas ei munerum species obtulerunt. In auro, etc.].

Ad missam tres reges chorum regant.

Verse:

The Magi worshipped in the cradle the author of our salvation, and from their treasure offered him the mystic sort of gifts: in gold, etc.

In the Mass [which immediately follows], let the three kings rule the choir.

[Twelfth Day.]

Tunc incipit ordo ad representandum Herodem.

Parato Herode et ceteris personis, tunc quidam Angelus cum multitudine in excelsis appareat. Quo viso, pastores perterriti; salutem annuntiet eis (Angelus) de ceteris adhuc tacentibus:

Nolite timere vos, ecce enim evangelizo vobis gaudium magnum quod erit omni populo, quia natus vobis¹ hodie Salvator mundi in civitate David, et hoc vobis signum: Invenietis infantem panis involutum et positum in presepio, in medio duum animalium.

Et subito omnis multitudo cum Angelo dicat:

Gloria in excelsis Deo et in terra pax hominibus bone voluntatis. Alleluia! Alleluia!

Tunc demum surgentes (Pastores) content intra se:

Transeamus usque Bethleem, et videamus hoc verbum quod factum est, quod fecit Dominus et ostendit nobis.

Et sic procedant usque ad presepe, quod ad januas monasterii paratum erit. Tunc due Mulieres custodientes presepe, interrogent pastores, dicentes:

Quem queritis [in presepe], pastores, dicite?

Respondeant Pastores:

Then begins the order for the representing of Herod.

Herod and the other persons being ready, let an Angel appear aloft, accompanied by a multitude [of angels]. At the sight of this the shepherds are frightened; let the Angel, the other [angels] still remaining silent, proclaim to them safety:

Fear not; for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people; for unto you there is born this day in the city of David a Saviour of the world. And this shall be a sign unto you: Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling-clothes and lying in a manger between two beasts.

And suddenly let all the multitude with the Angel say:

Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will to men! Alleluia! Alleluia!

Then let the shepherds, rising up, sing among themselves:

Let us now go unto Bethleem and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath done and hath made known unto us.

And so let them advance up to the manger, which shall have been prepared at the doors of the monastery. Then let two women, the guardians of the manger, inquire of the shepherds, saying:

Whom seek ye in the manger, O shepherds? Tell us.

Let the shepherds answer:

¹ From a twelfth-century manuscript of the Abbey Saint-Benoit-sur-Loire, preserved in the library at Orléans. The play is of interest as showing the fusion of the Pastores and the Magi, and also the dramatic development of the rôle of Herod, who already gives promise of tearing a passion to tatters. I have reproduced the text from E. de Coussemaker, Drames liturgiques du Moyen Age, 1861, p. 143. The lines here printed in italics are set to music (the music is reproduced by Coussemaker). See St. Matthew, ii, 1-18.

Salvatorem Christum Dominum infantem, pannis involutum secundum sermonem angelicum.

The Saviour, the Christ, the infant Lord, wrapped in swaddling clothes, according to the words of the angel.

Mulieres:

Adest parvulus cum Maria matre ejus, de qua dudum vaticinando Isaias propheta dixerat: "Ecce virgo concipiet et pariet filium."

The women:

The little one is here with Mary his mother, of whom long ago in prophecy the prophet Isaiah said: "Behold, a virgin shall conceive and bear a son."

Tunc Pastores procidentem, adorent infantem, dicentes:

Salve, Rex seculorum!

Then let the shepherds, falling prostrate, worship the babe, saying:

Hail, King of the ages!

Postea surgentes, invitent populum circumstantem ad adorandum infantem, dicentes turbis vicinis:

Venite, venite, venite, adoremus Deum, quia ipse est salvator noster.

Afterwards, rising up, let them invite the people standing about to worship the babe, saying to the adjacent throng:

Come! Come! Come! Let us worship the God, since he alone is our Saviour.

Interim Magi prodeuntes, quisque de angulo suo quasi de regione sua, convenient ante altare vel ad ortum stelle, et dum appropinquant, Primus dicat:

Stella fulgore nimio rutilat.

Meanwhile let the Magi, each coming forward from his corner as if from his own land, meet before the altar, or at the rising-place of the star; and while they are drawing near, let the first say:

This star blazes with an exceeding brightness!

Secundus:

Quem venturum olim propheta signaverat.

The second:

Whose coming long ago the prophet foretold.

Tunc stantes collaterales, dicat dexter ad medium:

Pax tibi, frater!

Then, standing side by side, let the one at the right say to the one in the middle:

Peace to you, brother!

Et ille respondeat:

Pax quoque tibi!

And let that one reply:

Peace also to you!

Et osculentur sese; sic medius ad sinistrum et sinister ad dextrum. Salutatio cuique. Tunc ostendant sibi mutuo et dicant:

Ecce stella! Ecce stella! Ecce stella!

And let them greet each other with a kiss; in a similar way the one in the middle to the one at the left, and the one at the left to the one at the right — a greeting to each one. Then let them point out [the star] to each other in turn, and say:

Behold the star! Behold the star! Behold the star!

Procedente autem stella, sequentur et ipsi precedentem stellam, dicentes:

Eamus ergo et inquiramus eum, offerentes ei munera: aurum, thus et myrrham. Quia scriptum didicimus: Adorabunt eum omnes reges, omnes gentes servient ei.

Venientes ad ostium chori, interrogent adstantes:

Dicite nobis O Jerosolimitani cives: Ubi est expectatio gentium, ubi est qui natus est rex Judeorum, quem signis celestibus agnitum veninus adorare?

Quibus visis, Herodes mittat ad eos Armigerum, dicens:

Que rerum novitas, aut que causa vos subegit, vos, ignotas temptare vias? Quo tenditis ergo? Quod genus? Unde domo? Pacem ne huc fertis an arma?

Responsio Magorum:

Chaldei sumus; pacem ferimus; Regem regum querimus, Quem natum esse stella indicat, Que fulgore celeris clarior rutilat.

Armiger reversus salutat Regem; flexo genu dicat:

Vivat Rex in eternum!

Herodes:

Salvet te gratia mea!

Armiger ad Regem:

Adsunt nobis, Domine, tres viri ignoti, ab oriente venientes, noviter natum quemdam regem queritantes.

Tunc mittat Herodes oratores vel interpretes suos ad Magos, dicens:

Then, the star moving forward, let them follow after and the star leading them, saying:

Let us go, then, and seek him, offering to him gifts: gold, frankincense, and myrrh. For we are familiar with that which is written: "All kings shall worship him, all nations shall serve him."

Coming to the entrance of the choir, let them ask of those standing by:

Tell us, O citizens of Jerusalem: Where is the one expected of the peoples? Where is he who is born king of the Jews, whom, recognized by celestial signs, we have come to worship?

Let Herod, having seen them, send a soldier, saying:

What strange things, or what motive has impelled ye, ye, to try unknown roads? Whither, therefore, are ye going? Of what nation are ye? Where is your home? Do ye bring peace or war?

The answer of the Magi:

We are Chaldeans; we bring peace; We are seeking the King of Kings, Whose birth is shown by the star Which shines clearer than all others in brightncss.

Let the soldier, returning, salute the king; and on bended knee let him say:

Live, O king, forever!

Herod:

Let my grace welcome thee!

The soldier to the king:

There are present among us, Lord, three unknown men, coming from the East in search of a certain newly-born king.

Then let Herod send his envoys, or interpreters, to the Magi, saying:

Lecti quaestores,¹ qui sunt inquirete reges, affore quos nostris jam fama revolvit in oris.

Interpres ad Magos:

Principis edictu, reges, prescire venimus quo sit profectus hic vester et unde profectus.

Magi:

*Regem quesitum duce stella significatum;
munere proviso, properamus eum ve-nerando.*

Oratores reversi ad Herodem:

Reges sunt Arabum; cum trino munere natum querunt infantem, quem monstrant sidera regem.

Herodes mittens Armigerum pro Magis:

*Ante venire jube, quo possim singula scire:
qui sunt, cur veniant, quo nos rumore requirant?*

Armiger:

Quod mandas, citius, rex inclyte, proficietur.

Armiger ad Magos:

Regia vos mandata vocant: non segniter ite!

Armiger adducens Magos ad Herodem:

En Magi veniunt, et regem natum stella duce requirunt.

Herodes ad Magos:

Que sit causa vie? Qui vos, vel unde veni-tis? dicite.

Magi:

Rex est causa vie; Reges sumus ex Arabitis.

Excellent quaestors, examine into who these kings are; accost those of whose presence rumor already is running on our shore.

The interpreter to the Magi:

By command of our sovereign, O kings, we come to learn for what purpose ye journey hither, and whence ye come.

The Magi:

*Star-led, in search of the betokened king;
furnished with gifts, we hasten to worship him.*

The envoys, returning to Herod:

They are kings of the Arabs; with a triple gift they are seeking a babe new-born, whom the stars show to be a king.

Herod, sending the soldier for the Magi:

Bid them come before me that I may learn each of the following things: Who are they, Why do they come, Because of what rumor do they seek us?

The soldier [to Herod]:

What thou commandest, renowned king, shall speedily be performed.

The Soldier to the Magi:

Royal orders summon ye: come with speed!

The soldier, leading the Magi to Herod:

Behold, the Magi come, and, star-led, they seek a newly-born king.

Herod to the Magi:

*What may be the cause of your journey?
Who are ye? or whence come ye? Speak.*

The Magi:

A king is the cause of our journey. We are kings from Aïabia. Coming hither,

¹ The manuscript gives Leti inquisitores; but on the score of both metre and sense this reading seems to be corrupt. I have therefore adopted the emendation proposed by Du Ménil.

Huc venientes querimus en regem regnantibus imperitantem, quem natum mundo lactat judaica virgo.

Herodes ad Magos:

Regem, quem queritis, natum esse quo signo didicistis?

Magi:

Illum natum esse didicimus in Oriente, stella monstrante.

Herodes:

Illum regnare creditis, dicite nobis?

Magi:

Illum regnare fatentes, cum mysticis muneribus de terra longinqua adorare venimus, ternum Deum venerantes tribus cum muneribus.

Tunc ostendant munera. Primus dicat:

Auro regem.

Secundus:

Thure Deum.

Tertius:

Myrrha mortalem.

Tunc Herodes imperet Symistis qui cum eo sedent in habitu juvenili, ut adducant Scribas qui in diversorio parati sunt barbati:

Vos, mei Symiste, legis-peritos ascite ut dicant in Prophetis quid sentiant ex his.

Symiste ad Scribas, et adducant eos cum libris Prophetarum:

Vos, legis-periti, ad regem vocati, cum Prophetarum libris properando venite.

we seek, lo, a king reigning over the rulers, whom, newly-born into the world, a Jewish virgin is suckling.

Herod to the Magi:

By what sign did you learn that the king whom ye seek was born?

The Magi:

We learned in the East that he was born, by the evidence of the star.

Herod:

Do ye believe that he reigns? Tell us.

The Magi:

Confessing that he reigns, we are come with mystic gifts from a far country to worship him, paying homage to the Triune God with three gifts.

Then let them show the gifts. Let the first say:

By gold a king [is meant].

The second:

By frankincense, a God.

The third:

By myrrh, a mortal.

Then let Herod order the companions who are sitting with him in the garb of young gallants to bring the scribes, who, with beards on, are ready in a room.

You, my companions, order the men learned in the law to tell us what they find in the Prophets concerning these things.

The companions, to the scribes; and let them bring them with the books of the Prophets:

Ye men learned in the law, summoned before the king, come in haste, with the books of the Prophets.

Postea Herodes interroget Scribas, dicens:

O vos, Scribe interrogati, dicite, si quid de hoc Puero scriptum videritis in libro.

Tunc Scribe Duo revolvant librum, et tandem, inventa quasi prophetica, dicant:

Vidimus, domine, in Prophetarum lincis, nasci Christum in Bethleem Jude, civitate David; Propheta sic vaticinante.

Et ostendentes cum digito, Regi incredulo tradant librum.

Chorus:

Bethleem non es minima, [etc.]

Tunc Herodes, visa prophetica, furore accensus, projiciat librum; at Filius ejus, audito tumultu, procedat pacificaturus patrem, et stans salutet eum:

*Salve, pater inclyte;
Salve, Rex egregie,
Qui ubique imperas, Sceptra tenens regia.*

Herodes:

*Fili amantissime,
Digne laudis munere,
Laudis pompam regie
Tuo gerens nomine,*

*Rex est natus fortior
Nobis et potentior.
Vereor ne solio
Nos extrahet regio.*

Tunc Filius despective loquens de Christo, offerat se ad vindictam, dicens:

*Contra illum regulum,
Contra natum parvulum,
Jube, pater, filium
Hoc inire prelium.*

Then let Herod inquire of the scribes, saying:

O ye scribes, being asked, tell me if ye see anything concerning this boy written in the book.

Then let two scribes turn over the leaves of the book, and at last, as if having found the prophecy, let them say:

We see, lord, in the lines of the Prophets, that the Christ is born in Bethlehem of Judea, in the city of David; the Prophet foretells thus.

And pointing with the finger, let them hand over the book to the incredulous king.

The choir:

Thou, Bethlehem, art not the least, etc.¹

Then let Herod, having seen the prophecy, kindled with rage, hurl the book to the floor; but let his son, hearing the tumult, advance to calm his father, and, standing, salute him:

*Hail, renowned father!
Hail, illustrious king,
Who rulest everywhere,
Holding the royal sceptre!*

Herod:

*Most beloved son,
Worthy of the tribute of praise,
Bearing in thy name
The pomp of regal glory,*

*A king is born stronger Than we, and more powerful
I fear lest he shall drag us
From our royal throne.*

Then let the son, speaking contemptuously of Christ, offer himself as a champion, saying:

*Against that petty king,
Against the new-born babe,
Bid, O father, thy son
To begin this combat.*

Tunc demum dimittat Herodes Magos ut inquirant de Puero, et coram eis spondeat regi nato, dicens:

Ite, et de Puero diligenter investigate; et, invento, redeuntes michi renunciate, ut et ego veniens adorem eum.

Magis egredientibus, precedat stella eos, que nondum in conspectu Herodis apparuit. Quam ipsi sibi mutuo ostendentes, procedant. Qua visa, Herodes et Filius minentur cum gladiis.

Magi:

Ecce stella in Oriente previsa; Iterum precedit nos lucida.

Interim Pastores, redeuntes a presepe, veniant gaudentes et cantantes in cundo:

O Regem celi! [etc.]

Ad quos Magi:

Quem vidistis?

Pastores:

Secundum quod dictum est nobis ab Angelo de Puero isto, invenimus infantem panis involutum et positum in presepio, in medio duum animalium.

Postea Pastoribus abeuntibus, Magi procedant post stellam usque ad presepe, cantantes:

*Quem non prevalent propria magnitudine
Celum, terra atque maria lata capere*

De virgineo natus utero, Ponitur in presepio.

*Sermo cecinit quem vaticinus,
Stat simul bos et asinus.*

Sed oritur stella lucida,

Prebitum Domino obsequia

Quem Balaam ex judaica

Nasciturum dixerat prosapia.

Hec nostrorum oculos fulguranti lumine prestinxit lucida,

Then at last let Herod send forth the Magi that they may seek out the boy; and let him, before them, vow allegiance to the new-born king, saying:

Go ye, and search out carefully concerning the boy; and when ye have found him, bring me word as ye return, that I also may come and worship him.

As the Magi are departing, let the star go before them, which has not yet appeared in the sight of Herod. Let them proceed, pointing it out to each other in turn. Having seen this, let Herod and his son menace with their swords.

The Magi:

Behold, the star already seen in the East Again leads us on, shining brightly.

Meanwhile let the shepherds, returning from the manger, come rejoicing and singing on their way:

O king of heaven! etc.

To whom the Magi:

Whom have ye seen?

The shepherds:

According to what was told us by the Angel concerning that boy, we found the babe wrapped in swaddling-clothes and lying in a manger between two beasts.

Then, the shepherds having gone out, let the Magi proceed on their way following the star up to the manger, singing:

*He whom heaven, earth, and the wide seas
Could not contain in their own magnitude,*

*Born from the womb of a virgin,
Is lying in a manger.*

He whom prophetic speech foretold Stands together with an ox and an ass.

*But the bright star arises
To offer homage to the Lord,*

*Who, Balaam said,
Would be born of Jewish stock.*

This bright star has blinded our eyes with its dazzling light,

Et nos ipsos provide ducens ad cunabula resplendens fulgida.

Tunc Obstetrices, videntes Magos, alloquantur:

Qui sunt hii qui, stella duce, nos adeuntes, inaudita ferunt?

Magi:

Nos sumus quos cernitis, reges Tharsis et Arabum et Saba, dona ferentes Christo nato, Regi, Domino, quem, stella ducente, adorare venimus.

Obstetrices ostendentes Puerum:

Ecce, puer adest quem queritis. Jam properate et adorate, quia ipse est redemptio mundi.

Magi:

*Salve, Rex seculorum!
Salve, Deus deorum!
Salve, salus mortuorum!*

Tunc proidentes Magi adorent Puerum et offerant. Primus dicat:

Suscipe, Rex, aurum, regis signum.

Secundus:

Suscipe myrrham, signum sepulture.

Tertius:

Suscipe thus, tu vere Deus.

Istis factis, Magi incipiant dormire ibi, ante presepe, donec Angelus desuper ap-parens, moneat in somnis ut redeant in regionem suam per aliam viam. Angelus
dicat:

Impleta sunt omnia que prophetice scripta sunt. Ite, viam remeantes aliam, nec delatores tanti regis puniendi eritis.

The gleaming brilliance prudently leading us to the cradle.

Then let the midwives, seeing the Magi,
say:

Who are these, who, star-led, approaching us, bear strange things?

The Magi:

We whom ye see are the Kings of Tharsis, and of Arabia, and of Saba, bearing gifts to the new-born Christ, the king, the Lord, whom we, led by a star, are come to worship.

The midwives, showing the boy:

*See, here is the boy whom ye seek. Now hasten and adore him, for he is the re-

The Magi:

*Hail, king of the ages!
Hail, God of gods!
Hail, salvation of the dead!*

Then let the Magi, falling prostrate on the ground, worship the boy, and make their offerings. Let the first say:

Receive, O king, gold, the sign of a king

The second:

Receive myrrh, the sign of thy sepulture.

The third:

Receive frankincense, thou very God.

These things having been done, let the Magi fall asleep there before the manger while an angel, appearing from above, advises them in dreams to return to their country by another way. Let the angel
say:

All things are fulfilled which were written by the prophets. Returning, go another way, and ye will not be inform-ers to bring punishment on so great a king.

Magi cvigilantes:

Deo gratias! Surgamus ergo, visione moniti angelica, et, calle mutato, lateant Herodem que vidimus de Puero.

Tunc Magi abeuntes per aliam viam, non vidente Herode, cantent:

*O admirabile commercium!
Creator omnium.*

Venientes choro dicentes:

*Gaudete, fratres, Christus nobis natus est:
Deus homo factus est.*

Tunc Cantor incipiat:

Te Deum.

Sic finit.

The Magi, awakening:

*Praise be to God! Let us arise, then, warned by the vision of the angel, and,
by changing our road, let us keep hidden from Herod what we have seen concerning the boy.*

Then let the Magi, departing by another way without being seen of Herod, sing:

*O wonderful meeting!
The creator of all things.*

Coming to the choir, let them say:

*Rejoice, brethren! Christ is born to us!
God is made man!*

Then let the cantor begin:

*Te Deum.*¹

Thus it ends.

¹ The presence of the Te Deum shows that the play was acted immediately before the conclusion of the Matin service.

PROPHETÆ¹

[Christmas.]

ORDO PROPHETARUM:

Ysaïas, barbatus, dalmatica indutus, stola rubea per medium verticis ante et retro dependente.¹

Jheremias, similiter absque stola.

Daniel, adolescens, veste splendida indutus.

Moyses, cum dalmatica, barbatus, tabulas legis ferens.

David, regio habitu.

Abacuc, barbatus, curvus, gibosus.

Elisabeth, femineo habitu, pregnans.

Johannes Baptista, pilosa veste et longis capillis, barbatus, palmam tenens.

Virgilius, cum cornu et calamo, edera coronatus, scriptorium tenens.

Nabugodonosor, regio habitu, superbo incessu.

Sibilla, veste feminea, decapillata, edera coronata, insanienti simillima.

Symeon, barbatus, capa serica indutus, palmam tenens.

Balaam, super asinam, curvus, barbatus, palmam tenens, calcaribus urgens.

² I have inserted this direction from the very similar play at Rouen, which thus introduces the same hymn, Gloriosi et famosi.

THE ORDER OF THE PROPHETS:

Isaiah, bearded, clothed in a dalmatic, with a red stole hanging halfway down before and behind.

Jeremiah, in like fashion, except for the stole.

Daniel, a young man, wearing gorgeous clothes.

Moses, with a dalmatic, bearded, bearing the tables of the law.

David, in royal habit.

Habakkuk, bearded, stooping, hunch-backed.

Elizabeth, in female attire; pregnant.

John the Baptist, with a shaggy cloak and with long hair, bearded, holding a palm.

Virgil, with an ink-horn and a candlestick, crowned with ivy, holding a quill pen.

Nebuchadnezzar, in royal habit, with a proud mien.

Sibyl, in female dress, shorn of hair, crowned with ivy, very much like one insane.

Simeon, bearded, wearing a silken cape, holding a palm.

Balaam, upon an ass, bent, bearded, holding a palm, plying his spurs.

[After Tierce, the Prophets having been arranged in their order . . .¹ let the procession advance from the door, and let two clerics of the lower row, in copes, lead the procession, singing these verses:]

¹ The words omitted from this stage direction of the Rouen text are: "a furnace having been set up in the middle of the nave of the church, with linen and flax." The furnace was used in connection with a little play which grew up about Nebuchadnezzar. The play does not appear in the present text, although a parallel may be found in the case of Simeon.

[Tunc processio in medio ecclesie stet, et sex Judei sint ibi parati, et ex altera parte sex Gentiles.]²

Duo Cantores: '

*Omnes gentes Congaudentes
Dent cantus letitie!
Deus homo
Fit de domo
David, natus hodie.*

Ad Judeos:

*O Judei,

[Duo] Appellatores:

Isaias, verum qui scis, Veritatem cur non dicis?

¹ The manuscript as reproduced by Chevalier has habeamus; I have changed this to aveamus on the authority of another text of the hymn. The uses of the initial h, and of b for v, are common.

² Added from the Rouen text.

*Celebrating
The festival
Of the glorious
And renowned king,
Let us rejoice!
Proclaiming his advent,
As the port of life
Given to us
Let us hail him!
Lo the king
Giving to the whole world
A new law,
Let us tell forth!*

[Then let the procession stand in the middle of the church, and let six Jews be ready there, and on the other side six Gentiles.]

The two singers:

*Let all races,
Rejoicing together,
Sing songs of gladness!
A God-man,
Sprung from the house of David,
Is born to-day.*

To the Jews:

*O Jews,
Who denied the "Word" of God Become man,
Hear in succession
The testimonies of your law
And of your king.*

To the Gentiles:

*And you, O Gentiles, Not believing
That the Virgin had given birth,
Banish the darkness
On the evidences
Of your own law.*

The two summoners:

*Isaiah, thou who knowest the truth,
Why dost thou not declare truth?*

Isaias:

*Est necesse Virgam Jesse
De radice provchi,
Flos deinde Surget inde,
Qui est Filius Dei.*

Duo Appellatores:

Iste cetus, etc.

Item Chorus:

Quod Judea, etc.

Duo Appellatores:

Daniel, indica Voce prophetica Facta dominica.

Daniel:

*Sanctus sanctorum veniet,
Et unctio deficiet.*

Duo Appellatores:

Iste cetus, etc.

Isaiah:

*It is necessary
That a scion from the root of Jesse Be exalted;
A flower, then,
Will spring thence,
Who is the Son of God.*

The two summoners:

*Let this gathering
Chant in gladness!
Let ancient error
Be condemned!*

The whole choir:

*That Judea, the guilty,
Is destroyed,
This choir
Is rejoiced.*

The two summoners:

Approach, Jeremiah, Speak thy prophecies of the Christ.

Jeremiah:

*Thus it is:
This is Our God.*

The two summoners:

Let this gathering, etc.

Next, the choir:

That Judea, etc.

The two summoners:

*Daniel, declare
With prophetic voice
The deeds of the Lord.*

Daniel:

*The Saint of Saints shall come,
And the oil of anointing will be wanting.*

The two summoners:

Let this gathering, etc.

Chorus:

Quod Judea, etc.

[Duo] Appellatores:

Dic tu, Moyses legislator, Quis sit Christus et Salvator.

Moises:

*Prophetam accipietis
Tanquam me hunc audietis.*

Duo Appellatores:

Iste cetus, etc.

Chorus:

Quod Judea, etc.

[Duo] Appellatores:

Dic, tu David, de nepote Causas que sunt tibi note.

David:

*Universus

Duo Appellatores:

Iste cctus, etc.

Chorus:

Quod Judea, etc.

[Duo] Appellatores:

Abacuc, regis celestis Nunc ostende quod sis testis.

Abacuc:

*Opus tuum
Inter duum
Latus animalium
Ut cognovi,
Mox expavi Metu mirabilium.*

The choir:

That Judea, etc.

The two summoners:

*Say thou, Moses, the law-giver,
Who this Christ and Savior is.*

Moses:

*Ye will receive a Prophet;
And ye will hear him just as ye hear me.¹*

The two summoners:

Let this gathering, etc.

The choir:

That Judea, etc.

The two summoners:

*Declare thou, David, concerning thy descendant
The things which are known unto thee.*

David:

*Every king, Converted,
Shall worship the Lord,
To whom Shall be subject
The whole race of man.*

The two summoners:

Let this gathering, etc.

The choir:

That Judea, etc.

The two summoners:

Habakkuk, now show that thou Art a witness of the heavenly king.

Habakkuk:

*When I perceived Thy deed [of incarnation?]
Between the flanks
Of two beasts,²
I was straightway terrified
With fear of thy wondrous works.*¹ See Deuteronomy, xviii, 15, 18, 19.² See Habakkuk, iii, 2. Saint Jerome gives the reading: "Domine, opus tuum; in medio annorum ritifica illud," and this is followed in the authorized version; but the Alexandrian text has: "Εν μέσσοις δυνάμεων γυνωσθήσῃ" which is obviously the source of the hymn quoted above.

Duo [Appellatores]:

Iste cetus, etc.

Chorus:

Quod Judea, etc.

[Duo] Appellatores:

*Illud, Elisabeth, in medium
De Domino profer eloquium.*

Elisabeth:

*Quid est rei
Quod me mei
Mater regis visitat?
Nam ex eo
Ventre meo
Letus infans palpitat.*

Duo [Appellatores]:

Iste cetus, etc.

Chorus:

Quod Judea, etc.

Item Duo [Appellatores]:

*Da, Baptista,
Ventricis cista
Clausus,
Quos dedisti
Causa Christi
Plausus.
Cui dedisti gaudium Profer et testimonium.*

Johannes:

*Venit talis Sotularis
Cujus non sum etiam
Tam benignus
Ut sim dignus Solvete corrigiam.*

Duo [Appellatores]:

Iste cetus, etc.

Chorus:

Quod Judea, etc.

The two summoners:

Let this gathering, etc.

The choir:

That Judea, etc.

The two summoners:

*Elisabeth, now recite in public
That declaration concerning the Lord.*

Elisabeth:

*What is the reason
That the mother
Of my king visits me?
For, upon that,
Within my womb
The babe leaps joyfully.*

The two summoners:

Let this gathering, etc.

The choir:

That Judea, etc.

Next, the two summoners:

*O Baptista
Shut up within the chest
Of that womb,
Repeat the eulogy
Which thou utterdest
On account of Christ.
To him, for whom thou once expressed joy,
Offer now also testimony.*

John:

*There comes one, such that,
Of his shoes,
I am not even So good
As to be worthy
To unloose the latchet.*

The two summoners:

Let this gathering, etc.

The choir:

That Judea, etc.

The two summoners:

*Declare, O Balaam, the descent of the Lord
From Jewish stock.*

Balaam:

*There shall come forth out of Jacob a new star shining,
And he shall break down the hosts of the leaders,
With greatest power in the land of Moab.*

Here let an angel come with a sword. Balaam beats the ass, and when it fails to go forward, he says in anger:

¹ We observe here the tendency to dramatize the episodes with which the prophecies were connected.

*Quid moraris, asina, Obstinata bestia?
Jam scindent calcaria

Tunc Balaam, ornatus, sedens super asinam, habens calcaria, retineat lora et calcaribus pereuciat asinam; et quidam juvenis habens alas, tenens gladium, obstet asine. Quidam sub asina dicat:

Cur me cum calcaribus miseram sic leditis!

Hoc dicto, Angelus ei dicat:

Balaam, esto vaticinans.

Tunc Balaam respondeat:

Exibit ex Jacob rutilans, etc.

Vocatores:

Iste cetus, etc.

Chorus:

Quod Judea, etc.

² The conclusion I have added from the Rouen text. The celebration of the Mass immediately followed.

*Why do you stand still, ass?
Obstinate beast!
Now the spurs shall tear
Your ribs and entrails.*

A boy underneath the ass answers:

*An angel with a sword Whom I see standing in the way Keeps me from going on;
I fear lest I be killed.¹*

[The summoners:

Let this gathering, etc.

The choir:

That Judea, etc.

Which being ended, let all the prophets and the clerics in the pulpit sing these verses:

The predestination of his coming, etc.]

Then let Balaam, adorned, seated upon an ass, having spurs, pull on the reins and pierce the ass with the spurs; and let a certain youth having wings on, holding a sword, stand in the way of the ass. Let some one under the ass say:

Why do you thus wound wretched me with spurs?

This spoken, let the angel say to him:

Cease to carry out the commands of King Balak.

The summons to Balaam:

Balaam, be prophetic.

Then let Balaam answer:

There shall come forth out of Jacob, etc.

The summoners:

Let this gathering, etc.

The choir:

That Judea, etc.

LITURGICAL PLAYS DEALING WITH MISCELLANEOUS
BIBLICAL STORIES, AND WITH THE LEGENDS OF THE SAINTS

CONVERSIO BEATI PAULI APOSTOLI¹

[Festival of the Conversion of St. Paul.]

Ad representandam Conversionem beati Pauli apostoli, paretur in competenti loco, quasi Jerusalem, quedam sedes, et super eam Princeps sacerdotum. Paretur et alia sedes, et super eam juvenis quidam in similitudine Sauli; habeatque secum ministros armatos. Ex alia vero parte, aliquantulum longe ab his sedibus, sint paratæ quasi in Damasco due sedes; in altera quarum sedeat vir quidam nomine Judas, et in altera Princeps Synagoge Damasci. Et inter has duas sedes sit paratus lectus, in quo jaceat vir quidam in similitudine Ananie.

His ita paratis, dicat Saulus ministris suis:

*Propalare vobis non valco
Quam ingenti michi sunt odio
Christicole, qui per fallaciam Totam istam seducunt patriam.*

*Ite ergo, ne tardaveritis,
Et quoscunque tales poteritis
Invenire, vi comprehendite; Comprehensos vinctos adducite.*

For representing the conversion of the blessed apostle Paul, let there be prepared in a suitable place, as if it were Jerusalem, a seat,¹ and upon it the High Priest. Let there be prepared also another seat, and upon it a young man in the likeness of Saul; and let him have with him armed attendants. On the other side, somewhat removed from these seats, let there be, as it were in Damascus, two seats prepared; in one of which let there be seated a man called Judas, and in the other, the High Priest of the Synagogue of Damascus. And between these two seats let there be a bed prepared, in which let a man lie impersonating Ananias.

These things thus made ready, let Saul say to his attendants:

*I am quite unable to reveal to you How monstrously odious to me are the Christians,
Who by means of deceit
Are seducing this entire nation.*

*Go, therefore, delay not,
And all such persons ye can find Seize by force.
Those whom ye have seized, bring hither bound.*

¹ In addition to the liturgical plays dealing with the story of Christ (the plan and history of man's salvation) there grew up in the church miscellaneous plays on Biblical themes acted by the clerics between the services. Doubtless they arose in imitation of the Sepulchrum, the Pastores, and the Magi, for in general form and style they follow these earlier plays. Hilarius (fl. 1125) is known to be the author of a Suscitatio Lazari and a Daniel. We have an allusion in the eleventh century to a Convivium Herodis (dealing, probably, with John the Baptist and Herod), and to an Elisaeus. From Limoges comes a twelfth-century sponsus dealing with the wise and foolish virgins; and from Kloster Vorau in Styria a twelfth-century fragment of an Isaac and Rebecca. In a thirteenth-century Fleury manuscript we have a Lazarus and a Daniel, as well as the Conversio Beati Pauli Apostoli here printed. In England, unfortunately, we have no early Latin texts preserved; but we do have the later developments from these in such plays as The Conversion of Saint Paul and Saint Mary Magdalen. I have based the text of the Conversio on that of E. de Coussemaker, Drames liturgiques du Moyen Age, 1861, p. 210, who gives the music as well. In the present reprint, all the lines that appear in italic type were set to music in the manuscript. See The Acts of the Apostles, ix, 1-31. The play was doubtless acted on the Festival of The Conversion of St. Paul, January 25.

Hoc audientes Ministri abeant, et, cum redierint, duos sumptos ad Dominum suum conducant, dicentes:

*Christicolas multos invenimus, Et ex illis retinimus;
In Damascum fugerunt alii Seductores hujus consortii.*

Tunc Saulus quasi iratus surgat, et ad Principem Sacerdotum eat; cumque ad eum veniat, dicat:

*Vestre michi dentur epistole
In Damascum, ubi Christicole
Blandis verbis sue fallacie Gentem hujus seducunt patrie.*

Tunc Princeps Sacerdotum det ei aliquid breve sigillatum et dicat:

*Trado vobis meas epistolas
In Damascum contra Christicolas:
Evadere ne dimiseritis Christicolas quos invenietis.*

(Tunc vox ex alto:)

*Saule! Saule! quid me persequeris?
Vidi mala que meis feceris.
Quem dilexi cur noces populo?
Recalcitres nequaquam stimulo.*

Hoc audito, Saulus, quasi semi-mortuus in terram cadat, et jam non cadens, dicat:

*Quid sic faris? Quis es tu, Domine?
Cur me meo privasti lumine?
Quando tuum affixi populum?
Quis es, et quod tibi vocabulum?*

Dominus:

*Jesus vocor, quem tu persequeris,
Cujus sepe servos afflixeris.*

Upon hearing this, let the attendants go out; and when they have returned, let them bring to their lord two whom they have taken, saying:

*We have found many Christians,
And some of them we have bound.
To Damascus have fled other seducers Belonging to this fellowship.*

Then let Saul rise up as in anger, and let him go towards the High Priest; and having come to him, let him say:

*Let letters of thine be given me
To Damascus, where the Christians
With the enticing words of their false doctrine
Are beguiling the people of this nation.*

Then let the High Priest give him some brief letter, and let him say:

*I deliver to thee my letters
To Damascus against the Christians.
Suffer not to escape
The Christians whom thou shalt find.*

(Then a voice from aloft:)

*Saul! Saul! why persecutest thou me?
I have seen the evil which thou hast done
my disciples,
Why dost thou afflict the people which I have chosen?
In nowise canst thou kick against the pricks!*

Having heard this, let Saul, as if half-dead, fall to the ground; and when he has done falling,¹ let him say:

*Why speakest thou thus? Who art thou,
Lord?
Why hast thou deprived me of my sight?
When have I afflicted thy people?
Who art thou? And what is thy name?*

The Lord:

I am called Jesus, whom thou persecutest, Whose disciples thou hast often afflicted.

¹ So I have translated et jam non cadens (literally "and now not falling"). I assume that the actor staggered, with his arms protecting his eyes, before finally falling to the ground.

Surgens tamen urbem ingredi Et audies quid debes facere.

Tunc resurgat Saulus, cumque homines sui viderint eum excecatum, apprehendant eum et ducant in Damascum ad domum Jude. Tunc veniat Dominus ad Ananiam, et dicat:

*Anania, surge quam propere, Atque Jude domum ingredi.
Te expectat vir, Saulus nomine;
Dices ei que debet facere.*

Ananias:

*De hoc Saulo audiivi plurima;
Fecit tuis mala quam maxima;
Si quem videt qui tibi serviat, Semper furit ut eum destruat.*

*Hic princeps habet epistolas
Ut occidat omnes Christicolas:
His de causis hunc Saulum timeo,
Ad hunc Saulum ire non audeo.*

Tunc Dominus:

*Anania, surge velociter;
Quere Saulum fiducialiter:
Ecce enim orat ut venias,
Et ut eum videre facias.*

*Hunc elegi meo servicio;
Hunc elegi nostro consortio;
Hunc elegi ut de me predicet Et nomen meum clarificet.*

Tunc surgens Ananias domum Jude introeat, et, cum viderit Saulum, dicat:

*Ad te, Saule, me misit Dominus Jhesus, Patris excelsi Filius,
Qui in via tibi apparuit:
Ut venirem ad te me monuit.*

*Predicabis coram principibus
Nomen ejus et coram gentibus;
Ut sis civis celestis patrie,
Multa feres pro Christi nomine.*

*But arise, go into the city,
And it shall be told thee what thou must do.*

Then let Saul arise; and when his men have seen that he has been stricken blind, let them take him by the hand and lead him into Damascus to the house of Judas. Then let the Lord come to Ananias and say:

*Ananias, arise with all haste,
And go into the house of Judas.
There awaits thee a man called Saul.
Thou shalt tell him what he must do.*

Ananias:

*I have heard many things of this Saul.
To thy disciples he hath done the utmost harm;
If he sees any one that serves thee,
Ever he rages to destroy him;*

*This lord hath letters
To put to death all Christians.
For these reasons I fear this Saul.
To this Saul I dare not go.*

Then the Lord:

*Ananias, arise quickly;
Seek Saul without fear.
Lo, indeed, he prays that thou come,
And that thou mayest make him see.*

*Him have I chosen for my service;
Him have I chosen for our fellowship;
Him have I chosen to preach concerning me,
And to make my name illustrious.*

Then let Ananias arise and enter the house of Judas; and having seen Saul, let him say:

*To thee, O Saul, the Lord Jesus,
The Son of the Heavenly Father,
Who appeared to thee on the way, hath sent
me.
He hath instructed me to come to thee.*

*Thou shalt preach his name
Before kings and before the gentiles.
That thou mayest be a citizen of the heavenly kingdom
Many things shalt thou suffer for the name
of Christ.*

Tunc surgat Saulus et quasi jam credens, et predicans alta voce, dicat:

*Cur, Judei, non respiscitis?
Veritati cur contradicistis?
Cur negatis Mariam virginem Peperisse Deum et hominem?*

*Jhesus Christus, Marie Filius, Et Deus est, et homo carnis,
Deitatem a Patre retinens Et a matre carnem suscipiens.*

Hec audiens, Princeps Synagoge Damasci ministris suis armatis dicat:

*Custodite urbis introitus, Conservate viarum exitus,
Et, quam cito Saulum videritis, Mortem ejus ne distuleritis.*

Tunc Ministri eant et querant Saulum. Quo comperto, Saulus cum discipulis suis, in sporta ab aliquo alto loco, quasi a muro, ad terram demittatur. Cum autem venerit in Jerusalem, occurrat ei vir unus, in similitudine Barnabe, qui, cum viderit Saulum, ei dicat:

*Te elegit Marie Filius, Ut sis fratrum nostrorum socius:
Nunc, ut laudes nobiscum Dominum, Veni; vide nostrum collegium.*

Ad Apostolos:

*Gaudeamus, fratres, in Domino; Colletemur de tanto socio;
Qui nunc erat lupus sevissimus,
Nunc est agnus mansuctissimus.*

Omnes Apostoli incipient:

Te Deum laudamus.

Then let Saul rise up; and, as if now believing, and preaching in a loud voice, let him say:

*Why, O Jews, come ye not to your senses?
Why do ye oppose the truth?
Why do ye deny that Mary, a virgin,
Brought forth the God and man?*

*Jesus Christ, the son of Mary,
Is both God and man of flesh,
Retaining divinity from his Father,
And receiving flesh from his mother.*

Hearing this, let the High Priest of the Synagogue of Damascus say to his armed attendants:

*Guard the entrances of the city;
Keep watch over the ways of egress;
And as soon as ye shall have seen Saul, Delay not his death.*

Then let the attendants go and seek Saul. Having learned of this, let Saul with his disciples, from some high place, as if from the wall, be let down in a basket to the ground. And when he shall have come into Jerusalem, let a man run up to him, impersonating Barnabas, who, when he has seen Saul, shall say to him:

*Thee hath the Son of Mary chosen
To be a comrade in our brotherhood.
Now, that thou mayest praise the Lord
with us,
Come; see our fellowship.*

To the Apostles:

*Brothers, let us rejoice in the Lord!
Let us rejoice together over so excellent a comrade!
He who lately was a most ferocious wolf,
Is now a most gentle lamb!*

Let all the Apostles begin:

We praise thee, O God.¹

¹ The conclusion of the text with the Te Deum laudamus shows that the play was designed for performance at the end of the Matin service.

LUDUS SUPER ICONIA SANCTI NICOLAI¹

[St. Nicholas' Day.]

Ad quem he persone sunt necessarie: persona Barbari qui commisit ei tesaurum; persona iconie; iiii^{or} vel sex latronum; Sancti Nicolai.

In primis Barbarus, rebus suis congregatis, ad ichoniam [Sancti Nicolai] veniet, et ei res suas commendans dicet:

Nicholae, quidquid possideo,
Hoc in meo misi teloneo;
Te custodem rebus adibeo,
Serva que sunt ibi.
Meis, precor, adtende precibus;
Vide nullus sit locus furibus;
Preciosis aurum cum vestibus Ego trado tibi.

Proficisci foras disposui:
Te custodem rebus imposui.
Revertenti redde quæ posui
Tua sub tutela.
Jam sum magis securus solito,
Te custode rebus inposito;
Revertenti vide ne merito
Mihi sit querela.

Illo autem profecto, fures transeuntes cum

For which these actors are necessary: the impersonator of Barbarus¹ who entrusted to it [i.e. the statue] his treasure; the impersonator of the statue; of four or six robbers; and of Saint Nicholas.

First let Barbarus, having gathered together his goods, come to the statue; and committing to it the care of his effects, he shall say:

O Nicholas, all that I possess
I have put in this my chest;
To thee I bring it as guardian of my wealth.
Protect what things are there.
Give heed, I beseech thee, to my prayers.
See to it that this be no place for thieves!
Gold and precious garments
I entrust to thee.

I have arranged to travel abroad;
I have laid upon thee the custody of my wealth;
On my return deliver back what I have placed Under thy protection.
I feel now more secure than usual,
Having set thee as guard over my effects.
See to it that on my return I have no
Worthy cause for complaint!

But upon his departure, let the thieves,

¹ Of the liturgical, or semi-liturgical plays that arose in imitation of the earlier Sepulchrum and its immediate followers, a specially popular type dealt with the stories of the saints. The earliest examples preserved were connected with the great scholastic festival held on the Eve or on the Day of St. Nicholas, December 6; indeed, we have a large group of plays dealing with this famous patron of scholars. The two earliest texts of the St. Nicholas play, very primitive in form, are contained in an eleventh-century manuscript from Hildesheim, Germany; another text is found in a twelfth-century manuscript from Einsiedeln, Germany; a thirteenth-century manuscript from Fleury furnishes us with no fewer than four. Records show that plays dealing with the stories of the saints — their lives and martyrdom, or their miraculous deeds — were very common in England; unfortunately, however, no texts have been preserved. The text of the play here printed is based on that in J. J. Champollion-Figeac, Hilarii Versus et Ludi, 1838, p. 34, from Bib. Nat. Latin MS. 11331, of the twelfth century. The author, Hilarius, is generally believed to have been an Englishman by birth, though he seems to have spent much of his life in France. Most of his verses are addressed to Englishmen; and since Barbarus, a foreigner, is made to use French, the present play may have been designed for an English rather than a French audience. At the end of the two other plays by Hilarius, contained in the same manuscript, the author directs that in case the play is performed at the Matin service the Te Deum is immediately to follow, if however, at the Vesper service, then the Magnificat (see Hilarii Versus et Ludi, pp. 33, 60). We may assume that the St. Nicholas play was likewise intended for presentation at the Matin or at the Vesper service on the Day or the Eve of St. Nicholas.

viderint hostium apertum et nullum custodem, omnia diripient, Barbarus vero rediens, non invento tesaurò, dicit:

Gravis sors et dura!

Hic reliqui plura,
Sed sub mala cura.

Des! quel damage!

Qui pert la sue chose purque n'enrage.

Hic res plusquam centum

Misi et argentum;
Sed non est inventum.

Des! quel damage!

Qui pert la sue chose purque n'enrage.

Hic reliqui mea;

Sed hic non sunt ea.

Est imago rea.

Des! quel damage!

Qui pert la sue chose purque n'enrage.

Deinde accedens ad imaginem, dicit ei:

Mea congregavi,
Tibi commendavi;
Sed in hoc erravi.

Ha! Nicholax!

Si ne me rent ma chose, tu ol comparras.

Hic res meas misi
Quas tibi commisi;
Sed eas amisi.

Ha! Nicholax!

Si ne me rent ma chose, tu ol comparras.

Sumto flagello, dicit:

Ego tibi multum Inpendebam cultum;
Nun feres inultum.

Hore t'enci,

Qu'are me rent ma chose que g'ei mis ci.

Tuum testor deum,
Te, ni reddas meum,
Flagellabo reum.

Hore t'enci,

Qu'are me rent ma chose que g'ei mis ci.

passing by, when they see the door open and no guard, plunder everything. Then let Barbarus, returning, and not finding his treasure, say:

O heavy and cruel chance!

Here have I left many things,
But under bad guardianship.

Des! quel damage!

Qui pert la sue chose, purque n'enrage? ¹

Here I placed more than a hundred

Valuables, as well as money;
But they are not to be found.

Des! quel damage!

Qui pert la sue chose, purque n'enrage? ¹

Here I left my treasures;

But here they are not.

The image is to blame!

Des! quel damage!

Qui pert la sue chose, purque n'enrage? ¹

Then approaching the statue, he shall say to it:

I assembled my riches,
I entrusted them to thee;
But in this I erred.

Ha! Nicholas!

Si ne me rent ma chose, tu ol comparras.²

Here I placed my goods,
Which I committed to thy care;
But I have lost them.

Ha! Nicholas!

Si ne me rent ma chose, tu ol comparras.²

Taking up a whip he shall say:

I expended much
Adoration upon thee;
Thou shall not go unpunished.

Hore ten ci,

Quare me rent ma chose que g'ei mis ci.³

I call thy god to witness,
Unless thou return my property
I shall scourge thee, culprit!

Hore ten ci,

Quare me rent ma chose que g'ei mis ci.³

¹ "God! what a loss! He who loses his wealth, why should he not be angry?"

² "If you do not return to me my property, you shall pay for it."

³ "Now I've got you here, so return to me my property which I placed here."

Tunc Sanctus Nicholaus, veniens ad latrones, dicit eis:

Miseri, quid facitis?
Non lingua de perditis
Erunt vobis gaudia.
Custos eram positus
Vosque sum intuitus,
Cum porta[s]tis omnia.

Flagella sustinui,
Cum ea non potui,
Ut debebam, reddere:
Verba passus aspera
Cumque verbis verbera;
Ad vos veni properere.

Reportate perdita.
Erant enim omnia
Sub mea custodia,
Que portasti, posita.

Quod si non feceritis,
Suspensi cras eritis
Crucis in patibulo.
Vestra namque turpia
Vestra latrocinia
Nunciabo populo.

*Latrones timentes omnia reportabunt.
Quibus inventis Barbarus dicit:*

Nisi visus fallitur,
Jo en ai.
Tesaurus hic cernitur.
De si grant merveile en ai.

Rediere perdita,
Jo en ai.
Nec per mea merita,
De si grant mervegle en ai.

Quam bona custodia
Jo en ai
Qua redduntur omnia!
De si grant merveile en ai.

*Tunc accedens ad imaginem et suplicans,
dicit:*

Then Saint Nicholas, coming to the robbers, shall say to them:

Wretches, what are ye doing?
Not long to you rascals
Shall be your joys!
I was placed as custodian,
And I was watching you
When ye bore all away!

I suffered a scourging
When I could not restore the things
As I should have done.
Having endured harsh words,
And, with the words, blows,
I have come swiftly to you.

Carry back the lost things;
For they were all placed Under my guard
Which ye stole away.

If this ye fail to do,
Ye shall be hanged to-morrow
On the beam of a gibbet:
For, your base deeds
And your robberies
I shall proclaim to the people.

*The frightened robbers shall carry back all;
and Barbarus, having found them, shall say:*

Unless my eyesight fails,
*Jo en ai.*¹
Here is seen my treasure!
*De si grant merveile en ai.*²

The lost things have returned,
*Jo en ai,*¹
And not by my efforts.³
*De si grant merveile en ai.*²

What an excellent guardian,
Jo en ai,
By whom all the things are returned!
De si grant merveile en ai.

*Then approaching the statue and kneeling,
let him say:*

² "By so great a miracle I have them." But perhaps we should read: "By some great miracle I have them."

³ Literally "deserts."

Suplex ad te venio,
Nicholax,
 Nam per te recipio
Tut icci que tu gardas.

Sum profectus peregre,
Nicholax
 Sed recepi integre
Tut ice[i] que tu gardas.

Mens mea convaluit,
Nicholax;
 Nichil enim defuit
De tut cei que tu gardas.

*Postea ap[p]arens ei beatus Nicholaus,
 dicit:*

Sup[p]licare mihi noli,
 Frater; inmo Deo soli,
 Ipse namque factor poli,
 Factor maris atque soli, Restauravit perditum.
 Ne sis ultra quod fuisti.
 Solum laudes nomen Christi;
 Soli Deo credas isti
 Per quem tua recepisti.
 Mihi nullum meritum.

Cui respondens Barbarus, dicit:

Hic nulla consultacio,
 Nulla erit dilacio,
 Quin ab erroris vicio
 Jam recedam.
 In Christum Dei filium, Factorem mirabilium,
 Ritum linquens gentilium,
 Ego credam.

Ipse creavit omnia,
 Celum, terram, et maria;
 Per quem erroris venia Mihi detur.
 Ipse potens et dominus
 Meum delebit facinus,
 Cujus regnum ne terminus Consequetur.

A suppliant, I come to thee,
 Nicholas;
 For by thy means I receive
*Tut icci que tu gardas.*¹

I went traveling abroad,
 Nicholas,
 But I have received intact
Tut icci que tu gardas.

My mind has become eased,
 Nicholas;
 For nothing is lacking
*De tut cei que tu gardas.*²

Then the Blessed Nicholas, appearing to him, shall say:

Do not pray to me,
 Brother, but rather to the only God,
 For he himself, the maker of the heavens,
 The maker of the sea and of the earth,
 Restored what was lost.
 Be no longer what thou hast been.
 Praise the name of Christ alone.
 Only in that God believe,
 By whom thou received thy goods.
 No merit belongs to me.

Answering him, Barbarus shall say:

Here shall be no deliberation,
 Nor shall there be any delay!
 But from the vice of error
 I shall now withdraw.
 Leaving the religion of the heathen,
 In Christ, the Son of God,
 The performer of miracles,
 I will believe.

He alone created all things,
 Heaven, earth, and the seas.
 Through him forgiveness of my error
 Will be granted unto me!
 He himself the Mighty One and the Lord
 Will blot out my sin.
 Whose kingdom shall have No end!

¹ "All those things which you guarded."

² "Of all," etc.

TRES CLERICI ¹

[St. Nicholas' Day.]

I. CLERICUS:

Nos quos causa descendit literas
 Apud gentes transmisit exteras,
 Dum sol adhuc extendit radium,
 Perquiramus nobis hospicium.

II. CLERICUS:

Jam sol equos tenet in littore,
 Quos ad praesens merget sub equore;
 Nec est nota nobis hec patria:
 Ergo quaeri debent hospicia.

III. CLERICUS:

Senem quemdam maturum moribus
 Hic habemus coram luminibus;
 Forsan, nostris compulsus precibus,
 Erit hospes nobis hospitibus.

Insimul Omnes ad SENEM dicant:

Hospes care, querendo studia
 Huc relictam venimus patriam;
 Nobis ergo prestes hospicium,
 Dum durabit hoc noctis spacium.

SENEX:

Hospitetur vos factor omnium!
 Nam non dabo vobis hospicium;
 Nam nec mea in hoc utilitas,
 Nec est ad hoc nunc oportunitas.

[SCENE I.]

[Enter three scholars on their way to the university.]

I. SCHOLAR:

Let us, whom the motive of acquiring scholarship
 Has transported among foreign peoples,
 Seek for ourselves a lodging
 While the sun still spreads its rays.

II. SCHOLAR:

The sun now holds his horses upon the shore
 Which presently he will plunge beneath the sea;
 Nor is this land known to us:
 Therefore lodgings should be sought.

[They approach the house of the OLD MAN.]

III. SCHOLAR:

A certain old man, sober in manners,
 We have here before our eyes.
 Perhaps, moved by our prayers,
 He will be host to us as his guests.

Let all say together to the OLD MAN:

Dear host, in search of schools,
 Having left our own land, we have come hither;
 Therefore give to us lodging
 While this night shall last.

THE OLD MAN:

Let the Maker of all be your host!
 For I will not give you lodging;
 For there is in this no benefit to me,
 Nor is it now convenient.

CLERICI ad VETULAM:

Per te, cara, sit impetrabile
Quod rogamus, etsi non utile:
Forsan, propter hoc beneficium
Vobis Deus donabit puerum.

MULIER ad SENEM:

Nos his dare, conjux, hospicium,
Qui sic vagant querendo studium,
Sola saltem compellat karitas:
Nec est damnum, nec est utilitas.

SESEX:

Acquiescam tuo consilio,
Et dignabor istos hospicio.

SESEX ad CLERICOS:

Accedatis, scolares, igitur;
Quod rogastis vobis conceditur.

SESEX, CLERICIS dormientibus:

Nonne vides quanta marsupia?
Est in illis argenti copia:
Hec a nobis absque infamia
Possideri posset pecunia.

VETULA:

Paupertatis onus sustulimus,
Mi marite, quamdiu viximus;
Hos si morti donare volumus, Paupertatem vitare possumus.

Evagines ergo jam gladium;
Namque potes morte jacentium,
Esse dives quamdiu vixeris;
Atque sciet nemo quod feceris.

The SCHOLARS to the OLD WOMAN:

Through thee, dear woman, may what we ask
Be attainable, even though not profitable to thee.
Perchance, because of this kindness
God will give to thee a son.

The WOMAN to the OLD MAN:

Mere charity at least, husband, compels us
To give lodging to these scholars.
Who thus wander seeking a school;
To us it means neither loss nor profit.

THE OLD MAN:

I acquiesce in thy advice,
And will deem them worthy of lodging.

The OLD MAN to the SCHOLARS:

Draw near, therefore, scholars;
What ye have asked for is granted to you.

[The scholars enter the house, lie down, and go to sleep.]

[SCENE II.]

The OLD MAN, while the scholars are sleeping:

Seest thou not how great their purses are?
There is a large quantity of money in them.
Were it not for the infamy involved
We might take possession of this wealth.

THE OLD WOMAN:

We have borne the load of poverty,
My husband, as long as we have lived;
If we are willing to put these to death,
We shall be able to escape penury.

Therefore now unsheath thy sword;
For by the death of these lying here
Thou canst be rich as long as thou livest,
And no man will know what thou hast
done.

[The OLD MAN and OLD WOMAN murder the three scholars, and conceal the bodies.]

NICOLAUS:

Peregrinus, fessus itinere,
Ultra modo non possum tendere;
Hujus ergo per noctis spacium
Michi prestes, precor, hospicium.

SENEX ad MULIEREM:

An dignabor istum hospicio,
Cara conjux, tuo consilio?

VETULA:

Hunc persona commendat nimium
Et est dignum ut des hospicium.

SENEX:

Peregrine, accede propius;

Vir videris nimis egregius:
Si vis, dabo tibi comedere;
Quicquam voles temptabo querere.

NICOLAUS, ad mensam:

Nichil ex his possum comedere;
Carnem vellem rescentem edere.

SENEX:

Dabo tibi carnem quam habeo,
Namque carne rescente careo.

NICOLAUS:

Nunc dixisti plane mendacium;
Carnem habes rescentem nimium,
Et hanc habes magna nequicia;
Quam mactari fecit pecunia.

SENEX et MULIER simul:

Misereri nostri, te petimus;
Nam te sanctum Dei cognovimus:
Nostrum scelus abominabile,
Non est tamen incondonabile.

[SCENE III.]

[*Enter SAINT NICHOLAS dressed as a traveler;
he salutes the OLD MAN and OLD WOMAN.*]

NICHOLAS:

A traveler, weary of his journey,
I cannot proceed any farther.
Therefore, for the duration of this night,
Give to me, I beg, lodging.

The OLD MAN to the WOMAN:

Shall I deem this one worthy of lodging,
Dear wife, on thy advice?

THE OLD WOMAN:

Great rank commends this man very much,
And it is fitting that thou give him lodging.

THE OLD MAN:

Traveler, draw near.

[SAINT NICHOLAS enters the house.]

Thou seemest to be a very eminent man.
If thou wisheth, I will give thee something to eat.
Whatsoever thou desirest I will try to obtain.

NICHOLAS, at the table:

I can eat none of these things.
Fresh meat would I eat.

THE OLD MAN:

I will give thee such meat as I have,
For with fresh meat I am unprovided.

NICHOLAS:

Now thou hast plainly told a lie!
Fresh meat thou hast in too great quantity,
And this thou hast by grand villainy,
Which money caused to be slaughtered.

The OLD MAN and the OLD WOMAN together:

Have mercy on us, we pray thee!
For we know thee to be a saint of God.
Our crime, though detestable,
Is, nevertheless, not unpardonable.

NICOLAUS:

Mortuorum afferte corpora,
 Et contrita sint vestra pectora!
 Hi resurgent per Dei gratiam;
 Et vos flendo queratis veniam!

Oratio SANCTI NICOLAI:

Pie Deus, cujus sunt omnia,
 Celum, tellus, aer et maria,
 Ut resurgant isti precipias,
 Et hos ad te clamantes audias!

Et post Omnis Chorus dicat:

Te Deum laudamus.

NICHOLAS:

Bring forth the bodies of the slain;
 And penitent be your hearts!
 These shall rise from the dead, through the grace of God;
 And ye, through weeping, may obtain pardon.

[The dead bodies are brought forth and placed before SAINT NICHOLAS.]

The Prayer of SAINT NICHOLAS:

Holy God, to whom belong all things,
 Heaven, earth, the air, and the seas,
 Command those to rise from the dead,
 And pardon these crying out to thee!

[The SCHOLARS come to life, SAINT NICHOLAS disappears, and the OLD MAN and OLD WOMAN are forgiven.]

And afterwards, let the whole choir sing:

Te Deum laudamus.¹

¹ The presence of this hymn shows that the play was intended for performance in the Matin service.

[St. Nicholas' Day.]

Ad representandum quomodo Sanctus Nicolaus Getron filium de manu Marmorini, regis Agarenorum, liberavit, paretur in competenti loco cum ministris suis armatis, Rex Marmorinus in alta sede, quasi in regno suo, sedens. Paretur et in alio loco Excoranda, Getronis civitas, et in ea Getron, cum consolatoribus suis, uxor ejus Euphrosina et filius eorum Adeodatus; sitque ab orientali parte civitatis Excorande, ecclesia Sancti Nicolai in qua puer rapietur.

His itaque paratis, veniant ministri Marmorini regis coram eo et dicant Omnes vel Primus ex eis:

*Salve, princeps! salve, Rex optime!
Que sit tue voluntas anime
Servis tuis ne tardes dicere;
Sumus que vis parati facere.*

Rex dicet:

*Ite ergo, ne tardaveritis,
Et quascunque gentes poteritis Imperio meo subicite:
Resistentes vobis occidite.*

Interim Getron et Euphrosina, cum multitudine clericorum, ad ecclesiam Sancti Nicolai, quasi ad ejus solemnitatem celebrandam, filium suum secum ducentes, eant. Cumque ministros regis armatos illuc venire viderint, filio suo pro timore oblitto, ad civitatem suam confugiant. Ministri vero regis, Puerum rapientes, coram regem veniant, et dicant Omnes vel Secundus ex eis:

Quod jussisti, Rex bone, fecimus;

For representing how Saint Nicholas delivered the son of Getron from the hands of Marmorinus, King of the Agareni, let there be prepared in a suitable place King Marmorinus sitting upon a high seat with his armed attendants, as though in his own kingdom. And in another place let there be prepared Excoranda, the city of Getron, and in it Getron, with his comforters, his wife Euphrosina, and their son Adeodatus; and let there be in the eastern part of the city of Excoranda the church of Saint Nicholas, in which the boy is to be seized.

And so, these things being ready, let the attendants of King Marmorinus come before him, and let them all, or the First of them, say:

*Hail, sovereign! Hail, noblest king!
Whatever may be the desire of thy heart
Delay not to inform thy servants.
We are ready to do whatsoever thou wishest.*

Let the King say:

*Go, then, without delay,
And whatsoever peoples ye can,
Bring under my rule:
Those who resist thee, kill.*

In the meanwhile let Getron and Euphrosina, leading with them their son, together with a throng of clerics, go to the church of Saint Nicholas as if for the celebration of his festival. And when they see the armed attendants of the King coming thither, let them, forgetting their son in their fear, flee together to their city. Let the attendants of the King, dragging away the boy, come into the presence of the King, and let all, or the Second of them, say:

What thou didst command, noble King, we have done.

¹ The text is based on that in E. de Coussemaker, Drames liturgiques du Moyen Age, 1861, p. 123, from a twelfth-century manuscript of the Abbey Saint-Benoît-sur-Loire. The lines here printed in italic type are set to music in the original, and the music is carefully reproduced by Coussemaker. That the play was designed for performance on St. Nicholas' Day is shown by the anthem, Copiose caritatis, at the end.

*Gentes multas vobis subegimus,
Et de rebus quas adquisivimus

Omnes dicant vel Tercius:

*Puer iste, vultu laudabilis,
Sensu prudens, genere nobilis,
Bene debet, nostro iudicio, Subjacere vestro servicio.*

Rex:

*Apolloni qui regit omnia
Semper sit laus, vobisque gracia
Qui fecistis michi tot patrias Subjugatas et tributarias!*

Rex puero:

*Puer bone, nobis edissere
De qua terra, de quo sis genere,
Cujus ritu gens tue patrie
Sunt gentiles, sive christicole?*

Puer:

*Excorande principans populo, Pater meus, Getron vocabulo,
Deum colit cujus sunt maria,
Qui fecit nos et vos et omnia.*

Rex:

*Deus meus Apollo; Deus est
Qui me fecit; verax et bonus est;
Regit terras, regnat in ethere.
Illi soli debemus credere.*

Puer:

*Deus tuus mendax et malus est;
Stultus, cecus, surdus et mutus est;
Talem Deum non debes colere,
Qui non potest seipsum regere.*

Rex:

*Noti, Puer, talia dicere;
Deum meum noli despiciere:
Nam si eum iratum feceris, Evadere nequaquam poteris.*

*Many peoples we have made subject unto
thee;*

*And from the spoils we have acquired
We bring to thee this boy.*

Let all, or the Third, say:

*This boy, beautiful of face,
Knowing of mind, high-born of race,
Well deserves, in our opinion,
To be taken into thy service.*

The King:

*Now to Apollo, who governs all things,
Be praise forever! And to you, thanks,
Who have for me made so many lands
Subject and tributary.*

The King to the boy:

*Good boy, declare to us
Of what land, of what family thou art,
Of what religion the people of thy country;
Are they pagans, or Christians?*

The boy:

*My father, Getron by name,
Ruling the people of Excoranda,
Serves the God to whom belong the seas,
Who made us, and you, and all things.*

The King:

*Apollo is my god; he is the god
Who made me; true and good he is;
He rules over the lands, he reigns in the firmament.
In him alone ought we to believe.*

The boy:

*Thy god is false and evil;
Foolish, blind, deaf, and mute he is!
Such a god thou ought not to worship,
Who is unable to rule himself.*

The King:

*Boy, do not say such things;
Do not despise my god:
For, if thou makest him angry,
In no wise canst thou escape.*

Interea Euphrosina, comperta oblivione filii, ad ecclesiam Sancti Nicolai redit; cumque filium suum quesitum non invenit, lamentabili voce:

*Heu! Heu! Heu! michi misere!
Quid agam? quid queam dicere?
Quo peccato merui perdere Natum meum, et ultra vivere?*

*Cur me pater infelix genuit?
Cur me mater infelix abluvit?
Cur me nutrix lactare debuit?
Mortem michi quare non prebuit?*

Consolatrices exeant et dicant:

*Quid te juvat hec desolatio?
Noli flere pro tuo filio;
Summi Patris exora Filium, Qui conferat ei consilium.*

Euphrosina, quasi non curans consolationem carum:

*Fili care, fili carissime,
Fili, mee magna pars anime,
Nunc es nobis causa tristitie Quibus eras causa letitie!*

Consolatrices:

*Ne desperes de Dei gracia,
Cujus magna misericordia
Istum tibi donavit puerum;
Tibi reddet aut hunc aut alium.*

Euphrosina:

*Anxiatus est in me spiritus;
Cur moratur meus interitus?
Cum te, fili, non possum cernere Mallet mori quam diu vivere.*

Consolatrices:

*Luctus, dolor et desperacio
Tibi nocent nec prosunt filio;
Se1 pro eo de tuis opibus
Da clericis atque pauperibus.*

In the meanwhile Euphrosina, having discovered that they had forgotten their son, returns to the church of Saint Nicholas; and when, after searching for her son, she fails to find him, let her say in a lamenting voice:

*Alas! Alas! Alas! O wretched me!
What shall I do? What can I say?
For what sin have I deserved to lose
My son, and yet live after.*

*Why did my hapless father beget me?
Why did my hapless mother bear me?
Why should my nurse have suckled me?
Why did she not grant death to me?*

Let the comforters go out [to her] and say:

*In what does this grief avail thee?
Weep not for thy son:
Pray to the Son of the Heavenly Father,
That he bring succor to him.*

Euphrosina, as if not regarding their consolation:

*O dear son! most dear son!
O son, the greatest part of my soul!
Now thou art the cause of grief to us
To whom thou wert the cause of joy!*

The comforters:

*Despair not of God's grace,
Whose great mercy
Hath given to thee this boy;
He will restore to thee either this one or another.*

Euphrosina:

*My spirit is troubled within me.
Why does my death delay?
If, O son, I cannot see thee
I could prefer death to long life.*

The comforters:

*Sorrow, grief, and despair
Injure thee, and do not aid thy son.
But for him give of thy means
To the clerics and to the poor.*

*Nicolai roga clemenciam
Ut exoret misericordiam
Summi Patris pro tuo filio, Nec falletur tua peticio.*

Euphrosina:

*Nicolae, pater sanctissime, Nicolae, Deo carissime,
Si vis ut te colam diucius,
Fac ut meus redeat filius!*

*Qui salvasti multos in pelago
Et tres viros a mortis vinculo, Preces mei precantis audias,
Et ex illo me certam facias!*

*Non comedam carnem diucius Neque vino fruar ulterius, Nullo modo letabor amplius,
Donec meus redibit filius.*

Getron:

*Cara soror, lugere desine;
Tuae tibi nil prosunt lacrimae;
Sed oretur pro nostro filio Summi Patris propitiatio.*

*In crastino erit festivas Nicolai, quem christianitas
Tota debet devote colere, Venerari et benedicere.*

*Audi ergo mea consilia:
Adeamus ejus solemniam;
Conlaudemus ejus magnalia;
Deprececur ejus suffragia!*

*Dei forsan est inspiratio Que me monet pro nostro filio;
Est oranda cum Dei gracia, Nicolai magna clemencia.*

Tunc resurgant, ad ecclesiam Sancti Nicolai eant; in quam cum introierint, tendat manus suas ad celum Euphrosina, et dicat:

*Ask the mercy of Nicholas,
That he may, by petition, obtain the pity
Of the Heavenly Father for thy son;
And thy prayer will not fail.*

Euphrosina:

*O Nicholas, most holy father!
O Nicholas, most dear to God!
If thou dost wish that I cherish thee longer,
Bring it about that my son may return!*

*O thou, who hast saved many on the sea,
And delivered three men from the bond of death,¹
Hear the prayers of me imploring,
And give me tidings of him.*

*I will no longer eat meat,
Neither will I take delight in wine further,
I will rejoice no more in unmixed wine,
Until my son shall return.*

Getron:

*Dear wife, cease to grieve;
Thy tears avail thee nought;
But let there be sought for our son
The propitiation of the Heavenly Father.*

*On the morrow will be the festival
Of Nicholas, whom all Christianity Ought devotedly to worship,
To revere, and to praise.*

*Hear, therefore, my plan:
Let us go to his feast;
Let us together highly extol his wonderful deeds;
Let us beseech his assistance!*

*Perchance it is the inspiration of God
Which advises me on behalf of our son;
The great mercy of Nicholas
Must be sought with the grace of God.*

Then let them rise up and go to the church of St. Nicholas; when they have entered it, let Euphrosina lift her hands towards heaven, and say:

¹ Apparently an allusion to the miracle by which Nicholas restored the three scholars to life; see pp. 59-62.

*Summe regum Rex omnium,
Rex unicolor remorientium,
Nostrum nobis fac redi filium,
Vite nostre solum solacium!*

*Audi preces ad te clamantium,
Qui in mundum misisti Filium
Qui nos cives celorum faceret Et inferni claustris eriperet!*

*Deus Pater, cujus potencia Bona bonis ministrat omnia, Peccatricem me noli spernere,
Sed me meum natum fac cernere!*

*Nicolae, quem Sanctum dicimus,
Si sunt vera que de te credimus,
Tua nobis et nostro filio Erga Deum prosit oratio!*

His dictis, exeat ab ecclesia et eat in domum suam, et paret mensam, et super mensam panem et vinum, unde clerici et pauperes reficiantur. Quibus vocatis et comedere incipientibus, dicat Marmorinus ministris suis:

*Dico vobis, mei carissimi,
Quod ante hanc diem non habui
Famem tantam quantam nunc habeo;
Famem istam ferre non valeo.*

*Vos igitur quo vesci debeam Preparate, ne mortem subeam.
Quid tardatis? Ite velocius;
Quod manducem parate cicius.*

Ministri euntes afferant cibos et dicant Regi:

*Ad preceptum tuum paravimus
Cibos tuos, et hic adtulimus;
Nunc, si velis poteris propere
Qua gravaris famem extinguere.*

*Supreme King of all kings, King of the only ones who die a second
death,¹*

*Effect for us the return of our son,
The only solace of our lives!*

*Hear our prayers as we cry unto thee,
Who sent into the world thy Son
That he should make us citizens of heaven
And should snatch us from the gates of Hell.*

*O God the Father, whose power Provides to good men all things good,
Do not spurn me, a sinner,
But make me to see my son.*

*O Nicholas, whom we call Saint,
If those things are true which we believe of
thee,
May thy prayer to God be of benefit
To us and to our son.*

With these words, let her go out from the church and go to her home, and prepare a table, and on the table bread and wine, from which the clerics and the poor may refresh themselves. When they have been summoned and are beginning to eat, let King Marmorinus say to his attendants:

*I declare unto you, my most beloved,
That before this day I have not had
So great a hunger as now I have;
This hunger I am unable to endure!*

*Therefore prepare ye what I should eat,
Lest I suffer death.
Why are ye slow? Go more swiftly!
Quickly provide something that I may devour.*

Let the attendants, going, bring food, and let them say to the King:

*According to thy command we have prepared Thy food, and have brought it here.
Now, if thou wilt, thou canst speedily
Banish the hunger with which thou art annoyed.*

¹ If the Latin is correct, the allusion may be to such persons as Lazarus who were raised from the dead by divine power. But possibly the line is a corruption of Rex vivorum et morientium.

His dictis, afferatur aqua, et lavet manus suas Rex, et incipiens comedere, dicat:

*Esurivi et modo sitio;
Vinum michi dari precipio;
Quod afferat michi quam cicius Meus Getronis filius.*

Puer itaque, hoc audiens, suspiret graviter et secum dicat:

*Heu! Heu! Heu! michi misero!
Vite mee finem desidero;
Vivus enim quamdiu fuero, Liberari nequaquam potero.*

Rex puero:

*Pro qua causa suspiras taliter?
Suspirare te vidi fortiter.
Quid est pro quo sic suspiraveris?
Quid te nocet, aut unde quereris?*

Puer:

*Recordatus mee miserie,
Mei patris et mee patrie
Suspirare cepi et gemere,
Et intra me talia dicere:*

*Annus unus expletus hodie, Postquam servus factus miserie,
Potestati subjectus regie,
Fines hujus intravi patrie.*

*Heu! miselle, quid ita cogitas?
Quid te juvat cordis anxietas?
Nemo potest te michi tollere Quamdiu te non velim perdere.*

Interea veniat aliquis in similitudine Nicolai; Puerum, scyphum cum recentario vino tenentem, apprehendat, apprehensumque ante fores componat, et quasi non compertus, recedat. Tunc vero unus de civibus ad Puerum dicat:

Puer, quis es, et quo vis pergere?

Having said this, let water be brought, and let the King wash his hands; and, as he begins to eat, let him say:

*I have hungered, and now I thirst!
I command that wine be given me;
And this let my son of Getron
Bring to me as quickly as possible.*

And so let the boy, hearing this, sigh deeply, and say to himself:

*Alas! Alas! Alas! O wretched me!
I wish for the end of my life;
For, however long I shall live,
In no wise can I gain my freedom.*

The King to the boy:

*For what cause sighest thou thus?
I saw thee sigh heavily.
What is it that has made thee sigh in this wise?
What harms thee? or for what reason dost thou lament?*

The boy:

*Thinking in my mind of my wretchedness,
Of my father, and of my native country,
I began to sigh and to groan,
And within myself to say such things:*

*To-day one year is completed
Since, made slave to misery,
A vassal to kingly power,
I entered the confines of this country.*

The King:

*Alas! poor boy, why dost thou ponder thus?
What will sadness of heart avail thee?
No one can take thee away from me
So long as I do not wish to lose thee.*

In the meanwhile let some one come in the likeness of Nicholas; let him take up the boy, holding the goblet of fresh wine; and having seized him, let him restore him to his place before the doors of his home; and, as if not recognized, let him withdraw. Then let one of the citizens say to the boy:

Boy, who art thou? and where wouldst thou go?

Cujus tibi dedit largicio Scyphym istum cum recentario?

Puer:

*Huc venio, non ibo longius;
Sum Getronis unicus filius.
Nicolao sit laus et gloria,
Cujus hic me reduxit gracia!*

Quo audito, currat civis ille ad Getronem et dicat:

*Gaude, Getron, nec fleas amplius;
Extra fores stat tuus filius.
Nicolai laudat magnalia, Cujus cum reduxit gracia.*

Cumque hujus modi nuntium audierit Euphrosina, ad filium suum currat; quem sepius deosculatum amplectetur et dicat:

*Deo nostro sit laus et gloria,
Cujus magna misericordia,
Luctus nostros vertens in gaudium,
Nostrum nobis reduxit filium!*

*Sintque patri nostro perpetue Nicolao laudes et graciae, Cujus erga Deum oracio
Nos adjuvit in hoc negocio.*

Chorus Omnis:

Copiose caritatis, etc.¹

*Whose largess gave to thee
That goblet filled with fresh wine?*

The boy:

*I am come to this place; I will go no further;
I am the only son of Getron.
To Nicholas be praise and glory,
Whose kindness has brought me back here.*

Having heard this, let that citizen run to Getron and say:

*Rejoice, Getron! Weep no more!
Without the doors stands thy son!
He praises the wonderful deeds of Nicholas,
Whose kindness brought him back again.*

And when Euphrosina hears the message of this kind, let her run to her son; and, kissing him many times, let her embrace him and say:

*To our God be praise and glory,
Whose great compassion,
Turning our sorrows into joy,
Has restored to us our son!*

*And to our father Nicholas
Be praises and thanks forever,
Whose prayer to God
Helped us in this affair.*

The whole choir [sings the anthem]:

Of abundant love, etc.

THE INTRODUCTION OF THE VERNACULAR

And open hit with-oute pite!

[They come together at the entrance to the choir,² and sing in unison:]

*Iam, iam, ecce, iam properemus ad tumulum,
Vngentes Dilecti corpus sanctissimum!* ³

Et appropriantes sepulcro cantent:

² Cf. p. 12.

³ These lines are accompanied by musical notation.

¹ For the probable lines spoken by the first two Marys see p. 11. It will be observed that the actors spoke first in Latin, and then paraphrased their lines in the vernacular.

² The cue for the actor assuming the part of the Third Mary.

³ Thought should redeem.

⁴ Since.

¹ The manuscript was discovered by W. W. Skeat and published by him in The Academy, 1890; its real significance, however, was first pointed out by Manly. We have here not full plays, but merely the actor-parts, with cues, used by some cleric who was a speaker in three separate plays, assuming on different days the rôles of the Third Mary in the Sepulchrum, of one of the Wayfarers in the Peregrini, and of the Third Shepherd in the Pastores. As a dramatic curiosity the fragment is unique. Its chief importance, however, is the evidence it affords of the way in which the vernacular was gradually introduced. In the course of time the vernacular entirely displaced the Latin; here we find the transitional stage clearly illustrated. By means of bracketed insertions I have attempted to give some general indication of the plays as wholes, in order that the reader may better understand the manuscript. I have also changed the order of the plays. The text is based on that in Osborn Waterhouse's The Non-Cycle Mystery Plays, re-edited from the manuscripts for the Early English Text Society, 1909.

*O Deus, quis reuoluet nobis lapidem
Ab hostis monumenti?*¹

II. MARIA.
.] him leid.

III. MARIA. He that thus kyndely vs has kend²
Vn-to the hole where he was hid,
Sum socoure sone he wil vs send,
At help to lift away this lid.

[At this point there is apparently a lacuna in the manuscript. The three Marys find the stone rolled away; the angel sings "Quem queritis," etc.; and the Marys enter the sepulchre and display the sudarium and burial cloths to the audience. Leaving the sepulchre, they sing joyfully:]

[I. MARIA. Alleluia!

II. MARIA. Alleluia!
.]

III. MARIA. Alleluya schal be oure song, Sithen Crist, oure Lord, by angellus steuen,³ Schewus him as mon here vs among,
And is Goddis Son, heghest in heuen.

III. MARIA.¹ *Surrexit Christus, spes nostra,

And hase bene best, sithe we were born!
Yf we wil seke him for to se,
Lettes noght this lesson be for-lorn:
"But gose euen vnto Galilee;
There schal ye fynd him yow beform!"

[Another red line in the manuscript indicates the conclusion of the Third Mary's part in the play. Probably after the Marys left the choir, the scene of the Race of Peter and John to the Sepulchre, and possibly the scene of Appearance of Christ to Mary Magdalene, followed.]

¹ The name is prefixed to the English verses that follow, but it is clear that the Latin lines were also spoken by the Third Mary.

² Health, salvation.

THE WAYFARERS

[Monday of Passion Week.]

Feria secunda in ebdomada Pache discipuli insimul cantent:¹

[DISCIPLES.] Infidelis incursum populi

*Fugiamus, Ihesu discipuli!

[CLEOPAS.]¹² Et quoniam tradiderunt eum

¹ The manuscript fails to give the names of the actors in this play. One of them was Cleopas (see St. Luke, xxiv, 18), the other probably Luke. I have followed Skeat in assigning the actor-parts to Cleopas.

PRIMUS VEXILLAT[OR]. Now, gracyous
 God, groundyd of alle goodnesse,
 As thi grete glorie nevyr be-gynnyng had,

So thou socour and saue alle tho that sytt and sese,¹

And lystenyth to oure talkyng with sylens style and sad;

For we purpose us pertly² style in this prese,

The pepyl to plesse with pleyes ful glad. 6
 Now lystenyth us, louely, bothe more and

This tyde.

We xal you shewe, as that we kan,
 How that this werd⁴ ffyrst be-gan,
 And how God made bothe molde⁵ and man,
 If that ye wyl a[byde]. 13

SECUNDUS VEXILLA[TOR]. In the ffyrst
 pagent, we thenke to play

How God dede make, thurowe his owyn myth,⁶

Hevyn so clere upon the fyrst day,
 And ther in he sett angelle fful bryth.

Than angelle with songe — this is no nay—
 Xal worchep God, as it is ryth; 19

But Lucyfer, that angelle so gay,
 In suche pompe than is he pyth,¹

And set in so grete pride,

That Goddys sete² he gynnyth to take,

Hese³ lordys pere hym self to make,

But than he ffallyth a ffend⁴ ful blake,
 From hevyn in helle to a[byde.] 26

TERTIUS VEXILL[ATOR]. In the secunde pagent, by Godys myth,

We thenke to shewe and pley, be-dene,⁵

In the other sex days, by opyn syth,

What thenge was wrought ther xal be
 sene;

How best was made and foule of flyth,⁶

And last was man made, as I wene; 32

Of mannyes o ryb, as I yow plyth,

Was woman wrought mannyes make⁷ to bene,

And put in paradyse.

Ther were flourys bothe blew and blake,

Of alle frutys thei myth ther take,

Saff frute of cunnyng⁸ thei xulde for-sake,

And towche it no wyse. 39

¹ Banns were public announcements of the performance of plays made usually by vexillatores (banner-bearers) in the neighboring towns and hamlets several days in advance; compare the Banns of The Play of the Sacrament.

² The manuscript (Brit. Mus. Cotton MS. Vespasian D. viii) of this cycle contains forty-two plays, and bears on folio 100 verso the date 1468. Where the plays were acted is not known. The librarian of Sir Robert Cotton, who purchased the manuscript about 1629, wrote on the fly-leaf: "vulgo dicitur hic liber Ludus Coventriae, sive ludus Corporis Christi." From this brief notation it was for a time inferred that the plays were acted at Coventry; but the term "Coventry plays" was a vulgar designation for Corpus Christi plays in general; and there seems to be no good reason to connect this large cycle with the town of Coventry; it certainly was not the famous cycle performed there by the craft organizations. How to label the collection has puzzled scholars. Professor Manly calls the cycle the Hegge Plays, after an early owner of the manuscript; others refer to it as the So-Called Coventry Plays, or as the Ludus Coventriae. It seems, however, undesirable to associate the plays with the name of Coventry at all; and since the Banns clearly state that they were to be performed at "N. towne," I have designated them simply as the "N. towne Plays." Linguistic authorities assign the manuscript to the northeast Midlands. "N. towne" might be an abbreviation for "Northampton," but we cannot prove that Northampton had a cycle of plays. Possibly the Banns were originally written to describe a processional performance on waggon; but the manuscript in its present state, as well as the revised Banns, shows the plays as arranged for continuous presentation on a group of fixed platforms about a platen. I have based the text on the edition by K. S. Block, Ludus Coventriae, edited for the Early English Text Society, 1922, and have compared this with Halliwell's careful edition of 1841. The punctuation, and the use of capital letters I have modernized. And since the Banns are very long, I have omitted some of the description of certain "pageants"; the extent of the omissions can be observed from the line-numbering.

THE CREATION OF EVE, WITH THE EXPELLING OF ADAM AND EVE OUT OF PARADISE¹

[Acted by the Grocers of Norwich.]

The Storye of the Temptacion of Man in Paradyce, being therein playd, and the expellynge of man and woman from thence, newly renvid¹ and accordynge unto the Skripture, begon thys yere, Anno 1565, Anno 7. Eliz.

ITEM. Yt ys to be notyd that when the Grocers Pageant is played withoute any other goenge befor yt,² then doth the Prolocutor say in this wise:

[THE FIRST ALTERNATIVE PROLOGUE.]

Lyke as yt chancyd, befor this season, Owte of Godes Scripture revealid, in plays
Was dyvers stories sett furth, by reason Of pageantes apparelyd in Wittson dayes;³
And lately be fall[en] into decayes;
Which stories dependyd in their orders
sett
By severall devices, much knowledge to gett; 7
Begynny[n]g in Genesis, that story repleate,

Of God his creacion of ech lyvyng
thyng,
Of heaven, and of erth, of fysh smalle and greate,
Of fowles, herbe, and tre, and of alle
bestes crepyng,
Of angell, of man, which of erth hath beyng,
And of the fall of angell[s], in the Apocalips
to se;
Which stories with the Skriptures most justly agree. 14

Then followed this ower pageant; which sheweth to be The Garden of Eden, which God dyd plante,
As in the seconde chapter of Genesis ye
se;
Wherin of frutes pleasant no kynde
therof shulde wante;
In which God dyd putt man to cherish
tre and plante,
To dresse and kepe the grounde, and eate
what frute hym lyste, —
Ex[c]ept the tre of knoweledge, Godes high wytt to resyste. 21

The story sheweth further, that, after man was blyste,
The Lord did create woman owte of a ribbe of man;
Which woman was deceyvyd with the Serpentes darkned myste;
By whose synn ower nature is so weake
no good we can;
Wherfor they were dejectyd, and caste from thence than Unto dolloure and myseri, and to travelye and payne,

¹ Renewed. An earlier version of the play dating from 1533, though not complete, is found in the transcript noted above, and is reproduced by Fitch, Manly, and Waterhouse.

² At this date the mystery plays were falling into decay, and the grocers anticipated the possibility of there being no preceding pageants. Shortly afterwards the grocers themselves gave up their performance; in 1570 their splendid waggon was broken to pieces, having stood for six years in a "Gate howse," and later "at ye Black Fryers brydge in open street," where it had become "so weather beaten yt ye cheif parte was rotton." (See E. K. Chambers, The Medieval Stage, ii, 388-89.)

³ At an earlier date the plays were given on Corpus Christi Day. (See E. K. Chambers, op. cit., ii, 386, 388.)

¹ Printed, with many inaccuracies, by Robert Fitch, from an eighteenth-century transcript of certain portions of the lost Grocers' Book of Norwich, in Norfolk Archaeology (1856), v, 8 (also separately issued), whence it was reprinted by Manly, Specimens of the Pre-Shakespearean Drama, 1897, with some valuable emendations. In 1909 the play was more accurately reproduced for the Early English Text Society by O. Waterhouse. I have based the present text on Waterhouse's edition, with certain emendations from Fitch and Manly.

Untyll Godes spright renvid. And so we ende certayne. 28

Note that yf ther goeth any other pageantes before yt, the Prolocutor sayeth as ys on the other syde and leaveth owte this.

[THE SECOND ALTERNATIVE PROLOGUE.]

THE PROLOCUTOR. As in theyr former pageantes is semblably declared

Of Godes mighty creacion in every lyvyng thyng,
As in the fyrst of Genesis to such it is prepared

As lust they have to reade to memory to bryng,

Of pride and fawle of angells that in hell
hath beinge;

In the seconde of Genesis of mankynde hys
creacion

Unto this Garden Eden is made full prepa-racion. 7

And here begyneth ower pageant to make the declaracion,

From the letter C in the chapter before saide,

How God putt man in Paradyse to dresse
yt in best fassion,

And that no frute therof from hym shuld
be denyed,

Butt of the tre of lyffe that man shuld be afraide

To eat of, least that daye he eat that he shuld dye;

And of womanes creacion apperyng by and bye; 14

And of the Deavilles temptacion deseav-inge with a lye

The woman, beinge weakest, that cawsd man to tast.

That God dyd so offende, that even con-tynentlye ¹

Owte of the place of joye was man and woman caste,

And into so great dolloure and misery brought at last;

Butt that by God his spright was comforted ageyne.

¹ Instantly.

This is of this ower pagent the some and effect playne. 21

[THE CREATION OF EVE, WITH THE EXPELLING OF ADAM AND EVE
FROM PARADISE]

[On the upper part of the pagant, representing Paradise.¹]

GOD THE FATHER. I am Alpha et Ho-mega, my Apocalyps doth testyfy, That made all of nothings for man his sustentacion.

And of this pleasante garden, that I have plant most goodlye,

I wyll hym make the dresser for his good recreacion.

Therfor, Man, I gyve yt the, to have thy delectacion.

In eatyng thou shalt eate of every growenge
tre,

Ex[c]epte the tre of knowledge, the which I forbydd the; 7

For in what daye soever thou eatest thou shalt be

Even as the childe of death. Take hede!
And thus I saye:

¹ The play-waggon was obviously in two divisions, the upper representing Paradise, the lower, Earth (see the stage direction following line 103). Possibly the wainscoted section below was used for Hell. The records of the Grocers' Guild at Norwich supply us with the following information about the pageant and its properties:

Inventory of ye p'ticulars appartaynyng to ye Company of ye Grocers, a.d. 1565.

A Pageant, yt is to saye, a Howse of Waynscott paynted and buylded on a Carte w^t fowre whelys.
A square topp to sett over ye sayde Howse.

A Gryffon, gylte, w^t a fane to sett on ye sayde toppe.

A bygger Iron fane to sett on ye ende of ye Pageante.
iiij^x iij [i.e. 83] small Fanes belongyng to ye same Pageante.

A Rybbe collyryd Red.

A cote & hosen w^t a bagg & capp for Dolor, steyned.

2 cotes & a payre hosen for Eve, stayned.

A cote & hosen for Adam, Steyned.

A cote w^t hosen & tayle for ye serpente, steyned, w^t a w^t heare [=white wig].

A cote of yellow buckram w^t ye Grocers' arms for ye Pendon bearer.

An Angell's Cote & over hoses of Apis Skynns.

3 paynted clothes to hang abowte ye Pageant.

A face [i.e. mask] & heare [i.e. wig] for ye Father.

2 hearys for Adam & Eve.

4 head stallis of brode Inkle w^t knoppys & tassells.

6 Horse Clothes, stayned, w^t knoppys & tassells.

Item, Weights, &c.

I wyll the make an helper, to comforte
the allwaye.
Beholde, therefore, a slepe I bryng this daye on the, 11

[Man lies down and falls asleep.]

And owte of this thy ribbe, that here I do owte take,

[God lifts "a rybbe colleryd red."]

A creature for thy help behold I do the make.

[Eve rises from below.]

Aryse, and from thy slepe I wyll the nowe awake,

[Man awakes and rises.]

And take hyr unto the, that you both be as one
To comfort one thother when from you I am gone. 16

And, as I saide before when that thou wert
alone,

In eatyng thow mayst eate of every tre
here is,

Butt of the tre of knowledge of good and evyll eate non,

Lest that thou dye the deth by doenge so amysse! 20

I wyll departe now wher myne habytacion is.

I leave you here.¹
Se that ye have my woordes in most high estymacion.

Then Man and Woman speke bothe.

[MAN AND WOMAN.] We thanke the, mighty God, and gyve the honoracion. [Exit God.] 24

Man spekethe.

[MAN.] Oh bone of my bones and flesh of my flesh eke,²

Thou shalte be called Woman, bycaus thow art of me.

Oh gyfte of God most goodlye, that hast us made so lyke!

Most lovyng spowse, I mucche do here rejoyce of the.

² Also.

WOMAN. And I lykewyse, swete lover, do much reioyce of the.
God therefore be praised, such comforte have us gyve
That ech of us with other thus pleasantly do lyve. 31

MAN. To walke about this garden my fantasye me meve;
I wyll the leave alone tyll that I turne ageyne.

Farewell, myn owne swete spouse! I leave the to remayne.

WOMAN. And farewell, my dere lover, whom my hart doth conteyn. 35

[Man walks to another part of Paradise.]

The Serpent speketh.

[THE SERPENT.] Nowe, nowe, of my purpos I dowght nott to atteyne;
I can yt nott abyde, in theis joyes they shulde be.

Naye, I wyll attempt them to syn unto theyr payne;

By subtyllty to catch them the waye I do well se;

Unto this, angell of lyght I shew mysylfe to be,

With hyr for to dyssemble; I fear yt nott at
all,

Butt that unto my haight some waye I shall hyr call. 42

[The Serpent approaches Eve.]

Oh lady of felicite, beholde my voice so small!

Why have God sayde to you, "Eate nott of every tre

That is within this garden"? Therein now awnswere me. 45

WOMAN. We eate of all the frutte that in the grounde we se,

Ex[c]epte that in the myddest, wherof
we may nott taste,

For God hath yt forbydd; therfor yt may not be,

Lest that we dye the deth, and from this place be caste. 49

THE SERPENT. Ye shall not dye the deth.
He made you butt agaste.

Butt God doth know full well that when you eate of yt
Your eys shall then be openyd, and you shall [be] at the last As God; both good and evyll to knowe ye shall be fytt. 53

WOMAN. To be as God, indede, and in his place to sytt, Thereto for to agre my lust conceyve
somewhatt;
Besydes, the tre is pleasante to gett wysedome and wytt,
And nothyng is to be comparyd unto that.

THE SERPENT. Then take at my request, and eate, and fere yt natt. 58

Here she takyth and eatyth, and Man cumyth in and sayeth unto hyr:

MAN. My love, for my solace I have here walkyd longe.
Howe ys yt nowe with you? I pray you do declare.

WOMAN. In-dede, lovely lover, the Heavenly Kyng most stronge
To eate of this apple his angell hath prepare.
Take therof at my hande thother frutes
emonge,
For yt shall make you wyse, and even as God to fare.¹ 64

Then Man taketh and eatyth and sayeth:

[MAN.] Alack! alacke! my spouse, now se
I nakid we ar;
The presence of ower God we can yt nott
abyde.
We have broke his precepte, he gave us of
to care;
From God therfor in secrete in some place lett us hide.
WOMAN. With fygge leavis lett us cover us, of God we be nott spyede. 69

*[Adam and Eve hide themselves. Enter
God.]*

THE FATHER. Adam! I saye, Adam!
Wher art thou nowe this tyde,
That here before my presence thou dost nott nowe apere?

ADAM. I herde thy voyce, oh Lorde, but yett I dyd me hide;
For that which I am naked I more greatly dyd feare. 73

THE FATHER. Why art thou then nakyd?
Who so hath cawsyd the?

MAN. This woman, Lord and God, which thou hast gyven to me.

THE FATHER. Hast thou eat of the frute that I forbyd yt the?
Thow Woman, why hast thou done unto him thys trespace?

WOMAN. The Serpente diseayvyd me with that his fayer face. 78

THE FATHER. Thow Serpente, why dydst thou this wise prevente my
grace,

My creatures and servantes in this maner to begyle?

THE SERPENTE. My kind¹ is so, thou knowest, and that in every case, Clene oute of this place theis persons to exile. 82

THE FATHER. Cursed art, for causynge
my commandement to defyle, Above all cattell and beastes. Remyne thou in the fylde;

Crepe on thy belly and eate duste for this thy subtyll wyle;

The womans sede shall overcome the:
thus that have I wylde.²

Thou, Woman, bryngyng chyl dren with payne shall be dystylde,³

And be subject to thy husbonde, and thy lust shall pertayne

To hym. I hav determynyd this ever to remayne. 89

And to the, Man, for that my voyce thou didst disdayne,

Cursed is the erth for ever for thy sake;

Thy lyvyng shall thou gett with swett unto thy payne,

Tyll thou departe unto the erth [wherof]⁴
I dyd the make.

Beholde, theis letherin aprons unto yourselves now take. 94

¹ Nature.

² Deereed.

³ Dissolved (as in tears).

⁴ Added by Manly.

Lo! Man as one of us hathe bene,¹ good and evyll to knowe; Therfor I wyll exempt hym from this place to aslake,²
Lest of the tre of lyfe he eate and ever growe.
Myne angell, now cum furth and kepe
the waye and porte, Unto the tre of lyffe that they do not resorte. 99

[Enter the Angel; exit God.]

THE AUNGELL. Departe from hence at onys from this place of comforte,
No more to have axcesse, or elles for to apere.
From this place I exile you, that you no
more resorte,
Nor even do presume ageyne for to com
here. 103

*Then Man and Woman departyth to the nether parte of the pageant, and Man
sayeth:*

[MAN.] Alack! myn owne sweteharte, how am I stroke with feare, That from God am exiled and brought to payne and woo!
Oh! what have we lost! Why dyd we no more care?
And to what kynde of place shall we resort and goo?
WOMAN. Indede, into the worlde now must we to and fro,
And where or how to rest I can nott say at
all.
I am even as ye ar, what so ever me
befall. 110

*Then cumeth Dolor and Myserye and taketh Man by both armys, and Dolor
sayeth:*

[DOLOR.] Cum furth, O Man, take hold of
me!
Through envy hast lost thy heavenly
lyght
By eatinge; in bondage from hence shall
be.
Now must thou me, Dolor, have allways in sight. 114

² Slacken, abate.

MYSERYE. And also of me, Myserye.
Thou must taste and byte
Of hardenes and of colde, and eke of infirmitie;
Accordinge to desarte thy portion is, of
right,
To enjoye that in me that is withoute
certentye. 118

ADAM. Thus troublid, nowe I enter into dolor and miserie.
Nowe, Woman, must we lerne ower
lyvynge to gett
With labor and with travell; ther is no
remedye,
Nor eny thyng therfrom we se that maye us lett. 122

Then cumyth in the Holy Ghost comforting Man, and sayeth:

[THE HOLY GHOST.] Be of good cheare,
Man, and sorowe no more.
This dolor and miserie that thou hast taste
Is nott in respect,¹ layd up in store,
To the joyes for the that ever shall last.
Thy God doth nott this the away to cast,
But to try the as gold is tryed in the fyer;
In the end, premonyshed, shalt have thy desyre. 129

Take owte of the Gospell that yt the
requyre,
Fayth in Chryst Ihesu, and grace shall ensewe.
I wyl be thy guye, and pay the thy hyer
For all thy good dylygence and doenge thy dewe.
Gyve eare unto me, Man, and than yt ys
trewe,
Thou shalt kyll affectes that by lust in the reygne,
And put Dolor and Mysery and Envy to
payne. 136

Theis armors ar preparyd, yf thou wylt turne ageyne
To fight wyth — take to the, and reach Woman the same:
The brest plate of rightousnes Saynte Paule
wyl the retayne;

The shyld of faythe to quenche, thy fyrre dartes to tame;

The hellmett of salvacion the devyles wrath shall lame;

And the sworde of the spright, which is the worde of God.

All theis ar nowe the offred to ease thy payne and rodd.¹ 143

[Exit the Holy Ghost.]

ADAM. Oh! prayse to the, Most Holye, that hast with me abode,

In mysery premonyshynge by this thy Holy Spright.

Howe fele I such great comforte, my syns
they be unlode

And layde on Chrystes back, which is my joye and lyght.

This dolor and this mysery I fele to me no
wight;²

No! Deth is overcum by forepredes-tinacion,

² Weight.

And we attayned wyth Chryst in heavenly consolacion. 150

Therfor, myne owne swett spous, withouten cavylacion

Together lett us synge, and lett our hartes reioyce

And gloryfye ower God wyth mynde, powre and voyse. 153

Amen.

Old musick, Triplex, Tenor, Medius, Bass:

With hart and voyce

Let us reioyce

And prayse the Lord alwaye

For this our joyfull daye,

To se of this our God his maiestie,

Who the hath given himselfe over us to raygne and to governe us.¹

Lett all our harte[s] reioyce together,

And lett us all lifte up our voyce, on of us with another. 161

¹ From The Towneley Plays, edited for the Early English Text Society by George England and Alfred W. Pollard, 1897. I have modernized the punctuation and the use of capitals, and have added stage directions. The manuscript, which is assigned to the latter half of the fifteenth century, was long preserved in the library of the Towneley family at Towneley Hall, Lancashire, hence the name "Towneley Plays." There is little doubt that they were performed by the crafts of Wakefield.

That I boro will I qwite.¹ 52
 CAYN. We!² now, no thynge, bot call ou tyte,³

That we had ployde this land.
 GARCIO. Harrer, Morell, iofurth! hyte!⁴ 56

As welcom standis ther oute. 60
 Thou shuld haue bide til thou were cald;
 Com nar,⁷ and other drife or hald,
 And kys

For that is the moste leife.⁸
 ABELL. Broder, ther is none here aboute
 That wold the any grefe. 67

Bot, leif⁹ brother, here my sawe¹⁰ —
 It is the custom of oure law,
 All that wyrk as the wise
 Shall worship God with sacrifice. 71
 Oure fader vs bad, oure fader vs kend,¹¹
 That oure tend¹² shuld be brend.¹³
 Com furth, brothere, and let vs gang¹⁴
 To worship God. We dwell full lang.
 Gif we hym parte of oure fee,
 Corne or eatall, wheder it be. 77

And therfor, brother, let vs weynd;¹⁴
 And first clenys vs from the feynd
 Or¹⁵ we make sacrifice;
 Then blis withoutten end
 Get we for oure suruyce, 82

Of hym that is oure saulis leche.¹⁶
 CAYN. How! let furth youre geysse, the fox will preche!
 How long wilt thou me appech¹⁷
 With thi sermonyng? 86
 Hold thi tong, yit I say,
 Euen ther the good wife strokid the hay;

⁹ Dear. ¹⁰ Speech. ¹¹ Taught. ¹² Tenth.
¹³ Burned. ¹⁴ Go. ¹⁵ Ere.
¹⁶ Physician. ¹⁷ Cast imputations upon.

Or sit downe in the dwell way,
 With thi vayn carpyng.¹ 90

Shuld I leife² my plogh and all thynge
 And go with the to make offeryng?
 Nay! thou fyndys me not so mad!
 Go to the dwell, and say I bad!
 What gifys God the to rose³ hym so?
 Me gifys he noight bot soro and wo. 96

ABELL. Caym, leife this vayn carpyng,
 For God giffys the all thi lifyng.
 CAYN. Yit boroed I neuer a farthyng
 Of hym — here my hend.
 ABELL. Brother, as elders haue vs kend,
 First shuld we tend⁴ with oure hend,
 And to his lofyng⁵ sithen⁶ be brend. 103

 Of any good that euer I wan; 139
 For had I giffen away my goode,
 Then myght I go with a ryffen ⁵ hood;
 And it is better hold that I haue
 Then go from doore to doore and craue.⁶
 ABELL. Brother, com furth, in Godis
 name; 144
 I am full ferd ⁷ that we get blame.
 Hy we fast that we were thore.⁸
 CAYN. We! ryn on, in the dwills nayme
 before! 147
 Wemay,⁹ man! I hold the mad!
 Wenys ¹⁰ thou now that I list gad ¹¹
 To gif away my warldis aght? ¹²
 The dwill hym spede that me so taght! 151
 What nede had I my trauell ¹³ to lose,
 To were my shoyne ¹⁴ and ryfe my hose?
 ABELL. Dere brother, hit were grete wonder
 That I and thou shuld go in sonder; 155
 Then wold oure fader haue grete ferly.¹⁵
 Ar we not brether, thou and I?
 CAYN. No, bot cry on! cry, whyls the thynk good!
 Here my trowth, I hold the woode.¹⁶ 159
 Wheder that he be bliithe or wroth,
 To dele my good is me full lothe.
 I haue gone oft on softer wise
 Ther I trowed som prow ¹⁷ wold rise. 163
 Bot well I se go must I nede.
 Now weynd ¹⁸ before, ill myght thou spede!
 Syn that we shall algatis ¹⁹ go.
 ABELL. Leif brother, whi sais thou so? 167
 Bot go we furth both togeder.
 Blissid be God we haue fare weder.

[They cross to the place of sacrifice.]

CAYN. Lay downe thi trussell ¹ apone this hill.
 ABELL. Forsoth broder, so I will. 171
 Gog of heuen, take it to good.
 CAYN. Thou shall tend ² first, if thou were wood.
 ABELL. [Kneeling.] God, that shope both
 erth and heuen,
 I pray to the thou here my steven,³ 175
 And take in thank, if thi will be,
 The tend that I offere here to the;
 For I gif it in good entent
 To the, my Lord, that all has sent. 179
 I bren ⁴ it now, with stedfast thought,
 In worship of hym that all has wroght.

[Abel sets fire to his tithes, which burn brightly.]

CAYN. Ryse! Let me, now, syn thou has done.
 Lord of heuen, thou here my boyne!⁵ 183
 And, ouer Godis forbot,⁶ be to the Thank or thew to kun me;⁷
 For, as browke I these two shankys,
 It is full sore, myne vnthankys,⁸ 187
 The teynd that I here gif to the,
 Of corn, or thyng, that newys ⁹ me.
 Bot now begyn will I then,
 Syn I must nede my tend to bren. 191
 Oone shefe, oone,¹⁰ and this makys two, — Bot nawder of this may I forgo.¹¹
 Two, two, now this is thre, —
 Yei, this also shall leif ¹² with me, 195
 For I will chose, and best haue;
 This hold I thrift of all this thrafe.¹³
 Wemo,¹⁴ wemo, foure; lo, here!
 Better groved ¹⁵ me no this yere. 199
 At yere tyme I sew fayre corn,
 Yit was it sich when it was shorne,
 Thystyls and brerys, yei grete plente,
 And all kyn wedis that myght be. 203
 Foure shefis, foure, lo, this makis fyfe (Deyll I fast thus long or I thrife).

Fyfe and sex, now this is sevyn, —
 Bot this gettis neuer God of heuen; 207
 Nor none of thise foure, at my myght,
 Shall neuer com in Godis sight.

Sevyn, sevyn, now this is aght, — ABELL. Cain, brother, thou art not God betaght.¹ 211

CAYN. We! therfor is it that I say,
 For I will not deyle my good away:
 Bot had I gyffen hym this to teynd
 Then wold thou say he were my freynd; 215
 Bot I thynk not, bi my hode,
 To departe so lightly fro my goode.
 We! aght, aght, and neyn, and ten is this;

[Selecting the smallest sheaf.]

We! this may we best mys. 219
 Gif hym that that ligis thore?
 It goyse agans myn hart full sore. 221

ABELL. Cam! teynd right of all, bedeyn.²
 CAYN. We! lo twelve, fyfteyn, sexteyn —

[Hurling sheafs rapidly.]

ABELL. Caym, thou tendis wrang, and of the warst.

CAYN. We! com nar, and hide myne een!³
 In the wenyand⁴ wist ye now at last,
 Or els will thou that I wynk?⁵
 Then shall I doy no wrong, me thynk. 228

Let me se now how it is.
 Lo, yit I hold me paide.
 I teyndyd wonder well bi ges,⁶
 And so euen I laide. 232

ABELL. Came, of God me thynke thou has no drede.

CAME. Now, and he get more, the dwell me spede!

As mych as oone reepe,⁷
 For that cam hym full light chepe; 236

Not as mekill, grete ne small,
 As he myght with all.

For that, and this that lyys here,
 Hauē cost me full dere; 240

Or it was shorne, and broght in stak,
 Had I many a very bak;

Therfor aske me no more of this,

For I haue giffen that my will is. 244

ABELL. Cam, I rede thou tend right
 For drede of hym that sittis on hight.

CAYN. How that I tend, rek the neuer a deill,¹

Bot tend thi skabbid² shepe welc; 248
 For if thou to my teynd tent take,³

It bese the wars for thi sake.

Thou wold I gaf hym this shefe? or this sheyfe?

Na, nawder of thise two wil I leife; 252
 Bot take this; now has he two,
 And for my saull now mot it go.

Bot it gos sore agans my will,
 And shal he like full ill. 256

ABELL. Cam, I reyde thou so teynd
 That God of heuen be thi freynd.

CAYN. My freynd? na, not bot if he will!
 I did hym neuer yit bot skill.⁴ 260

If he be neuer so my fo,
 I am avisid gif hym no mo.

Bot change thi conscience, as I do myn.
 Yit teynd thou not thi mesel⁵ swyne? 264

ABELL. If thou teynd right thou mon it
 fynde.

CAYN. Yei, behynde!
 The dwell hang the bi the nek!

How that I teynd, neuer thou rek. 268
 Will thou not yit hold thi peasse?

Of this ianglyng I reyde⁶ thou seasse.
 And teynd I well, or tend I ill,

Bere the euen and speke bot skill. 272
 Bot now syn thou has teyndid thyne,

Now will I set fyr on myne.

[He sets fire to his offering, which refuses to burn.]

We! out! haro! Help to blaw!
 It will not bren for me, I traw. 276

Puf! this smoke dos me mych shame —
 Now bren in the dwillys name!

Al what dwell of hell is it?
 Almost had myne breth beyn dit.⁷ 280

Had I blawen oone blast more
 I had beyn choked right thore;⁸

It stank like the dwell in hell,
 That longer ther myght I not dwell. 284

ABELL. Cam, this is not worth oone leke;⁹

 For the it brens bot the wars;
 I wold that it were in thi throte,
 Fyr, and shefe, and ich a¹ sprot.

[God speaks above.]

DEUS. Cam, whi art thou so rebell
 Agans thi brother Abell? 292
 Thar thou nowther flyte² ne chyde.
 If thou tend right thou gettis thi mede;
 And be thou sekir,³ if thou teynd fals,
 Thou bese allowed ther after als. 296

CAYM. Whi, who is that hob-ouer-the-wall?
 Wel! who was that that piped so small?
 Com go we hens, for perels all.
 God is out of hys wit! 300
 Com furth, Abell, and let vs weynd;
 Me thynk that God is not my freynd;
 On land then will I flyt.⁴ 303

ABELL. A, Caym, brother, that is ill done.
 CAYN. No, bot go we hens sone;

And if I may, I shall be Ther as God shall not me see. 307

ABELL. Dere brother, I will fayre⁵
 On feld ther oure bestis ar,
 To looke if thay be holgh⁶ or full.

CAYM. Na, na, abide; we haue a craw⁷ to pull. 311

Hark, speke with me or thou go.
 What! myne⁸ thou to skape so?
 We! na! I aght⁹ the a fowll dyspyte,
 And now is tyme that I hit qwite.¹⁰ 315

ABELL. Brother, whi art thou so to me in ire?

CAYM. We! theyf, whi brend thi tend so shyre.¹¹

Ther myne did bot smoked
 Right as it wold vs both haue choked? 319

ABELL. Godis will I trow it were
 That myn brened so clere;

If thyne smoked am I to wite?¹² CAYM. We! yei! That shal thou sore abite. 323

With cheke bon,¹³ or that I blyn,
 Shal I the and thi life twyn.¹⁴

[Cain strikes Abel with a jawbone.]

So, lig down ther and take thi rest;
 Thus shall shrewes be chastysed best. 327
 ABELL. Veniance, veniance, Lord, I cry!
 For I am slayn, and not gilty. [Dies.] CAYN. Yei, ly ther, old shrew! ly ther, ly! 330

[To the audience.]

And if any of you thynk I did amys
 I shal it amend wars then it is,
 That all men may it se:
 Well wars then it is Right so shall it be. 335

Bot now, syn he is broght on slepe,
 Into som hole fayn wold I crepe.
 For ferd I qwake, and can no rede,¹
 For be I taken, I be bot dede. 339
 Here will I lig² thise fourty dayes,
 And I shrew³ hym that me fyrst rayse!

[God speaks above.]

DEUS. Caym, Caym!
 CAYM. Who is that that callis me?
 I am yonder, may thou not se? 343
 DEUS. Caym, where is thi brother Abell?
 CAYM. What askis thou me? I trow at hell.

At hell I trow he be —
 Who so were ther then myght he se — 347
 Or somewhere fallen on slepyng.
 When was he in my kepyng?

DEUS. Caym, Caym, thou was wode.⁴
 The voyce of thi brotheris blode, 351
 That thou has slayn on fals wise,

From erth to heuen veynace cryse.
 And, for thou has broght thi brother downe,
 Here I gif the my malison.⁵ 355

CAYM. Yei, dele aboute the! for I will none;

Or take it the, when I am gone!
 Syn I haue done so mekill syn,
 That I may not thi mercy wyn, 359
 And thou thus dos me from thi grace,
 I shall hyde me fro thi face;
 And where so any man may fynd me,
 Let hym slo me hardely;⁶ 363
 And where so any man may me meyte,

 Bi all men set I not a fart.
 DEUS. Nay, Caym, it bese not so;
 I will that no man other slo. 371
 For he that sloys yong or old
 It shall be punyshid sevenfold.
 CAYM. No force,⁴ I wote, wheder I shall;
 In hell, I wote, mon ⁵ be my stall. 375
 It is no boyte ⁶ mercy to craue,
 For if I do I mon none haue. 377
 Bot this cors ⁷ I wold were hid,

 Bot were Pike-harnes, my knafe, here,
 We shuld bery hym both in fere.¹⁰
 How, Pyke-harnes! scape-thryft! how,
 Pike-harnes! how!

[Enter Garcio.]

GARCIO. Master, master! 385
 CAYN. Harstow,¹¹ boy? Ther is a podyng in the pot.
 Take the that, boy! tak the that!

[Strikes him.]

GARCIO. I shrew thi ball vnder thi hode, If thou were my syre of flesh and blode! 389
 All the day to ryn and trott,
 And euer amang ¹² thou strykeand;
 Thus am I comen bofetis ¹³ to fott.
 CAYN. Peas, man; I did it bot to vse ¹⁴ my Bot harke, boy, I haue a counsell to the to

 say —
 I slogh my brother this same day.
 I pray the, good boy, and thou may,
 To ryn away with the bayn.¹⁵ 397
 GARCIO. We! out upon the, thefe!
 Has thou thi brother slayn?
 CAYM. Peasse, man, for Godis payn! 400

I saide it for a skaunce.¹
 GARCIO. Yey, bot for ferde ² of grevance
 Here I the forsake.
 We mon haue a mekill myschaunce
 And the bayles ³ vs take. 405

CAYM. A, sir, I cry you mercy; seasse!
 And I shall make you a releasee.
 GARCIO. What, wilt thou cry my peasse ⁴ 408
 Throughtout this land?
 CAYN. Yey, that I gif God a vow, belife.
 GARCIO. How will thou do, long or thou thrife?
 CAYM. Stand vp, my good boy, belife,
 And thaym ⁵ peasse ⁶ both man and

THE DELUGE ¹

[Acted by the Waterleaders and Drawers in Dye of Chester.]

Pagina Tertia de Deluuij Noe ¹

The waterleaders and drawers in dye.

*And first in some high place, or in the cloudes yf it may be, God speaketh vnto Noe standing with-out the Arke with all his familie.*²

DEUS. I, God, that all the world have wrought,

Heaven and earth, and all of nought,
I see my people, in deede and thought,
Are sett fowle in sinne.

My ghost shall not lenge ³ in man,
That through fleshlic liking is my fone,
But till six skore yeares be gone,
To loke if they will blynne.⁴ 8

Manne that I made I will destroy,
Beast, worme, and fowle to flie;
For on earthe they doe me nye,⁵
The folke that are thereon.

Hit harmes me so hartfullie,⁶
The malyce now that can ⁷ multeply,
That sore it greueth me inwardlie
That ever I made manne. 16

Therefore, Noe, my servant free,
That righteous man art, as I see,
A shipp sone thou shalt make the
Of trees drye and lighte. 24

Little chambers therein thou make;
And bynding slich ⁸ also thou take,
With-in and -out thou ne slake ⁹
To anoynte it through all thy mighte. 24

¹ The third pageant of Noah's Flood.² MS. Et primo in aliquo supremo loco sive in nubibus, si fieri poterit, loquatur Deus ad Noe extra Archem existentem cum tota familia sua. I have inserted the English form of this stage-direction as found in two other MSS.³ Linger.⁴ Cease.⁵ Annoy.⁶ Grievously.⁷ Does.⁸ Slime, pitch.⁹ Slack.

300 Cubytes it shall be long,
And 50 of breadeth, to mak it stronge,
Of heighte 50. The mete ¹ thou fonge,²
Thus measure it about.

One wyndow worch through thy wytte,
One eubyte of length and breadeth make it.
Vpon the side a dore shall sit
For to come in and out. 32

Eating places thou make also;
Three-roofed chambers, one or two;
For with water I thinke to flow ³ Man that I can make.

Destroyed all the world shalbe,
Save thou; thy wife, thy sonnes three,
And all there wives also with thee
Shall saved be, for thy sake. 40

NOE. Ah! Lord, I thanke the lowd and still,

That to me art in such will,
And spares me and my house to spill,⁴
As now I sothlie fynde.

Thy bydding, Lord, I shall fulfill,
And never more the greeve ne grill,⁵
That suche grace hast sent me till Among all mankinde. 48

[Noah calls to his family.]

Haue done, yow men and women all!
Helpe, for ought that may befall,
To worke this shipp, chamber and hall,
As God hath bydden vs doe.

SEM. Father, I am already bowne.⁶
Anne axe I haue, by my crowne,
As sharpe as any in all this towne,
For to goe there-to. 56

HAM. I haue a hatchet wonder-kene

¹ The text here reproduced is that of British Museum Harleian MS. 2124, as printed in The Chester Plays, Part I, edited for the Early English Text Society by H. Deimling, 1892. I have modernized the punctuation, and have added, in brackets, some stage-directions.

To byte well, as may be seene;
A better grownden,¹ as I weene,
Is not in all this towne.

IAPHET. And I can well make a pyn,
And with this hammer knock yt in;
Goe and worche without more dynne,
And I am ready bowne. 64

UXOR NOE. And we shall bring tymber
to,
For wee mon nothing els doe;
Women be weake to vnderfoe²
Any great travayle.³

VXOR SEM. Here is a good hackstock;⁴
On this yow maye hew and knock;
Shall non be idle in this flock,
Ne now may no man fayle. 72

VXOR HAM. And I will goe to gather sliche,⁵
The ship for to caulke⁶ and piche;
Anoynted yt must be every stich,
Board, tree, and pyn.

VXOR IAPHET. And I will gather chippes
here
To make a fire for yow in feere,⁷
And for to dight your dynner,
Against yow come in. 80

+ Then they make signs as if laboring with divers tools.⁸

NOE. Now in the name of God I will begin
To make the shippe that we shall in,
That we be ready for to swym
At the cominge of the flood.
These bordes I ioyne here together,
To kepe vs safe from the wedder,
That we may row both hither and thider,
And safe be from this floode. 88

Of this tree will I make the mast
Tyde with gables that will last,
With a sayle-yarde for each blast,
And each thinge in ther kinde.

¹ Sharpned.

⁷ Likewise.

⁸ MS. Tunc faciunt signa quasi laborarent cum diversis instrumentis.

With topcastle and bewsprytt,
With coardes and ropes I haue all meete,
To sayle forth at the next weete.¹
This shipp is at an ende. 96

Then Noah with all his family again make signs of laboring with divers tools.²

Wife, in this castle we shall be keped,³
My childer and thou, I wold, in leaped.
VXOR NOE. In faith, Noe, I had as lief thou sleppit.⁴
For all thy frankish fare⁵

I will not doe after thy red.⁶
NOE. Good wife, doe now as I the bydd.
VXOR NOE. By Christ! not or I see more
neede,
Though thou stand all the day and stare. 104

No[re]. Lord, that women be crabbed aye,
And never are meke, that dare I saye.
This is well sene by me to daye,
In witnes of yow each one.

Good wife, let be all this beere⁷
That thou makes in this place here;
For all they wene⁸ thou art master, —
And so thou art, by St. John! 112

[God speaks above.]

DEUS. Noe, take thou thy meanye,⁹
And in the shippe hyc that yow be;
For none so righteous man to me
Is now on earth lyvinge.

Of cleane bestes with thee thou take Seaven and seaven, or thou slake,¹⁰
Hee and shee, make to make,¹¹
Be-lyve in that thou bringe; 120

Of bestes vnclane two and two,
Male and female, without moe;
Of cleane fowles seaven alsoe,
The hee and shee together;
Of fowles vnclane two and no more,
As I of bestes said before;
That shalbe saved throughe my lore,
Against I send the wedder. 128

If ought-where earth, tree, or stone
Be drye in any place.

And if this foule come not againe,
It is a signe, soth to sayne,
That drye it is on hill or playne,
And God hath done some grace. 264

Then he shall send out the raven; and taking a dove in his hand let him say: ²

Ah! Lord, wherever this raven be, Somewhere is drye, well I see.
But yet a dove, by my lewtye,³
After I will sende.

Thou wilt turne againe to me

For of all fowles that may flye,
Thou art most meke and hend.⁴ 272

Then he shall send out the dove; and there shalt be in the ship another dove bearing an olive branch in its mouth, which Noah shall let down from the mast by a string in his hand; and afterwards let Noah say: ⁵

Ah! Lord, blessed be thou aye,
That me hast comfort thus to-day;
By this sight I may well saye

¹ This play, as Miss Lucy Toulmin Smith observes, is superior to the five other extant plays on the same theme. It has often been printed, for it is justly regarded as the best example of pathos in the early religious drama. I have based the text on The Non-Cycle Mystery Plays, re-edited from the manuscripts for the Early English Text Society by O. Waterhouse, 1909, but have adopted some emendations made by other editors. The manuscript is preserved at Brome Manor, Suffolk, in a commonplace-book of 1470-80; the original, however, of which this is a transcript must be dated as early as the fourteenth century. Waterhouse suggests that the play was not a part of a cycle, but was designed for representation by itself. We cannot be certain. In form and language it is closely akin to the Abraham and Isaac of the Chester Cycle, and it differs in no essential way from the ordinary craft play. And, even if acted separately, "it is to be supposed," says Waterhouse, "that the stage was the usual pageant, and the mode of performance practically identical with" that of the regular cycle plays.

And let me go my gate.² 241

PHARAO. Bydis God me? Fals losell,³ thou lyse!

What tokyn told he? Take thou tent.

MOYSES. He sayd thou shuld dyspysse
Both me, and hys commaundement.

Forthy, apon thys wyse,

My wand he bad, in thi present,

I shuld lay downe, and the avyse
How it shuld turne to oone serpent. 249

And, in hys holy name,

Here I lay it downe.

Lo, syr, here may thou se the same!

PHARAO. A, ha, dog! the devyll the MOYSES. He bad me take it by the tayll,

For to prefe⁴ hys powere playn;

Then, he sayde, wythouten fayll

Hyt shuld turne to a wand agayn.

Lo, sir, behold!

PHARAO. Wyth ylahayll!⁵
Certis this is a sotell swain!

Bot thysse boyes shall abyde in bayll;

All thi gawdis shall thaym not gayn; 261

Bot wars, both morn and none,

Balaam Propheta. The Cappers.

DEUS. Moyses, my servaunte life¹ and dere,

And all the people that be here,
You wott in Egipte when you were,
Out of thralldome I you broughte.

I wyll, you honour no God saue me;
Ne mawmentrye² none make yee;
My name in vayne nam³ not yee,
For that me lykys naughte. 8

I will, you hold your holy daye;
And worshipp also, by all waye,
Father and mother all that you maye;
And slaye no man no-where.
Fornication you shall flee;
No mens goods steale yee;
Ne in no place abydc ne bee
Falce wytnes for to beare. 16

Your neighboures wyves covettes noughte,
Servant ne good that he hath boughte,
Oxe ne asse, in deede ne thoughte,
Nor any-thinge that is his,
Ne wrongefullie to haue his thinge
Agayne his will and his lykinge.
In all these doe my byddinge,
That you doe not amisse. 24

*Then let the High Priest stand up, and as if for the people let him speak to God and Moses.*⁴

PRINCEPS SINAGOGÆ. Ah! good Lord, much of mighte,
Thou comes with so great lighte,
We bene so afraide of this sighte,

God is so grym with us to deale,
But Moyses, master, with us thou mele;²
Els we dyen, many and feele,³
So afrayde bene all wee. 32

*Then let Moses, standing on the mount, speak to the people.*⁴

MOYSES. Gods folke, drede you noughte.
To prove you with, God hath this wrought,
To make you afrayd in deede and thoughte,
Aye for to avoyde synne.
By this sight you may now see
That he is pereles of postye;⁵
Therefore his teachinge look done yee,
Thereof that you not blyn.⁶ 40

PRINCEPS SINAGOGÆ. Ah! highe Lord,
God almighte,
That Moyses shynes wondrous bright!
I may no way for great lighte
Now looke upon hym.
And horned he semes in our sighte!⁷
Sith he came to the hyll, dight⁸
Our lawe he hase, I hope, aright,
For was he never so grym. 48

MOYSES. You, Gods folke of Israell, Harkens to me that loven heale;⁹
God bade you sholde doe, everye deale,
As that I shall saye.
Six dayes boldelye worches¹⁰ all,
The seaventh Sabaoth you shall call;

¹ The Chester Prophets can hardly be omitted from any book of selected plays designed to illustrate the origin and growth of the drama, for it shows in a primitive form the dramatization of the Sermo contra Iudaeos, Parranos et Arianos de Symbolo which ultimately led to the group of Old Testament Plays (see E. K. Chambers, The Medieval Stage, pp. 52 seq.). In the York Cycle this residual play is entirely lacking; in the Wakefield Cycle it exists only as a fragment; and in the N. towne Cycle the episode of Moses and the Two Tables has been developed into a separate play. I have reproduced the text from The Chester Plays, Part I, edited by H. Deimling for the Early English Text Society; see page 111, note 1.

That doth not this deede deade shall be.

 To hym that shall save you from woe
 And helpe you in your neede. 64

[The Expositor advances.]

EXPOSITOR. Lordinges, this comaund-
 ment
 Was of the Old Testamente,
 And yet is used with good entent
 With all that good bene.
 This stoyre all if we shold fong,²
 To playe this moneth it were to longe;
 Wherefore most frutefull there amonge
 We taken, as shall be sene. 72

Also we read in this storie,
 God in the Mownt of Synai Toke³ Moyses these comaundmentis, vere-
 lye,

Wrytten with his owne hande
 In tables of ston, as reade I;
 But when men honoured mawmentry,⁴
 He brake them in anger hastelye,
 For that he wold not wonde.⁵ 80

But afterward sone — leeve⁶ ye me —
 Other tables of stone made he,
 In which God bade wrytten shold be
 His wordes that were before;
 The which tables shryned were After as God can Moyses leare;⁷
 And that shryne to them was deare
 Thereafter evermore. 88

To Jacobs blood and Israell
God shall send ioy and heale;
And as a lyon in his weale¹¹
Christ shalbe haunsed¹² hye,
And rise also in noble araye
As a prynce to wyn great paye, Overcome his enemyes, as I say,
And them bowndly bye.¹³ 256

As lord to dight and deale. 296

[The Expositor advances with the other prophets.]

ESAYAS. I saye a mayden meeke and mylde
Shall conceave and beare a childe,
Cleane, without workes wilde,
To wyn mankinde to wayle;¹
Butter and hony shall be his meate,
That he may all evill forgeat,
Our soules out of hell to get,
And called Emanuell. 304

EXPOSITOR. Lordinges, these wordes are so veray
That exposition, in good faye,
None needes. But you know may
This word Emanuell:
Emanuell is as much to saye
As "God with us night and day";
Therefore that name for ever and aye
To his Sonne cordes wondrous well. 312

EZECHIELL. *Vidi portam in domo Domini clausam, et dixit angelus ad me,
"Porta hæc non aperietur sed clausa erit" et c. Ezechiel capitulo 2.*

I, Ezechiell, sothlie see
A gate in Gods house on hye.
Closed it was; no man came nye.
Then told an angell me:
"This gate shall no man open, i-wis,
For God will come and goe by this;
For him-self it reserved is,
None shall come there but hee." 320

EXPOSITOR. By this gate, lords, verament,
I understand in my intent
That way the Holy Ghost in went
When God tooke flesh and bloode
In that sweet mayden Mary.
She was that gate, witterly,
For in her he light² graciouslie Mankind to doe good. 328

² Alighted.

JHEREMIA. *Deducunt oculi mei lacrimas per diem et noctem, et non taccant;
contritione magna contrita est virgo filia populi mei et plaga, et c.*

My eyes must run and sorrow aye
Without ceasing, night and daye,
For my daughter, soth to saye,
Shall suffer great anye;
And my folke shall doe, in faye,
Things that they ne know may
To that mayden, by many waye,
And her sonne, sicklerie.¹ 336

EXPOSITOR. Lordinges, this prophesie,
i-wis,

Touches the Passion nothing amisse,
For the prophet see well this
What shall come, as I reade:
That a childe borne of a maye²
Shall suffer death, sooth to saye;
And they that mayden shall afray,
Haue vengeance for that deede. 344

IONAS. Clamavi de tribulacione mea ad Dominum et exaudivit; de ventre in-feri clamavi et exaudisti vocem meam et proiecisti me.

I, Ionas, in full great any
To God I prayed inwardlie,
And he me hard through his mercy,
And on me did his grace.
In myddes the sea east was I,
For I wrought inobedyentlie;
But in a whalles bellye
Three dayes saved I was. 352

EXPOSITOR. Lordinges, what this may signifie

Christ expoundes apertelie,³
As we reade in the Evangely
That Christ him-self can saie:
Right as Ionas was dayes three In wombe of whall, so shall he be
In earth lyinge, as was he,
And rise the third daye. 360

DAVID. De summo caelo egressio eius, et oc-cursus eius ad sum[m]um eius. Psal.

I, Davyd, saie that God almighte
From the highest heaven to earth will light,

¹ Truly.² Maid.³ Clearly.

And thidder againe with full might,
Both God and man in feare;¹
And after come to deeme² the righte.
May no man shape them³ of his sight,
Ne deeme that to mankind is dighte,
But all then must appeare. 368

EXPOSITOR. Lordes, this speach is so veray

That to expound it to your pay⁴
It needes nothing in good faye,
This speach is so expresse.
Each man by it knowe may
That of the Ascention, soth to saie,
David prophesied in his daye,
As yt rehearsed was. 376

IOELL. Effundam de spiritu meo super omnem carnem, et prophetabunt filij vestri.

I, Ioell, saie this sicklerye:
That my Ghost send will I Upon mankinde merciably
From heaven, sitting in sec;⁵
Then shold [y]our childe prophesie,
Ould men meet swevens,⁶ wytterly,
Yong se sightes that therby
Many wise shall be. 384

EXPOSITOR. Lordinges, this prophet speakes here

In Gods person, as it were,
And prophesies that he will appeare
Ghostlie to mankinde.
This signes non other, in good faye,
But of his deede on Whitson-day,
Sending his Ghost, that we ever may
On hym haue sadlie mynd. 392

MICHEAS. *Tu, Bethlem, terra Iuda, nequaquam minima es in principibus Iuda;
ex te enim exiit Dux qui reget populum meum Israell.*

I, Micheal, through my mynde
Will saye that man shall sothlie⁷ finde
That a childe of kinges kinde
In Bethlem shall be borne,

¹ Together, combined.² Judge.³ Kittredge: scape then.⁴ Satisfaction.⁵ Throne.⁶ Dreams. MS. sweens; corr. by Deimling.⁷ Truly.

That shall be duke to dight and deale,
 And rule the folke of Israell,
 Also wyn againe mankinde heale ¹
 That through Adam was lorne. 400

EXPOSITOR. Lordinges, two things apert-lie

You may see in this prophesic:
 The place certifies thee sothlie
 Where Christ borne will be;
 And after his ending, siekerlie,
 Of his deedes of great mercy,
 That he shold sit soveraynly
 In heauen, thereas is he. 408

Moe prophetis, lordinges, we might play,
 But yt wold tary much the daye;
 Therefore six, sothe to say,
 Are played in this place.
 Two speakes of his Incarnation;
 An-other of Christe[s] Passion;
 The fourth of the Resurrection. 416

The fite speakes expreslie
 How he from the highest heavenlye
 Light into earth us to forby, ³
 And after thydder steigh ⁴
 With oure kinde to heaven-blisse.
 More loue might he not shew, i-wis,
 But right there-as hym-selfe is
 He haunshed ⁵ our kinde on high. 424

³ Redeem. ⁴ Ascended.

⁵ Exalted.

The sixt shewes, you may see,
 His Goste to man send will he,
 More stidfast that they shalbe
 To loue God evermore.
 Thus that beleve ¹ that leuen we
 Of Gods deedes that had pittye
 One man, when that he made them
 free,

Is prophesied here before. 434

BALAACK. Goe we forth! It is no boote

Longer with this man to moote; ²
 For God of Iewes is crop and roote,
 And lord of heaven and hell.
 Now see I well no man on lyue
 Gaynes with him for to stryve;
 Therefore here, as mot I thryue,
 I will no longer dwell. 444

[Exeunt the Prophets, led by Balaack.]

EXPOSITOR. Lordinges, much more matter

Is in this story then you see here;
 But the substance, without were, ³
 Is played you beforne.
 And by these prophesies, leav ⁴ you me,
 Three kinges, as you shall played see,
 Presented at his Nativitye Christ, when he was borne. 444

swere.
Grett shamfastnes and grett dred is in
me. 236

GABYREL. Mary, in this take ye no drede,
For at God grace fflownde haue ye.
Ye xal conceyve in your wombe, in dede,
A childe, the sone of the Trynyte.
His name of yow Jhesu clepyd ² xal be;

¹ For an account of the N. towne Plays see page 81, note 2. I have based the present text on the editions by Block and Halliwell, compared with the edition by Manly (whose stanzaic form I have adopted). I have omitted the long prologue of 188 lines, entitled by Block "The Parliament of Heaven," in which Contemplation, the Virtues, Veritas, Misericordia, Justicia, Pax, Pater, Filius, and Spiritus Sanctus discuss the salvation of man. The prologue is of some interest as showing the influence of allegory on the Corpus Christi plays; but this influence has already been illustrated in the Norwich Creation printed on page 88.

He xal be grett, the son of the hiest clepyd of kende; ¹

And of his fadyr, Davyd, the Lord xal geve hym the se,² Reynyng in the hous of Jacob, of whiche
regne xal be no ende. 244

MARIA. Aungel, I sey to yow,
In what manere of wyse xal this be?
For knowyng of man I haue non now;
I haue evyr more kept, and xal, my virginyte.

THE SHEPHERDS ¹

[Acted at Wakefield.]

[At one end of the pageant, the open fields where the three Shepherds tend their sheep; at the other end, the home of Mak and his wife Gill. Enter the First Shepherd, half frozen with the cold.]

I. PASTOR. Lord, what these weders ar cold! / And I am yll happyd.¹

I am nere-hande dold,² / so long haue I nappyd.

My legys thay fold, / my fyngers ar chappyd;

It is not as I wold, / for I am al lappyd
In sorow. 5

In stormes and tempest,
Now in the eest, now in the west,

Wo is hym has neuer rest
Myd-day nor morow! 9

Bot we sely³ shepardes / that walkys on the moore,

In fayth, we are nere-handys / outt of the doore!

No wonder, as it standys, / if we be poore,
For the tylthe of oure landys / lyys falow as the floore,

As ye ken. 14

We ar so hamyd,⁴

For-taxed, and ramyd,⁵
We ar mayde hand-tamyd

With thayse gentlery men. 18

Thus thay refe⁶ vs oure reste / — Oure Lady theym wary!⁷

These men that ar lord-fest⁸ / thay cause the ploghe tary.

That, men say, is for the best; / we fynde it contrary.

³ Poor, miserable. ⁴ Crippled.

⁵ Over-taxed and crushed. ⁶ Rob.

⁷ Curse. ⁸ Lord-fast, bound to a lord.

Thus ar husbandys opprest / in po[i]nte to mynscary

On lyfe. 23

Thus hold thay vs hunder;

Thus thay bryng vs in blonder!

It were greatte wonder

And cuer shuld we thryfe. 27

Ther shall com a swane¹ / as prowde as a po,²

He must borow my wane,³ / my ploghe also;

Then I am full fanc / to graunt or he go.

Thus lyf we in payne, / anger, and wo,
By nyght and day. 32

He must haue if he langyd,

If I shuld forgang⁴ it.

I were better be hangyd

Then oones say hym nay.⁵ 36

For may he gett a paynt slefe,⁶ / or a broche, now on dayes,

Wo is hym that hym grefe / or onys agane says!

Dar noman hym reprefe / what mastery he mays.

And yit may noman lefe⁷ / oone word that he says,

No letter. 41

He can make purveance,

With boste and bragance;

And all is through mantenance

Of men that are gretter. 45

It dos me good, as I walk / thus by myn oone,⁸

Of this ward for to talk / in maner of mone.

¹ For an account of the Towneley Plays, and the source of the present text, see page 94, note 1. This play, which Mr. Pollard describes as "perfect as a work of art," is generally regarded as the finest example of comedy in the early religious drama. In the Towneley manuscript there are two plays dealing with the visit of the Shepherds to the manger, labeled respectively Incipit Pagina Pastorum and Incipit Alia Eorundum. Mr. Pollard suggests that in the Prima Pastorum the author was "only feeling his way," and that in the Secunda Pastorum he has achieved his masterpiece. As the footnotes will indicate, I am frequently indebted to Manly for textual emendations.

To my shepe wyll I stalk / and herkyn
anone;

Ther abyde on a balk,¹ / or sytt on a stone,
Full soyne. 50

For I trowe, perde, Trew men if thay be,
We gett more compane
Or it be noyne.² 54

[Enter the Second Shepherd. He does not see the First Shepherd.]

II. PASTOR. Benste and Dominus! /
What may this bemeyne?

Why fares this world thus? / Oft haue
we not sene!

Lord, thyse weders are spytus, / and the winds³ full kene;
And the frostys so hydus / thay water myn
ceyne; 59

No ly. 59
Now in dry, now in wete,
Now in snaw, now in slete,
When my shone freys to my fete,
It is not all esy. 63

Bot, as far as I ken, / or yit as I go,
We sely wedmen / dre mekyll wo;
We haue sorow then and then,⁴ / it fallys oft so.

Sely Capyle, oure hen, / both to and fro
She kakyls; 68

Bot begyn she to crok,
To groyne or [to clo]k,
Wo is hym⁵ oure cok,
For he is in the shekyls.⁶ 72

These men that ar wed / haue not all thare

¹ With the help of the suggestions by Manly (some, he states, were secured from Sheldon and Kittredge), I have ventured to reconstruct the French verses which have been so sadly corrupted through oral tradition:

Faites paix, domnes [i.e. lords], barons de grand renom!

Paix, seigneurs, chevaliers de noble puissance!

Paix, gentilshommes, compagnons petits et grands!

Je vous commande de garder trestous silence. Paix, tant que votre noble Roi sera ici présent!

Mais gardez votre seigneur toute révérence: Car il est votre Roi tout puissant.

¹ Reprinted from Thomas Sharp's A Dissertation on the Pageants or Dramatic Mysteries Anciently Performed at Coventry by the Trading Companies of that City, 1825. The manuscript, formerly in the possession of Sharp, was burned with the Shakespeare Memorial Library at Birmingham in 1879. The Shearmen and Taylors' Play, and the Weavers' Play (also burnt) are the sole remnants of the famous cycle acted at Coventry — a cycle which, it is almost certain, Shakespeare witnessed as a boy. Allusions in his works to Herod and to the slaughter of the innocents are probably recollections of the play here printed. I have omitted the first 474 lines, which include a prologue by Isaiah, the Annunciation to Mary, the Doubt of Joseph, the Journey to Bethlehem, the Nativity, the Visit of the Shepherds, and a long Dialogue between two prophets. In preparing the text I have taken advantage of the reprints by Manly, Specimens, 1897, and by Hardin Craig, Two Corpus Christi Plays, edited for the Early English Text Society, 1902, both of which necessarily reproduce Sharp's text of 1825.

Ego et Pater vnus sumus: my Father and I are all one,

Wiche hath me sent from his throne sempi-ternall,

To preach and declare his will unto man,
Because he loveth him aboue his creatures
all,

As his treasure and darling most principall,
Man, I say agayne, which is his owne elect
Aboue all creaturs, peculiarly select. 14

Wherefore, dere brethren, it is my mynd and will

To goe to Bethany, that standeth hereby,
My Fathers hestes and commandementis to fulfill;

For I æm the good sheapheard, that put-teth his lyfe in ioperdy

¹ Pageant thirteen, of the blind Chelidonus, and of the Raising of Lazarus from the Dead.

¹ I have reproduced the text from The Chester Plays, Part II, re-edited from the MSS. by Dr. Matthews, for the Early English Text Society, 1916; but I have altered the punctuation, modernized the use of capitals, changed the stanzaic division, and added, in brackets, scene divisions and stage-directions.

To save his floeke which I loue so tenderly,
As it is written of me — the scriptures
beareth witnes:

Bonus pastor ponit animam suam pro ovibus suis. 21

Go we therefore, brethren, while the day is light,

To doe my Fathers workes, as I am fully minded,

To heale the sick and restore the blynd to sight,

That the prophesy of me may be fulfilled;
For other sheep I haue, which are to me committed;

They be not of this floeke, yet will I them
regarde,

That ther may be one floeke and one shep-heard. 28

But, or we goe hence, print thes sayinges in your mynd and hart;

Record them, and oft keep them in memory;
Continue in my word, from it doe not depart;

Therby shall all men know most perfectly
That you are my disciples and of my familye.

Goe not before me, but let my word be your guyde;

Then in your doinges you shall allway well
speede. 35

Si vos manseritis in sermone meo, veri discipuli mei eritis et cognoscetis verita-tem; et veritas liberabit vos.

[Enter a boy leading Chelidonus, the blind man.¹]

PUER. If pittie may moue your gentell hart, Remember, good people, the pore and the blynd,

With your charitable almes this poore man to comfort,

That is your owne neighbour and of your owne kynde. 39

CHELIDONIUS. Your almes, good people, for charity!

To me that am bynd and never did see,
Your neighbour, borne in this city.
Helpe me, or I goe hence! 43

PETRUS. Mayster, instruct us in this case,
Why this man bynd borne was.
Is it for his owne trespas,
Or ells for his parentes? 47

JOHN. Was sinne the cause originall, —
Wherin we be conceived all, —
That this bynd man was brought in thrall,
Or his forfathers offence? 51

IESUS. Hit was neither for his offence,
Neither the sinnes of his parentes,
Nor other fault or neglence,
That he was blind borne.
But for this cause specially,
To set forth Gods great glory,
His power to shew manifestly,
This mans sight to reforme. 59

While the day is fayre and bright,
My Fathers workes I must worke right,
Untill the cominge of the night
That light be gone away.
In this world, when I am here,
I am the light that shyneth clear;
My light to them shall well appear
Which cleave to me alway. 67

Then Jesus spits upon the ground and makes a clay and rubs the eyes of the blind man with his hands: and then let him say: 1

IESUS. Do, man, as I say to thee:
Goe to the water of Siloe
And washe thyne eyes, and thou shalt see;
And geue to God the prayse.

Then the blind man seeks the water, and Jesus went away: 2

CHELIDONIUS. Lead me, good child, right hastely

² MS. Tunc cacus querit aquam, et abiit Iesus.

Unto the water of Siloe. 73

Then he washes, and afterwards let him say: 1

Praysed be God omnipotent,
Which now to me my sight hath sent!
I see all things now here present.
Blessed be God alwayes! 77

When I had done, as Christ me badd,
My perfect sight forth-with I hadd;
Wherefore my hart is now full gladd,
That I dowt wher I am.

[SCENE II.]

[Chelidonius meeting the neighbors.]

I. PROXIMUS. Neighbour, if I the truth should say,
This is the blind man which yesterday
Asked our almes, as we came this way.
It is the very same! 85

II. VICINUS. No, no, neighbour, it is not hee;
But is the likest to him that ever I see!
One man to another lyke may bee,
And so is he to him.

CHELIDONIUS. Good men, truly I am he,
That was bynd, and now I se.
I am no other, verely;
Enquier of all my kynne. 93

I. VICINUS. Then tell the truth, we thee
pray,
And how this is happened, to us say,
Thou, that even yesterday
Couldst se no earthly thinge,
And now seeth so perfectly.
No want of sight in thee we see;
Declare to us therfore truly
Without more reasoninge. 101

CHELIDONIUS. The man, which we call
Iesus,
That worketh miracles dayly with us,
And whom we fynde so gracious,
Anoynted my eyes with clay,
And to the water of Siloei
He badd me goe immediatly,
And wash myne eyes, and I should see.
And thidder I tooke the way. 109

When the water on myne eyes light,
Immediately I had my sight!
Was ther neuer earthly wight
So joyfull in his thought. 113

II. VICINUS. Wher is he now, we thee pray?
CHELIDONIUS. I know not wher he is by this day.

II. VICINUS. Thou shalt with us come on this way,
And to the phariseses these wordes say;
But if thou wouldst these thinges deny,
It shall helpe thee right nought. 119

[They approach the Pharisees.]

Looke up, lordings and iudges of right,
We have brought you a man that had no
sight,
And on the Sabaoth Day, throughe one mans might,
Was healed and restored, for-sooth.

I. VICINUS. Declare to them, thou wicked
wight,
Who did restore thee to thy sight,
That we may know anon right
Of this matter the truth. 127

CHELIDONIUS. Iesus anoynted myne eyes with clay,
And badd me wash in Siloc;
And before I came away
My perfect sight I hadd.

I. PHARISEUS. This man, the truth if I should say,
Is not of God — my head I lay —
Which doth violatc the Sabaoth Day;
I iudge him to be madd. 135

II. PHARISEUS. It can not enter into my thought,
That he which hathe this marvayle
wrought
Should be a sinner. I leuec it nought;
It is not in my creed. 139

Say, what is he that did thee heale?

CHELIDONIUS. A prophet he is, withe-out fayle.

I. PHARISEUS. Surely, thou art a knave of kynd,

And faynest thy selfe for to be blynd;
Wherfor now this is my mynd,
The truth to trye, in deed: 145

His father and mother, both in feere,¹
Shall come declare the matter here,
And then the truth shall soone appeare,
And we putt out of dowbt.
Goe forth, messenger, anon in hyc,²
And fetch his parentis by and by.
This knave can nought but prate and
lye;
I would his eyes were out! 153

NUNTIUS. Your biddinge, maisters, I shall fulfill
And do my duty, as is good skylk;
From this day hither, I know, they will,
And I shall spy them out.

Then he looks about, and says³ [to the Father and Mother of the blind man]:

Sir and dame, booth in feer,
You must afore the phariseses appeare;
What ther will is, ther shall you here.
Have done, and come your way! 161

MATER. Alas! man, what doe we here?
Must we afore the phariseses appeare?
A vengeance on them, far and neere!
The[y] neuer did poore man good.
PATER. Dame, ther is no other way,
But ther commandement we must obey;
Or ells they would without delay
Cursse us and take our good. 169

[The messenger leads them to the Pharisees.]

NUNTIUS. Here I haue brought, as you badd me,
These two persons, that aged be;
They be the parentis of him, truly,
Which sayd that he was blynde.

I. PHARISEUS. Come near to us, bothe
two,
And tell us truly, or that you goe,
Whether this be your sonne or no.
Looke, no deceit we fynd! 177

PATER. Maisters, we know certaynly
Our sonne he is; we can not denye;

¹ Together.

² Hastily.

³ MS. Tunc circumspicit, et loquitur.

And blynd was borne, undoubtedly.
And that we will depose. 181

But who restored him to his sight,
We be uncertayne, by God almight!
Wherefore of him, as it is right,
The truth you must enquier.
MATER. For he hath age, his tale to tell,
And his mother tonge to utter it well,
Althoughhe he could never buy nor sell.
Let him speak, we desyre. 189

I. PHARISEUS. Geue prayse to God, thou crafty knave!

And looke, hereafter, thou doe not rave
And say that Iesus did thee save,
And restored thee to thy sight.

II. PHARISEUS. He is a sinner, and that we know,

Deceiving the people, too and free.
This is most true that we thee show;
Beleev us, as is right. 197

CHELIDONIUS. If he be sinfull, I doe not know;

But this is truth that I doe show:
When I was blynd, and in great wo,
He^cured me, as you see. 201

I. PHARISEUS. What did he, thow lither swayne?

CHELIDONIUS.¹ I towld you once; will you here it agayne?

Or his desciples will you become,
Of all your sinnes to have remission? 205

II. PHARISEUS. O cursed caytafe! ill mott thou thee!

Would thou haue us his disciples to be?
No, no! Moyses disciples been all we,
For God with him dyd speak. 209

But whence this is, we never knew.

CHELIDONIUS. I marvayle of that, as I am true,

That you know not whence he should bee,
That hath me cured that never did see,
Knowing this most certainly:
God will not sinners heare;
But he that honoureth God truly,

Him will he heare by and by,
And graunt his askinge graciously,
For that man to him is deare. 219

And to this I darr be bould:
Ther is no man that ever could Restore a creature unto his sight
That was blynd borne and never saw
light,
If he of God were not, iwis;
He could never worke such things as
this! 225

I. PHARISEUS. What, sinfull knave, wilt thou teach us,
Which all the scriptures can discusse,
And of our lyving be so vertuous?
We curse thee out of this place! 229

[SCENE III.]

[Chelidonius, Jesus and the Jews.]

IESUS. Belceust thou in Gods Sonne truly?

CHELIDONIUS. Yea, gracious Lord; who is hee?

IESUS. Thou hast him seene with thine
eye:

He is the same that talketh with thee.

CHELIDONIUS. Then hear I honour him with hart free,
And ever shall serve him, untill I dye. 235

I. IUDEUS. Say, man, that makes such maystery,

Or thou our soules do any anye,

Tell us here apertly,
Christ if that thou bee.

IESUS. That I speak unto you openly,

And workes that I doe verely
In my Fathers name almighty,
Beareth witnes of me. 243

But you beleve not as you seene,

For of my shepe you ne beene;

But my flock, withouten weene,¹

Hear my voyce alway.

And I know them well echon,

For with me alway the[y] gone,

And for them I ordayned in my one²

Everylasting lyfe for aye. 251

² Habitation.

No man shall reave my shepe from me;
 For my Father in maiesty
 Is gretter then bene all yee,
 Or any that ever was.
 II. IEW. Thou shalt abyge, by my bone, or thou heathen ¹ passe! 256

Help, fellow, and gather stones,
 And beat him well, for Cockes bones!
 He scorns us quintly, for the nones,
 And dothe us great anye.

*Then they collect stones.*²

Yea, stones anow here I haue
 For this ribauld that thus can rave.
 One strock, as God me save,
 He shall haue sone in hye! 264

IESUS. Wretches, many a good deed
 I haue done you in great need;
 Now quite you foule my need
 To stone me on this maneer!

I. IEW. For thy good deed that thou hast
 wrought,
 At this tyme stone we thee nought,
 But for thy leasings, falsely wrought,
 Thou shewest apeartly here. 272

Thou that art man, as well as I,
 Makes thy self God here openly.
 Ther thou lyst foule and falcely,
 Bothe in word and thought!
 IESUS. But I do well and truly,
 My Fathers biddinge by and by;
 Ells you may hope well I lye,
 And then leeves you me nought. 280

But sithen you will not leeven me,
 Nor my deeds which you now see,
 To them belevinge takes yee,
 For nothing may be sother.³
 So you may know well and veray:
 In my Father that I am aye,
 And he in me, [the] sothe to say,
 And eyther of us in other. 288

*Then they shall collect stones, and straightway
 Jesus shall disappear.*⁴

II. IEW. Out, out, alas! wher is our fone?

³ Truer.

⁴ MS. Tunc colligent lapides, et statim evanescent Iesus.

Quintly that he is heathen gone!
 I would haue taken him, and that anone,
 And foull him all-to-frapped.¹
 Yea, make we never so much mone,
 Now ther is no other wone;²
 For he and his men everichon
 Are from us clearly scaped. 296

I. IUDEUS. Now, by the deathe I shall on dye,

May I see him with my eye,
 To sir Cayphas I shall him wry,³
 And tell that shall him dere.⁴
 Se I never none, by my fay,
 When I had stones, so sone away!
 But yet no foree; an other day
 His tabret⁵ we shall fere.⁶ 304

[SCENE IV.]

[Enter Mary and Martha.]

MARIA. A Lord Iesu, that me is wioo
 To wit ⁷ my Brother sickly so.
 In feble tyme Christ yode ⁸ me fro.
 Well were we, and ⁹ he were heer.
 MARTHA. Yea, suster, about I will goe
 And seeke Iesu, to and fro.
 To help him he would be thro,
 And he wist how it were. 312

*Then Jesus comes [with his disciples].*¹⁰

A my Lord, swet Iesu, mercy!
 Lazar, that thou lovest tenderly, Lyeth sick a little hereby
 And suffereth much teene.
 IESUS. Yea, woman, I tell thee witterly,
 That sicknes is not deadly,
 But Gods Sonne to glorify,
 By him as may be seene. 320

[Jesus and his disciples depart.]

*Then Martha shall go to Mary.*¹¹

MARIA. A! Martha, suster, alas! alas!
 My brother is dead since thou here was.
 Had Iesu, my Lord, been in this place,
 This case had not befallne.
 MARTHA. Yea, suster, neer is God[c]s grace.

³ Betray. ⁴ Injure.

⁶ Accompany? Frighten?

⁸ Went. ⁹ If.

⁵ Tabort.

⁷ Know.

Many a man he holpen base;
Yet may he doe for us in this case,
And him to lyfe call[en]. 328

MARIA. Here will I sitt and mourninge
make,

Tyll that Iesu my sorrow slake.
My teene to hart, Lord, [that] thou take,
And leech¹ me of my woe.

MARTHA. In sorrow and wo here will I wake,

And lament for Lazar my brothers sake;
Though I for could² and penance quake,
I eathen³ will I not goe. 336

Then they shall seat themselves near the sepulchre of Lazarus, lamenting.⁴

[SCENE V.]

[Jesus and his disciples.] And Iesus says:

IESUS. Brethren, goe we to Iudy!

PETRUS. Maister, right now thou might well see,

The Iewes would haue stoned thee,
And yet thou wilt agayne?

IESUS. Wot you not well, this is veray,
That xij hours are in the day,
And who so walketh that tyme his way,
Trespasseth not, the sooth to say[n]. 344

He offendeth not that goeth in light;
Put who so walketh about in night,
He trespasseth all against the right,
And light in him is none.
Why I say this, as I haue tight,⁵
I shall tell you sone in heicht;⁶
Haue mynd on it through your might,
And thinkes well therupon. 352

To the day my self may likned be,
And to the twelue howers all ye,
That lightned bene through following me
That am most lyking light.
For world[e]s light I am veray,
And who so followeth me, sooth to say,
He may goe no chester⁷ way,
For light in him is dight. 360

me, donec dies est; venit nox, quando nemo resuscitato.*

Brethren, I tell you tydinge:

Lazar my frend is slepinge.

Thider must we be goinge,

Upon him for to call.

IOHANNES EVAN. Lord, if he sleep, safe
he may be;

For in his sleep no peryll is he.

Therefore it is not good for thee

To goe thider for so small. 368

IESUS. I tell you, brethren, certaynly:

Lazar is dead, and thyder will I.

Fayne I am you wott that I

Was not ther, as you may see.

THOMAS. Follow him, brethren, to his anoy,

And dye with him devoutly;

For other it will not be.

Goe we thider in hye! 376

Then Iesus shall go to the place where Mary and Martha are sitting.¹ [He comes first to Martha.]

MARTHA. A! Lord Iesu, hadst thou bene here leade,²

Lazar, my brother, had not bene dead.

But well I wott thou wilt us read,³

Now thou art with us here.

And this I leuee and hope aright:

What thing thou askest of God almight,

He will graunt it thee in height,

And graunt thee thy prayer. 384

IESUS. Martha, thy brother shall ryse, I
say.

MARTHA. That leuee I, Lord, in good fay,

That he shall ryse the last day.

Then hope I him to see.

IESUS. Martha, I tell thee, without nay,

I am rysinge and lyfe veray;

Which lyfe, I say, shall last for aye,

And never shall ended bee. 392

Martha sedent.*

² Led here.

³ Advise.

Whosoever leeveth stidfastly
In me, I tell the truly,
Though he dead be, and down lye,
Shall lyve and fare well.
Leevest thou, woman, that this may bee?
397

MARTHA. Lord, I leeue, and leeue mon,¹
That thou art Christ, Gods Sonne,
And commen into this world to woon,²
Mans boot for to bee.
Thus haue I leued stidfastly;
Therefore on me thou haue mercy,
And on my suster ecke, Mary!
I will fetch her to thee.
405

*Then Martha shall go and call Mary, saying:*³

A! Mary, suster, leefe and deer,
Hye thee quickly and come neare!
My swet Lord Iesu, he is here,
And calleth thee him too.
MARIA. A! well were we, and it so were!
But had my louely Lord of leere⁴
Seene my brother lye on bere,⁵
Some boot might haue bene do.⁶
413

But now he stinketh, sooth to say;
For now this is the fourth[e] day,
Since he was buryed in the clay,
That was to me so leefe.
But yet, my Lord I will assay,
And with all my hart him will I pray,
To comfort us, if that he may,
And mend all our mischefe.
421

*Then let Mary, seeing Jesus, fall at his feet, saying:*⁷

A! Lord Iesu, hadst thou bene here,
Lazar, my brother, thy owne dere,
Had not bene dead in this maner.
Much sorrow is me upon.
IESUS. Where haue you layd him? tell[e]s
me.
MARIA. Lord, come thither and thou may see;
For buryed in this place is he Four days now agon.
429

*Then come the Jews, of whom let the first say:*¹

I. IEW. Se, fellow, for Cock[e]s sowle!
This freak beginneth to reem and youle,²
And make great dole for a gole,³
That he loved well befor[n]e.
II. IEW. If he had cunnige, me think he might
From death haue saved Lazar by right,
As well as send that man his sight,
That which so blynd was borne.
437

IESUS. Haue done, and putt away the stonne!

MARTHA. A, Lord! iiii dayes be now gone
Sith he was buryed, blood and bone.
He stinkes, Lord, in good fay.
IESUS. Martha, sayd I not to thee,
If that thou leeved fullye in me,
Gods grace soone shouldst thou see?
Therefore doe as I thee say.
445

*Then they shall remove the stone from the sepulchre; and Jesus, turning his back, with hands lifted up, says:*⁴

Father of heaven, I thank it thee,
That so some hast hard me!
Well I wist, and soothly see,
Thou hearest my entent.
But for this people that stand hereby,
Speak I the more openly,
That they may leeue stidfastly
From thee that I was sent.
453

Lazar, come forth, I bydd thee!

[Lazarus comes out of the sepulchre bound in burial cloths.]

LAZARUS. A! Lord, blessed most thou bel
From death to lyfe hast rayسد me Through thy mickle might.
Lord, when I hard the voyce of thee,
All hell fayled of ther posty,⁵
So fast from them my soule can flee,
All devills were afright.⁶

THE BETRAYING OF CHRIST ¹

[Acted at N. towne.]

[Jesus addresses his disciples.][JESUS.] Now, my dere frendys and bretheryn echone,¹Remembyr the wordys that I xal sey:
The tyme is come that I must gon
For to fulfyll the prophesey 4
That is seyde of me that I xal dey,
The fendys power fro yow to flem;²

Here an aungel descendyth to Jhesus, and bryngyth to hym a chalys, with an host¹ there-in.

ANGELUS. Heyl, bothe God and man indede!

The Fadyr hath sent the this present.
He bad that thou xuldyst not drede,
But fulfyller his intent, 56
As the parlement of hefne hath ment
That mannys sowle xal now redemyd

Here the aungel ascendyth a-gen sodcyntly.

JHESU. Fadyr, thi wyl ffylfyllid xal be;
It is nowth to say a-gens the case;
I xal fulfyller the prophesye,
And sofre deth ffor mannys trespase. 68

Here goth Cryst a-geyn to his dyseipulys, and fyndyth hem slepyng styll.

A-wake, Petyr! thi rest is ful long;
Of selep thou wylt make no delay.
Judas is reddy, with pepyl strong,
And doth his part me to be-tray. 72

Ryse up, serys, I you pray!
On-close your cyne for my sake.
We xal walke in-to the way,
And sen⁴ hem come that xul me take. 76

Petyr, whan thou seyst I am for-sake
Amonge myn frendys, and stond alone,
Alle the cher that thou kanst make Geve to thi bretheryn every-chone. 80

I. DOCTOR. Sere Pylat, the lawe restyth in the,

And we knowe veryly his gret trespas.
To the Emperour this mater told xal be, Yf thou lete Jhesus thus from the pas! 223

PYLAT. Serys, than telle me o thyng:
What xal be his a-cusyng?

ANNAS. Sere, we telle the, alto-gedyr,
For his evyl werkys we browth hym hed ther-to!

 And knowyng gret myschef in this
 man, —
 And not only in o¹ day or to,
 It is many yerys syn he began, — 250
 We kan telle the tyme where and whan,
 That many a thowsand turnyd hath
 he;
 As alle this pepylle rceord weyl kan,
 From hens in-to the lond of Galeyle. 254
*And they shall cry out*² "Ya! Ya! Ya!" PYLAT. Serys, of o thyng than gyf me relacyone,
 If Jhesu were out-born in the lond of Galeyle;
 For we han no poer,³ ne no jurediccione,
 Of no man of that contre. 258
 Ther-fore the trewth ye telle me,
 And a-nother wey I xal provyde.
 If Jhesu were born in that countrè,
 The jugement of Herowdys he must
 a-byde. 262
 CAYPHAS. Sere, as I am to the lawe trewly sworn,
 To telle the trewth I have no fer;
 In Galeyle I know that he was born;
 I can telle in what place and where. 266
 Agens this no man may answerè,
 For he was born in Bedlem Jude;
 And this ye knowe, now alle I haue don
 here,
 That it stant in the lond of Galeyle. 270 PYLAT. Weyl, serys, syn that I knowe that it is so,
 The trewth of this I must nedys se;
 I vnderstand ryth now what is to do.
 The jugement of Jhesu lyth not to
 me; 274
 Herowde is kyng of that countre, To jewge that regyon in lenth and in brede;
 The jurydyccyon of Jhesu now han must
 he.
 Ther-fore Jhesu in hast to hym ye lede. 278

That he is Lord, and of the Jewys kyng;

And the Sone of God he doth hym calle 322

REX HEROWDE. Serys, alle these materys

I haue herd sayd,

And meeche more than ye me telle;

Alle to-gedyr thei xal be layde,

And I wyl take there-on cowneelle. 326

[Turning to Jesus.]

Jhesus, thou art wel-come to me!

I kan³ Pylat gret thank for his sendyng;

I haue desyryd ful longe the to se,

And of thi meracles to haue knowsentens.

Now, Jhesu, I pray the, lete me se

O meraele wroughth in my presens. 338

In hast, now, do thi dylygens,

And per-aventure I wyl shew favour to
the;

For, now thou art in my presens,

Thyn lyf and deth here lyth in me. 342

And here Jhesus xal not speke no word to the Herowde.

Jhesus, why spekest not to thi kyng?

What is the cawse thou standyst so styll?

Thou nowyst I may deme¹ alle thyng.

Thyn lyf and deth lyth at my wylle! 346

What! Spek Jhesus, and telle me why

This pepyl do the so here acuse?

Spare not, but telle me now, on hey,²

How thou canst thi-self excuse. 350

CAYPHAS. Loo! scrys, this is of hym a

[The interior of Hell. A "great light" begins to shine. Adam advances.]ADAMUS. A! Lord and severayne Saviour,Our comfort and our counseler,
Of this light thou art author,
As I se well in sight. 4This is a signe thou would succour
Thy folke that bene in great langour,
And of the Devill be conquerour,
As thou hast yore behight.¹ 8Me thou madest, Lord, of clay,
And gaue me Paradice in to play;
But after my sinne, sooth to say,
Deprived I was therfro, 12
And from that weale ² putt away;
And here haue lenged ³ sithen aye,
In thesternes,⁴ both night and day;
And all my kynd also. 16Now, by this light that I now se,
Ioy is commen, Lord, through thee;
And of thy people thou hast pittie,
To putt them out of payne. 20
Sicker ⁵ it may none other be,
But now thou hast mercy on me;
And my kynd, through thy posty,⁶
Thou wilt restore agayne. 24[Isaiah advances.]ESAY. Yea, sickerly, this ilke ⁷ light Comes from Gods Sonne almight;
For so I prophesyed aright,
Whyle that I was lyvinge. 28
Then I to all men beheight,
As I ghostly ⁸ sawe in sight,This word that I through Gods might Shall rehearce without tariinge: 32

That I, the Prophet Esay, Wrott in my books that will not lye,
Who so will looke theron. 40[Simeon the Just advances.]SIMEON IUSTUS. And I, Symeon, sooth to
say,
Will honor God, all that I may;
For when Christ a child was, in good

And as the Holy Ghost that day
Taught me, or I went away,
These wordes I sayd to God[⁹]s pay,
As men may fynd in booke: 48
*Nunc dimittis servum tuum, Domine, secundum verbum tuum in pace. St.

Wote ye not that I am Pilate,
That satt upon the iustyce late,
At Caluarie where I was att
This day at morne?
I am he, that great state,
That lad has all to-torne.⁶ 18

Now sen ⁷ that lothly losell ⁸ is thus ded,
I haue great ioy in my manhede;
Therfor wold I in ilk sted ⁹
It were tain hede,
If any felowse felow his red,¹⁰
Or more his law wold lede.¹¹ 24

For, and I knew it, cruelly
His lyfe bees lost, and that shortly,
That he were better hyng ful hy

For Centurio, I vnderstand, Youre knyght, is left abydand ³
Right ther bchynde; 40
We left hym ther for man most wyse,
If any rybaldys wold oght ryse,⁴
To sesse theym to the next assyse,⁵
And then forto make ende. 44

Then shall come the Centurion like a knight, riding.⁶

CENTURIO. A, blyssyd Lord Adonay,⁷
What may this meruell sygnyfy
That here was shewyd so openly Vnto oure sight,
When the rightwys man can ⁸ dy
That Ihesus hight? 50

Heuen it shoke abone;⁹
Of shynyng blan ¹⁰ both son and moyne;
And dede men also rose vp sone,
Outt of thare graf;e;
And stones in wall anone
In sonder brast and clafe. 56

Ther was seen many a full sodan sight.
Oure prynces, for sothe, dyd nothyng
right;
And so I saide to theym on hight,¹¹
As it is trew,
That he was most of myght,
The Son of God, Ihesu. 62

 Tell vs som tythyngys here emang;
 For ye haue gone thurghoutt oure land,
 Ye know ilk dele.
 CENTURIO. Sir, I drede me ye haue done wrang
 And wonder yll. 85

CAYPHAS. Wonder yll! I pray the why?
 Declare that to this company!
 CENTURIO. So shall I, sir, full securly,
 With all my mayn;
 The rightwys man, I meyn hym by,⁴
 That ye haue slayn. 91

PILATUS. Centurio, sese of sich saw!⁵
 Ye ar a greatt man of oure law,
 And if we shuld any wytnes draw
 To vs excuse,
 To mayntene vs euermore ye aw,⁶
 And nocht refuse. 97

CENTURIO. To mayntene trowth is well

CAYPHAS. We pray the tell vs, of what thyng?
 CENTURIO. Of elymentys, both old and ying,
 In thare manere maide greatt mowrnyng
 In ilka stede;⁵
 Thay knew by contenaunce that thare
 Kyng
 Was done to dede. 115

The son for wo it waxed all wan;
 The moyn and starnes of shynyng blan;
 And erth it tremlyd, as a man
 Began to speke;
 The stone, that neuer was styrryd or

THE JUDGMENT DAY ¹

[Acted by the Mercers of York.]

Deus incipit.

[DEUS.] Firste when I this worlde hadde wrought,

Woode and wynde and wateris wan,
And all-kynne thyng that now is oght,¹
Fulle wele, me-thought, that I did thanne;
Whenne thei were made, goode me thame thoght.

Sethen ² to my liknes made I man;
And man to greue me gaffe he noght.
Therefore me rewis that I the worlde began.³ 8

Whanne I had made man at my will,
I gaffe hym wittis hym-selue to wisse;⁴
And Paradise I putte hym till,
And bad hym halde it all as his.
But of the tree of goode and ill
I saide, "What tyme thou etis of this,
Manne, thou spedes thi-selue to spill;⁵
Thou arte brought oute of all blisse." 16

Belyue ⁶ brak manne my bidding.
He wende ⁷ haue bene a god therby;
He wende haue witytne ⁸ of all-kynne thyng,

In worlde to haue bene als wise as I.
He ete the appill I badde schulde hyng;⁹
Thus was he begilid thurgh glotony.
Sithen both hym and his ospring
To pyne ¹⁰ I putte thame all for-thy.¹¹ 24

To lange and late ¹² me thoghte it goode
To catche ¹³ thois caitiffis oute of care.
I sente my Sone, with full blithe moode,
Till erthe to salue thame of thare sare.¹⁴

For rewthe of thame he reste on roode,
And boughte thame with his body bare;
For thame he shedde his harte and bloode.
What kyndnesse myght I do thame mare?¹⁵ 32

Sethen, aftirwarde, he heryed ¹ hell,
And toke oute thois wrechis that ware thare-inne;
Ther faughte that free ² with feendis feele ³
For thame that ware sounkyn for synne.
Sethen in erthe than gonne he dwelle;
Ensaumpill he gauc thame heuene to wynde,

In Tempill hym-selffe to teche and tell,
To by thame blisse that neuere may blyne.⁴ 40

Sethen haue thei founde me full of mercye,
Full of grace and for-giffenesse.
And thei als wrecehis, wittirly,⁵
Has ledde ther liffe in lithirnesse;⁶
Ofte haue thei greued me greuouly:—
Thus haue thei quitte me my kyndnesse.

Therfore no lenger, sekirlye,⁷ Thole ⁸ will I thare wikkidnesse. 48

Men seis the worlde but vanite, Yitt will no-manne be ware ther-by;
Ilke a day ther mirroure may thei se,
Yitt thynke thei noght that thei schall dye.

All that eure I saide schulde be
Is nowe fulfillid thurgh prophicie.
Therfore nowe is it tyme to me
To make endyng of mannes folie. 56

I haue tholed mankynde many a yere
In luste and likyng for to lende;⁹
And vnethis ¹⁰ fynde I ferre or nere

A man that will his misse amende.
In erthe I see butte synnes seere.¹

Therefore myne aungellis will I sende
To blawe ther bemys² that all may here.
The tyme is comen I will make ende. 64

Aungellis, blawes youre bemys belyue,³
Ilke a creatoure for to call!
Leerid and lewde,⁴ both man and wiffe,
Ressayue ther dome this day thei schall,
Ilke a leede⁵ that euere hadde life;
Bese none for-getyn, grete ne small.
Ther schall thei see the woundes fyve
That my Sone suffered for them all. 72

And sounderes⁶ thame be-fore my sight!
All same in blisse schall thei not be.
My blissid childe, as I haue hight,⁷
On my right hande I schall thame see;
Sethen schall ilke a weried wight⁸
On my lifte side for ferdnesse⁹ flee.
This day ther domys thus haue I dight,
To ilke a man as he hath serued me. 80

I. ANG. Loued be thou, Lorde, of myghtis
moste,
That aungell made to messengere!
Thy will schall be fulfillid in haste,
That heuene and erthe and helle schalle
here.

[The angels blow their trumpets.]

[I. ANG.] Goode and ill, euery ilke a¹⁰ gaste, Rise and fecche youre flessch, that was youre feere!¹¹
For all this worlde is broght to waste.
Drawes to youre dome! It neghes
nere! 88

II. ANG. Ilke a creature, bothe olde and yhing,
Be-lyue I bidde you that ye ryse!
Body and sawle with you ye bring,
And comes be-fore the high justise!
For I am sente fro heuene kyng
To calle you to this grette assise.
Therefore rise vppe, and geue rekenyng
How ye hym serued vppon sere wise.¹² 96

I. ANIMA BONA. Loued be thou, Lorde, that is so schene,¹
That on this manere made vs to rise,
Body and sawle to-gedir, elene,
To come before the high justise.
Of oure ill dedis, Lorde, thou not mene,²
That we haue wrought vppon sere wise;
But graunte vs for thy grace, be-dene,³
That we may wonne⁴ in paradise. 104

II. AN. BONA. A! loued be thou, Lorde of
all,
That heuene and erthe and all has
wroght,
That with thyne aungellis wolde vs call
Oute of oure graues, hidir to be broght.
Ofte haue we greued the, grette and small;
Ther-aftr, Lorde, thou deme vs noght;
Ne suffir vs neuere to fendis to be thrall,
That ofte in erthe with synne vs
soght! 112

I. ANIMA MALA. Allas! allas! that we were borne!
So may we synfull kaytiffis say.
I here wele be⁵ this hydous horne
Itt drawes full nere to domesday.
Allas! we wrecchis that ar for-lorne,⁶
That never yitt serued God to paye,
But ofte we haue his flessch for-sworne.
Allas! allas! and welaway! 120

What schall we wrecchis do for drede?
Or whedir for ferdnes may we flee,
When we may bringe forthe no goode dede
Before hym that oure juge schall be?
To aske mercy vs is no nede,
For wele I wotte dampned be we.
Allas! that we swilke⁷ liffe schulde lede
That dighte⁸ vs has this destonye! 128

 For oure mys-menyng ³ mon we make;
 Helpe may none excusacioune.
 We mon be sette for our synnes sake
 For-cuere fro oure saluacioune,
 In helle to dwelle with feendes blake,
 Wher neuer schall be redempcioune. 144

II. AN. MALA. Als carefull caitiffis may we ryse!

Sore may we ringe oure handis and wepe!
 For cursidnesse and for covetise
 Dampned be we to helle full depe!
 Rought we neuere of Goddis seruise;
 His comaundementis wolde we noght
 kepe;
 But ofte than made we sacrafise
 To Satanas when othir slepe. 152

Allas! now wakens all oure were! ⁴
 Oure wikkid werkis may we not hide,
 But on oure bakkis vs muste them bere;
 Thei wille vs wreye ⁵ on ilke a side.
 I see foule feendis that wille vs feere,⁶
 And all for pompe of wikkid pride.
 Wepe may with many a teere.
 Allas, that we this day schulde bide! 160

 To deme my domes I woll descende.
 This body will I bere with me;
 How it was dight,⁶ mannes mys ⁷ to mende,
 All mankynde there schall it see. 184

[Jesus descends to the earth and addresses the Apostles.]

JESUS. Mi postelis and my darlyngis dere,
 The dredfull dome this day is dight.
 Both heuen and erthe and hell schall here
 Howe I schall holde that I haue hight,⁸
 That ye schall sitte on seetis sere ⁹
 Be-side my-selffe, to se that sight,
 And for to deme folke ferre and nere
 Aftir ther werkyng wronge or right. 192

I saide also, whan I you sente
 To suffre sorowe for my sake,
 All tho that wolde thame right repente
 Schulde with you wende and wynly

 And to youre tales who toke no tente
 Schulde fare ¹¹ to fyre with fendis blake.
 Of mercy nowe may noght be mente;
 Butt, aftir wirkyng, welth or wrake. 200

My hetying haly ¹² schall I fullfille.
 Therefore comes furth and sittis me by
 To here the dome of goode and ill.

This wofull worlde away is wente,
And I am come as crowned kyng.

Mi Fadir of heuene he has me sente
To deme youre dedis, and make ending.

Comen is the day of iugement;
Of sorowe may ilke a synfull synge. 236

The day is comen of kaydyfnes,⁶

All tham to care that are vnclene,
The day of bale and bittirnes;

Full longe abedyn has it bene!

The day of drede to more and lesse,
Of care, of trymbelyng, and of tene,⁷

That ilke a wight that weried is Beholdis both body, bak, and side,

How dere I bought youre brotherhede!
Thes bittir peynes I wolde abide;

To bye you blisse, thus wolde I bleede. 252

Mi body was scourged with-ouen skill;²

As theffe full thraly ³ was [I] thrette;
On crosse thei hanged me on a hill,

Bloody and bloo, as I was bette,
With croune of thorne throsten full ill;

This spere vnto my side was sette;
Myne harte bloode spared noght thei for to spill.

Manne, for thy loue wolde I not lette. 260

The Jewes spitte on me spitously;

Thei spared me nomore than a theffe.
When thei me strake, I stode stilly;

Agaynste tham did I no-tyng greve.
Behalde, mankynde, this ilke is I,

That for the suffered swilke mischeue.
Thus was I dight for thy folye.

Man, loke, thy liffe was me full leffe.⁴ 268

 And Maria, that pure vyrge[n], queene
 most excellent,
 Wyche bare that blyssyd babe Iesu, that for vs sufferd pyne,² Vnto whoys goodnes I do inclyne Besechyng that Lord, of hys pytous influ-ens,
 To preserue and gouerne thys wyrshypfull
 audyens. 7

Honorable frendes, besechyng yow of lycens
 To procede owr processe,³ we may, vnder your correccion, [Show]⁴ the conuersyon of Seynt Paule, as the Byble gyf experyens.⁵
 Whoo lyst to rede the booke Actum Ap-postolorum,⁶
 Ther shall he haue the very notycon.⁷
 But, as we can, we shall vs redres,⁸ Brefly, with yowr fauour, begynnyng owr proces. [Exit.] 14
 Daunce.⁹

Here entryth Saule, goodly besene¹ in the best wyse lyke an aunterous² knyth, thus sayyng:

SAULUS. Most dowtyd³ man I am luyung vpon the ground!
 Goodly besene with many a riche garnement!⁴
 My pere on lyue I trow ys nott found.
 Thorow the world, fro the oryent to the occydent,
 My fame ys best knowyn vndyr the fyrmament.
 I am most drad of pepull vnyuersall;
 They dare not dysp[le]ase me⁵ most noble. 21

Saule ys my name, — I wyll that ye no-tyfy, — Whych conspyreth⁶ the dyscyplys with threte and menace;⁷
 Be-fore the prynces of prestes most noble and hye⁸
 I bring them to punyshment for ther
 trespace.
 We wyll them nott suffer to rest in no
 place,
 For they go a-boughte to preche and gyff
 exemplis
 To destroye our lawes, sinagoges, and templis. 28

¹ Apparelled.² Adventurous.³ Dreaded.⁴ F. garment; corr. by M.⁵ F. my; corr. by M.; but the line seems to be corrupt.⁶ Used in its etymological sense "to breathe together," possibly echoing Acts ix. 1: "And Saul, yet breathing out threatenings" (Saulus autem adhuc spirans minarum).⁷ F. thretes and menaces; corr. by M.⁸ F. hye and noble; corr. by M.

¹ From the Digby MS., which contains four (one a fragment) late fifteenth-century plays. I have based the text on F. J. Furnivall's The Digby Mysteries, 1882 (F.), and have availed myself of certain valuable emendations by Manly (M.). I have also adopted the stanzaic form employed by Manly, since Furnivall gives no indication of the metrical scheme. The play was probably written by an East Midland author. The method of performance shows that it was designed for presentation in a small village. Three "stations" were used, and the audience, as well as the actors, moved in a body from one station to another. The reader should compare the play with the liturgical Conversio Beati Pauli Apostoli printed on page 51. The Festival of the Conversion of St. Paul came on January 25, and we may suppose that both these plays were designed for performance on that day.

By the god Bellyall, I schall make progresse Vnto the princes, both Caypha and Anna,
 Wher I schall aske of them, in suernes,
 To persue thorow all Dammask and Liba;
 And thus we schall soone after than Bryng them that so do lyff in-to Ierusalem,
 Both man and child, that I fynd of them. 35

Her cummyth Sale to Caypha and Anna, prestes of the tempyll.

Nobyll prelates and princes of regalyte, Desyryng and askyng of your benyngne
 wurthyne
 Your letters and epystolys of most sou-erente
 To subdue rebellyous¹ that wyll, of frawardnes,
 A-gaynst our lawes rebell or transgresse,
 Nor wyll not inclyne but mak obiecc[i]on.
 To persue all such I wyll do proteccion.² 42

CAYPHA. To your desyer we gyf perfyth sentens,³ Accordyng to your petycions that ye make postulacion;⁴
 By-cause we know your trewe delygens
 To persue all tho that do reprobacion
 A-gayns owur lawes by ony redargua-cion.⁵

Wherfor shortly we gyf in commandment
 To put down them that be dy[s]obedy-
 ent. 49

ANNA. And by thes letturs, that be most reuerrent —
 Take them in hand, full agre⁶ ther-to — Constreyn all rebellys by owur hole assent;
 We gyf yow full power so to doo.
 Spare not, hardly, for frend nor foo!
 All thos ye fynd of that lyfe in thys realme, Bounde loke ye bryng them in-to Ierusa-
 lem. 56

Her Saule resayuyth ther letters.

SAULUS. Thys precept here I take in
 hande,

¹ F. rebelljons; corr. by M.; cf. ll. 135, 142.

² Give protection.

³ Perfect sentence (complete authority?).

⁴ Request.

⁵ Reprehensible conduct.

⁶ Agree.

To fullfyll after yowur wylls both;
 Wher I shall spare with-in this londe Nother man nor woman, — to this I make an oth, —
 But to subdue I wyll not be loth.
 Now folow me, knytns and seruantes
 trewe,
 In-to Damaske as fast as ye can sewe.¹ 63

I. MILES. Vnto your commaundment I do obeysaunce.

I wyll not gaynsay nor make delacion,²
 But with good mynd and harty plesaunce
 I shall yow succede and make perambu-lacion
 Thorow-oute Damaske with all delecta-
 tion;
 And all tho [who] rebell and make resystens,
 For to oppres I wyll do my delygens. 70

II. MILES. And in me shalbe no necligens, But to thys precept my-self I shall ap-
 plye,
 To do your behest³ with all conuenyens,
 With-owt eny frowardnes or eny obsty-nacy, —
 Non shall appere in me; but, verely,
 With all my mynd, I yow insure,⁴
 To resyst tho rebelles I wyll do my cure.⁵ 77

SAULUS. Truly to me yt ys grett consolacion
 To here thys report that ye do avauens.⁶
 For your sapyencyall wyttes I gyf com-mendacion;
 Euer at my nede I haue founde yow constant.
 But, knytns and seruantes, that be so plesaunt,
 I pray yow anon my palfray ye bryng,
 To spede my iurney with-owt lettyng. 84

Here goyth Sale forth a lytyll a-ryde for to make hym redy to ryde, the seruuant thus seyng:

SERUUS. How, hosteler! how! A peck of otyes and a botell⁷ of haye!
 Com of a-pase, or I wyll to a-nother inne!

⁶ Advance.

⁷ Bundle.

What, hosteler! why commyst not thy way?
Hye the faster, I beshrew thi skynne!

STABULARYUS. I am non hosteler, nor non hostelers kynne,

But a ientylmanys seruuant, i[f] ¹ thou dost
know!

Such crabyysh wordes do aske a blow. 91

SERUUS. I cry yow mercy, sir! I wyst well sum-what ye were,

Owther a gentylman, or a knaue, me
thynkyth by your physnomy!

Yf on[e] loke yow in the face that neuer se yow ere,²

Wold thynk ye were at the next dore by.

In good fayth, I wenyd ³ yow had bene an hosteler, verely:

I sye ⁴ suche a-nother ientylman with yow
a barowfull bare

Of horsdowng, and dogges tordes, and sych other gere. 98

And how yt happenyd, a mervelous chance be-tyde:

Your felow was not suer of foote, and yet he went very brode,

But in a cow tord both dyd ye slyde, —
And, as I wene, your nose ther-in rode,
Your face was be-payntyd with sowers code.⁵

I sey ⁶ neuer sych a syght, I make God
a vow!

Ye were so be-grymlyd and yt had bene a sowe. 105

STAB. In fayth, thou neuer syest me tyll
this day.

I haue dwellyd with my master thys vij yere and more;

Full well I haue pleasyd hym — he wyll
not say nay —

And mykyll ⁷ he makyth of me therefore.

SERUUS. By my trowth, than be ye changyd to a new lore!⁸

A seruand ye are, and that a good,
Ther ys no better lokyth owt of a hood. 112

STAB. For soth, and a hood I vse for to Nowther frost nor snow that I therby do

sett.

SERUUS. Yea, yt ys a dobyll hood, and that a fett!³

He was a good man that made yt, I warant
yow;

He was nother horse ne mare, nor yet
yokyd sow! 119

*Here commyth the fyrst knyth to the stabyl
grom, sayng:*

I. MILES. Now, stabyll grom, shortly bryng forth away

The best horse, for owur lorde wyll ryde.

STAB. I am full redy. Here ys a palfray.

There can no man a better bestryde!

He wyll conducte owur lorde and gyde
Thorow the world; he ys sure and abyll;
To bere a gentyllman he [is] esy and prophetabyll. 126

Her the knyth cummyth to Saule with a horse.

I. MILES. Behold, sir Saule, your palfray ys com,

Full goodly besene, as yt ys yowr desyer
To take yowur vyage thorow euery regyon.

Be nott in dowt he wyll spede your mater.

And we, as your seruauentes, with glad chere

Shall gyf attendance; we wyll nott gayn-
say,

But folow you where ye go be nyght or
day. 133

SAULUS. Vnto Damask I make my progressyon,

To pursue all rebellyous, beying froward
and obstynate,

Agayns our lawes be ony transgressyon.

With all my delygens my-self I wyll
preparete ⁴

Concernyng my purpose to oppres and separate;

Non shall reioyce that doth offend,

² Harm.

³ A fine one.

⁴ F. prepare; emend. by M.

But vtterly to reprove with mynde and
intende. 140

Her Sale rydyth forth with hys seruantes a-bout the place,¹ [and] out of the p[lace].

CAYPHA. Now Saule hath takyn hys wurthy wyage²

To pursue rebellyous, of what degre thei
be.

He wyll non suffer to raygne nor haue passage

With-in all thys regyon, we be in sertayn[te].³

Wherefor I commende hys goodly dyg-
nyte,

That he thus aluay takyth in hande
By hys power to gouerne thus all thys
lande. 147

ANNA. We may lyue in rest, ly hys consolacion.

He defendyth vs; where-for we be bownde

To loue hym intyrelly with our harttes
affeccion,

And honour hym as champion in euery
stownde.⁴

Ther ys non suche luyng vpon the
grownde

That may be lyke hym nor be hys pere,
Be⁵ est nor west, ferre nor nere. 154

POETA — *si placet.*⁶

CONCLUSYON.

Daunce.⁷

[EPILOGUE.]

[POETA.] Fynally, of this stac[i]on⁸ thus we mak a conclusyon,

Besechyng thys audyens to folow and succede

With all your delygens this generall procession.⁹

⁶ This refers, apparently, to the "Conclusyon" or Epilogue. "Daunce" was later inserted.

⁷ Added in a later hand.

⁸ F. stacon; corr. by M.

⁹ It is clear that the audience had to walk in procession to the next station.

To vnderstande this matter, wo lyst to rede

The Holy Bybyll for the better spede,
Ther shall he haue the perfyth intellygens.
And thus we comyt yow to Crystys magnyfyceens. 161

*The end of that station, and another follows:*¹

[SECOND STATION. DAMASCUS.]²

[PROLOGUE.]

POETA. Honorable frendes, we besече
yow of audyens

To here our intencion and also our pros-ses.

Vpon our matter, be your fauorable
lycens,

A-nother part of the story we wyll redres.

Here shalbe brefly shewyd with all our besynes,³

At thys pagent, Saynt Poullys conuereyon.
Take ye good hede and ther-to gyf affec-cion. [Exit.] 168

Here commyth Saule rydyng in with hys seruantes.

SAULUS. My purpose to Damask fully I
intende.

To pursue the dyscypulys my lyfe I apply.

For to breke down the chyrchys thus I descende,

Non I wyll suffer that [they] shall edyfey.⁴

Perchaunce owur lawes than myghte [peyre]⁵ ther-by,

And the pepull also turne and conuerte;
Whych shuld be gret heuynes vnto myn
hart. 175

Nay, that shall nott be butt layd a-part!
The prynces hauc gouyn⁶ me full potes-tacion.⁷

² Again the audience is gathered about an open space, or platea. Within the platea are constructed, it seems, a "mansion" for Annanie, a "mansion"
(see lines 269-71) for Saul, and Heaven.

³ Diligence. ⁴ Build.

⁵ Become impaired. Supplied by Kittredge, in M.

⁶ Given. ⁷ Power.

All that I fynd, thei shall nott start,¹
 But bounde, to Ierusalem, with furyous
 vyolacion,
 Be-for Cesar, Caypha and Annas [haue]² presentacion.
 Thus shalbe subduyd tho wretchys of that
 lyfe,
 That non shall in-ioy, nother man, chy[l]de,
 nor wyfe. 182

Here commyth a feruent [flame]² with gret tempest, and Saule faulth down of hys horse; that done, Godhed spekyth in heuyn.

DEUS. Saule! Saule! why dost thou me pursue?

Yt ys hard to pryke a-gayns the spore!
 I am thi Savyour, that ys so trwe,
 Whych made heuyn and erth and eche

In-to the cyte a lytyll be-syde,
 And I shall the socor in euery dere,⁵

That no maner of yll xal be-tyde;
 And I wyll ther for the prouyde
 By my grete goodnes what thou shalt doo.

Hy the as fast thether as thou mast goo. 196
[Deus withdraws.]

SAULUS. O mercyfull God, what alyth
 me?

I am lame; my legges be take me fro;
 My syth⁶ lykwyse; I may nott see;
 I can nott tell whether⁷ to goo.
 My men hath forsake me also.

Whether shall I wynde? or whether shall I
 pas?

Lord, I besече the, helpe me, of thy

I. MILES. Syr, we be here to help the in thi nede

¹ Escape.

³ Redeem, savc.

⁶ Injury. ⁶ Sight.

² Supplied by M.

⁴ Did, should do.

⁷ Whither.

With all our affyance;¹ we wyll not seise.²
 SAULUS. Than, in Damask, I pray yow, me lede,

I[in] Godes name, accordyng to my prom-
 yse.

II. MILES. To put forth yowur hand loke ye dresse.³

Cum on your way. We shall yow bryng
 In-to the cyte with-owt taryng. 210

*Here the knyghtes lede forth Sale in-to a place,⁴ and Cryst apperyth to Ananie,
 sayyng:*

DEUS. Ananie! Ananie! Where art thou, Ananie?

ANAN. Here, Lord; I am here, trwly. 212

DEUS. Go thy way and make thi curse,⁵
 As I shall assyng⁶ the by myn aduysse,
 Into the strete qui dicitur rectus,⁷

And in a certayn house, of warantyse,⁸ Ther shall ye fynd Saule in humble vyse,⁹

As a meke lambe, that a wolf before was namyd.

Do my behest; be nothyng a-shamyd! 219

He wantyth hys syth,¹⁰ by my punyshment constrayned.

Prayeng vnto me, I assure, thou shalt hym fynd.

With my stroke of pyte sore ys he paynyde, Wantyng hys syth, for he ys truly blynyde.

ANAN. Lord, I am aferd; for aluay in my mind

I here so myche of hys furyous cruelte,
 That for spekyng of thi name to deth he will put me. 226

DEUS. Nay, Ananie; nay, I assure the!
 He wulbe glad of thy cummyng.

ANAN. A! Lord, but I know, of a certayn[te],¹¹

That thy seyntes in Ierusalem to deth he doth bryng.

² Cease.

³ Address yourself.

⁴ Obviously the "mansyon" or house indicated in lines 216, 269-71.

⁵ Course.

⁶ Assign.

⁷ "Which is called straight."

⁸ Without fail.

⁹ Wise, condition.

¹⁰ Sight.

Many ylls of hym I haue bekennyng,¹
For he hath the pour² of the princes alle
To saue or spylle,³ do which he schall. 233

DEUS. Be nothyng a-drad! He ys a chosen wessell

To me, assyngned by my godly cleccion.
He shall bere my name be-fore the kynges
and chylder of Israell,

By many sharpe shoures⁴ sufferyng correccion,

A gret doctor, of benyngne compleccion,
The trwe precher of the hye deuynete,
A very pynacle of the fayth, I ensure
the. 240

ANAN. Lorde, thy commandment I shall fullfyll.

Vn-to Saule I wyll take my waye.

DEUS. Be nothyng in dowte for good nor yll.
Fare-well, Ananie! Tell Saule what I do
say.

*Let God depart.*⁵

ANAN. Blyssyd Lord, defende me, as thou best may!

Gretly I fere hys cruell tyranny.

But to do thi precept my-self I shall ap-
plye. 247

Here Ananias goth toward Saule.

I. MILES. I maruayle gretly what yt doth mene,

To se owur master in thys hard stounde.⁶
The wonder grett lythys⁷ that were so shene⁸

Smett hym doune of hys hors to the
grownde;

And me thowt that I hard a sounde
Of won spekyng with voyce delectable, Whych was to [vs]⁹ wonderfull myrable.¹⁰ 254

II. MILES. Sertenly thys lyght was ferefull to see;

The sperkys of fyer were very feruent;

¹ Knowledge. F. prints be kennyng; but see

⁷ Lights.

⁸ Bright.

⁹ Bright.

¹⁰ Marvellous.

Yt inflamyd so greuouely about the countre
That, by my trowth, I went¹ we shuld a ben brent.²

But now, serys, lett vs relente³ Agayne to Caypha and Anna, to tell this chaunce

How yt be-fell to vs thys greuauns. 261
[The two soldiers depart for Jerusalem.]

Her Saule ys in contemplacion.

SAULUS. Lord, of thi counfort moch I
desyre,

Thou myghty Prince of Israell, Kyng of pyte,

Whyche me hast punyshyd as thi presoner,
That nother ete nor dranke thys dayes
thre.

But, graeyos Lorde, of thi vysytacyon I thanke the;

Thy seruant shall I be as long as I haue
breth,

Though I therfor shuld suffer dethe. 268

Here commyth Anania to Saule, sayeng:

ANAN. Pease be in thys place and goodly mansyon!

Who ys with-in? Speke, in Crystys holy
name!

SA[UL]US. I am here, Saule. Cum in, on Goddess benyson!

What ys your wyll? Tell, with-owten blame.

ANAN. From Almyghty God, sertainly, to the sent I am;

And Ananie men call me wher-as I dwell.

SAULUS. What wold ye haue, I pray yow me tell. 275

ANAN. Gyfe me your hand for your awayle.⁴

For, as I was commaundyd by hys gra-ceyos sentens,

He bad⁵ the be stedfast, for thou shalt be hayle.⁶

For thys same cause he sent me to thi
presens.

Also he bad the remember hys hye
excellens,

⁴ Avail, benefit.

⁶ Whole, healed.

Be the same tokyn that he dyd the mete¹

Toward the cyte, when he apperyd in the strete. 282

Ther mayst thou know hys power celes-tyall,

How he dysposyth euery thyng as hym
lyst;

No thyng may withstand hys myghte essencyall.

To stond vp-ryght, or els down to thryste,²

Thys ys hys powur; yt may not be myste,

For who that yt wantyth, lackyth a frende.
Thys ys the message that he doth the
sende. 289

SAULUS. Hys marcy to me ys ryght wel-
com;

I am ryght glad that yt ys thus.

*Here the Holy Spirit shall appear above him.*³

ANAN. Be of good chere and perfyte iubyacion,

*Descendet super te Spiritus Sanctus,*⁴

Whych hath with hys grace illumynyd vs.

Put fo[r]th thi hond and goo wyth me.
A-gayne to thy syght here I restore the. 296

SAULUS. Blyssyd Lord, thankys to yow euer bee!

The swame⁵ ys fallyn from my eyes
twayne!

Where I was blynyd and coud nott see,
Lord, thou hast sent me my syght
agayne.

From sobbyng and wepyng I can not refrayne.

My pensyue hart [is] full of contryccion;
For my offences my body shal haue puny-cyon;⁶ 303

And, where I haue vsed so gret persecucion
Of thi descyplys thorow all Ierusalem,

⁶ Punishment.

I wyll [aid] and defende ther prædycaacyon¹
That th[e]y dyd tech on all this reme.²

Wherefor, Ananie, at the watery streme
Baptyse me, hartely I the praye, A-mong your numbr that I electe and chosen be may. 310

ANAN. On-to this well³ of mych vertu

We wyll vs hye with all our delygens.

SAULUS. Go yow be-fore, and after I shall sewe,

Laudyng and praysyng our Lordes benevolens.

I shall neuer offend hys myghty magnyfycens,

But aluay obserue hys preceptys and
kepe.

For my gret vnkyndnes my hart doth
wepe. 317

[They arrive at the place of baptism.]

ANAN. Knele ye down vpon thys grownde, Receyuyng thys crystenyng with good intent,

Whyche shall make yow hole of your dedly
wound,

That was infecte with venom nocent.⁴

Yt purgyth synne; and fendes poures⁵ so fraudent

It putyth a-syde; where thys doth at-
tayne,

In euery stede, he may not obtayne. 324

I crysten yow with mynd full perfyght,

Reseyuyng yow in-to owur relygyon,

Euer to be stedfast and neuer to flyt,⁶

But euer constant with-owt varyacyon.

Now ys fullyllyd all our obseruacyon;

Concludyng, thou mayst yt ken,

In nomine Patris et Filij et Spiritus Sancti,
Amen! 331

SAULUS. I am ryght glad as foule on flyte⁷
That I haue receyuyd this blyssyd sacre-
ment.

ANAN. Com on your way, Saule; for noth-yng lett.⁸

Take yow sum coumforth for your bodyes noryschment.

¹ Preaching.

² Realm.

Ye shall abyde with the dysceplys, verament,
Thys many dayes in Damask cyte,
Vn-tyll the tyme more perfyt ye may be. 338

SAULUS. As ye commande, holy father
Ananie;

I full[y]¹ assent at yow[r] request,
To be gydyd and rulyd as ye wyll haue me,
Evyng at your pleasur, as ye thynk best.
I shall not offend for most nor lest.
Go forth yowur way; I wyll succede
In-to what place ye wyll me lede. 345

[Exeunt.]

CONCLUSYON[N].

Dauunce.²

[EPILOGUE.]

POETA. Thus Saule ys conuerted, as ye se expres,

The very trw seruant of our Lord Iesu.
Non may be lyke to hys perfyght holynes,
So nobyll a doctor, constant and trwe;
Aftyr hys conuersyon neuer mutable,
but styll insue

The lawys of God to teche euer more and more.

As Holy Scryptur tellyd who-so lyst to loke ther-fore. 352

Thus we comyte yow all to the Trynyte, Concludyng thys stacion as we can or may,

Vnder the correceyon of them that letteryd
be;

How-be-yt vnable, as I dare speke or
say,

The compyler her-of shuld translatt veray
So holy a story, but with fauorable correc-cyon

Of my fauorable masters of ther benygne supplexion.³ 359

[The two soldiars from Damascus come up to Caiaphas and Anna.]

I. MILES. Nobyll prelates, take hede to owur sentens!

A wundryfull chaunce fyll² and dyd be-tyde

Vn-to owr master Saull, when he departyd
hens,

In-to Damaske purposyd to ryde.

A meruelous lyght fro thcleme[n]t³ dyd
glyde,

Whyche smet down hym to grunde, both horse and man,

With the ferfulest wether that cuer I in
cam. 373

II. MILES. It rauysshid hym, and his spirites did benome.

A swete, dulcet voyce spake hym vnto,
And askyd wherfor he made suche persecu-
cyon

A-gecynst hys dysceplys, and why he dyd
soo.

He bad hym in-to Damaske to Ananie
goo,

¹ Not without some hesitation I have labeled this Jerusalem. All the action seems to take place there, although the Bible represents some of this as occurring in Damaseus. We may suppose that the author, or the actors, were forced by the conditions of performance to take liberties with the Biblical story.
Or it may be that the text of the play has been revamped for a three-station performance. There seems to have been on the platea the house of Caiaphas and Anna, a scaffold for the devils, and a pulpit (or possibly a house) for Saul.

² Fell, betell. ³ The element, the sky.

And ther he shuld reseyuē baptyū, truly.
And now elene a-geyns owur lawys he ys
trwly. 380

CAYPHA. I am sure thys tale ys not trw!
What! Saule conuertyd from our law!
He went to Damask for to pursue
All the dyscopylys that dyd with-draw Fro owur fayth: thys was hys sawe.¹
How say ve, Anna, to thys mater? This ys a mervelos chans!
I can not beleve that thys ys of assur-
ans! 387

ANNA. No, Caypha! My mynde trwly do [I] tell:
That he wyll not turne in no maner wyse,
But rather to deth put and expell
All myscreauntes and wretchys that doth aryse
Agaynst our lawes by ony enterpryse.

[Turning to the soldiers.]

Say the trwth with-[owt] ony cause frawdelent,
Or els for your talys ye be lyke to be shent! 394

I. MILES. Ellys owur bodyes may [ye] ² put to payn! ³
All that we declare I syc yt with my nye; ⁴
Nothyng offenyng, but trwly do iusty-
fye. 397

CAYPHAS. By the gret God, I do maruayle gretly!
And ⁵ thys be trw that ye do reherse,
He shall repent hys rebellyous treytory,
That all shalbe ware ⁶ of hys falsnes.
We wyll not suffer hym to obtayne ⁷ dowt-
les,
For meny perellys that myght be-tyde
By hys subtyll meanys on euery syde. 404

ANNA. The law ys commyttyd to owur aduysment;
Wherfor we wyll not se yt decay,

But rather vphold yt, help, and augment,
That ony reprove to vs fall may
Of Cesar, themprour, by nyght or day.
We shall to such maters harke and at-
tende,
Accordyng to the lawes our wyttes to spende. 411

mayne!
With souerayne sewte sowghte to ys my deyte. ⁵

¹ At this point, and extending through the stage direction following line 502 (I have enclosed the scene in brackets), a later writer has inserted on three separate leaves a comic episode between Belial and Mercury. His purpose seems to have been to render the play more entertaining.

 dowtles:
 Thorow all Damask and also Ierusalem Subdwe all templys that he founde of

 That had in powr the full dominion —
 To hyde yt fro you yt were gret shame
 And mortall synne, as in my opynyon, —

³ Possibly scaffolds were erected with seats for some of the spectators.

⁴ I have omitted Saul's long sermon on the Seven Deadly Sins, for the same reason that impelled the later writer to add the comic scene of Belial and Mercury. The sermon has no dramatic value.

⁵ Possibly, as F. notes, an error for Damascus.

SERUUS. To Anna and Caypha ye must make your recurse.¹

Com on your way, and make no delacion!
SAULUS. I wyll yow succede, for better or wors,

To the prynces of pristis with all delectacion.

[The Servant leads Saul to Caiaphas and Anna.]

SERUUS. Holy pristis of hye potestacion, Here ys Saule! Lok on hym wysely!
He ys a-nother man than he was, verely. 593

SAULUS. I am the seruant of Ihesu Almyghty,

Creator and maker of see and sonnd,
Whiche ys kyng conctypotent² of heuyn

[The stage of the Emperor Tiberius Cæsar, Rome. The Emperor, Serbyl, Provost, and others.]

INPERATOR. I command sylyns, in the peyn of forfeetur,
To all myn avdyeans present general.
Of my most hyst and mytyest wolunte,¹
I woll it be knowyn to al the word ² vnyversal,
That of heven and hell chyff rewlar am I,
To w[h]os magnyfyccens non stondyt egall,³
For I am soveren of al soverens subjugal ⁴
On-to myn empere, beyng in-comparable,
Tyberyus Sesar, w[h]os power is potencyall.
I am the blod ryall ⁵ most of soverente; io
Of all emperowers and kynges my byrth is best,
And all regeouns obey my myty volunte.
Lufe and lem ⁶ and goodes, all be at my request.
So of all soverens, my magnyfyccens most mytyest

And that bryng-is ³ all pepell in blysse so.
For the most worthyest, woll I rest in my sete.

[He seats himself in his throne.]

SERYBYL. Syr, from your person growyt ⁴ moch grace. 20

INPERATOR. Now for thin answer, Belyall blysse thi face!

Mykyl presporyte ⁵ I gyn to purchase;
I am wonddyn ⁶ in welth from all woo.
Herke thou, Provost, I gyff the in commandment,

All your pepull preserve in pesabyll possession. 25

Yff ony ther be to my goddes [dis]obedynt,

¹ The text is preserved in a manuscript, Bodleian Digby MS. 133, containing four plays (three complete plays on Biblical themes, and a fragment of a morality) accidentally brought together. The manuscript is probably to be dated in the early part of the sixteenth century, but the plays themselves were composed in the latter half of the fifteenth century. The play here reproduced, dealing with the legendary history of Mary Magdalene, belongs to the midland section of England, though the exact place of its origin cannot be indicated. The text is based on the edition by F. J. Furnivall, The Digby Mysteries, 1882. I have, of course, modernized the punctuation and the use of capitals; and I have added in brackets a few stage-directions in order to enable the student to visualize the performance. The actors, it is clear, employed a series of "stages" or small platforms, arranged in a circle about a platea or unlocated region (called "the place"), and the attention of the audience was shifted from one platform to the other, or to "the place," as the necessity of the text demanded. The accompanying diagram, though not intended to be exact, will help to make the stage arrangement clear.

The play, which is of great length, was probably acted in two parts: the first part, dealing with the fall and conversion of Mary (here reprinted), was acted, we may suppose, in the forenoon, the second part, dealing with the voyage of Mary to Marcyll and her conversion of the King and Queen of Marcyll to Christianity, in the afternoon. It is true that the transcript of the play gives no indication of a break in the performance; but the second half constitutes a separate unit of action after a lapse of time, and involves an almost entirely new set of stages.

And I xall make all swych to dye,

THE PLAY OF THE SACRAMENT ¹

[THE BANNS.]

I. VEXILLATOR. Now the Father and the Sune and the Holy Goste,
That all this wyde worlde hat[h]
wrowg[h]t,
Save all thes semely,¹ bothe leste and
moste,
And bryn[g]le yow to the blysse that he hath yow to bowght! ²
We be ful purposed, with hart and with thowght,
Off oure mater to tell the entent,
Off the marvellis that wer wondrously
wrowght
Off the holi and blyssed Sacrament. 8

II. VEXILLATOR.³ Sid[s]eyns,⁴ and yt lyke yow to here the purpoos of this play That [ys] representyd now in yower
syght,
Whych in Aragon was doon, the sothe ⁵ to
saye,
In Eraclea, that famous cyte, alyght:
Therin wonneth ⁶ a merchante off mek-yll ⁷ myght, —
Syr Arystorye was called hys name, —
Kend ⁸ full fere with mani a wyght;⁹
Full fer in the worlde sprong hys fame. 16

I. VEXILLATOR. Anon to hym ther cam a Jewe,
With grete rychesse for the nonys,¹⁰
And wonneth¹¹ in the cyte of Surrey, —
this [is] full trewe, —

¹ Assembly.² Redeemed.³ From this point on the MS. has Secundus and Primus alternately for the speakers' names.⁴ Citizens; emend. by Manly. But the MS., says Waterhouse, may be Souercyns.⁵ Truth.⁶ Dwelleth.⁷ Great.⁸ Known.⁹ Person.¹⁰ A metrical tag without special meaning.¹¹ Dwelleth.

The wyche had gret plente off precyous
stonys. 20

Off this Cristen merchante he freyned ¹ sore,
Wanc ² he wolde haue had hys entente.
Twenti pownd, and merchandyse mor,
He proferyd for the Holy Sacrament. 24

II. VEXILLATOR. But the Christen mer-chante theroff sed nay,
Because hys profer was of so lityll valewe;
An hunderd pownd but he wolde pay,
No lenger theron he shuld pursewe. 28

But mor off ther purpos they gun[n]e
speke,
The Holi Sacramente for to bye;
And all for [that] the[i] wolde be wreke,³
A gret sume off gold begune down ley. 32

I. VEXILLATOR. Thys Crysten merchante
consentyd, the sothe to sey,
And, in the nyght affter, made hym de-lyuerance.
Thes Jewes all grete joye made they.
But off thys betyde a stranger chance: 36

They grevid our Lord gretly on grownd,⁴
And put hym to cruell passyon —
With daggers gouen ⁵ hym many a greicuyos
wound;
Nayled hym to a pyller; with pynsons ⁶
plukked hym doune. 40

II. VEXILLATOR. And sythe ⁷ thay toke that blysed brede so sownde,⁸

¹ Enquired.² When.³ Avenged.⁴ On the earth (a metrical tag).⁵ Gave.⁶ Pincers.⁷ Then.⁸ Good.

¹ The manuscript, now preserved in the Library of Trinity College, Dublin, was written in the latter half of the fifteenth century, and apparently was the work of Irish scribes. The play itself, however, was unquestionably of English origin, the dialect belonging to the East Midland section. According to the Banns the performance was designed for Croxton; there are no less than seven places of this name in England, five being in the East Midland section. I have based the text on The Non-Cycle Mystery Plays, re-edited from the manuscripts for the Early English Text Society by Osborn Waterhouse, 1909; but I have carefully collated this with the editions by Manly and Stokes, and have adopted the stanzaic divisions of Manly, which seem to me more logical than those employed by Waterhouse. I have modernized the punctuation and have added, in brackets, stage directions.

And in a cawdron ¹ they ded hym boyle,
In a clothe full just they yt wounde,
And so they ded hym sethe ² in oyle; 44

And than thay putt hym to a new tormentry,

In an hooto ouyn ³ speryd ⁴ hym fast:
There he appyed ⁵ with woundis bloddy;
The ovyn rofe ⁶ asondre and all tobrast.⁷

I. VEXILLATOR. Thus in ouer lawe they wer made stedfast;
The Holy Sacrament shewyd ⁸ them
grette faueur;

In contryeyon th[e]yr hertis wer cast,
And went and shewyd ther lyues to a con-fessour. 52

Thus, be miracle off the Kyng of Hevyn,
And by myght and power govyn to the prestis mowthe,

In an howshold wer convertyd, i-wys,

⁴ Shut. ⁵ Appeared out.
⁶ Split, broke ⁷ Burst to pieces.
⁸ Shewed. ⁹ Known.

Vnto the Jewes he gan ¹ appere
That thei shuld nat lesse ² hys hevenly
lyght.

I. VEXILLATOR. So therfor, frendis, with all your myght

Vnto youer gostly father shewe your synne;
Beth ³ in no wanhope ⁴ daye nor nyght.
No maner off dowghtis ⁵ that Lord put
in; 68

For that the dowghtis the Jewys than in stode, —

As ye shall se pleyd,⁶ both more and
lesse, —

Was yff the Sacrament wer flesshe and
blode;

Therfor they put yt to suche dystresse.

II. VEXILLATOR. And ⁷ yt place yow, thys gaderyng ⁸ that here ys,

At Croxston ⁹ on Monday yt shall be sen.
To sen the conclusyon of this lytell processe

Hertely welcum shall yow bene. 76

My merchandyse renneth, the sothe for to tell;

In Gene, and in Jenyse, and in Gene-
waye,

In Surrey, and in Saby, and in Salern I sell; 16

In Antyoche and in Almayn moch ys my
myght,

In Braban and in Brytayne I am full bold,

In Calabre and in Coleyn ther ryng³ I full
ryght,

In Dordrede and in Denmark [I]⁴ be the chyffe told,⁵

In Alysander I haue abundaunse in the wyde world,

In France and in Farre fresshe be my flower[is],

In Gyldre and in Galys haue I bowght
and sold,

In Hamborowe and in Holond moche merchandtyse ys owris; 24

In Jerusalem and in Jherico among the Jewes jentle,

Among the Caldeys and Cattlyngis kend
ys my komyng;

In Raynes and in Rome to Seynt Petyrs temple

I am known certainly for bying and sell-
yng; 28

In Mayne and in Melan full mery haue I be;⁶

Owt of Navern to Naples moch good ys that I bryng;

In Pondere and in Portyngale moche ys my

In Lombardy and in Lachborun, there ledde ys my lykyng;

In Taryfe and in Turkey, there told ys my tale;

And in the Dukedom of Oryon moche have I in weldyng:¹

And thus thorowght all this world sett ys
my sale. 36

No man in thys world may weld more rychesse;

All I thank God of hys grace, for he yt me sent;

And as a lordis pere thus lyve I in worthy-

⁵ Representing the wounds in the hands and feet.
The scene repeats the crucifixion of Christ.

⁶ Pierce deeply. ⁷ Terrify.

⁸ Hunger, dagger.

⁹ Experience.

¹⁰ Make pale.

¹¹ Seen. Representing the spear-thrust into Christ's side.

Here the Ost must blede.

Ah! owt! owt! harrow! what dcuyll ys
thys?

Of thys wyrk I am on were!¹

Yt bledyth as yt were woode,² i-wys!

But yf ye helpe, I shall dyspayre. 404

JASON. A fyre! a fyre! and that in hast!
Anoon a cawdron full of oyle!

JASDON. And I shalle helpe yt wer in cast,
All the iij howris³ for to boyle! 408

[Malchus goes for the oil.]

MASPHAT. Yea, here is a furneys stowte and strong,

And a cawdron therin dothe hong!

Malcus, wher art thou so long,

To helpe thys dede were dyght?⁴

MALC[H]US. Loo, here ys iij⁵ galons off oyle clere!

Haue doon fast! Blowe up the fere!

Syr, bryng that ylke⁶ cake nere,

Manly, with all yowre myghthe. 416

JONATHAS. And I shall bryng that ylke
cak[e]

And throw yt in, I undertake.

[He seizes the Sacrament, which clings to his hand.]

Out! out! yt werketh me wrake!

I may not awoyd⁷ yt owt of my hond!

I wyll goo drenche me in a lake, —

And in woodnesse I gynne to wake!⁸

I rene! I lepe ouer this land! 423

Her he renneth wood, with the Ost⁹ in hys hond.

JASON. Renne, felawes, renne, for Cokkis
peyn!¹⁰

Fast we had ower mayster agne!

² Mad.

³ Apparently symbolical of the three days Christ lay in the tomb.

⁴ Done.

⁵ MS. iij. But the number "three" runs throughout the scene, with the suggestion, as pointed out, of the three days spent in the tomb.

⁶ Same.

⁷ Cast.

⁸ In madness I begin to toss restlessly (or come into a condition of madness).

⁹ Host, the bread.

¹⁰ An oath (for Christ's pain).

[They run and catch Jonathas.]

Hold prestly ¹ on thys pleyn,
And faste bynd hyme to a poste.
JASDON. Here is an hamer and naylys iij,
I s[e]lye.

Luffte vp hys armys, felawe, on hey,
Whyll I dryue thes nayles, I yow praye,
With strong strokis fast. 431

[They nail the Sacrament to the post.]

MASPHAT. Now set on, felouse, with mayne and myght,
And pluke hys armes away in syght!

[They attempt to pull their master from the Sacrament.]

Wat! I se he twycche, felovse, a-ryght!
Alas, balys breweth ryght badde!

Here shall thay pluke the arme, and the hand shalle hang styлле with the Sacrament.

MALCHUS. Alas! alas! what deuyll ys
thys?

Now hat[h] he but oon hand, i-wyse!
For sothe, mayster, ryght woo me is That ye this harme haue hadde. 439

JONATHAS. Ther ys no more; I must enduer!

Now hastely to ower chamber lete us
gon,

Tyll I may get me sum recuer. 442
And therfor [I] ² charge yow euery-choon ³
That yt be consell that we have doon.

[They withdraw.]

[On the Platea.]

Here shall the lechys ⁴ man come into the place sayng:

COLLE. Aha! here ys a fayer felawshyppe!

Thewhe ⁵ I be nat sh[a]pyn, I lyst to sleppe.

I haue a master — I wold he had the pyppe! —

I tell yow in consel —

He ys a man off all syence,

But off thryfte, — I may with yow dyspence.

He syttyth with sum tapstere in the spence; ¹

Hys hoode there wyll he sell. 452

Mayster Brendyche of Braban,
I telle yow, he ys that same man, Called the most famous phesy[cy]an
That euer sawe uryne.

He seeth as wele at noone as at nyght,
And sumtyme by a candelleyt
Can gyff a judgymnt aryght
As he that hathe noo cyn. ² 460

He ys also a boone-setter, ³ —
I knowe no man go the better;
In euery tauerne he ys detter, —
That ys a good tokenyng.
But euer I wonder he ys so long;
I fere ther gooth sum-thing a-wrong,
For he hath dysa[r]vlyde to be hong, —
God send neuer worse tydyng! 468

He had a lady late in cure;
I wot by this she ys full sure;
There shall neuer Crysten creature
Here hyr tell no tale!
And I stode here tyll mydnyght,
I cowde not declare aryght
My masteris cunyng insyght —
That he hat[h] in good ale. 476

But what deuyll delayeth hym so long to tarye?

A seekman myght soone myscary.
Now alle the deuylls of hell hym wari! —
God giue me my boon!

I trowe best, we mak a crye: ⁴
Yf any man can hym aspye, ⁵
Led hym to the pyllere[ye]. —
In fayth, yt shall be don. 484

Here shalle he stond vp and make proclamacion, seyng thys:

COLLE. Yff therbe eyther man or woman
That sawe Master Brundyche of Braban,

³ Possibly with a pun on "dice player."

⁴ A public proclamation. The crying of a humorous proclamation was a favorite device with playwrights, even so late as the sixteenth century.

² Added by Manly.

³ Every one.

⁴ Physician's.

⁵ Though.

Or owyht¹ of hym tel can,
 Shall wele be quit hys mede.²
 He hath a cut berd and a flatte noose,
 A therde-bare gowne and a rente hoose;
 He spekyt[h] neuere good matere nor purpoose.

To the pyllere ye hym led[e]! 492

[Enter behind him, and unobserved, Master Brundyche.]

MASTER BRUNDYCHE. What, thu boye!
 what janglest here?

COLL[E]. A! master, master, but to your reuerence!

I wend³ neuer to a seen yowr goodly chere,⁴

Ye tared hens so long.

MASTER BRUNDYCHE. What hast thow sayd in my absense?

COLL[E]. Nothyng, master, but to yowr
 reuerence,

I haue told all this audiense —
 And some lyes among. 500

But, master, I pray yow, how dothe yowr paycent

That ye had last vnder yowr medycammente?

MASTER BRUNDYCHE. I warant she neuer fele anyment.

COLL[E]. Why, ys she in hyr graue?

MASTER BRUNDYCHE. I haue gyven hyr a drynke made full well

Wyth scamely,⁵ and with oxennell,

Letuce, sauge, and pympernell.⁶

COLL[E]. Nay, than she ys full saue! 508

For, now ye ar cum, I dare well saye Betwyn Douyr and Calyce the ryght wey⁷

Dwellth non so cunnyng, be my fey,
 In my judgyment.

MASTER BRUNDYCHE. Cunnyng? Yea,
 yea! And with pratise

I haue sauid many a manys lyfe.

COLL[E]. On wydowes, maydese, and wy[v]se

Yowr connyng yow haue nyhe spent. 516

MASTER BRUNDYCHE. Were ys bowggt with drynke profytable.

[Takes out a bottle and drinks.]

COLL[E]. Here, master, master, ware how ye tugg!

The devyll, I trowe, within shrugg,
 For yt gooth rebyll-rable.¹ 520

MASTER BRUNDYCHE. Here ys a grete congregacyon,

And all be not hole,² without negacyon.

I wold haue certyfycacyon;

Stond vp and make a proclamacion.

Haue do faste, and mak no pausa[c]yon,
 But wyghtly³ mak a declaracion

To all people that helpe w[o]lde haue. 527

*Hic interim proclamationem faciet.*⁴

COLL[E]. All manar off men that haue any
 syknes,

To Master Brentberecly loke that yow redresse.⁵

What dysease or syknesse that euer ye
 haue,

He wyll neuer leue yow tyll ye be in yow[r]
 graue.

Who hat[h] the canker, the colyke, or the laxe,

The tereyan, the quartan, or the brynn-y[n]g axs;⁶

For wormys, for gnawyng, gryndyng in the wombe or in the boldyro;

Alle maner red-eyn, bleryd-eyn, and the myregrym also; 535

For hedache, bonache, and therto the toth-ache;

The colt-eyull, and the brostyn men he wyll undertak,

All tho that [haue] the poose, the sneke,⁷ or the teseke.⁸

Thowh a man w[e]re ryght heyle,⁹ he cowl soone make hym seke.

Inqyre to the Tolkote, for ther ys hys
 loggyng,

A lytyll besyde Babwell Myll, yf ye wyll
 haue understondyng. 541

² In health.

³ Quickly.

⁴ "Here he will make the proclamation."

⁵ Address yourselves.

⁶ Fever.

⁷ Cold in the head, catarrh.

⁸ Phthisis.

⁹ Hale, strong.

⁴ Countenance. ⁵ Scammony.

⁶ Pimpernel, an herb with medicinal properties.

⁷ In a straight line between Dover and Calais (all water).

MASTER BRUNDYCHE. Now, yff therbe ether man or woman
That nedethe helpe of a phesycion — COLL[E]. Mary, master, that I tell can,
And ye wyll vnderstond.

MASTER BRUNDYCHE. Knoest any abut
this plase?

COLL[E]. Ye, that I do, master, so haue
[I] grase!

Here ys a Jewe, hyght ¹ Jonathas,
Hath lost hys ryght hond. 549

MASTER BRUNDYCHE. Fast to hym I wold inquere.

COLL[E]. For God, master, the gate ² ys hyre.

MASTER BRUNDYCHE. Than to hym I wyll go nere.

[He ascends the stage of the Jews, and salutes Jonathas.]

My master, wele mot yow be!

JONATHAS. What doost here, felawe?
What woldest thu hanne? ³

MASTER BRUNDYCHE. Syr, yf yow nede ony surgeon or physycyan,

Off yow[r] dysese help yow welle I cane,
What hurtis or hermes ⁴ so-euer they
be. 557

JONATHAS. Syr, thu art ontawght to come in thus [un]henly, ⁵

Or to pere ⁶ in my presence thus mala-pertly.

Voydeth from my syght, and that wyghtly, ⁷

For ye be mysse-a-vysed.

COLL[E]. Syr, the hurt of yowr hand ys
knowen full ryfe;

And my master have sauyd many a manes
lyfe.

JONATHAS. I trowe ye be cum to make sum stryfe.

Hens fast, lest that ye be chastysed. 565

COLL[E]. Syr, ye know well yt can nott mysse,

Men that be masters of seyens be ⁸profytable.

¹ Named.

² Door.

³ Have.

⁴ Harms.

⁵ Rudely.

⁶ Appear.

⁷ Quickly.

In a pott yf yt please yow to pysse,
He can tell yf yow be curable.

[JONATHAS.] Avoyde, fealows; I love not yower bable!

Brushe them hens bothe, and that anon!
Gyff them ther reward that they were gone! 572

Here shall the iiij Jewys bett away the leche and hys man.

JONATHAS. Now haue don, felawys, and that anon,

For dowte of drede what after befall!
I am nere masyd! ¹ My wytte ys gon!
Therfor of helpe I pray yow all. 576

And take yowr pynsonys ² that ar so sure,

And pluck owt the naylys won and won; ³

Also in a clothe ⁴ ye yt cure ⁵
And throw yt in the cawdron, and that anon. 580

Here shall Jason pluck owt the naylys and shake the hond into the cawdron.

JASON. And I shall rape ⁶ me redely anon
To plucke owt the naylys that stond so fast,

And bear thys bred and also thys bone,
And into the cawdron I wyll yt cast. 584

JASON. And I shall with thys dagger so stowte

Putt yt down that yt myght plawe, ⁷
And steare ⁸ the clothe rounde abowte
That nothyng ther-of shalbe rawe. 588

MASPHAT. And I shall manly, with all my
myght,

Make the fyre to blase and brenne, ⁹
And sett thervnder suche a lyght
That yt shall make yt ryght thynne.

Here shall the cawdron bl[o]yle, apperyng to be as blood.

MALCHAS. Owt! and harow! what deuyll ys here-in?

Alle thys oyle waxyth redde as blood,

¹ Dazed.

² Pincers.

³ One by one.

⁴ MS. cloke; but cf. ll. 587, 622.

⁵ Cover, wrap.

⁶ Hasten.

⁷ Boil.

⁸ Stir.

⁹ Burn.

And owt of the cawdron yt begynnyth to rinn.

I am so aferd I am nere woode! ¹ 596

Here shall Jason and hys compeny goo to ser Jonathas, sayng:

JASON. Ah! master, master, what there ys with yow,

I can not see owr werke wyll avayle.

I beseche yow avance ² yow now
Sumwhatt with yowr counsayle. 600

JONATHAS. The best counsaile that I now wott, ³

That I can deme, ⁴ farre and nere,

Ys to make an ovyn as redd hott

As euer yt can be made with fere;

And when ye see yt soo hott appere,

Then throw yt into the ovyn fast;

Sone shall he stanche hys bledyng
chere!

When ye haue done, stoppe yt; be not agast. 608

JASDON. Be my fayth, yt shalbe
wrowgh[t],

And that anon, in gret hast.

Bryng on fyring, seris. Here ye nowght?

To hete thys ovyn be nott agast! 612

MASPHAT. Here ys straw and thornys kene.

Come on, Malchas, and bryng on fyre,

For that shall hete yt well, I wene.

Here thei kyndyll the fyre.

Blow on fast, that done yt were!

MALCHAS. Ah, how! thys fyre gynnyth to brenne clere!

Thys ovyn ryght hotte I thynk to make.

Now, Jason, to the cawdron that ye stere, ⁵

And fast fetche hether that ylke cake. 620

Here shall Jason goo to the cawdron and take owt the Ost with hys pynsonys and cast yt in-to the ovyn.

JASON. I shall with thes pynsonys, without dowt,

Shake thys cake owt of thys clothe,

¹ Mad.

² Advance.

³ Know.

⁴ Judge.

⁵ Go.

And to the ovyn I shall yt rowte, ¹

And stoppe hym there, thow he be loth.

Thys cake I haue caught here, in good sothe, —

The hand ys soden, ² the fleshe from the bonys, —

Now into the ovyn I wyll therwith.

Stoppe yt, Jasdon, for the nonys! 628

JASDON. I stoppe thys ovyn, wythowtyn dowte;

With clay I clome ³ yt vppe ryght fast,

That non heat shall cum owte.

I trow there shall he hete and drye in hast! 632

Here the ovyn must ryve asunder, and blede owt at the cranys, and an image appere owt with woundis bledyng.

MASPHAT. Owt! owt! here is a grete wonder!

Thys ovyn bledyth owt on euery syde!

MALCHAS. Yea, the ovyn on peacys gyn-nyth to ryve asunder!

Thys ys a mervelows case thys tyde! 636

Here shall the image speke to the Juys, sayng thus:

JHESUS. O mirabiles Judei, attendite et videte

Si est dolor sicut ⁴ dolor meus! 638

Oh ye mervelows Jewys,

Why ar ye to yower kyng onkynd,

And [I] so bytterly bowt ⁵ yow to my blysse?

Why fare ⁶ ye thus fule ⁷ with yowr
frende?

Why payne yow me and straytly me
pynde, ⁸

And I yower loue so derely haue bowght?

Why are ye so vnstedfast in your mynde?

Why wrath ⁹ ye me? I greve yow nowght. 646

Why wylle ye nott beleve that I haue taught?

And forsake your fowle neclygence?

And kepe my commandementis in yower thought?

¹ Cast.

² Boiled.

³ Plaster.

⁴ MS. similis.

⁵ Purchased, redeemed.

⁶ Behave.

⁷ Foul.

⁸ Tormented.

⁹ Be angry with.

And vnto my godhed to take credence? 665

Why blaspheme yow me? Why do ye
thus?

Why put yow me to a newe tormentry?
And I dyed for yow on the crosse!
Why consider not yow what I dyd crye?
Whyllt that I was with yow, ye ded me velanye.

Why remember ye nott my bitter chaunce,
How yower kynne dyd me auance¹
For claymyng of myn enherytaunce?
I shew yow the streytenesse of my greuaunce,
And all to meue yow to my mercy. 660

JONATHAS. Tu es protector vite mei; a quo trepidabo?

O thu, Lord, whyche art my defendowr,
For dred of the I trymble and quake!
Of thy gret mercy lett vs receyue the
showre;
And mekely I aske mercy, amendys to
make. 665

Here shall they knele down all on ther kneys, sayng:

JASON. Ah! Lord, with sorow and care and grete wepyng
All we felawys lett vs saye thus,
With condolent harte and grete sorowyng:
Lacrimis nostris conscienciam nostram baptizemus! 669

JASDON. Oh, thow blyssyd Lord of mykyll
myght,
Of thy gret mercy, thow hast shewyd vs
the path,
Lord, owt of grevous slepe and owt of dyrk-
nes to lyght,
Ne grauis sompnus irruat. 673

MASPHAT. Oh Lord, I was very cursyd, for I wold know thi crede.
I can no men[d]ys² make, but crye to the
thus:
O gracyows Lorde, forgyfe me my mys-
dede!
With lamentable hart: *miserere mei,
Deus!* 677

¹ Lift me up (on the cross).² Amends.

MALCHAS. Lord, I haue offendyd the in many a sundry vyse.¹
That styckyth at my hart as hard as a core.

Lord, by the water of contryc[i]on lett me
aryse:

Asparges me, Domine, ysopo, et mun-dabor. 681

JHESUS. All ye that desyryn my seruauntis for to be,

And to fulfyll the preceptis of my lawys,
The intent of my commandment knowe ye:

Ite et ostendite vos sacerdotibus meis.

To all yow that desyre in eny wyse

To aske mercy, to graunt yt redy I am.

Remember and lett yower wyttis suffyce,
Et tunc non auertam a vobis faciem meam. 689

Ser Jonathas, on thyn hand thow art but lame,

And this thorow² thyn own cruelnesse.

For thyn hurt thou mayest thi-selfe blame;

Thow woldyst preve thy power me to opresse.

But now I consydre thy necesse;³

Thow wasshest thyn hart with grete con-tryc[i]on;

Go to the cawdron, — thi care shalbe
the lesse, —

And towche thyn hand to thy saluac[i]on. 697

Here shall ser Jonathas put hys hand in-to the cawdron, and it shalbe hole agayn; and then say as fo[lo]wyth:

JONATHAS. Oh thow my Lord God and Sauyouer, osanna!

Thow Kyng of Jews and of Jerusalem!

O thow myghty, strong Lyon of Juda, Blyssyd be the tyme that thow were in

Bedlem!⁴

Oh thou myghty, strong, gloryows and gracyows oyle stream,

Thow myghty conquerrowr of infernall
tene,⁵

I am quyt of moche combrance thor-owgh thy meane,⁶

That eyr blyssyd mott thow bene! 705

Alas that euer I dyd agaynst thy wyll,
 In my wytt to be soo wood
 That I with ongoodly wyrk shuld soo gryll! ¹

Agens my mys-gouernaunce thow glad-dyst me with good:

I was soo prowde to prove the on the roode,

And thou haste sent me lyghtyng ² that late was lame;

To bete the and boyll the I was myghty
 in moode,

And now thou hast put me from duresse and dysfame. 713

But, Lord, I take my leue at thy high
 presens,

And put me in thy myghty mercy.

The bysshoppe wyll I goo fetchc to se ower
 offens,

And onto hym shew ower lyfe, how that we be gylty. 717

Here shall the master Jew goo to the byshopp, and hys men knele styll [before the image].

[The Stage of the Bishop.]

[Enter Jonathas.]

JONATHAS. Hayle, father of grace! I knele vpon my knee

Hertely besechyng yow and interely

A swemfull ³ syght all for to see

In my howse apperyng verely:

The Holy Sacrament, the whyche we haue done tormentry,

And ther we haue putt hym to a newe pas-
 syon,

A chylde apperyng with wondys bloody:

A swemfull syght yt ys to looke vpon. 725

EPISCOPUS. Oh Jhesu, Lord, full of goodnesse!

With the wyll I walke with all my
 myght.

Now, all my pepull, with me ye dresse ⁴

For to goo see that swymfull syght. 729

Now, all ye peple that here are,

I commande yow, euery man,

² Sorrowful.

² Relief.

⁴ Prepare.

On yower feet for to goo, bare,
 In the devoutest wyse that ye can. 733

[They cross over the platea to the Jew's house.]

[The Stage of Jonathas.]

Here shall the bysshope enter into the Jewys howse, and say:

O Jhesu fili Dei,

How thys paynfull passyon rancheth ¹
 myn hart!

Lord, I crye to the, miserere mei,
 From thys rufull syght thou wyll re-uerte. ²

Lord, we all with sorowys smert;
 For thys vnfulfull work we lyue in langower;
 Now, good Lord, in thy grace let vs be grett,

And of thy souereyn marcy send vs thy socower; ³ 741

And for thy holy grace forgyfe vs ower errowr.

Now lett thy pete ⁴ spryng and sprede;
 Though we haue be vnrygh[t]full, forgyf vs
 our rygore,

And of ower lamentable hartis, good Lord, take hed[e]. 745

Here shall the im[a]ge changeag ayn onto brede.

Oh th[o]u largyfluent ⁵ Lord, most of lyghtnesse,

Onto owr prayers thow hast applied;

Th[o]u hast receyuyd them with grett
 swettnesse,

For all ower dredfull dedys thou hast not so denyed.

Full mykyll owte ⁶ thy name for to be magnyfyed

With mansuete ⁷ myrth and gret swett-
 nes,

And as our gracyows God for to be glory-
 fyed,

For th[o]u shewyst vs gret gladnes. 753

Now wyll I take thys Holy Sacrament
 With humble hart and gret devoc[i]on,

¹ Teareth.

² Succor.

⁵ Bountiful.

² Turn away.

⁴ Pity.

⁶ Ought.

⁷ Gentle.

And all we wyll gon, with on[e] consent,
And bear yt to chyrche with sole[m]pne processyon.

Now folow me, all and sume!

And all tho that bene here, both more and
lesse,

Thys holy song, O sacrum Dominum,

Lett vs syng all with grett swetnesse. 761

[Singing, they bear the Host in solemn procession towards the Church.]

[The Stage of Aristorius.]

Here shall the pryst, ser Isoder, aske hys master what this menyth.

PRESBITER. Ser Arystory, I pray yow, what menyth all thys?

Sum myracle, I hope, ys wrowght be Goddis myght;

The bysshope commyth [in] processyon with a gret meny¹ of Jewys;

I hope sum myracle ys shewyd to hys
syght.

To chyrche in hast wyll I runne full
ryght,

For thether, me thynk, he begynnyth to take hys pace.

The Sacrament so semly is borne in
syght,

I hope that God hath shewyd of hys
grace. 769

ARYSTORIUS. To tell yow the trowth I wylle nott lett:

Alas that euer thys dede was dyght!²

An onlefull³ bargayn I began for to beat;⁴

I sold yon same Jewys ower Lord full
ryght

For couytyse of good,⁵ as a cursyd wyght.

Woo the whyle that bargayn I dyd euer
make!

But yow be my defensour in owr dyocesans syght;

For an heretyke I feare he wyll me take. 777

PRESBITER. For sothe, nothyng well-avysed was your wytt, —

¹ Throng.

² Done.

³ Unlawful.

⁴ Discuss.

⁵ Goods, wealth (I see no reason to change to gold).

Wondrely was yt wrowght of a man of dyscresc[i]on

In suche perayle¹ your solle for to putt!

But I wyll labor for your absolucyon. 781

Lett vs hye vs fast that we were hens,

And beseche hym of hys benygne grace

That he wyll shew vs hys benyvols

To make amendys² for yower tres-
pas. 785

[The Church.]

Here shall the merchant and hys prest go to the chyrche and the bysshop [attended by the Jews] shall entre the chyrche and lay the Os[t] u[p]on the auter,³ sayng thus:

[EPISCOPUS.] Estote fortes in bello et pugnate cum antico serpente,

Et accipite regnum eternum, et cetera.

My chyldern, be ye strong in batayll gostly

For to fyght agayn⁴ the fell serpent,

That nyght and day ys euer besy;

To dystroy owr sollys ys hys intent.

¹ With the possible exception of The Pride of Life, which exists only in a fragment, The Castle of Perseverance is the earliest, as it is certainly the most primitive, of the extant moralities. Of the still older Paternoster plays (first mentioned in 1378), acted at York, Beverley, and Lincoln — apparently the grandparents of the type — we have only scattered records. From these records, however, we are led to believe that the plays dealt with the struggle between the Seven Deadly Sins and the Seven Moral Virtues for the soul of man; and we know that they were given as open-air community performances. Thus The Castle of Perseverance, it is obvious, is closely akin in form and spirit to the first moralities of which we have knowledge. Although its exact date of composition cannot be determined, scholars have agreed upon the year 1425 as approximately correct.

The manuscript of The Castle of Perseverance, along with the manuscripts of Mankind and Mind, Will, and Understanding, was formerly owned by the Rev. Cox Macro (b. 1688, d. 1767), from which circumstance the plays are called "Macro Moralities." There is no real connection between the plays, however, for they were written by different scribes at different times. Affixed to the end of The Castle of Perseverance is a plan of the staging, showing the scaffolds arranged about a platea (called "the place"), with the Castle in the centre, and around all an encircling ditch filled with water to keep the spectators at a proper distance. With the aid of this plan we can readily visualize the performance.

I have based the present text on that in The Macro Plays, edited by F. J. Furnivall and A. W. Pollard for the Early English Text Society, 1904, and in doubtful readings I have consulted the photographic facsimile of the manuscript issued by J. S. Farmer. The play is far too long to be printed here in full; but by cutting down the speeches of the personages (who have a habit of talking in stanzas) and omitting a few episodes, I have been able to preserve the plot as a whole. The extent of the omissions can readily be discovered from the line-numbering. The punctuation and the use of capitals are my own; and I have added, in brackets, stage-directions designed to show how the actors moved from place to place, or how the attention of the audience was shifted from one scaffold to another. In the text the personages invariably have English names; yet the scribe has affixed to the speeches the Latin equivalents of these names (on the same principle that he puts the stage-directions in Latin). I have avoided the annoying inconsistency by adopting the English form of the names throughout; the Latin forms used by the scribe may be found in his catalogue of the actors at the end.

 For to fytyn thei be ful fayn,
 Mankynde for to kepe. 1767

[Belial calls for Pride, Envy, and Wrath.]

Then Pride, Envy, and Wrath turn themselves about.¹

PRIDE. Syr kyng, what wytte? ²
 We be redy throtis to kyttē.³ 1769
 BELYAL. Sey, gadelyngis, haue ye harde

Then the Flesh will call aloud to Gluttony, Sloth and Lechery, [who enter].¹

[Flesh abuses them for letting Mankind slip away, and then administers to them a sound flogging. Backbiting chuckles at their misfortune, then rushes away to inform the World.]

[On the scaffold of the World. Enter Backbiter, who, after informing the World of the loss of Mankind, urges that vengeance be taken on the head of Covetousness.]

BACKBITER. Lo, syr Werld, ye moun

[After much boasting, the World, the Flesh, and the Devil severally prepare to attack the Castle of Perseverance and take Mankind thence. Meekness appeals to her sister Virtues to defend Mankind.]

MEEKNESS. Now, my seucne systerys swete,

This day fallyth on us the lot
Mankynde for to schylde and schete ¹
Fro dedly synne and schameyly schot.²

[Belial first leads his followers, Pride, Wrath, and Envy, against the Castle of Perseverance. Pride, Wrath, and Envy, with foul language, defy in turn Meekness, Patience, and Charity, and are appropriately answered by those Virtues. At last Belial calls upon his followers to stop talking, and assault the Castle.]

BELYAL. What, for Belyals bonys!

[The Virtues beat them back with roses, emblematic of Christ's passion. With many exclamations of pain, Belial and his followers depart, confessing themselves utterly defeated. Next Flesh assembles his warriors, Gluttony, Sloth, and Lechery, and leads them to an assault upon the Castle. Gluttony abuses Abstinence, Lechery defies Chastity, and Sloth threatens Industry. The Virtues make suitable replies. At last Flesh orders his followers to stop talking and fight.]

FLESH. Ey, for B[e]lyalys bonys, the kyngye,

[They assault the Castle,⁶ but are beaten back in utter discomfort. Then the World assumes the task of overcoming Mankind. He appeals to Covetousness to "work in the best wise" and make Mankind come away "from yon Virtues all." Covetousness advances alone to the Castle, and addresses Mankind.]

COVETOUSNESS. How, Mankynde! I am a-tenyde ⁷
For thou art there so in that holde.
Cum and speke with thi best frende,
Syr Coueytysse! Thou knowyst me of olde. ²⁴³¹

Al thi byddyngē don I wyl.
I forsake the Castel of Perseuer-
aunce; 2535
In Coueytise I wyl me hyle,⁶
For to gete sum sustynaunce.

Then Mankind descends to Covetousness.⁷

[The Virtues plead with Mankind not to leave the Castle of Perseverance, pointing out to him the folly of trusting to worldly wealth. But the Bad Angel interrupts them, and says to Mankind:]

BAD ANGEL. Ya! go forthe, and lete the

Now my body is dressyd to ded,

Helpe now me, and be my leche! 3025

Dyth ⁸ thou me fro deuelys drede!

Thy worthy weyē thou me teche!

I hope that God wyl helpyn and be myn hed, ⁹

For "Mercy" was my lastē speche:

Thus made my body his ende. 3030

¹⁰ A page in the manuscript is here lost, containing, doubtless, the reply of the Good Angel.

GOOD ANGEL. Ye, a-las! and welawo!
 A-geyns Coueytysse can I not telle.
 Resun wyl I fro thee goo;
 For, wrechyd sowle, thou muste to helle! 3038
 Coueytysse, he was thi fo;
 He hathe thee schapyn a schameful schelle.¹
 Thus hathē seruyd many on mo,
 Tyl thei be dyth to dethys delle, 3042
 To byttyr balys bowre.
 Thou muste to peyne, be ryth resun.
 With Coveytysse, for he is chesun,²
 Thou art trappyd ful of tresun, 3046
 But Mercy be thi socowre.³ . . .
 [Exit.]

[The Soul calls upon Mercy.]

SOUL. Alas, Mercy! thou art to longe!
 Of sadde sorwe now may I synge!
 Holy Wryt it is ful wronge,
 But Mercy pasē allē thyng. 3064
 I am ordeynyd to peynys stronge;
 In wo is dressyd myn wonnyng; ⁴
 In helle on hokys-I schal honge;
 But Mercy fro a wellē sprynge, 3068
 This deuyl wyl haue me a-way.
 Weleaway! I was ful wod
 That I forsoke myn Aungyl Good,
 And with Coueytysē stod
 Tyl that day that I schuld dey. 3073

BAD ANGEL. Ya! why woldyst thou be

HERE BEGYNNEETH A TREATYSE HOW YE HYE FADER OF HEUEN SENDETH
 DETHE TO SOMGN EUERY CREATURE TO COME AND GYUE ACOUNTE OF THEYR LYUES IN THIS WORLDE, AND IS IN MANER OF A MORALL PLAYE.

[Enter a Messenger as a Prologue.]

MESSENGER. I pray you all gyue your audyence,
 And here this mater with reuerence,
 By figure ¹ a morall playe.
 "The Somonyng of Eueryman" called it is,
 That of our lyues and endyng shewes 5
 How transytory we be all daye.
 This mater is wonder[ou]s precyous;
 But the entent ² of it is more gracyous,
 And swete to bere awaye.
 The story sayth: — Man, in the begyn-nyng 10
 Loke well, and take good heed to the en-dyng,
 Be you neuer so gay!

Ye thynke synne in the begynnyng full swete,
 Whiche in the ende causeth the soule to wepe
 Whan the body lyeth in claye. 15
 Here shall you se how Falawshyp, and Iolyte,
 Bothe Strengthe, Pleasure, and Beaute,
 Wyll fade from the as floure in Maye;
 For ye shall here how our Heuen Kynge Calleth Eueryman to a generall reken-
 yng. 20
 Gyue audyence, and here what he doth saye. [Exit.]

God speketh [from above]. ¹

God. I perceyue, here in my maieste,

¹ Probably he did not come upon the stage, but spoke from a high place.

¹ Everyman, the finest of the moralities, is doubtless derived from the Dutch Elckerlijck, though some scholars maintain that both plays go back to a common source. In spite of its foreign origin, it is thoroughly English in spirit, and had a vogue with English audiences and early English readers — the fact that four different editions are extant, all appearing shortly after 1500, is sufficient evidence of its popularity — that justifies its inclusion in this volume. The date of its composition is a matter of conjecture; yet we may safely assume that the play was written before the close of the fifteenth century.

Four copies are preserved, two perfect and two fragmentary, of four separate editions, no one of which is dated; bibliographical evidence, however, indicates that they were all printed after 1508, and, at the latest before 1537. I have based the present text on the Britwell copy (B) as reprinted by W. W. Greg in the Materialien Series, 1904 (corrigenda in Materialien, 1910), which seems to give, on the whole, the most satisfactory text; but I have carefully compared this with the Huth copy (H), the British Museum fragment (M), and the Douce fragment (D), and have introduced what seemed to me better readings when such appeared. All changes in the text are recorded in footnotes. A full bibliographical and textual study of the play may be found in Greg's Everyman, in the Materialien Series, 1910. I have inserted my own punctuation and stage-directions, and have normalized the catch-names of the speakers.

How that all creatures be to me vnkynde, Lyuynge without drede in worldely prosperyte.

Of ghostly syght ¹ the people be so blynde, Drowned in synne, they know me not for theyr God. 26

In worldely ryches is all theyr mynde;
They fere not my ryghtwysnes, the sharpe
rod; ²

My lowe ³ that I shewed whan I for them
dye

They forgete clene, and shedyng of my blode rede; 30

I hanged bytwene two, it can not be de-
nyed;

To gete them lyfe I suffred to be deed;
I heled theyr fete, with thornes hurt was my heed.

I coude do no more than I dyde, truly;
And now I se the people do clene forsake
me. 35

They vse the seuen deedly synnes dampnable.

As pryde, coueytise, wrathe, and lechery
Now in the worlde be made commendable;
And thus they leue of aungelles, ye heuenly company.

Euery man lyueth so after his owne pleasure, 40

And yet of theyr lyfe they be nothyng sure.
I se the more that I them forbere

The worse they be fro ⁴ yere to yere;
All that lyueth appayreth ⁵ faste.

Therefore I wyll, in all the haste, 45 Haue a rekenyng of euery mannes per-
sone;

For, and I leue the people thus alone
In theyr lyfe and wycked tempestes, Veryly they wyll become moche worse than beestes;

For now one wolde by enuy another vp ete; 50

Charyte they do all clene forgete.
I hoped well that euery man

In my glory shulde make his mansyon;
And thereto I had them all electe.

But now I se, lyke traytours deiecte, 55
They thanke me not for ye pleasure that I
to them ment,

Nor yet for theyr beyng ¹ that I them
haue lent.

I profered the people grete multytude of mercy,

And fewe there be that asketh it hertly. 59
They be so combred with worldly ryches

That nedes on them I must do iustyce,
On euery man lyuynge, without fere.

Where art thou Deth, thou myghty messengere?

[Enter Death.]

DEATH. Almyghty God, I am here at your
wyll,

Your commaundement to fulfill. 65
GOD. Go thou to Eueryman,

And shewe hym, in my name,
A pylgrymage he must on hym take,

Which he in no wyse may escape;
And that he bryng with hym a sure reken-
yng, 70

Without delay or ony taryenge.

[God withdraws.]

DEATH. Lorde, I wyll in the worlde go renne ² ouer all,

And cruelly out-serche bothe grete and
small.

Euery man wyll I beset that lyueth beestly Out of Goddes lawes, and dredeth not foly. 75

He that loeth rychesse I wyll stryke with my darte,

His syght to blynde, and fro heuen to departe ³ —

Excepte that almes be his good frende —
In hell for to dwelle, worlde without ende.

[Enter Everyman at a distance.]

Loo, yonder I se Eueryman walkyng. 80
Full lytell he thynketh on my comyng;

His mynde is on fleshely lustes, and his treasure;

And grete payne it shall cause hym to endure

Before the Lorde, heuen[']s Kyng.

[Death hails Everyman.]

Eueryman, stande styll! Whyder arte

 Woldest thou wete? ¹

DEATH. Ye, syr; I wyll shewe you:
 In grete hast I am sende to the 90
 Fro God out of his Mageste.

EVERYMAN. What! sente to me?
 DEATH. Ye, certaynly.
 Though thou haue forgete hym here,
 He thynketh on the in the heucnly spere,²
 As, or we departe, thou shalte knowe! 96

EVERYMAN. What desyreth God of me?
 DEATH. That shall I shewe thee:
 A rekenynge he wyll nedes haue
 Without any longer ³ respyte. 100

EVERYMAN. To gyue a rekenynge longer

 I knowe the not. What messenger arte thou?

DEATH. I am Deth, that no man dredeth;⁷ 115
 For every man I rest,⁸ and no man spareth;
 For it is Goddes commaundement
 That all to me sholde be obedyent.

EVERYMAN. O Deth! thou comest when I had ye leest in mynde!
 In thy power it lyeth me to saue; 120
 Yet of my good ⁹ wyl I gyue ye, yf thou wyl be kynde;
 Ye, a thousande pounce shalte thou haue,
 And [thou] dyfferre this mater tyll an other

 For, and I wolde receyue gyftes grete,
 All the worlde I myght gete;
 But my custome is clene contrary.
 I gyue the no respyte. Come hens, and not tary! 130

EVERYMAN. Alas! shall I haue no lenger

 I may saye Deth geueth no warnynge!
 To thynke on the it maketh my herte seke,
 For all vnredy is my boke of rekenynge.
 But twelue yere and I myght haue abyd-
 ynge, 135
 My countynge-boke I wolde make so elere
 That my rekenynge I sholde not nede to What and ¹ I to Felawshyp therof spake, And shewed hym of this sodeync chaunce?

For in hym is all myne affyaunce, ²

We haue in the worlde so many a daye

Be good frendes in sporte and playe. 201

I se hym yonder certaynely.

I trust that he wyll bere me company,

Therefore to hym wyll I speke to ese my sorowe.

Well mette, Good Felawshyp! and good morowe! 205

Felawshyp speketh.

FELLOWSHIP. Eueryman, good morowe, by this daye!

Syr, why lokest thou so pyteously?

If ony thyng be amysse, I praye the me saye,

That I may helpe to remedy.

EVERYMAN. Ye, Good Felawshyp, ye;

I am in greate ieoparde. 211

FELLOWSHIP. My true frende, shewe to me your mynde;

I wyll not forsake the to my lyues ende

In the waye of good company.

EVERYMAN. That was well spoken, and louyngly! 215

FELLOWSHIP. Syr, I must nedes knowe your heuynesse;

I haue pyte to se you in ony dystresse.

If ony haue you wronged, ye shall reuenged be,

Thoughe I on the grounde be slayne for the, Though that I knowe before that I sholde dye! 220

EVERYMAN. Veryly, Felawshyp, gramercy.

FELLOWSHIP. Tusshe! by thy thanks I set not a strawe!

Shewe me your grefe, and saye no more.

EVERYMAN. If I my herte sholde to you breke,

And than you to tourne your mynde fro me 225

FELLOWSHIP. And so ye shall euermore;
For, in fayth, and thou go to hell
I wyll not forsake the by the waye.

EVERYMAN. Ye speke lyke a good frende!
I hyleue you well.

I shall deserue it, and I may. 235

FELLOWSHIP. I speke of no deseruyng, by this daye!

For he that wyll saye, and nothyng do,
Is not worthy with good company to go.
Therefore shewe me the grefe of your mynde,
As to your frende mooste louyng and kynde. 240

EVERYMAN. I shall shewe you how it is:
Commaunded I am to go a iournaye —
A longe waye, harde, and daungerous —
And gyue a strayte counte, without delaye,
Before the hye Iuge, Adonay.¹ 245

Wherefor, I pray you, bere me company,
As ye haue promysed, in this iournaye.

FELLOWSHIP. That is mater indede!
Promyse is duty;

But, and I sholde take suche a vyage on me,
I knowe it well, it shulde be to my payne.
Also it make[th] me aferde, certayne. 251

But let vs take counsell here, as well as we can;

For your wordes wolde fere² a stronge man.

naye! 295

For from the I wyll departe as fast as I
maye.

EVERYMAN. Wheder awaye, Felawshyp?
Wyll you forsake me?

FELLOWSHIP. Ye, by my faye! To God I betake ¹ the.

EVERYMAN. Farewell, Good Falawshyp!
for ye my herte is sore.

Adewe for euer! I shall se the no more!

FELLOWSHIP. In fayth, Eueryman, fare well now at the ende! 301

For you I wyll remembre that partynge is mournynge.

forte?

Lo, Felawshyp forsaketh me in my moost nede. 305

For helpe in this worlde wheder ³ shall I re-sorte?

Felawshyp here before with me wolde mery
make,

And now lytell sorowe for me dooth he take.

It is sayd, "In prosperyte men frendes may
fynde, 309

Whiche in aduersyte be full vnkynde."

Now wheder ³ for socoure shall I flee,
Syth that Felawshyp hath forsaken me?

To my kynnesmen I wyll, truely, Prayenge them to helpe me in my neces-
syte.

I byleue that they wyll do so, 315

For "kynde wyll crepe where it may not go."

I wyll go saye,⁴ for yonder I se them go.
Where be ye now, my frendes and kynnesmen?

[Enter Kindred and Cousin.]

KINDRED. Here be we now, at your commaundement.

Cosyn, I praye you shewe vs your entent

EVERYMAN. Gramercy, my frendes and kynnesmen kynde.

Now shall I shewe you the grefe of my
mynde.

I was commaunded by a messenger
That is a hye kynges chefe offycer; 330

He bad me go a pylgrymage, to my payne;
And I knowe well I shall neuer come
agayne:

Also I must gyue a rekenynge strayte,
For I haue a grete enemy that hath me in wayte,

Whiche entendeth me for to hynder. 335

KINDRED. What a[c]counte is that whiche ye must render?

That wolde I knowe.

EVERYMAN. Of all my workes I must shewe

How I haue lyued, and my dayes spent;
Also of yll dedes that I haue vsed 340

In my tyme syth lyfe was me lent,
And of all vertues that I haue refused.

Therefore, I praye you, go thyder with me
To helpe to make myn accounte, for Saynt Charyte.

COUSIN. What! to go thydr? Is that the mater? 345

Nay, Eueryman, I had leuer fast brede and water ⁴

All this fyue yere and more.

EVERYMAN. Alas, that euer I was bore!
For now shall I neuer be mery,

If that you forsake me. 350

KINDRED. A, syr, what! ye be a mery
man!

Take good herte to you, and make no
mone.

But one thyng, I warne you, by Saynt
Anne —

EVERYMAN. My Cosyn, wyll you not with me go? 355

COUSIN. No, by Our Lady! I haue the crampe in my tofe].

Trust not to me; for, so God me spede,
I wyll deceyue you in your moost nede.

KINDRED. It auayleth not vs to tyse.¹

Ye shall haue my mayde with all my herte; 360

She louth to go to feestes, there to be nyse,

And to daunce, and abrode to sterte:²

I wyll gyue her leue to helpe you in that iourney,

If that you and she may agree.

EVERYMAN. Now, shewe me the very effecte of your mynde; 365

Wyll you go with me, or abyde behynde?

KINDRED. Abyde behynde? ye, that wyll
I, and I maye!

Therefore farewell tyll another daye.

[Exit Kindred.]

EVERYMAN. Howe sholde I be mery or gladde?

For fayre promyses men to me make, 370
But whan I haue moost nede they me forsake.

I am deceuyed; that maketh me sadde.

COUSIN. Cosyn Eueryman, farewell now;

For verly I wyll not go with you.

Also of myne owne lyfe³ an vnredy reken-
yng 375

I haue to accounte; therefore I make tary-enge.

Now God kepe the, for now I go.

[Exit Cousin.]

EVERYMAN. A Iesus! is all come hereto?

Lo, fayre wordes maketh fooles fayne;

They promyse, and nothyng wyll do cer-
tayne. 380

My kynnesmen promysed me faythfully

For to abyde with me stedfastly;

And now fast awaye do they flee.

Euen so Felawshyp promysed me. 384

What frende were best me of to prouyde?

I lose my tyme here longer to abyde;

Yet in my mynde a thyng there is:

All my lyfe I haue loued ryches;

If that my Good now helpe me myght

He wolde make my herte full lyght. 390

sorowe or aduersyte,

That can I helpe you to remedy shortly.

EVERYMAN. It is another dyscease¹ that greueth me;

In this worlde it is not, I tell the so;

I am sent for an other way to go, 405
To gyue a strayte counte generall

Before the hyst Lupyter of all;

And all my lyfe I haue had ioye and pleasure in the,

Therefore, I pray the, go with me;

For, parauenture, thou mayst before God Almyghty 410

wronge."

GOODS. Nay, Eueryman; I syng an other songe!

I folowe no man in suche vyages; 415

For, and I wente with the,

Thou sholdes fare much the worse for
me;

For bycause on me thou dyd set thy
mynde,

Thy rekenyng I haue made blotted and blynde,

That thyne accounte thou can not make truly — 420

And that hast thou for the loue of me!

¹ To induce by the offer of advantage.

EVERYMAN. Alas! I haue the loued, and had grete pleasure
All my lyfe-dayes on good and treasure.
GOODS. That is to thy dampnaeyon, without lesynge!
For my loue is contrary to the loue euerlastynge. 430
But yf thou had me loued moderately dur-
ynge

Than sholdest thou not in this dolour be,
Nor in this grete sorowe and care.
EVERYMAN. Lo! now was I deceyued or I was ware; 435
And all, I may wyte, my[s]spendynge of tyme.
GOODS. What! wenest thou that I am thyne?
EVERYMAN. I had went so.
GOODS. Naye, Eueryman; I saye no.
As for a whyle I was lente the; 440
A season thou hast had me in prosperyte.

I praye the trouth to saye. 460
GOODS. No, so God me spede!
Therefore farewell, and haue good daye!

[Exit Goods.]

EVERYMAN. O, to whome shall I make my mone
For to go with me in that heuy iournaye?
Fyrst Felawshyp sayd he wolde with me
gone — 465
His wordes were very plesaunte and gaye;
But afterwarde he lefte me alone.
Than spake I to my kynnesmen, all in de-spayre,
An[d] also they gaue me wordes fayre —
They lacked no fayre spekyng! 470
But all forsoke² me in the endynge.
Than wente I to my Goodes, that I loued
best,
In hope to haue comforte; but there had I
leest,
For my Goodes sharpely dyd me tell
That he bryngeth many into hell. 475
Than of my selfe I was ashamed;
And so I am worthy to be blamed.
Thus may I well my selfe hate.
Of whom shall I now counseyll take?
I thynke that I shall neuer spede 480
Tyll that I go to my Good Dede.
But, alas! she is so weke
That she can nother go nor speke.
Yet wyl I venter on her now.
My Good Dedes, where be you? 485

For he is in good conceyte⁴ with God Almighty. 544

EVERYMAN [kneeling]. O gloryous fountayne, that all vnclennes doth clarify, Wasse fro me the spottes of vyce vnclene, That on me no synne may be sene.

I come, with Knowlege, for my redempcyon,

Redempte with herte and full contrycyon; For I am commaunded a pylgrymage to take, 550

And grete accountes before God to make.

Now I praye you, Shryfte, moder of saluacyon,

Helpe my Good Dedes for my pyteous exclamaeyon.

CONFESION. I knowe your sorowe well, Eueryman.

Bycause with Knowlege ye come to me, I wyll you comforte as well as I can; 556
And a precyous iewell I wyll gyue the,
Called penaunce, voyder ¹ of aduersyte;
Therwith shall your body chastysed be
With abstynence, and perseueraunce in Goddess seruyce. 560

[Gives Everyman a scourge.]

Here shall you receyue that scourge of me,

Whiche is penaunce stronge that ye must endure

To remembre thy Sauyours was scourged for the

With sharpe scourges, and suffred it pacyently;

So must thou, or thou scape that paynful pylgrymage. 565

Knowlege, kepe hym in this vyage,²
And by that tyme Good Dedes wyll be with the.

But in any wyse be seker ³ of mercy,
For your tyme draweth fast; and ⁴ ye wyll saued be,

Aske God mercy, and he wyll graunte truly. 570

Whan with the scourge of penaunce man doth hym bynde,

The oyle of forgyuenes than shall he fynde.

EVERYMAN. Thanked be God for his gracycous werke!

For now I wyll my penaunce begyn;

This hath reioysed and lyghted my herte,
Though the knottes be paynfull and harde within. 576

KNOWLEDGE. Eueryman, loke your penaunce that ye fulfyll,

What payne that euer it is to you be;

And Knowlege shall gyue you counseyll at wyll

How your accounte ye shall make clerely.

EVERYMAN. O eternal God! O heuenly figure! 581

O way of ryghtwysnes! O goodly vysyon!
Whiche descended downe in a vyrgyn

pure
Because he wolde euery man redeme,

Whiche Adam forfayted by his dysobedyence! 585

O blessyd Godheed! electe and hyc deuyne!
Forgyue me ¹ my greuouse offence.

Here I crye the mercy in this presence.
O ghostly treasure! O ransomer and redemer! 589

Of all the worlde hope and conduyter! ²
Myrrour of ioye! foundatour ³ of mercy,

Whiche enlumyneth heuen and erth therby!
Here my clamorous complaynt, though it late be.

Receyue my prayers, vnworthy of thy benygnytye.⁴

Though I be a synner moost abhomyenable, 595

Yet let my name be wryten in Moyses table.

O Mary! praye to the Maker of all thynges
Me for to helpe at my endynges,

And saue me fro the power of my enemy;
For Deth assayleth me strongly. 600

And, Lady, that I may by meane of thy prayer

Of your Sones glory to be partynere
By the meanes of his passyon, I it craue.

I beseeche you helpe my soule to saue.

[He rises.]

Knowlege, gyue me the scourge of penaunce. 605

My fleshe therwith shall gyue aquytaunce.⁵
I wyll now begyn, yf God gyue me grace.

KNOWLEDGE. Eueryman, God gyue you tyme and space!

Thus I bequeth you in ye handes of our Sauyours.

Now may you make your rekenynges sure. 610

EVERYMAN. In the name of the Holy Try-
nyte
My body sore punysshed shall be.

[He begins to scourge himself.]

Take this, body, for the synne of the flesshe!

Also thou delytest to go gay and fresshe,
And in the way of dampnacyon thou dyd me brynge; 615

Therefore suffre now strokes of punyssh-
ynge!

Now of penance I wyll wade the water
clere,

To saue me from purgatory, that sharpe
fyre.

[Good Deeds rises from the floor.]

GOOD DEEDS. I thanke God, now I can walke and go,
And am delyuered of my sykenesse and
wo. 620

Therefore with Eueryman I wyll go, and not spare;

His good workes I wyll helpe hym to declare.

KNOWLEDGE. Now, Eueryman, be mery and glad!

Your Good Dedes cometh now, ye may not be sad.

Now is your Good Dedes hole and sounde, 625

Goynge vpryght vpon the grounde.

EVERYMAN. My herte is lyght, and shalbe euermore.

Now wyll I smyte faster than I dyde before.

GOOD DEEDS. Eueryman, pylgryme, my specyall frende,

Blessyd be thou without ende! 630

For the is preparate the eternall glory!

Ye haue me made hole and sounde,

Therefore I wyll byde by the in euery stounde.¹

EVERYMAN. Welcome, my Good Dedes!
Now I here thy voyce

I wepe for very swetenens of loue. 635

KNOWLEDGE. Be no more sad, but cuer
reioyce;

God seeth thy luyunge in his trone aboue.

Put on this garment to thy behoue,

¹ In every attack (or, always).

Whiche is wette with your teres, 639
Or elles before God you may it mysse, Whan ye to your iourneys ende come shall.

EVERYMAN. Gentyll Knowlege, what do ye it call?

KNOWLEDGE. It is the ¹ garmente of sor-owe;

Fro payne it wyll you borowe;

Contrycyon it is 645

That getteth forgyuences,

It ² pleaseth God passyng well.

GOOD DEEDS. Eueryman, wyll you were it for your hele?

[Everyman puts on the robe of contrition.]

EVERYMAN. Now blessyd be Iesu, Maryes
sone,

For now haue I on true contrycyon. 650

And lette vs go now without taryenge.

Good Dedes, haue we clere our rekenynge?

GOOD DEEDS. Ye, indede, I haue here.

EVERYMAN. Than I trust we nede not fere. 654

Now, frendes, let vs not parte in twayne.

KNOWLEDGE.³ Nay, Eueryman, that wyll
we not, certayne.

GOOD DEEDS. Yet must thou le[a]d with
the

Thre persones of grete myght.

EVERYMAN. Who sholde they be?

GOOD DEEDS. Dyscrecyon and Strength they hyght, 660

And thy Beaute may not abyde behynde.

KNOWLEDGE. Also ye must call to mynde
Your Fyue Wyttes as for your counseylours.

GOOD DEEDS. You must haue them redy at all houres.

EVERYMAN. Howe shall I gette them
hyder? 665

KINDRED. You must call them all togyder,

And they wyll here you incontynent.

EVERYMAN. My frendes, come hyder and be present,

Dyscrecyon, Strengthe, my Fyue Wyttes, and Beaute!

BEAUTY. Here at your wyll we be all redy. 670

What wyll ye that we sholde do?

GOOD DEEDS. That ye wolde with Eueryman go

And helpe hym in his pylgrymage.

Aduyse you; wyll ye with him or not in that vyage?

STRENGTH. We wyll brynge hym all thyder, 675

To his helpe and comforte, ye may beleue me.

DISCRETION. So wyll we go with hym all togyder.

EVERYMAN. Almyghty God, loued may¹ thou be!

I gyue the laude that I haue hyder brought Strength, Dyscrecyon, Beaute and Five Wyttes. Lacke I nought. 680

And my Good Dedes, with Knowlege clere,

All be in² company at my wyll here.

I desyre no more to my besynes.³

STRENGTH. And I, Strength, wyll by you stande in dystres,

Though thou wolde in batayle fyght on the grounde. 685

FIVE WITS. And though it were through the worlde rounde,

We wyll not departe for swete ne soure.

BEAUTY. No more wyll I, vnto dethes houre,

What so euer therof befall.

DISCRETION. Eueryman, aduyse you fyrst of all; 690

Go with a good aduysement and delyberacyon.

We all gyue you vertuous monycyon⁴

That all shall be well.

EVERYMAN. My frendes, harken what I wyll tell —

I praye God rewarde you in his heuently⁵ spere — 695

Now herken all that be here,

For I wyll make my testament

Here before you all present:

¹ B. myght; H. M. may.

² B. in my; H. M. in.

³ Business.

⁴ Admonition.

⁵ B. heuen; H. M. D. heuenly.

In almes halfe my good I wyll gyue with my handes twayne

In the way of charyte with good entent, 700

And the other halfe styll shall remayne, In queth¹ to be retourned there it ought to be.

This I do in despyte of the fende of hell,

To go quyte out of his perell

Euer after and this daye. 705

KNOWLEDGE. Eueryman, herken what I saye:

Go to Presthode, I you aduyse,

And receyue of hym, in ony wyse,

The holy sacrament and oyntement togyder;

Than shortly se ye tourne agayne hyder; 710

We wyll all abyde you here.

FIVE WITS. Ye, Eueryman, hye you that ye redy were.

There is no emperour, kinge, duke, ne baron,

That of God hath commycyon

As hath the leest preest in the worlde benygne; 715

For of the blessyd sacramentes pure and benygne

He bereth the keyes, and therof hath the cure

For mannes redempcyon — it is euer sure — Whiche God for our soules medycyne 719

Gaue vs out of his herte with grete payne, Here in this transytory lyfe for the and me.

The blessyd sacramentes seven there be — Baptym, confyrmaeyon, with preesthods

good,

And ye sacrament of Goddes precyous flesshe and blod,

Maryage, the holy extreme vnecyon, and penaunce. 725

These seuen be good to haue in remembraunce,

Gracyous sacramentes of hye deuynty.

EVERYMAN. Fayne wolde I receyue that holy body,

And mckely to my ghostly fader² I wyll go.

FIVE WITS. Eueryman, that is the best that ye can do. 730

God wyll you to saluacyon brynge,

¹ Bequest; H. In quyet; M. D. I it bequethe.

² Spiritual father.

For preesthode excedeth all other thyng:
To vs holy scripture they do teche,
And conuerteth man fro synne heuen to reche;

God hath to them more power gyuen 735
Than to ony aungell that is in heuen.
With five wordes he may consecrate Goddess body in flesshe and blode to
make,
And handeleth his Maker bytwene his
hande[s].

The preest byndeth and vnbyndeth all bandes, 740
Both in erthe and in heuen.

Thou mynystres all the sacramentes seuen;
Though we kyst¹ thy fete, thou wert² worthy;

Thou arte the³ surgyon that cureth synne
deddly;

No remedy we fynde vnder God 745
Put all onely preesthode.

Eueryman, God gaue preest[s] that dygnyte And setteth them in his stede amonge vs to
be.

Thus be they aboue aungelles in degre.

[Exit Everyman to receive from the priest the Sacrament and extreme unction. Knowledge and the rest remain.]

KNOWLEDGE. If preestes be good, it is so, suerly.⁴ 750;

But whan Iesu hanged on ye crosse with grete smarte,

There he gaue out of his blessyd herte
The same sacrament in grete tourment.

He solde them not to vs, that Lorde omnypotent;

Therefore Saynt Peter the Apostell dothe
saye 755

That Iesus curse hath all they Whiche God theyr Sauyours do by or sell,
Or they for ony money do take or tell.
Synful preests gyueth the synners example bad;

Theyr chylde[n] sytteth by other mennes

ing line).

FIVE WITS. I trust to God no suche may we fynde.

Therefore let vs preesthode honour, 765
And folowe theyr doctryne for our soules socoure.

We be theyr shepe, and they shepherdes
be,

By whome we all be kepte in suerte.
Peas! for yonder I se Eueryman come, 769

Whiche hath made true satsfaccyon.

GOOD DEEDS. Methynke it is he indede.

[Re-enter Everyman.]

EVERYMAN. Now Iesu be your alder spede!¹

I haue receuyed the sacrament for my redempeyon,

And than myne extreme vnceyon.²

Blessyd be all they that counseyld me to take it! 775

And now, frendes, let vs go without longer respyte.

I thanke God that ye haue taryed so longe.
Now set eche of you on this rodde your honde,

An shortely folowe me.

I go before there I wolde be. God be our³
gyde! 780

STRENGTH. Eueryman, we wyll not fro you go

Tyll ye haue done this vyage longe.

DISCRETION. I, Dyscrecyon, wyll byde by you also.

KNOWLEDGE. And though this pylgrym-age be neuer so stronge,

I wyll neuer parte you fro. 785

Eueryman, I wyll be as sure by the

As euer I dyde by Iudas Machabee.⁴

[They proceed together to the grave.]

EVERYMAN. Alas! I am so faynt I may not stande!

My lymmes vnder me doth folde!

Frendes, let vs not tourne agayne to this
lande, 790

Not for all the worldes golde;

For into this caue must I crepe

And tourne to erth,⁵ and there to slepe.

 She promysed with me to lyue and dye.
 STRENGTH. Eueryman, I wyll the also forsake and denye.
 Thy game lyketh me not at all.
 EVERYMAN. Why than, ye wyll forsake me all? 810
 Swete Strength, tary a lytell space.
 STRENGTH. Nay, syr, by the rode³ of
 grace!
 I wyll hye me from the fast, Though thou wepe tyll⁴ thy herte tobrast.⁵

EVERYMAN. I had wende surer I shulde you haue founde.
 He that trusteth in his Strength
 She hym deceyueth at the length.
 Bothe Strength and Beaute forsaketh
 me;
 Yet they promysed me fayre and lou-yngly. 830
 DISCRETION. Eueryman, I will after Strength be gone.
 As for me, I will leue you alone.
 EVERYMAN. Why Dyscrecyon! wyll ye forsake me?
 DISCRETION. Ye, in fayth, I wyll go fro
 the;
 For whan Strength goth before 835
 I folowe after euer more.
 EVERYMAN. Yet, I pray the, for the loue of the Trynyte,
 Loke in my graue ones pyteously.
 DISCRETION. Nay, so nye wyll I not come.
 Fare well euerychone!

[Exit Discretion.]

EVERYMAN. O, all thynge fayleth, saue
 God alone — 841
 Beaute, Strength, and Dyscrecyon;
 For whan Deth bloweth his blast
 They all renne for me full fast.
 FIVE WITS. Eueryman, my leue now of the I take. 845
 I wyll folowe the other, for here I the forsake.
 EVERYMAN. Alas! than may I wayle and
 wepe,
 For I toke you for my best frende.
 FIVE WITS. I wyll no lenger the kepe.
 Now farewell, and there an ende! 850

[Exit Five Wits.]

EVERYMAN. O Iesu, helpe! All hath forsaken me!
 GOOD DEEDS. Nay, Eueryman; I wyll byde with the.
 I wyll not forsake the indede;

Thou shalte fynde me a good frende at nede.

EVERYMAN. Gramercy, Good Dedes!
Now may I true frendes se. 855
They haue forsaken me, euerychone;
I loued them better than my Good Dedes alone.

Knowlege, wyll ye forsake me also?
KNOWLEDGE. Ye, Eueryman, whan ye to Deth shall go;

But not yet, for no maner of daunger. 860

EVERYMAN. Gramercy, Knowlege, with all my herte!

KNOWLEDGE. Nay, yet I wyll not from hens departe

Tyll I se where ye shall be come.

EVERYMAN. Methynke, alas, that I must be gone

To make my rekenynge, and my dettes paye; 865

For I se my tyme is nye spent awaye.

And stande by me, thou moder and mayde, Holy Mary! 875

GOOD DEEDS. Fere not; I wyll speke for the.

EVERYMAN. Here I crye God mercy!

GOOD DEEDS. Shorte oure ende, and mynysse¹ our payne.

Let vs go, and neuer come agayne.

EVERYMAN. Into thy handes, Lorde, my soule I commende. 880

Receyue it, Lorde, that it be not lost.

As thou me boughtest, so me defende,
And saue me from the fendes boost,
That I may appere with that blessyd hoost

That shall be saued at the day of dome. 885

*In manus tuas,*² of myghtes moost

DOCTOR. This morall men may haue in mynde.
 Ye herers, take it of worth,¹ olde and yonge!
 And forsake Pryde, for he deceyueth you in the ende.
 And remembre Beaute, Five Wyttes, Strength, and Dy[s]crecyon, 905
 They all at the last do eury man forsake, Saue his Good Dedes there dothe he take —
 But beware, and they be small Before God he hath no helpe at all.
 None excuse may be there for eury man. 910
 Alas, how shall he do, than?
 For, after dethe, amendes may no man make;
 For than mercy and pyte doth hym forsake.
 If his rekenyng be not elere whan he doth come
 God wyll saye: "Ite, maledicti, in ignem eternum!" 915
 And he that hath his accounte hole and sounde,
 Hye in heuen he shall be ounde.
 Vnto whiche place God brynge vs all thyder,

¹ This play was written about 1475; and, as numerous allusions in the text show, it is to be assigned to the neighborhood of Cambridge. Its chief interest lies in the fact that it illustrates the beginning of professionalism in the drama. It was acted by a company of apparently six players (the parts of Mercy and of Titivillus could easily be assumed by one man), who gave their performance in a public inn-yard (cf. ll. 29, 554, 722, 725) for gain—at one point, ll. 448–65, they halt the play in order to collect money from the audience. The properties they were required to carry are negligible—little more than their costumes; and possibly they limited their dramatic activities, as did the plowboy morris-dancers, to the Christmas holiday season (cf. ll. 54, 62, 316, 325, 381, 539). The result of thus professionalizing the drama is readily apparent in the text: the moral element is reduced to a minimum, and even the sole representative of good, Mercy, is deliberately made fun of with his ponderous Latinistic diction and his saccharine talk; the humor becomes at times exceedingly vulgar; and the literary skill of the writer is unusually poor. Possibly the author merely reworked an earlier and more serious morality, eliminating the moral element, and accentuating in his own way the comic features.

The manuscript is found in the collection of moralities formerly in the possession of the Rev. Cox Macro (see page 263, note 1). I have based the present text on that in The Macro Plays, edited by F. J. Furnivall and A. W. Pollard, for the Early English Text Society, 1904; but I have checked doubtful readings with the photographic facsimile of the manuscript issued by J. S. Farmer, and I have made use of the edition by Manly, Specimens, 1896. I have noted the principal, but not all the minor, emendations adopted from Manly (M.). All additions to the manuscript are set in square brackets, and changes duly recorded in footnotes. The punctuation, the use of capitals, and the stage-directions are my own.

not corupte;

For yowur gostly enemy³ wyll make hys
a-vaunte,⁴

Yowur goode condycions yf he may interrupte. 28

O ye souerens that sytt, and ye brothern that stonde ryght wppe,⁵

Pryke⁶ not yowur felycytes in thyngis transytorye!

Be-holde not the erth, but lyfte yowur
ey wppe!

Se how the hede the members dayly
do magnifye. 32

Who ys the hede, forsoth, I xall yow certifye:

I mene owur Sauyowur, that was lykynnyde⁷ to a lambe;

Ande hys sayntis be the members that dayly he doth satysfy

With the precyose reuer that runnyth from hys wombe.⁸ 36

Ther ys non such foode, be watur nor by
londe,

So precyouse, so gloryouse, so nedefull to owur entent!⁹

For yt hath dyssoluyde mankynde from the bittur bonde

Of the mortall enmye, that vemynousse¹⁰

[Enter Mischief.]

MYSCHIEFFE. I be-seche yow hertyly, leue yowur calcacyon! 45

Leue yowur chaffe! leue yowur corn! leue yowur dalyacyon!

Yowur wytt ys lytyll, yowur hede ys mekyll!¹ ye are full of predycacyon.²

But, ser, I prey [yow] this questyon to claryfy: — 48

Dryff-draff, mysse-masche,
Sume was corn, and sume was chaffe;

My dame seyde my name was Raffe;
On-schett yowur lokke,³ and take an halpenye. 52

MERCY. Why come ye hethyr, brother?
Ye were not dysryde. 53

MYSCHIEFF. For a wyntur corn-threscher, ser, I haue hyryde;

Ande ye sayde the corn xulde be sauycde,
and the chaffe xulde be feryde;

Ande he prouyth nay, as yt schewth be this werse:⁴ 56

"Corn seruit bredibus, chaffe horsibus, straw fyrybusque,"⁵

Thys ys as moche to say to yowur leude⁶
wndyrstondyng,

As the corn xall serue to brede at the nexte
bakynge,

"Chaff horsybus," et reliqua,⁷ 60

The chaff, to horse xall be goode produce;

When a man ys for-colde,⁸ this straw may be brent.

And so forth, et cetera. 63

MERCY. A-voycde, goode brother! Ye ben culpable 64

To interrupte thus my talkynge delectable.

MYSCHIEFF. Ser, I haue nother horse nor ³ Unprintable. ⁴ Politeness.

⁵ Mocking. ⁶ Consumeth. ⁷ Mock.

NOUGHT. He ys a goode starke¹ laburrer!
 He wolde fayn do well!
 He hath mett with the goode man Mercy in a schroude sell.²
 For all this, he may haue many a hungry mele.

Yit, woll ye se, he ys polytyke: 364
 Here xall be goode corn; he may not mysse
 yt;
 Yf he wyll haue reyn,³ he may ouer-pysse
 yt;
 Ande yf he wyll haue compass[t]e,⁴ he may ouer-blysse yt
 A lytyll with hys ers lyke. 368

MANKYNDE. Go and do yowur labur!
 Gode lett yow neuer the!⁵
 Or with my spade I xall yow dyngge,⁶ by the Holy Trinyte!
 Haue ye non other man to moke but euer
 me?

Ye wolde haue me of yowur sett? 372
 Hye yow forth lyuely, for hens I wyll yow dryffe!

[He beats them with his spade.]

NEW-GYSE. A-las, my jewelles! I xall be schent⁷ of my wyff!
 NOW-A-DAYS. A-lasse! and I am lyke neuer for to thryue,
 I haue such a buffett. 376

MANKYNDE. Hens I sey, New-gyse,
 Now-a-days, and Nowte!
 Yt was seyde be-forn all the menys xull[d] be sought
 To perverte my condycions and bryngge me to nought.

Hens, thevys! Ye haue made many a lesynge.⁸ 380

NOUGHT. Marryde⁹ I was for colde, but now am I warme!
 Ye are ewyll avysyde, ser, for ye haue done
 harme.

By eokkys body sakyrd,¹⁰ I haue such a peyn in my arme 383
 I may not chonge a man a ferthyngge.

[New-gyse, Now-a-days, and Nought start out.]

⁵ Thrive. ⁶ Beat. ⁷ Punished. ⁸ Lie.
⁹ Marred. ¹⁰ By God's body consecrated.

MANKYNDE [kneels]. Now I thanke Gode, knelyngge on my kne — Blyssyde be hys name! he ys of hye
 degre —
 By the ayde¹ of hys grace that he hath sente me

iiij of myn enmys I haue putt to flyght.

[Holds up his spade.]

Yit this instrument, souerens, ys not made to defende. 389
 Dauide seyth, nec in hasta, nec in gladio,
*saluat Dominus.*²

NOUGHT [over his shoulder]. No, mary, I be-schrew yow, yt ys in spadibus!
 Therfor Crystis curse cum on yowur hedybus 392
 To sende yow lesse myght! [Exiant.]

MANKYNDE. I promytt yow thes felouse wyll no more cum here,
 For summe of them, eertently, were summe-what to nere.

My fadyr Mercy a-vysyde me to be of a goode chere, Ande a-gayn my enmys manly for to fyght. 397

I xall convycte³ them, I hope, euerychon!
 Yet I say amysse; I do yt not a-lone:
 With the helpe of the grace of Gode I resyst
 my fon⁴

Ande ther malyceyse herte. 401
 With my spade I wyll departe, my worschypp[f]ull souerence, Ande lyue euer with labure, to corecte my insolence.

I xall go fett corn for my londe. I prey
 yow of pacyence;
 Ryght sone I xall reuerte.⁵ 405

[He goes out to get corn to plant.]

[Enter Myschieff.]

MYSCHEFF. A-las, a-lasse! that euer I was wrought!
 A-lasse the whyll, I [am] wers then nought!

¹ MS. susyde, the first two, or possibly three, letters crossed through.

² "The Lord saveth neither with the spear, nor with the sword." Quoted, but incorrectly, from the Vulgate, Regum i, 47.

³ Conquer.

⁴ Foes.

⁵ Return.

Sythyn I was here, by hym that me bought,
I am wtterly on-don! 409
I, Myscheff, was here at the begynnyng of the game,
Ande arguyde with Mercy — Gode gyff
hym schame!
He hath taught Mankynde, wyll I haue be vane,¹
To fyght manly a-geyn hys fon. 413

For with hys spade, that was hys wepyn,
New-gyse, Now-a-days, Nought, hath [he] all to-beten.
I haue grett pyte to se them wepyn.
Wyll ye lyst? I here them crye. 417
They cry,² [and Myschief calls to them.]

A-lasse! a-lasse! Cum hether! I xall be yowur borow.³
A-lac, a-lac! vene, vene!⁴ cum hether with sorowe!

[Enter New-gyse, Now-a-days, and Nought, crying.]

Pesse, fayer babys! Ye xall haue a nappyll⁵ — to-morow.
Why grete ye so, why? 421

NEW-GYSE. A-lasse, master! a-lasse, my pryvyte!

MYSCHIEFF. A! wher? A-lake!⁶ fayer babe, ba me!

Abyde to sone;⁷ I xall yt se.

NOW-A-DAYS. Here, here! se my hede, goode master! 425

MYSCHIEFF. Lady, helpe! Sely⁸ darlynge, vene, vene!

I xall helpe the of thi peyn;

I xall smytt of thi hede, and sett yt on agayn.

NOUGHT. By Owur Lady, ser, a fayer playster! 429

Wyll ye of with hys hede? Yt ys a schreude charme!

As for me, I haue non harme.

I were loth to for-bere myn arme. 432
Ye, play! *In nomine patris,*⁹ choppe!

³ Protector.

⁵ An apple.

⁷ Wait a moment

⁹ "In the name of the Father."

⁴ Come.

⁶ Alack!

⁸ Pitiful, poor.

NEW-GYSE. Ye xall not choppe my jewellys, and I may!

NOW-A-DAYS. Ye, Cristis crose! wyll ye smyght my hede a-wey?

Ther, wher, on and on? Oute! ye xall not assay!

I myght well be callyde a foppe. 437

MYSCHIEFF. I kan choppe yt of and make yt a-gayn.

NEW-GYSE. I hade a schreude recumbentibus,¹ but I fele no peyn. 439

NOW-A-DAYS. Ande my hede ys all saue and holl agayn. —

Now, towchynge the mater of Mankynde, Lett ws haue an interleccyon,² sythen ye be cum hether.

Yt were goode to haue an ende. 443

MYSCHIEFF. How, how! a mynstrell!
Know ye ony out?³

NOUGHT. I kan pype in a Walsyngham wystyll, I, Nought, Nought. 445

MYSCHIEFF. Blow a-pase, and thou xall brynge hym in with a flewte.

[There is an explosion of powder, and Titivillus shouts within.]

TYTIVILLUS. I com, with my leggis vndur me!

MYSCHIEFF. How, New-gyse, Now-a-days!
herke or I goo!

When owur hedis wer to-gethere I spake of *si dederō.*⁴

NEW-GYSE. Ye! go thi wey! We xall gather mony on-to —

Ellys ther xall no man hym se. 451

[To the audience.]

Now gostly to owur purpos, worschypfull
souerence,

We intende to gather mony, yf yt plesse
yowur neclygence,

For a man with a hede that [is] of grett omnipotens —

NOW-A-DAYS. Kepe yowur tayll, in goodnes, I prey yow, goode brother!

He ys a worschyp[ful] man, sers, sauynge yowur reuerens! 456

² Consultation.

³ Aught.

⁴ "If I paid" (i.e. spoke of a collection of money).

He lough no grotis, nor pens, or to-pens:
Gyf ws rede reyallys,¹ yf ye wyll se hys abhomy nabull presens!

NEW-GYSE. Not so! Ye that mow² not pay the ton, pay the tother!

[They descend, and begin to take up a collection.]

At the goode man of this house³ fyrst we wyll assay. 460

Gode blysse yow, master! Ye say as yll, yet ye wyll not sey "nay."

Lett ws go by and by. And do them pay!
Ye pay all a-lyke. Well mut ye fare!

[The collecting of money over, they return to the stage.]

NOUGH[τ]. I sey, New-gyse, Now-a-days, *estis vos pecuniatus?*⁴ 464

I haue cryede a fayer wyll, I beschrew yowur patus!⁵

[Now-a-days turns to call in Titivillus.]

NOW-A-DAYS. *Ita vere, magister!*⁶ cumme forth now yowur gatus!⁷

He ys a goodly man, sers: make space!
and be ware! 467

[Enter Titivillus, horribly arrayed like a devil, with a net in his hand.]

TITIVILLUS. *Ego sum dominancium dominus,*⁸ and my name ys Titivillus.

Ye that haue goode hors, to yow I sey,
*caueatis!*⁹

Here ys an abyll felyschyppe to tryse hym out at yowur gatis.¹⁰

*He speaks to New-gyse.*¹¹

*Ego probo sic.*¹² Ser New-gys, lende me a peny. 471

NEW-GYSE. I haue a grett purse, ser, but I haue no monay;

By the masse, I fayll ij farthyngis of an halpeny;

Yit hade I ten pounds¹³ this nyght that was.

² May.

³ Apparently the host of the inn.

⁴ "Are you monied?"

¹³ MS. Xii.

*He speaks to Now-a-days.*¹

TITYVILLUS. What ys in thi purse? thou art a stout felow. 475

NOW-A-DAYS. The deull haue [the]²
qwyll!³ I am a clen jentyllman.

I prey Gode I be neuer wers storyde⁴ then
I am.

Yt xall be otherwyse, I hope, or this nyght passe. 478

*He speaks to Nought.*⁵

TITIVILLUS. Herke now! I say thou hast many a peny?

NOUGHT. *No[n] nobis, dominie; non nobis,*⁶ by Sent Denny!

The deull may daunce in my purse for ony
peny;

Yt ys as elen as a byrdis ars. 482

TITIVILLUS. Now I sey yet a-geyn caueatis! 483

Her ys an abyll felyschyppe to tryse hem out of yowur gatis.

Now I sey, New-gyse, Now-a-days, and Nought,

Go and serche the contre! anon that [yt]⁷
be sowghte,

Summe here, summe ther, what yf ye may cache owghte.⁸ 487

Yf ye fayll of hors, take what ye may ellys!

NEW-GYSE. Then speke to Mankynde for the recumbentibus⁹ of my jewellys.

NOW-A-DAYS. Remembre my brokyn hede in the worschyppe of the v. vowellys.¹⁰

NOUGHT. Ye, goode ser, and the sytyca¹¹ in my arme! 491

TITYVILLUS. I know full well what Mankynde dyde to yow;

Myschiffy hat informyde [me] of all the matere thorow.

Forth! and espye were ye may do
harme! 495

Take W[illiam] Fyde,¹ yf ye wyll haue ony mo.

I sey, New-gyse, wether art thou avysyde to go? 497

NEU-GYSE. Fyrst I xall be-gyn at M[aster]
Huntyngton of Sanston;

Fro thens I xall go to Wylliam Thurlay of Hanston,

Ande so forth to Pycharde of Trumpyngton:
I wyll kepe me to thes iij. 501

NOW-A-DAYS. I xall goo to Wyllyham
Baker of Walton,

To Rycherde Bollman of Gayton,
I xall spare master Woode of Fullburn;

He ys a *noli me tangere!*² 505

NOUGHT. I xall goo to Wyllyam Patryke of Massyngham;

I xall spare master Alyngton of Botysam, Ande Hamonde of Soffeham.

Felous, cum forth! and go we hens to-gethyr, 509

For drede of in manus tuas, qweke.³

NEU-GYSE. Syth we xall go, lett ws se well ware and wether;

Yf we may be take, we com no more hethyr. 512

Lett ws con well owur neke verse,⁴ that we have not a cheke.

TITYVILLUS. Goo yowur wey, a deull wey! Go yowur wey, all!

I blysse yow with my lyfte honde!⁵ Foull yow be-fall!

Com a-gayn, I werne, as sone as I yow
call,

A[nd] brynge yowur a-vantage in-to this
place. 517

³ "Into thy hands" quick. Possibly the allusion is to the hands of the sheriff.

⁴ Neck-verse, the first verse of the fifty-first Psalm, by citing which a person condemned to death might claim right of clergy in order to avoid the gallows.

⁵ Left hand. Devils and witches were supposed to use the left hand, especially in incantations and "blessings."

[Exeunt Mischief, New-gyse, Now-a-days, and Nought.]

To speke with Mankynde I wyll tary here
this tyde,

Ande assay hys goode purpose for to sett
a-syde.

The goode man Mercy xall no lenger be hys gyde;

I xall make hym to dawnce a-nother trace!¹ 521

Euer I go invysybull — yt ys my jett;²

Ande be-for hys cy, thus I wyll hange my nett

To blench hys syght. I hope to haue hys fote mett,³

To yrke⁴ hym of hys labour I xall make a frame:⁵ 525

Thys borde xall be hyde wndur the erth
preuely;

Hys spade xall entur, I hope, ouer redyly;⁶
Be then⁷ he hath assayde, he xall be very angry, 528

Ande lose hys pacyens, peyn of schame.

[He puts a board under the earth that Mankind is tilling.]

I xall munge⁸ hys corne with drawk and with durnell;⁹

Yt xall not be lyke to sow nor to sell.

Yondyr he commyth. I prey of counsell.

He xall wene grace were wane.¹⁰ 533

[Enter Mankind with a sack of corn.]

MANKYNDE. Now Gode, of hys mercy, sende ws of hys sonde!¹¹

I haue brought seed her to sow with my
londe;

Qwyll I ouer dylew yt,¹² here yt xall stonde.

[Tries to dig; his spade strikes the board.]

Thys londe ys so harde yt makyth wnlusty and yrke.¹
I xall sow my corn at wyntur and lett Gode werke.

[He turns to get his sack of corn.]

A-lasse! my corn ys lost! Here ys a foull werke! 540
I se well, by tyllynge lytyll xall I wyn.

[He throws his spade down in anger.]

Here I gyf wppe my spade, for now and for euer!
To occupye my body I wyll not put me in deuer!²

Here Titivillus goth out with the spade.

I wyll here my ewynsonge³ here or I dysseuer.⁴ 544
Thys place I assynge as for my kyrke;⁵
Here, in my kerke, I knell on my kneys.

[He kneels, and with his beads begins to say the Lord's Prayer.]

Pater noster, qui es in celis, [etc.] 547

[Re-enter Titivillus.]

TYTYVILLUS. I promes yow I haue no lede on my helys!
I am here a-geyn to make this felow yrke. 549

Qwyst!⁶ pesse! I xall go to hys ere, and tytyll⁷ ther-in.

[He approaches Mankind, and whispers in his ear.]

"A schorte preyere thyrlyth hewyn.⁸
Of thi preyere blyn.⁹
Thou art holyer then euer was ony of thi kyn.
A-ryse and avent thee! nature compellys." 553

[Mankind rises, and addresses the audience.]

TITYVILLUS. Mankynde was besy in hys prayere, yet I dyde hym aryse; He is conveycde (be Cryst!) from hys dyvyn seruyee.

Whether ys he, trow ye? I-wysse I am wondur wyse!

I haue sent hym forth to schyte lesynges. 561

Yff ye haue ony syluer, in happe pure brasse,

Take a lytyll pow[d]er of Parysch¹ and cast ouer hys² face,

Ande ewyn in the howll-flyght³ let hym passe.

Titivillus kan lerne yow many praty thyngis! 565

I trow Mankynde wyll cum a-geyn son, Or ellys, I fer me, ewynsonge wyll be don.

Hys bedis xall be trysyde⁴ a-syde, and that a-non.

Ye xall [se]⁵ a goode sport, yf ye wyll a-byde. 569

Mankynde cummyth a-geyn: well fare he! I xall answeere hym ad omnia quare;⁶

Ther xall be sett a-broche a clerycall mater;

I hope, of hys purpose to sett hym a-syde. 573

[Re-enter Mankind.]

MANKYNDE. Ewynsonge hath be in the saynge, I trow, a fayer wyll!

I am yrke of yt: yt ys to longe be on myle. Do wey! I wyll no more so oft on the chyrcche-style;⁷

Be as be may, I xall do a-nother. 577
Of labure and preyer, I am nere yrke of both;

I wyll no more of yt, thow Mercy be wroth!

My hede ys very heuy, I tell yow for soth;

his ear.]

"A-lasse, Mankynde! a-lasse! Mercy stoun a mere!³

He ys runn a-way fro hys master, ther wot
no man where.

More-ouer, he stale both a hors and a nete.⁴ 589

But yet I herde sey he brake hys neke as he rode in Fraunce;

But I thynke he rydyth ouer the galous⁵
to lern for to daunce,

By-cause of hys theft. That ys hys gouernance!

Trust no more on hym; he ys a marryde
man! 593

Mekyll sorow with thi spade be-forn thou hast wrought.

A-ryse, and aske mercy of Neu-gyse, Now-a-days, and Nought!

Thei cum. A-vyse thee for the best. Lett ther goode wyll be sought.

Ande thi own wyff [be]brethell,⁶ and take thee a lemman."⁷ 597

[To the audience.]

For well, euerychon! for I haue don my game,

For I haue brought Mankynde to myscheff and to schame.

² Whisper.

³ Hath stolen a mare.

⁴ Ox.

⁵ Gallows.

⁶ Be-brothel, put to the brothel?

⁷ Sweetheart, mistress.

[Exit Titivillus. Mankind awakes.]

MANKYNDE. Whope! who! Mercy hath brokyn hys nekekycher,¹ a-vows!

Or he hangyth by the neke hye wpp on the gallouse!

A-dew, fayer mastere! I wyll hast me to the ale-house,

Ande speke with New-gyse, Now-a-days and Nought, 603

A[nd] geett me a lemman with a smat-trynge² face.

[Enter New-gyse running, with a broken rope about his neck.]

NEW-GYSE. Make space! for Cokkes body sakynde, make space!

A ha! well on ron! Gode gyff hym ewyll
grace!

We were nere Sent Patrykes wey, by hym that me bought; 607

I was twychyde³ by the neke; the game was be-gunne;

A grace was, the halter brast asondur —
Ecce signum!

[He holds up the broken rope.]

The half ys a-bowte my neke. We hade a nere rune!

"Be-ware," quod the goode wyff when sche smot of here husbondis hede,

"be-ware!" - 611

Myscheff ys a convicte, for he coude⁴ hys
neke-verse,

My body gaff a swynge when I hynge
wpp-on the casse.⁵

A-lasse! he wyll hange such a lygh[tly]⁶
man, and a fers,

For stelynge of an horse! I prey Gode gyf hym care! 615

Do wey⁷ this halter! What deull doth Mankynde here, with sorow!

A-lasse, how my neke ys sore! I make a-vowe!

M[ANKYNDE]. Yc be welcom, New-gyse!
Ser, what chere with yow?

² Ready for kissing? (N.E.D.)

³ Twitched.

⁴ Knew.

⁵ Frame of the gibbet?

⁶ Likely.

⁷ Take off.

NEW-GYSE. Well, ser; I haue no cause to morn! 619

M[ANKYNDE]. What was ther abowte yowur neke, so Gode yow a-mende?

NEW-GYSE. In feyth, Sent Audrys holy bende.¹

I haue a lytlyl dysches,² as yt plesse Gode to
sende,

With a runnyng rynge-worme.³ 623

[Enter Now-a-days laden with church plate.]

NOW-A-DAYS. Stonde a rom, I prey the, brother myn!

I haue laburyde all this nyght; wen xall we go dyn?

A chyrche her be-syde xall pay for ale,
brede, and wyn.

Lo, here ys stoff wyll serue! 627

NEW-GYSE. Now, by the holy Mary, thou art bettur marchande then I!

[Enter Nought.]

NOUGHT. A-vante, knawys! lett me go by!

I kan not geet, and I xulde sterue.⁴ 630

.⁵]

[Enter Mischief running, with broken fetters on his arms.]

MYSCHIEFF. Here cummyth a man of armys! Why stonde ye so styll?

Of murdur and man-slawter I haue my bely fyll.

NOW-A-DAYS. What, Myscheff, haue ye bene in presun, and yt be yowur
wyll?

Me semyth ye haue scoryde⁶ a peyr of fettters. 634

MYSCHIEFF. I was chenyde by the armys
— lo! I haue them here —

The chenys I brast asundyr, and kyllyde
the jaylere,

Ye, ande hys fayer wyff halsyde⁷ in a cornere.

A! how swety I kyssyde tho swete
mowth of hers! 638

When I hade do, I was myn owghun bottler;

² Disease.

³ Ring-worm (alluding to his sore neck).

⁴ Get, if I should starve.

⁵ Apparently a lacuna in the MS.

⁶ Scoured, polished (by wearing).

⁷ Embraced.

I brought a-wey with me both dysch and dublere.¹

Here ys a-now for me; be of goode chere!

Yet well fare the new chesance!² 642

MANKYNDE. I aske mercy of New-gyse,
Now-a-days, and Nought.

Onys with my spade I remembur that I faught:

I wyll make yow a-mendis yf I hurt yow ought,

Or dyde ony grevaunce. 646

NEW-GYSE. What a deull lykyth³ thee to be of this dysposycyon?

MANKYNDE. I drempt Mercy was hange
— this was my vysyon —

Ande that to yow iij I xulde haue recors and remocyon.⁴

Now I prey yow hertyly of yowur goode
wyll. 650

I crye you mercy of all that I dyde
a-mysse.

NOW-A-DAYS [aside]. I sey, New-gys, Nought! Tytivilus made all this:

As sekyr⁵ as Gode ys in hewyn, so yt ys!

NOUGHT. Stonde wppe on yowur feet!
why stonde ye so styll?

NEW-GYSE. Master Myscheff, we wyll
yow exort 655

Mankyndis name in yowur bok for to report.

MYSCHIEFF. I wyll not so; I wyll sett a corte.

A! do yt forma juryys, dasarde!⁶

² Capable.

¹ Wyt and Science is an example of the morality adapted in later times to other themes than the salvation of man, and to performance in halls before small and select audiences. Of such allegorical "interludes" there is a notable group dealing with topics of school interest; I have chosen the present play as, on the whole, the best and most representative of its type. The author, John Redford, was Master of the singing boys at St. Paul's Cathedral in London, and it is quite likely that he wrote the play to be acted by his boys. The date of its composition cannot be definitely fixed; it was certainly written before the death of Queen Katherine Parr, 1548 (see line 1098), and probably we should not be far wrong if we guessed 1530.

The manuscript is found in a commonplace-book (now the property of the British Museum) containing in addition to this play some musical sketches, numerous poems and songs by various authors, and brief fragments of two other unnamed moralities. I have based the present text on Halliwell's careful edition prepared for the Shakespeare Society, 1848, compared with the photographic facsimile of the manuscript issued by J. S. Farmer. I have also made use of Manly's edition, Specimens, 1896, based on Halliwell, and of Farmer's edition in "Lost Tudor Plays," 1907. I have, of course, modernized the punctuation, and added, in brackets, stage directions. Unfortunately the manuscript has lost a page or more at the beginning.

To love ech other, strawe for the patches
Of worldly mucke! Syence hath inowghe 25 For them both to lyve. Yf Wyt be throwhe ¹

Stryken in love, as he synes ² hath showde,
I dowte not my dowghter well bestowde.
Thende of hys jorney wyll approve all.

Yf Wyt hold owte, no more prooffe can fall; 30

And that the better hold out he ³ may,
To refresh my soone, Wyt, now by the way
Sum solas for hym I wyll provyde.

An honest woman dwellth here besyde,
Whose name is cald Honest Recreacion. 35
As men report, for Wytes consolacion
She hath no peere; yf Wyt were halfe deade,
She cowlde revyve hym, — thus is yt sed.
Wherfore, yf monye or love can hyre her,
To hye after Wyt I wyll desyre her.

[Exit.]

Confydence cumth in with a pycture of Wyt.

[CONF.] Ah! syr, what tyme of day yst, who can tell? 41

The day ys not far past, I wot well,
For I have gone fast, and yet I see
I am far from where as I wold be.
Well, I have day inowgh yet, I spye; 45
Wherfore, or I pas hens, now must I See thys same token heere, a playne case,
What Wyt hath sent to my ladyes grace.

[Holds the picture up to the audience.]

Now wyll ye see? a goodly pycture
Of Wyt hymsealfe, hys owne image
sure, — 50

Face, bodye, armes, legges, both lym and joynt, —

As lyke hym as can be, in every poynt:
Yt lakth but lyfe. Well I can hym thanke, Thys token in-deede shall make sum cranke;⁴

For, what wyth thys pycture so well
faverde, 55

And what wyth those sweete woordes so well saverd

Dystylling from the mowth of Confy-
dence, —

Shall not thys apese the hart of Science?
Yes, I thanke God, I am of that nature

¹ Through.

² Signs, indications.

³ MS. ye; corr. by M.

⁴ Merry, sprightly.

Able to compas thys matter sure, 60
As ye shall see now, who lyst to marke yt,
How neately and feately ¹ I shall warke yt.
[Exit.]

Wyt cumth in without Instruccion, with Study, &c.

[WYT.] Now, syrs, cum on. Whyche is the way now?

Thys way or that way? Studye, how say you?

[Study ponders.]

Speake, Dyligence, whyle he hath bethowghte hym. 65

DYL. [points]. That way, belyke; most usage hath wrowht hym.²

STUD. Ye, hold your pease! Best we here now stay

For Instruccion. I lyke not that waye.

WYT. Instruccion, Studye! I weene we have lost hym.

Instruccion cumth in.

[INSTR.] Indeade, full gently abowte ye have tost hym! 70

What mene you, Wyt, styll to delyghte
Runnyng before thus, styll owt of syghte,
And therby out of your way now quyghte?
What doo ye here, excepte ye woold fyghte?

Cum back agayne, Wyt, for I must choose
ye 75

An esyer way then thys, or ells loose
ye.

WYT. What ayleth thys way? Parell ³
here is none.

INSTR. But as much as your lyfe standth upon!

Youre enmye, man, lyeth heere before
ye, —

Tedyousnes, to brayne or to gore ye! 80

WYT. Tedyousnes? Doth that tyrant
rest

In my way now? Lord, how am I blest
That occacion so nere me sturres

For my dere hartes sake to wynne my spurres!

Ser, woold ye fere me with that fowle
theafe, 85

Wyth whome to mete my desyre is cheafe?

¹ Finely.

² It, the way.

³ Peril.

INSTR. And what woold ye doo, — you havng nowghte
For your defence? For thowgh ye have cawghte ¹

Garmentes of Science upon your baeke,
Yet wepons of Science ye do lak. 90 WYT. What wepons of Science shuld I have?

INSTR. Such as all lovers of ther looves
crave, —

A token from Ladye Science, wherbye
Hope of her favor may spryng, and therbye
Comfote, which is the weapon dowteles 95
That must serve youe agaynst Tedyousnes.

WYT. Yf Hope or Comfort may be my weapen,

Then never with Tedyousnes mee threten;
For, as for hope of my deere hartes favor —

And therby comfort — inowghe I gather.

INSTR. Wyt, here me! Tyll I see Confy-
dence 101

Have brought sum token from Ladye Science,

That I may feele that she favorth you,
Ye pas not thys way, I tell you trew.

WYT. Which way than?

INSTR. A playner way, I told ye, 105
Out of danger from youre foe to hold ye.

WYT. Instruccion, here me! Or ² my swete hart

Shall here that Wyt from that wreche shall start

One foote, thys bodye and all shall cracke!
Foorth I wyll, sure, what-ever I lacke! 110

DYL. Yf ye lacke weapon, syr, here is one.

WYT. Well sayde, Dyligence, thowe art
alone!

How say ye, syr; is not here weapon?

INSTR. Wyth that weapon your enmy never threton, 114

For wythowt the returne of Confydence
Ye may be slayne, sure, for all Dyligence.

DYL. God, syr! and Dyligence, I tell you
playne,

Wyll play the man or ² my master be
slayne!

INSTR. Ye; but what! sayth Studye no wurde to thys?

WYT. No, syr. Ye knowe Studyes ofyce
is 120

² Ere.

Meete for the chamber, not for the feeld.
But tell me, Studye, wyll thow now yeid?
STUD. My hed akth sore; I wold wee returne!

WYT. Thy hed ake now? I wold it were burne!

Cum on! Walkyng may hap to ese the. 125

INSTR. And wyll ye be gone, then, wythout mee?

WYT. Ye, by my fayth; except ye hy ye after,

Reson shall know yee are but an hafter. ¹

Exceat Wyt, Study, and Dyligence.

INSTR. Well, go your way! Whan your father Reson 129

Heerth how ye obay me at thys season,
I thynke he wyll thynke hys dowghter now
May mary another man for you.

When wytes stand so in ther owne con-
ceite,

Best let them go, tyll pryde at hys heyghte Turne and cast them downe hedlong

agayne, 135

As ye shall see provyd by thys Wyt playne.
Yf Reson hap not to cum the rather, ²

Hys owne dystruccion he wyll sure gather.
Wherefore to Reson wyll I now get me,

Levyng that charge whereabowt he set
mee. 140

Exceat Instruccion. Tedyousnes cumth in with a ryser over hys hed, [and a club in his hand].

[TEDY.] Oh the body of me!

What kaytyves be those

That wyll not once flee

From Tedioussnes nose,

But thus dysese ³ me 145

Out of my nest,

When I shoold ese mee

Thys body to rest!

That Wyt, that vylayne,

That wrech, — a shame take hym! — 150

Yt is he playne

That thus bold doth make hym,

Wythowt my lycence

To stalke by my doore

To that drab, Syence, 155

To wed that whore!

² More quickly.

³ Disturb.

But I defye her.¹
 And for that drabes sake,
 Or Wyt cum ny her,
 The knaves hed shall ake!
 Thes bones, this mall,² Shall bete hym to dust
 Or that drab shall
 Once quench that knaves lust!
 But, hah! mee thynkes
 I am not halfe lustye;
 Thes jo[y]ntes, thes lynkes,³
 Be ruffe⁴ and halfe rustye;
 I must go shake them,
 Supple to make them!

[He swings his club.]

Stand back, ye wrechys!
 Beware the fechys⁵
 Of Tediousnes,
 Thes kaytyves to bles!
 Make roome, I say!
 Rownd evry way!
 Thys way! That way!
 What care I⁶ what way?
 Before me, behynd me,
 Rownd abowt wynd me!
 Now I begyn
 To swete in my skin.
 Now am I nemble
 To make them tremble.
 Pash⁷ hed! pash brayne!
 The knaves are slayne,
 All that I hyt!
 Where art thou, Wyt?
 Thow art but deade!
 Of goth thy hed
 A[t] the fyrst blow!
 Ho, ho! ho, ho! [Sits down.]

Wyt spekyth at the doore.

[WYT.] Studye!
 STUD. Here, syr!
 WYT. How? doth thy hed ake?
 STUD. Ye, God wot, syr, much payne I do take!
 WYT. Dylygens!

 gests What care I, or Who cares.
⁷ Dash to pieces.

WYT. How dost thou? 195
 Doth thy stomak¹ serve the to fyght now?
 DYL. Ye, syr, wyth yonder wrech, — a vengans on hym! —
 That thretneith you thus. Set evyn upon hym!
 STUD. Upon hym, Dylygence? Better
 nay!
 DYL. Better nay, Studye? Why shoold
 we fray?² 200
 STUD. For I am wery; my hed akth sore.³
 DYL. Why, folysh Studye, thou shalt doo no more
 But ayde my master wyth thy presens.
 WYT. No more shalt thou nether, Dylygence.
 Ayde me wyth your presence, both you
 twayne, 205
 And, for my love, myselfe shall take payne!
 STUD. Syr, we be redye to ayde you so.
 WYT. I axe no more, Studye. Cum then;
 goe!

[They advance.]

Tedyiousnes rysyth up.

[TEDY.] Why, art thou cum?
 WYT. Ye, wrech, to thy payne!
 TEDI. Then have at the!
 WYT. Have at the, agayne! 210
Here Wyt fallyth downe and dyeth.
 TEDI. Lye thou there! Now have at ye, kaytyves!
 [Study and Diligence flee.]

Do ye fle, ifayth? A! horeson theves!
 By Mahowndes⁴ bones, had the wreches
 taryd,
 Ther neckes wythowt hedes they showld have caryd!
 Ye, by Mahowndes nose, myght I have patted⁵ them, 215
 In twenty gobbetes⁶ I showld have squatted⁷ them,
 To teche the knaves to cum neere the snowte

Whyle I take myne in myne owne nest. 224

Exceat Tedy[ousnes].

Here cumth in Honest Recreation, Cum-fort, Quyknes, and Strenght, and go and knele about Wyt, [singing as follows]:¹

*When travelles grete² in matters thycke 225

sycke,*

*What medson than³ your wyttes to quycke?⁴
Yf ye wyll know, the best phisycke*

Is to geve place to Honest Recreation.

Give place, we say, now for thy consolacion! 230

Where is that Wyt that we seeke than?

Alas, he lyeth here pale and wan!

Helpe hym at once now, yf we can.

O Wyt, how doest thou? Looke up, man!

O Wyt, geve place to Honest Recreation.

Give place, we say, now for thy consolacion! 236

After place gyvyn, let eare obay.

Give an eare, O Wyt, now we the pray;

Give eare to that we syng and say;

*Give an eare, and healp wyll cum strayghte-
way;*

Give an eare to Honest Recreation.

Give an ere, now, for thy consolacion! 242

After eare gyvyn, now gyve an eye.

Behold thy freendes abowte the lye:

Recreation I, and Comfort I,

Quicknes am I, and Strength herebye.

Give an eye to Honest Recreation; 247

Give an eye, now, for thy consolacion!

After eye gyvyn, an hand gyve ye.

Give an hand, O Wyt, feele that ye see;

Recreation feele, feele Comfort fre,

Feele Quicknes here, feale Strength to the!

Give an hand to Honest Recreation; 253

Give an hand, now, for thy consolacion!

Upon his feete woold God he were!

To rayse hym now we neede not fere.

Stay you hys handes, whyle we hym¹ bere.

² This is a part of the stage-direction which precedes the song here inserted.

³ The MS. has the word done, though H. omits it, and M. supplies in brackets do.

⁴ In the margin below this word the MS. has *cumth
in*.

¹ The song is found, with two others, in the same MS. volume, but quite apart from the play. It is labeled: "The fyrst song in the play of Science." I have inserted it here, where it obviously belongs, although to do so I have had to break the stage direction into two parts. H. and M. treat the title-heading of the song as, apparently, a part of the text of the song.

² Labors great.

³ Then.

⁴ Enliven.

Can neyther pe[r]seve that best, how she

Goth abowte to dyceve you, nor yet

Remembre how I savyd youre lyfe, Wyt?

Thynke you her meete wyth mee to compare 391

By whome so many wytes euryd are?

When wyll she doo such an act as I dyd,

Savyng your lyfe when I you revyved?

And as I savyd you, so save I all 395

That in lyke jeoperdy chance to fall.

When Tediousnes to grownd hath smytten
them,

Honest Recreacion up doth quyken them

Wyth such honest pastymes, sportes or games

As unto myne honest nature frames, 400

And not, as she sayth, with pastymes suche

As be abusyd lytell or muche;

For where honest pastymes be abusyd,

Honest Recreacion is refused;

Honest Recreacion is present never 405

But where honest pastymes be well usyd ever.

But in-deede Idlenes, she is cawse

Of all such abuses; she, lo! drawes

Her sort to abuse myne honest games,

And therby full falsly my name defames.

Under the name of Honest Recreacion 411

She bryngth in all her abhominacion,

Dystryng all wytes that her imbrace,

As youre-selfe shall see wythin short space.

thow, toonge!

Of a short pele this pele was well roong, —
To ryng her hence, and hym fast asleepe
As full of sloth as the knave can kрееpe!

How, Wyt! awake! How doth my babye?
*Neque vox neque sensus,*¹ byr Ladye!

A meeete man for Idlenes, no dowte.
Hark my pygg! How the knave dooth rowte!² 430

Well, whyle he sleepth in Idlenes lappe, Idlenes marke on hym shall I clappe.

Can set hersealfe abowt sum busynes;

Or, at the lest, ye shall see her tryde,
Nother idle nor well occupyde.

[She blackens his face.]⁴

Lo! syr, yet ye lak another toye!
Wher is my whystell to call my boye? 440

Here she whystleth, and Ignorance cumth in, [dressed in a fool's coat, and a cap with large ears and a coxcomb.]

[INGN.] I cum! I cum!

IDLE. Coomme on, ye foole!
All thys day or ye can cum to scoole?

INGN. Um! mother wyll not let me cum.

IDLE. I woud thy mother had kyst thy bum!

She wyll never let the thryve, I trow. 445
Cum on, goose! Now, lo! men shall know

That Idlenes can do sumwhat; ye,
And play the scoolemystres, to, yf neade
bee.

Mark what doctryne by Idlenes cummes!
Say thy lesson, foole.

INGN. Upon my thummes? 450

IDLE. Ye, upon thy thummes. Ys not there thy name?

INGN. Yeas.

IDLE. Go to, than; spell me that same.
Where was thou borne?¹

INGN. Chwas i-bore in England, mother

tys?

INGN. Whats tys?

IDLE. Whats tys, horeson? whats tys? 460

Heeres "ing," and heeres "land." Whats
tys?

INGN. Tys my thum.

IDLE. Thy thum? "Yng," horeson,
"ing," "ing"!

INGN. Yng, yng, yng, yng.

IDLE. Foorth! Shall I bete thy narse,
now? 465

INGN. Um-m-m-m —

IDLE. Shall I not bete thy narse, now?

INGN. Um-m-m —

IDLE. Say "no," foole, say "no."

INGN. Noo, noo, noo, noo, noo! 470

IDLE. Go to, put together: "yng."

INGN. "Yng."

IDLE. "No."

INGN. "Noo."

IDLE. Forth now! What sayth the dog? 475

INGN. Dog barke.

IDLE. Dog barke? Dog ran, horeson, dog ran!

INGN. Dog ran, horson, dog ran, dog ran.

IDLE. Put together: "ing."

INGN. "Yng." 480

IDLE. "No."

INGN. "Noo."

IDLE. "Ran."

INGN. "Ran."

IDLE. Foorth now; what seyth the goose? 485

INGN. Lag! lag!

IDLE. "Hys," horson, "hys"! .

ING[N]. Hys, hys-s-s-s-s.

¹ From this point to line 542 I have not tried to treat the text as verse, but have set it exactly as it appears in the MS. It seems to me to be intended as prose. I have made the line numbering conform to the lines in the manuscript.

² Snore.

³ Work.

⁴ Cf. lines 802-20.

¹ H. omits this line; but though it is faint in the MS. it can be clearly read in Farmer's photographic facsimile. Since it is necessary to the sense, I have restored it to the printed text.

² Originally the scribe wrote Ing-no-ran-hys-I-sss, but corrected to the form printed above. H. ignored the correction, though it is clearly necessary to the sense.

³ Study by repetition.

⁴ At once.

⁵ MS. has the speech of Idleness as two lines; corr. by M.

⁶ Know not.

Wyll trym this jentel-man that lyeth
heere, —

Ah! God save hyt, so sweetly hyt doth sleepe! —

Whyle on your back thys gay cote can creepe,

As fecte¹ as can be for this one arme.

INGN. Oh! cham a-cold.

[Puts Wyt's gown of learning on Ignorance.]

IDLE. Hold, foole! keepe the warme.
And cum hyther; hold this hed here.

Softe now, for wakyng! 566

Ye shall see wone here browght in such takyng

That he shall soone scantlye knowe hymscalfe.

Heere is a cote as fyt for this elfe 569

As it had bene made evyn for thys bodye.

[Puts Ignorance's coat on Wyt.]

So! It begynth to looke lyke a noddye!

INGN. Um-m-m-m —

IDLE. What aylest now, foole?

INGN. New cote is gone!

IDLE. And why is it gone?

INGN. 'Twool not byde on.

IDLE. "Twool not byde on?" 'Twoold,
if it cowld! 574

But marvell it were that byde it shoold, —
Sciens garment on Ignorance bak!

[Looking at Wit.]

But now lets se, syr; what do ye lak?

Nothing but evin to bukell heere this throthe,

So well this Wyt becumthe a foolles cote!

INGN. He is I now!

IDLE. Ye; how lykste hym now? 580

Is he not a foole as well as thow?

INGN. Yeas.

IDLE. Well, than, won foole keepe another!
Geve me this, and take thow that brother.

[Sets Ignorance's cap on Wit's head.]

INGN. Um-m —

IDLE. Pyke the home, go!

INGN. Chyll go tell my moother!

IDLE. Yea, doo! 585

[Exit Ignorance.]

¹ Fine.

But yet to take my leve of my deere, lo!
Wyth a skyp or twayne, heere lo! and heer lo!

And heere agayne! and now this heele
To bles his weake brayne! Now are ye weele,

By vertu of Idellnes blessing toole, 590
Conjurd from Wyt unto a starke foole!

[Exit.]

Confydence cumth in with a sword by his syde, and sayth as folowyth:

[CONF.] I seake and seake, as won on no
grownde

Can rest, but lyke a masterles hownde
Wandryng all about seakyng his master.

Alas! jentle Wyt, I feare the fasster 595

That¹ my tru servyee clevth unto thee,

The slacker thy mynd cleevth unto mee!

I have doone thye message in such sorte

That I not onlye, for thy comfort

To vanquishe thyne enemy have browght
heere 600

A sword of comfort from thy love deere,

But also, furder, I have so enclynd her

That upon my wurdes she hath assynd
her

In her owne parson² half-way to meete
thee,

And hytherward she came for to greece
thee. 605

And sure, except she be turned agayne,

Hyther wyll she cum or³ be long, playne,

To seake to meate the heere in this cost.⁴

But now, alas! thy-selfe thow hast lost, 609

Or, at the least, thow wylt not be fownd.

Alas! jentle Wyt, how doost thow woonde

Thy trusty and tru servant, Confydence,

To lease my credence to Ladye Science!

Thow lesyst me, to; for yf I can not

Fynd the shortly, lenger lyve I ma not, 615

But shortly get me evyn into a corner

And dye for sorowe throwhe such a scorner!
Exceat.

Here the[y] cum in with vyols.

FAME. Cum syrs, let us not dysdayne to do

That the World hath apoynted us too.

¹ H. prints Thy; M. changes to That in text, but observes in a footnote "perhaps it would be better to read Thys." The MS. clearly reads That.

² Person.

³ Ere.

⁴ Place.

FAVOR. Syns to serve Science the World hath sent us, 620

As the World wyth¹ us, let us content us.

RYCHES. Content us we may, synce we be assynde

To the fayrest lady that lyvth, in my mynde!

WOORSHYP. Then let us not stay here
muet and mum,

But tast we thes instrumentes tyll she cum. 625

Here the[y] syng "Excedynge Measure." 2

*Exceedyng mesure, wyth paynes continewall, Langueshyng in absens, alas! what shall I
doe,*

*Infortunate wretch, devoyde of joyes all,
Syghes upon syghes redoublyng my woe,
And teares downe fallyng fro myne eyes toe?*

*Bewty wyth truth so doth me constrayne
Ever to serve where I may not attayne! 632*

*Truth byndyth me ever to be true,
How-so-that fortune faverth my chance.
Duryng my lyfe none other but you
Of my tru hart shall have the governance!
O good swete hart, have you remembrance
Now of your owne, whych for no smart
Exyle shall yow fro my tru hart! 639*

[During the song, Experyence and Science have entered.]

EXPER. Dowghter, what meanyth that ye dyd not syng?

SCIENCE. Oh mother, for heere remaynth a thyngel!

Freendes, we thanke you for thes your plesures,

Takyn on us as chance to us measures.

WOORSHYPPE. Ladye, thes our plesures, and parsons too,

Ar sente to you, you servyce to doo. 645

FAME. Ladye Science, to set forth your
name,

The World to wayte on you hath sent me,
Fame.

FAVOR. Ladye Science, for your vertues
most plentye,

The World, to cherysh you, Favor hath sent ye.

RYCHES. Lady Science, for youre benefyfytes knowne, 650

The World, to mayntayne you, Ryches hath thrown.

WOORSHYP. And, as the World hath sent you thes three,

So he sendth mee, Woorshypp, to avawnce your degre.

SCIENCE. I thank the World; but cheefly
God be prayed,

That in the World such love to Science hath rayسد! 655

But yet, to tell you playne, ye iiij ar such
As Science lookth for lytell nor muche;

For beyng, as I am, a lone wooman, Neede of your servyce I nether have nor can.

But, thankyng the World, and you for your payn, 660

I send ye to the World evyn now agayne.

WOORSHYPPE. Why, ladye, set ye no more store by mee,

Woorshypp? Ye set nowght by yourselfe,
I se!

FAME. She setthe nowght by Fame;
wherby I spye her, —

She carethe not what the World sayth by
her. 665

FAVOR. She setthe nowght by Favor;
wherby I trye her, —

She caryth not what the World sayth or dooth by her.

RYCHES. She setth nowght by Ryches;
whych dooth showe

She careth not for the World. Cum, let us
goe!

[Exeunt Woorship, Fame, Favor, and Ryches.]

SCIENCE. In-deede, smalle cawse gevyn to care for the Worldes favering, 670 Seeyng the wyttes of Worlde be so waver-
yng.

EXPER. What is the matter, dowghter, that ye

Be so sad? Open your mynd to mee.

SCIENCE. My marvell is no les, my good moother,

Then my greefe is greate, to see, of all other, 675

¹ Commands.

² The song is not given in the play, but appears with the other songs in another part of the manuscript volume. It is labeled "The ij Song." I have inserted it here in its proper place.

The prowde scorne of Wyt, soone to Dame
Nature,
Who sent me a pycature of hys stature
Wyth all the shape of hymselfe there open-
yng,

Hys amorous love therby betokenyng,
Borne toward me in abundant facion; 680
And also, furdre, to make ryght relacion
Of this hys love, he put in commyshion
Such a messenger as no suspicion Cowld growe in mee of hym, — Confy-dence.

EXPER. Um!

SYENCE. Who, I ensure ye, wyth such vehemence, 685
And faythfull behavoure in hys movyng, Set foorth the pyth¹ of hys masters lov-
yng

That no lyvyng creature cowld coniecte
But that pure love dyd that Wyt dyrect.

EXPER. So?

SCIENCE. Now, this beinge synce the space
Of three tymes sendyng from place to place Betwene Wyt and hys man, I here no more Nether of Wyt, nor his love so sore.

How thynk you by thys, my nowne deere mother?

EXPER. Dowghter, in this I can thynke none oother 695

But that it is true — thys proverbe old:
"Hastye love is soone hot and soone cold!"

Take hede, dowghter, how you put youre trust

To lyght lovers to hot at the furst. 699

For had this love of Wyt bene growndyd,
And on a sure fowndashyon fowndyd,

Lytell voyde tyme wold have bene be-twene ye

But that this Wyt wolde have sent or scene
ye.

SCIENCE. I thynke so.

EXPER. Ye, thynke ye so or no, Yourre mother, Experience, prooffe shall showe 705

That Wyt hath set hys love — I dare say
And make ye warrantyse — another way.

Wyt cumth before [in his fool's coat and cox-comb, and with his face blackened.]

[WYT.] But your warrantyse warrant no trothe!

Fayre ladye, I praye you be not wrothe Tyll you here more; for, deere Ladye Science, 710

Had your lover, Wyt, — yea], or Confy-
dence,

Hys man, — bene in helth all this tyme spent,

Long or this tyme Wyt had cumme or sent.
But the trothe is they have bene both sykke,

Wyt and hys man, ye and wyth paynes
thycke 715

Bothe stayde by the way, so that your lover

Could neyther cum¹ nor send by none
other.

Wherefore, blame not hym, but chance of syknes.

SCIENCE. Who is this?

EXPER. Ingnorance, or his lykenes.

SCIENCE. What! the common foole?

EXPER. Yt is much lyke hym. 720

SCIENCE. By my soothe, his toong servth him now trym!

What sayst thow, Ingnorance? Speak
agayn!

WYT. Nay, ladye, I am not Ingnorance,
playne,

But I am your owne deere lover, Wytt,
That hath long lovd you, and lovth you
yet. 725

Wherefore, I pray the now, my nowne
swetyng,

Let me have a kys at this our meetyng.

[Tries to kiss her.]

SCIENCE. Ye, so ye shall anone, but not yet!

Ah, syr, this foole here hath got sum wyt!
Fall you to kyssyng, syr, now-a-dayes? 730 Your mother shall charme you. Go your wayes!

WYT. What nedth all this, my love of long growne?

Wyll ye be so strang to me, your owne?
Yourre aquayntance to me was thowht
esy;²

But now your woordes make my harte all quesye, 735

¹ H. says the MS. has cumne, but the reading is clearly cum.

² Easy, conducive to pleasure.

Youre dartes at me so strangely be shott.
SCIENCE. Heere ye what termes this foole here hath got?

WYT. Well I perseve my foolyshnes now;
Indeede, ladyes no dasterdes allowe.
I wylbe bolde wyth my nowne darlyng!
Cum now, a bas, my nowne proper sparlyng! 741

[Tries again to kiss her.]

SCIENCE. What wylt thou, arrand foole?

WYT. Nay, by the mas,
I wyll have a bas or I hence pas!

SCIENCE. What wylt thou, arrande foole?
Hence, foole, I say!

WYT. What! nothyng but "foole" and
"foole" all this day? 745

By the mas, madam, ye can no good.

SCIENCE. Art a-sweryng, to? Now, by my hood,

Youre foolyshe knaves breeche vj strypes shall bere!

WYT. Ye, Godes bones! "foole" and "knave," to? Be ye there?

By the mas, call me foole once agayne, 750
And thou shalt sure call a blo or twayne.¹

EXPER. Cum away, dowghter; the foole is mad.

WYT. Nay, nor yet nether hence ye shall gad!

We wyll gre better, or ye pas hence.

I praye the now, good swete Ladye Science, 755

All this strange maner now hyde and cover,
And play the goodfelowe wyth thy lover!

SCIENCE. What goodfelowshyppe wold ye of me,

Whome ye knowe not, nether yet I knowe
ye?

WYT. Know ye not me?

SCIENCE. No; how shoold I know ye? 760

WYT. Dooth not my pycure my parson shoow ye?

SCIENCE. Your pycure?

WYT. Ye, my picture, ladye,
That ye spake of. Who sent it but I?

SCIENCE. Yf that be youre pycure, then shall we

Soone se how you and your pycure agree. 765

Lo, here! the pycure that I named is this.

¹ Call (upon your head) a blow or two.

WYT. Ye, mary, myne owne lykenes this is.

You havng this, ladye, and so lothe
To knowe me, whych this so playne showthe!

SCIENCE. Why, you are nothyng lyke, in myne eie. 770

WYT. No? [To Experience.] How say
ye?

EXPER. As she sayth, so say I.

WYT. By the mas, than are ye both starke blynde!

What dyference betwene this and this can ye fynd?

EXPER. Marye, this is fayer, plesant, and goodlye,

And ye are fowle, dysplesant, and ug-
lye. 775

WYT. Mary, avawnt, thou fowle ugly whoore!

SCIENCE. So, lo! now I perseve ye more and more.

WYT. What! perseve you me, — as ye wold make me, —

A naturall foole?

SCIENCE. Nay, ye mystake me;
I take ye for no foole naturall, 780

But I take ye thus, — shall I tell all?

WYT. Ye, marye, tell me youre mynd, I pray ye,

Wherto I shall trust. No more delay ye.

SCIENCE. I take ye for no naturall foole,
Brought up among the innocentes scoole,

But for a nawgty vycious foole, 786
Brought up wyth Idellnes in her scoole.

Of all arrogant fooles thou art one!

WYT. Ye! Goges bodye!

EXPER. Cum, let us be gone!

[Exeunt Experience and Science.]

WYT. My swerd! Is yt gone? A vengeance on them! 790

Be they gone, to, and ther hedes upon
them?

But, prowde quenes, the dyvyll go wyth
you both!

Not one poynt of curtesye in them gothe.
A man is well at ease by sute to payne him

For such a drab, that so doth dysdayne
hym! 795

So mokte, so lowtd,¹ so made a sot,

¹ Flouted, mocked.

Never was I erst synce I was begot!
Am I so fowle as those drabes wold make
me?

Where is my glas that Reson dyd take¹
me?

Now shall this glas of Reson soone trye
me 800

As fayre as those drabes that so doth belye
me.

[He looks in the glass.]

Hah! Goges sowle! What have we here?
A dyvyll?

This glas, I se well, hath bene kept evyll.

[Cleans the glass, and looks again.]

Goges sowle! a foole! a foole, by the mas!
What a very vengeance aylth this glas? 805
Other this glas is shamefully spotted,
Or els am I to shamefully blotted!

Nay, by Goges arnes, I am so, no dowte!
How loke ther facis heere rownd abowte?

[He holds the glass up to the audience.]

All fayre and cleere they, evrychone; 810
And I, by the mas, a foole alone,
Deckt, by Goges bones, lyke a very asse!
Ignorance cote, hoode, eares, — ye, by
the masse,

Kokescome and all. I lack but a bable!²
And as for this face, [it] is abhominable, 815
As black as the devyll! God, for his passion!

Where have I bene rayde³ after this fas-
syon?

This same is Idlenes, — a shame take her!
This same is her wurke, — the devill in hell rake her!

The whoore hath shamd me for-ever, I
trow! 820

I trow? Nay verely, I knowe!
Now it is so — the stark foole I playe
Before all people. Now see it I maye.
Evrye man I se lawhe⁴ me to scorne.
Alas, alas, that ever I was borne! 825

Yt was not for nowght, now well I se,
That those too ladyes dysdayned me.
Alas! Ladye Science, of all oother —
How have I rayled on her and her moother!
Alas! that lady I have now lost 830
Whome all the world lovth and honoryth most!

Alas! from Reson had I not varyd,
Ladye Science or this I had maryd!
And those fower gyftes which the World gave her

I had woon, to, had I kept her favor; 835
Where now, in-stede of that lady bryght Wyth all those gallantes seene in my syght, —

Favor, Ryches, ye, Worshyp and Fame, —
I have woone Hatred, Beggry and Open
Shame.

Shame cumth in wyth a whyppe, [followed by Reason.]

WYT. Out upon the, Shame! What doost thowe heere? 840

RESON. Mary, I, Reason, bad hym heere appeere.

Upon hym, Shame! wyth stryppes inow
smitten,

While I reherce his fawtes herein wrytten:
[He reads from a paper.]

Fyrst, he hath broken his promyse formerly Made to me, Reson, my dowghter to
marye; 845

Nexste, he hath broken his promyse promisyd

To obay Instruccion, and him dyspised; Thurdlye, my dowghter Science to reprove,

Upon Idlenes he hath set his love; 849
Forthlye, he hath folowed Idellnes scoole
Tyll she hath made him a verye stark foole;
Lastlye, offendyng both God and man,
Sweryng grete othes as any man can,
He hath abused himselfe, to the grete
shame

Of all his kynred and los of his good name.
Wherfore, spare him not, Shame! Bete him well there! 856

He hath deservyd more then he can beare.

Wyt knelith downe.

[WYT.] Oh father Reson, be good unto
me!

Alas, thes strypes of Shame will undo me!
RESON. Be still a while, Shame! Wyt, what sayst thou? 860

WYT. Oh syr, forgeve me, I beseech you!

RESON. Yf I forgeve the thy ponyshment,
Wylt thou than folow thy fyrst entent

And promyse made, my dowghter to
marye?

WYT. Oh syr, I am not woorthy to carye 865
The dust out where your dowghter shoold sy.

RESON. I wot well that! But yf I admyt
The, unwoorthy, agayne to her wooer,
Wylt thou then folow thy sewte unto her?

WYT. Ye, syr, I promyse you, while lyfe enduryth. 870

RESON. Cum neere, masters; heere is wone ensuryth¹

In wordes to becum an honest man!

Here cumth Instruccion, Studye, and Diligens in.

Take him, Instruccion; do what ye can.

INSTR. What! to the purpose he went before?

RESON. Ye, to my dowghter prove him
once more. 875

Take him, and trym hym in new aparell,
And geve that to Shame there to his farewell.²

INSTR. Cum on your way, Wyt. Be of good cheere!

After stormy clowdes cumth wether clere!

Instruccion, Study, Wyt, and Dyligens go out.

RESON. Who lyst to marke now this chance heere doon, 880

May se what Wyt is wythout Reson.

What was this Wyt better then an asse

Being from Reson strayde as he was?

But let pas now, synce he is well poon-
yshyd,

And thereby, I trust, meetely well mon-yshyd.³ 885

Ye, and I lyke him never the wurs, I,

Though Shame hath handled hym shame-fullye;

For, lyke as, yf Wyt had proudly bent hym

To resyst Shame to make Shame absent
hym,⁴

I wold have thought than that Wyt had
bene — 890

As the sayeng is, and daylye seene —

“Past shame once, and past all amendment”:

² Payment on leaving?

³ Admonished.

⁴ Withdraw himself.

So, contra[r]ye, syns he dyd relent
To Shame when Shame ponyisht him evyn
yll,

I have, I say, good hope in him styl. 895
I thynke, as I thought, — yf joyne thei
can, —

My dowghter wel bestowd on this man.

But all the dowte now is to thynke how

My dowghter takth this. For, I may tell
yow, 899

I thynk she knew this Wyt, evyn as wecle
As she seemd heere to know him no deele;

For lak of knoledge in Science there is
none;

Wherfore, she knew him; and therupon

His mysbehavior perchance evyn strykyng

Her hart agaynst him,¹ she now myslyk-
yng, — 905

As women oft-tymes wylbe hard-hartyd, —
Wylbe the stranger to be revertyd.²

This must I helpe. Reson must now walke,

On Wytes part wyth my Science to talke.

A neere way to her know I, wherebye 910

My soounes cummyng prevent now must I.
Perchance I may bryng my dowghter

hyther;

Yf so, I dowght not to joyne them together.

Exceat Reson. Confydence cumth in.

[CONF.] I thanke God, yet at last I have fownd hym!

I was afrayde sum myschance had drownd
him, — 915

My master, Wyt, wyth whome I have spoken,

Ye, and deliverd token for token,

And have anoother to Science agayne, —

A hart of gold, syngnifyeng playne

That Science hath wun Wytes hart forever. 920

Whereby I trust, by my good endever

To that good ladye, so sweete and so sortly,³

A maryage betwene them ye shall see shortlye.

Confydens exceat. Instruccion cumth in wyth Wyt, Study, and Dyllygence.

[INSTR.] Lo! syr, now ye be entryd agayne

¹ Causing her heart to turn against him.

² The harder to be made to return (after estrangement).

³ Appropriate (N.E.D.).

Toward that passage where dooth remaine 925

Tedyousnes, your mortall enemy.

Now may ye choose whether ye wyll trye
Your handes agayne on that tyrant stowte,
Or els, walkyng a lytell aboute —

WYT. Nay; for Godes pashion, syr, let me meete him! 930

Ye se I am able now for to greete him.

This sword of cumfort, sent fro my love,
Upon her enemy needes must I proove!

INSTR. Then foorth there; and turne on your ryght hand

Up that mownt before ye shall see stand.
But heere ye! Yf your enemye chance to ryse, 936

Folowe my councell in anye wyse:

Let Studye and Dyligence flee ther
towche,¹ —

The stroke of Tedyousnes, — and then cowche

Themselves, as I told ye, — ye wot
how.² 940

WYT. Ye, syr, for that how, marke the prooffe now!

[Wyt, with drawn sword, and attended by Study and Dyligence, proceeds to the Mount.]

INSTR. To mark it, indeede, here wyll I
abyde,

To see what chance of them wyll betyde;
For heere cumth the pyth,³ lo! of this iornaye.

That mowntayne, before which they must assaye, 945

Is cald in Laten Mons Pernassus;

Which mowntayne, as old auctors dyseus,
Who attaynth ones⁴ to sleepe on that mownt,

Ladye Science his owne he may cownt.

But, or he cum there, ye shall see fowght 950

A fyght with no les polycye wrowght Then strength, I trow, — if that may be prayed.

TEDI. [within.] Oh! ho! ho!

INSTR. Hark!

TEDI. [entering.] Out, ye kaytyves!

INSTR. The feend is raysyd!

¹ Blow.

² Instruction has devised some "polycye" by means of which Wyt is to overcome Tedyousnes.

³ Important part.

⁴ Once.

TEDI. Out, ye vilaynes! Be ye cum
agayne?

Have at ye, wretches! [Rushes at them.]

WYT [aside.] Fle, syrs, ye twayne! 955

[Study and Dyligence flee.]

TEDI. Thei fle not far hens!

[Tedyousnes pursues them, but is attacked by Wyt.]

DYLL. Turne agayne, Studye!

STUDYE. Now, Dyligence!

INSTR. Well sayde! Hold fast now!

STUDYE. He fleeth!

DYLL. Then folowe!

[Tedyousnes flees, beaten in by Wyt; Study and Dyligence follow.]

INSTR. Wyth his owne weapon now wurke him sorow!

TEDI. [within.] Oh! ho! ho! Dyeth.

INSTR. Hark! he dyeth! 960

Where strength lakth, policye ssupplieth.

Heere Wyt cumth in and bryngth in the hed upon his swoorde, and sayth as folowyth:

WYT. I can ye thanke, syrs; this was well
doone!

STUDYE. Nay, yours is the deede!

DYLL. To you is the thank!

INSTR. I can ye thank, all; this was well
doone! •

WYT. How say ye, man? Is this feelde well woonne? 965

Confydence cumth running in.

[CONF.] Ye, by my fayth, so sayth your deere hart.

WYT. Why where is she, that here now
thow art?

CONF. Upon yonder mowntayne, on hye,
She saw ye strike that hed from the bodye;

Wherby ye have woonne her, bodye and
all! 970

In token whereof reseve heere ye shall

A gowne of knoledge, wherin you must Reseve her here strayght.

WYT. But sayst thow just?

[CONF.]² So just I say that, except ye hye ye,

² Though the MS. indicates another speaker, no name is prefixed. Supplied by H.

Or ye be redye she wylbe by ye. 975
 WYT. Holde! Present unto her this hed
 heere,
 And gyvme warning when she cumth nere.

[Exit Confydence.]

Instruccion, wyl ye helpe to devyse
 To trim this geere now in the best wyse?
 INSTR. Geve me that gowne, and cum wyth me, all! 980

DYLI. Oh, how this gere to the purpose dooth fall!
Confidens cumth running in.

[CONF.] How, master, master! Where be ye now?

WYT. Here, Confydence; what tydynges bryngst thow?

CONF. My ladye at hand heere dooth abyde ye. 984

Byd her wellcum! What! do ye hide ye?
Here Wyt, Instruccion, Studye, and Diligence syng "Wellcum, my nowne," and Syence, Experience, Reson and Confidence cum in at [left], and answer evre second verse:¹

WYT AND HIS CUMPANE:
*O ladye deere,
 Be ye so neere
 To be knowne?
 My hart yow cheere
 Your voyce to here.
 Wellcum, myne owne!* 991

SCIENCE AND HIR CUMPANYE:
*As ye rejoyse
 To here my voyce
 Fro me thus blowne,
 So in my choyce
 I show my voyce
 To be your owne.* 997

WYT AND HIS CUMPANYE:
*Then drawe we neere
 To see and heere
 My love long gowne!
 Where is my deere?
 Here I apeere
 To see myne owne.* 1003

SCIENCE AND HIR CUMPANYE:
*To se and try
 Your love truly
 Till deth be flowne,
 Lo! here am I,
 That ye may spie
 I am your owne.* 1009

WYT AND HIS CUMPANYE:
*Then let us meete,
 My love so sweete,
 Halfe-way heere throwne!* 1012

SIENS AND HIR CUMPANYE:
*I wyll not sleete¹
 My love to greete.
 Wellcum, myne owne!* 1015

WYT AND HIS CUMPANYE:
Wellcum, myne owne!
 ALL sing:
Wellcum, myne owne! 1017

And when the song is doone, Reson sendyth Instruccion, Studye, and Dyligence, and Confidens out; and then, standyng in the myddell of the place, Wyt sayth as folowyth:

WYT. Wellcum, myne owne, wyth all my hole harte, Whyeh shalbe your owne till deth us depart!²
 I trust, ladye, this knot evyn syns knyht.
 SCIENCE. I trust the same; for syns ye have smitt 1021

Downe my grete enmye, Tedyousnes,
 Ye have woon me for-ever, dowghtles, —
 Althowgh ye have woon a clogg³ wyth-all!
 WYT. A clogg, sweete hart? What?
 SCIENCE. Such as doth fall 1025
 To all men that joyne themselves in mariage, —

In kepyn ther wyves. A carefull cariage!
 WYT. Careful? Nay, ladye, that care shall employe
 No clogg, but a key of my most joye.
 To kepe you, swete hart, as shall be fyt, 1030

Shalbe no care, but most joy to Wyt!
 SCIENCE. Well, yet I say, — marke well what I saye! —

¹ Slight?

² Separate (an echo of the marriage ceremony.)

³ Encumbrance.

¹ The song is not given in the play, but is found with the other two songs in another part of the manuscript volume. It is labeled "The thyrd song," and has the title "Wellcum, myne owne, Wellcum myne owne." M., following H., prints this title in two lines and, apparently, as a part of the song itself.

My presence bryngth you a clogg, no naye,
 Not in the keypyng of me onelye,
 But in the use of Science cheeflye; 1035
 For I, Science, am in this degree, —
 As all, or most part, of woomen bee:
 Yf ye use me well, in a good sorte,
 Then shall I be youre joy and comfort;
 But yf ye use me not well, then dowt me,
 For, sure, ye were better then without me!
 WYT. Why, ladye, thinke you me such a wyt,

As being avansyd by you, and yet
 Wold mysuse ye? Nay, yf ye dowt that, Heere is wone lovth thee more then sum-what, — 1045

Yf Wyt mysuse ye at any season,
 Correct me then your owne father, Reson.
 RESON. Ho, dowghter, can ye desyre any more?

What neede thes dowttes? Avoyde them,
 therfore!

EXPER. Byrlakyn, syr, but, under your favor, 1050
 This dowgt our dowghter doth well to gather
 For a good warnyng now at begynnynge What Wyt in the end shall looke for in wyning;

Whych shalbe this, syr: yf Science here,
 Whych is Godes gyft, be usyd meere 1055
 Unto Godes honor, and profyt both
 Of you and your neybowre,¹—whych goth
 In her, of kynd,² to do good to all, —
 This scene to, Experience, I, shall Set you forth, Wyt, by her to employe 1060
 Doble enrece to your doble joye;
 But yf you use her contrarywvse
 To her good nature, and so devyse
 To evyll effectes to wrest and to wry her, Ye, and cast her of, and set nowght by
 her, 1065

Be sure I, Experience, shall than Declare you so before God and man
 That thys talent³ from you shalbe taken
 And you ponyshyt for your gayne forsaken.
 WYT. "Once warnd,⁴ half-arnd," folk say, namely than 1070

Experience shall warne a man, than Tyme to take heede! Mother Experience,
 Towchyng youre dowghter, my deere hart,
 S[c]iens,

As I am sertayne that to abuse her
 I brede myne owne sorow, and well to use
 her 1075

I enrece my joy; and so to make yt
 Godes grace is redye yf I wyll take yt.
 Then, but¹ ye cownt me no wyt at all,
 Let never thes dowttes into your hed fall;
 But, as yourself, Experience, cleryng 1080
 All dowtes at leght, so, tyll tyme aperyng, Trust ye wyth me in God. And, swete hart,
 Whyle your father Reson takth wyth² parte,
 To reseve Godes grace as God shall send it, Dowte ye not our joy, tyll lyves end end³
 yt! 1085

SCIENCE. Well, than, for the end of all dowttes past,

And to that end whiche ye spake of last:
 Among our weddyng matters heere rend-
 ryng,

Thend of our lyves wold be in remembryng;
 Which remembrance, Wyt, shall sure defend ye 1090

From the mysuse of Science, and send ye⁴
 The gayne my mother to mynd did call, — Joy without end. That wysht I to all!

RESON. Well sayd! And as ye, dowghter, wyshe it,

That joy to all folke in generall, 1095
 So wysht I, Reson, the same. But yet
 Fyrst in this lyfe wysht I here to fall

To our most noble Kyng and Quene in especial,
 To ther honorable Cowncell, and then to all the rest,

Such joy as long may rejoyse them all best!⁵ 1100

All say Amen.

¹ This fragment of a Robin Hood play (the earliest text we have preserved) is found on the upper half of a leaf originally pasted at the end of some folio volume. On the verso of the leaf are accounts of quarterly payments for house rent extending, apparently, from May, 1475, to August, 1476 (one is dated November 7, 1475). It is likely that the text of the Robin Hood play was written at a still earlier date; but even if the record of house-rent payments preceded, the handwritings on the two sides of the leaf, as Greg observes, are "obviously contemporary, and the entries can hardly be separated by more than a few years." The history of the manuscript makes it probable that the leaf was once in the possession of William Paston, second Earl of Yarmouth; and in one of the Paston letters, April 16, 1473, we discover that Sir John Paston had a certain man named Woode in his employ "thys iij yer to pleye Seynt Jorge [George], and Robyn Hod and the Sheryff o.f Notyngham." Greg, agreeing with Child and Chambers, writes: "There can be little question . . . that this last piece is none other than the play to which our fragment belongs."

I have reproduced the text from that issued by Greg, with facsimile, in The Malone Society's Collections, i, 117, and have taken advantage of both Manly's and Greg's dramatic reconstruction, though the punctuation and the stage-directions are my own. The fragment ends before the climax of the play has been reached; but the story is well-known in the ballad of Guy of Gisborne. I have added, with some changes, Greg's completion based on the ballad.

[The Sheriff and his men overcome the outlaws, and bind Friar Tuck and the rest. Entering with the prisoners, they spy Little John and Scarlet.]

[SHERIFF.] Yeld yow, syrs, to the Sheryffe,

Or elles shall your bowes clyffe. 34

[Little John and Scarlet yield, and are bound.]

[LITTLE JOHN.] Now we be bownden alle in same!

Frere [T]uke, this is no game.¹

[SHERIFF.] Co[m]e thou forth, thou fals outlawe;

Thou shall [be] hangyde and y-drawel!

[FRIAR TUCK.] Now[e], allas, what shall we doo?

We [m]oste to the prysone goo. 40

[SHERIFF.] Opy[n] the yatis² faste anon,

An[d] la[te] theis thevys ynne gon.³

[Robin enters disguised as Sir Guy.]

[ROBIN.] Holde⁴ thou here, syr Sheryffe, Robyns hede, by my lyffe! 44

[He presents the severed head.]

² Doors.

³ At this point the fragment ends.

⁴ Take, receive.

[SHERIFF.] Now, take thou golde and fee! Syr Gwyne, welcume mote thou be!

[ROBIN.] Golde and fee wyll I none, But you outlawe alone.

[He points to Little John.]

[SHERIFF.] Take hym lyghtlie to thy wyll,

Thogh thou hys lyffe spille. 50

[Robin goes to Little John, reveals himself to him, cuts his bonds, and, thrusting a bow into his hands, whispers:]

[ROBIN.] Now haue this bow intill thy honde.

By thy syde I take my stonde!

[They draw upon the Sheriff.]

[SHERIFF.] Owt alas! we be fordone!¹

Robin Hode is vs vpon! 54

[The Sheriff and his men start to run away.]

[LITTLE JOHN.] Now do they runne for drede.

Syr Sheryffe, thou art but dede!

[Little John shoots; the Sheriff falls.]

[FRIAR TUCK.] By Chryst, this was welle wrought.

Gode Robyn hath his menye boght!² 58

ROBIN HOOD AND THE FRIAR¹

HERE BEGINNETH THE PLAYE OF ROBYN HOODE, VERVE PROPER TO BE PLAYED IN MAYE GAMES.

[SCENE I.]

[Enter Robin Hood and his men, dressed in Kendal green.]

ROBYN HOODE. Now stand ye forth, my mery men all,
And harke what I shall say!
Of an adventure I shal you tell,
The which befell this other day:
As I went by the hygh-way, 5
With a stoute frere I met,
And a quarter-staffe in his hande;
Lyghtly to me he lept,
And stylle he bade me stande.
There were strypes two or three, 10
But I can not tell who had the worse;
But well I wote the horeson lepte within
me,

And fro me he toke my purse.
Is there any of my mery men all
That to that frere wyll go, 15
And bryng him to me forth-withall,
Whether he wyll or no?

LYTELL IOHN. Yes, mayster, I make God
avowe,
To that frere wyll I go,
And bryng him to you, 20
Whether he wyl or no. [Exeunt.]

[SCENE II.]

[Enter Friar Tucke in a long coat, leading three dogs by a string.]

FRYER TUCKE. Deus hic! Deus hic!
God be here!
Is not this a holy worde for a frere?
God save all this company!
But am not I a iolly fryer? 25
For I can shote both farre and nere,
And handle the sworde and buckler —

And this quarter-staffe also.
If I mete with a gentyman or yeman,
I am not afrayde to loke hym upon, 30
Nor boldly with him to carpe;
If he speake any wordes to me,
He shall have strypes two or thre
That shal make his body smarte!
But, maister[s], to shew you the matter 35
Wherfore and why I am come hither,
In fayth, I wyl not spare:
I am come to seke a good yeman,
In Bernisdale men sai is his habitacion,
His name is Robyn Hode. 40
And if that he be better man than I,
His servaunt wyll I be, and serve him
truly;
But if that I be better man than he,
By my truth, my knave shall he be,
And leade these dogges all three! 45

[Robin enters and seizes him by the throat.]

ROBYN HOODE. Yelde the, fryer in thy long cote!
FRYER TUCKE. I beshrew thy hart, knave! Thou hurtest my throt[c].

[Shakes him off.]

ROBYN HOODE. I trowe, fryer, thou begin-nest to dote!
Who made the so malapert and so bolde
To come into this forest here 50
Amonge my falowe-dere?
FRYER. Go louse the, ragged knave!
If thou make mani wordes, I will geve the
on the eare,
Though I be but a poore fryer.
To seke Robyn Hode I am com here, 55
And to him my hart to breke.
ROBYN HOODE. Thou lousy frer, what wouldest thou with hym?

¹ Appended to Gest of Robin Hood, printed by William Copland, without date, but apparently between 1553 and 1569. I have based the text on the careful reprint by W. W. Greg in The Malone Society's Collections, 1909, i, 125, and have compared this with Manly's reprint, Specimens, 1896. Copland gives two texts carelessly run together as one; the second text, dealing with Robin Hood and the Potter, is a mere fragment, breaking off in the middle of the action, a fact which led Greg plausibly to suggest "that Copland (or some pre-cessor) printed from a copy of an earlier edition which had lost a leaf or more at the end." I have omitted the fragment.

He never loved fryer, nor none of freiers kyn.

FRYER. Avaunt, ye ragged knave,
Or ye shall have on the skynne! 60

ROBYN HODE. Of all the men in the morning thou art the worst;

To mete with the I have no lust,
For he that meteth a frere, or a fox, in the morning,

To spede ill that day he standeth in ieoperdy:¹

Therefore I had lever² mete with the devil of hell — 65

Fryer, I tell the as I thinke —

Then mete with a fryer, or a fox,
In a mornynge or I drynke.

FRYER. Avaunt, thou ragged knave! this is but a mock.

If you make mani words, you shal have a knock. 70

ROBYN HODE. Harke, frere, what I say
here:

Over this water thou shalt me bere, —
The brydge is borne away.

FRYER. To say naye I wyll not — To let the of thine oth it were great pitie and sin — 75

But, up on a fryers backe, and have even
in!

ROBYN HODE. Nay, have over!

[Robin Hood gets on Friar Tuck's back; the Friar wades into the stream, and stops.]

FRYER. Now am I, frere, within, and thou, Robin, without.

To lay the here I have no great doubt.

[He drops him in the water, and wades out.]

Nów am I, frere, without, and thou,
Robyn, within!³ 80

Lye ther, knave! Chose whether thou wilt sinke or swym.

ROBYN HODE. Why, thou lowsy frere!
what hast thou done?

FRYER. Mary, set a knave over the shone.⁴

ROBYN HODE. Therefore thou [shalt] abye.⁵

[Robin Hood draws, and rushes at the Friar.]

FRYER. Why, wylt thou fyght a plucke?¹

ROBYN HODE. And God send me good lucke! 86

FRYER. Than have a stroke for Fryer Tucke!

[They fight. Robin Hood is unable to get the better of the Friar.]

ROBYN HODE. Holde thy hande, frere, and here me speke!

FRYER. Say on, ragged knave!
Me semeth ye begyn to swete. 90

ROBYN HODE. In this forest I have a hounde,

I wyl not give him for a hundreth pound;
Geve me leve my horne to blowe,
That my hounde may knowe.

FRYER. Blowe on, ragged knave, without any doubt, 95

Untyll bothe thyne eyes starte out!

[Robin Hood blows his horn, and his men rush in.]

Here be a sorte of ragged knaves come in,
Clothed all in Kendale grene;
And to the they take their way nowe.

ROBYN HODE. Peradventure they do
so. 100

FRYER. I gave the leve to blowe at thy
wyll,

Now give me leve to whistell my fyll.

ROBYN HODE. Whystell, frere, evyl mote thou fare!

Untyll bothe thyne eyes stare.²

[The Friar whistles, and his men rush in.]

FRYER. Now, Cut and Bause! 105
Brenge forth the clubbes and staves,
And downe with those ragged knaves!

[*They fight with clubs and staves. Robin Hood and his men are unable to overcome
Friar Tuck and his men.*]

ROBYN HODE. How sayest thou, frere?
Wylt thou be my man,

To do me the best servyse thou can?
Thou shalt have both golde and fee; 110

[The Friar throws his arms about her.]

FRYER. Here is an huckle-duckle 115
 An inch above the buckle!
 She is a trul of trust

If ye delight in any sport,
Come see me dance upon this floor,
Which to you all shall yield comfort.
Then shall I dance in such a sort 5
As possible I may or can.
You minstrel man, play me a Porte,²
That I on this floor may prove a man.

He bows, and dances in a line.

Now have I danced with heart and hand,
Brave gentles all, as you may see, 10
For I have been tried in many a land,
As yet the truth can testify;
In England, Scotland, Ireland, France,
Italy, and Spain,
Have I been tried with that good sword of steel.

Draws, and flourishes.

Yet I deny that ever a man did make me yield; 15
For in my body there is strength,
As by my manhood may be seen;
And I, with that good sword of length,
Have oftentimes in perils been;
And over champions I was king; 20
And by the strength of this right hand

¹ Bower.

² A lively tune.

Once on a day I kill'd fifteen,
And left them dead upon the land.
Therefore, brave minstrel, do not care,
But play me a Porte most light, 25
That I no longer do forbear,
But dance in all these gentles' sight.
Although my strength makes you abased,
Brave gentles all, be not afraid,
For here are six champions with me,
staid; 30
All by my manhood I have raised.

He dances.

Since I have danced, I think it best
To call my brethren in your sight,
That I may have a little rest; 34
And they may dance with all their might,
With heart and hand, as they are knights,
And shake their swords of steel so bright,
And show their main strength on this floor.
For we shall have another bout
Before we pass out of this boor. 40
Therefore, brave minstrel, do not care
To play to me a Porte most light,
That I no longer do forbear,
But dance in all these gentles' sight.

He dances; and then introduces his Knights as under:

Stout James of Spain, both tried and stour, 45

¹ From a note inserted in Scott's The Pirate, 1821, and reprinted, with other material, by E. K. Chambers, The Mediæval Stage, ii, 271. It is stated that "the manuscript from which the above was copied was transcribed from a very old one, by Mr. William Henderson, jun., of Papa Stour, in Zetland. Mr. Henderson's copy is not dated, but bears his own signature, and, from various circumstances, it is known to have been written about the year 1788." The date of the original manuscript is not indicated. In Sir Walter Scott's Diary for August 7, 1814, we read: "At Scalloway my curiosity was gratified by an account of the sword-dance, now almost lost, but still practised in the Island of Papa, belonging to Mr. Scott. . . . Some rude couplets are spoken (in English not Norse), containing a sort of panegyric upon each champion as he is presented. They then dance a sort of cotillon, as the ladies described it, going through a number of evolutions with their swords."

² Though this heading appears in the manuscript, the names are omitted, possibly because they were those of the famous Seven Champions of Christendom.

Thine acts are known full well indeed;
 [St. James advances.]
 And champion Dennis, a French knight,
 Who stout and bold is to be seen;

[St. Denis advances.]
 And David, a Welshman born,
 Who is come of noble blood; 50
 [St. David advances.]

And Patrick also, who blew the horn,
 An Irish knight, amongst the wood;
 [St. Patrick advances.]

Of Italy brave Anthony the good,
 And Andrew of Scotland king.
 [St. Anthony and St. Andrew advance.]

[SAINT JAMES.¹] Saint George of England, brave indeed, 55
 Who to the Jews wrought muckle tinte,²
 Away with this! Let us come to sport,
 Since that ye have a mind to war.
 Since that ye have this bargain sought,
 Come, let us fight, and do not fear. 60

[SAINT GEORGE.] Therefore, brave minstrel, do not care
 To play to me a Porte most light,
 That I no longer do forbear,
 But dance in all these gentles' sight.

He dances, and advances to James of Spain.

[SAINT GEORGE.] Stout James of Spain, both tried and stour, 65
 Thine acts are known full well indeed.
 Present thyself within our sight,
 Without either fear or dread.
 Count not for favour or for feid,³
 Since of thy acts thou hast been sure. 70
 Brave James of Spain, I will thee lead
 To prove thy manhood on this floor.

James dances.

[SAINT GEORGE.] Brave champion Dennis,
 a French knight,
 Who stout and bold is to be seen,

Present thyself here in our sight, 75
 Thou brave French knight,
 Who bold hast been;
 Since thou such valiant acts hast done,
 Come let us see some of them now.
 With courtesy, thou brave French knight,
 Draw out thy sword of noble hue. 81

Dennis dances, while the others retire to a side.

[SAINT GEORGE.] Brave David a bow must string, and with awe
 Set up a wand upon a stand,
 And that brave David will cleave in twa.¹

David dances solus.

[SAINT GEORGE.] Here is, I think, an Irish knight, 85
 Who does not fear, or does not fright.
 To prove thyself a valiant man,
 As thou hast done full often bright,
 Brave Patriek dance, if that thou can.

He dances.

[SAINT GEORGE.] Thou stout Italian, come thou here! 90
 Thy name is Anthony, most stout.
 Draw out thy sword that is most clear,
 And do thou fight without any doubt;
 Thy leg thou shake, thy neck thou lout,²
 And show some courtesy on this floor. 95
 For we shall have another bout
 Before we pass out of this boor.

[He dances.]

[SAINT GEORGE.] Thou kindly Scotsman, come thou here!
 Thy name is Andrew of Fair Scotland.
 Draw out thy sword that is most clear; 100
 Fight for thy king with thy right hand;
 And aye as long as thou canst stand
 Fight for thy king with all thy heart,
 And then, for to confirm his band,
 Make all his enemies for to smart. 105

He dances. Music begins.

¹ No speaker's name is indicated in the manuscript.
² Much harm. ³ Feud, enmity.

FIGUR.

The six stand in rank, with their swords reclining on their shoulders.

The Master (Saint George) dances, and then strikes the sword of James of Spain, who follows George, then dances, strikes the sword of Dennis, who follows behind James. In like manner the rest — the music playing — swords as before.

After the six are brought out of rank, they and the Master form a circle, and hold the swords point and hilt. This circle is danced round twice.

The whole, headed by the Master, pass under the swords held in a vaulted manner. They jump over the swords. This naturally places the swords across, which they disentangle by passing under their right sword.

They take up the seven swords, and form a circle, in which they dance round.

The Master runs under the sword opposite, which he jumps over backwards. The others do the same. He then passes under the right-hand sword, which the others follow, in which position they dance, until commanded by the Master, when they form into a circle, and dance round as before.

They then jump over the right-hand sword, by which means their backs are to the circle, and their hands across their backs. They dance round in that form, until the Master calls "Loose!" when they pass under the right sword, and are in a perfect circle.

The Master lays down his sword, and lays hold of the point of James's sword. He then turns himself, James, and the others, into a clew. When so formed, he passes under out of the midst of the circle; the others follow. They vault, as before. After several other evolutions, they throw themselves into a circle, with their arms across the breast.

They afterwards form such figures as to form a shield of their swords,¹ and the shield is so compact that the Master and his knights dance alternately with this shield upon their heads. It is then laid down upon the floor. Each knight lays hold of their former points and hilts with their hands across, which disentangle by figures directly contrary to those that formed the shield.

This finishes the ballet.

ÉPILOGUE.

Mars does rule; he bends his brows;

He makes us all agast.

After the few hours that we stay here

Venus will rule at last.

Farewell, farewell, brave gentles all,

That herein do remain!

I wish you health and happiness

Till we return again.

Exeunt.

OXFORDSHIRE ST. GEORGE PLAY ¹

DRAMATIS PERSONÆ

ST. GEORGE OF ENGLAND.
 KING ALFRED.
 KING ALFRED'S QUEEN.
 KING WILLIAM.
 OLD KING COLE, with a wooden leg.
 GIANT BLUNDERBORE.

LITTLE JACK.
 THE OLD DRAGON.
 OLD DOCTOR BALL.
 FATHER CHRISTMAS.
 THE MERRY ANDREW.
 MORRES-MEN.

All the mummers come in singing, and walk round the place in a circle, and then stand on one side.

Enter King Alfred and his Queen, arm in arm.

I am King Alfred, and this here is my bride.
 I've a crown on my pate and a sword by my side. Stands apart.

Enter King Cole.

I am King Cole, and I carry my stump.
 Hurrah for King Charles! Down with old Noll's Rump! ¹ Stands apart.

Enter King William.

I am King William of blessed me-mo-ry,
 Who came and pulled down the high gal-lows-tree, ⁶
 And brought us all peace and pros-pe-ri-ty. Stands apart.

Enter Giant Blunderbore.

I am Giant Blunderbore, fee, fi, fum!
 Ready to fight ye all, — so I says, "Come!"

Enter Little Jack [a small boy].

And this here is my little man Jack. ¹⁰

¹ Apparently an allusion to Oliver Cromwell and the Rump Parliament.

A thump on his rump, and a whack on his back! Strikes him twice.

I'll fight King Alfred, I'll fight King Cole,
 I'm ready to fight any mortal soul!
 So here I, Blunderbore, takes my stand,
 With this little devil, Jack, at my right hand, ¹⁵
 Ready to fight for mortal life. Fee, fi, fum!
The Giant and Little Jack stand apart.

Enter St. George [the leader of the dance].

I am St. George of Merry Eng-land.
 Bring in the morres-men, bring in our band.

Morres-men come forward and dance to a tune from fife and drum. The dance being ended, St. George continues:

These are our tricks, — ho! men, ho!
 These are our sticks, — whack men so! ²⁰
Strikes the Dragon, who roars, and comes forward.

The Dragon speaks.

Stand on head, stand on feet!
 Meat, meat, meat for to eat!

Tries to bite King Alfred.

I am the Dragon, — here are my jaws!
 I am the Dragon, — here are my claws!

¹ Printed by F. G. Lee in Notes and Queries, 5 Series (1874), ii, 503, with the following comment: "The text of the play was taken down by myself from the lips of one of the performers in 1853. I first saw it acted in the Hall of the old Vicarage House at Thame, in the year 1839, by those whose custom it had been, from time immemorial, to perform it at the houses of the gentle-people of that neighborhood at Christmas, between St. Thomas's Day [December 21] and Old Christmas Eve, January 5. These performers (now long scattered, and all dead but one, as I am informed) claimed to be the 'true and legitimate successors' of the mummers who, in the previous centuries, constantly performed at the 'Whitsun' and 'Christmas Church Ales.' . . . The man from whom I took down the following in my Note-book had performed at Brill, in the year 1807, and his father had done the same at Thame Park in the previous century." In Harper's Monthly Magazine, 1907, Max Beerbohm gives a delightful account of an Oxfordshire Morris he had recently witnessed by chance "in a tiny village near Oxford." The text of a Worcestershire St. George Play may be found in Notes and Queries, 2 Series (1860), xi, 271, and of a Middlesex play, Ibid., x, 466.

Meat, meat, meat for to eat! 25
Stand on my head, stand on my feet!

Turns a summersault, and stands aside.

All sing, several times repeated:

Ho! ho! ho!
Whack men so!

The drum and fife sound. They all fight, and after general disorder, fall down.

Enter Old Dr. Ball.

I am the Doctor, and I cure all ills,
Only gullup my portions,¹ and swallow my pills; 30

I can cure the itch, the stitch, the pox, the palsy, and the gout,
All pains within, and all pains without.
Up from the floor, Giant Blunderbore!

Gives him a pill, and he rises at once.

Get up, King! get up, Bride!
Get up, Fool! and stand aside. 35

Gives them each a pill, and they rise.

Get up, King Cole, and tell the gentlefolks
all

There never was a doctor like Mr. Doctor Ball.

Get up, St. George, old England's knight!

Gives him a pill.

You have wounded the Dragon and finished the fight.

All stand aside but the Dragon, who lies in convulsions on the floor.

Now kill the Dragon, and poison old
Nick; 40

At Yule-tyde, both o' ye, cut your stick!

The Doctor forces a large pill down the

Dragon's throat, who thereupon roars, and dies in convulsions.

Then enter Father Christmas.

I am Father Christmas! Hold, men, hold!

[Addressing the audience.]

Be there loaf in your locker, and sheep in your fold,

A fire on the hearth, and good luck for your lot,

Money in your pocket, and a pudding in the pot! 45

He sings:

Hold, men, hold!
Put up your sticks;
End all your tricks;
Hold, men, hold!

Chorus (all sing, while one goes round with a hat for gifts).

Hold, men, hold! 50

We are very cold,
Inside and outside,
We are very cold.

If you don't give us silver,
Then give us gold 55

From the money in your pockets —

*Some of the performers show signs of fighting
again.*

Hold, men, hold! [etc.]

Song and chorus.

God A'mighty bless your hearth and fold,

Shut out the wolf, and keep out the cold!

You gev' us silver, keep you the gold, 60

For 'tis money in your pocket. — Hold, men, hold!

Repeat in chorus.

God A'mighty bless, &c.

LEICESTERSHIRE ST. GEORGE PLAY ¹

DRAMATIS PERSONÆ

1. CAPTAIN SLASHER, in military costume, with sword and pistol.
2. KING OF ENGLAND, in robes, wearing the crown.
3. PRINCE GEORGE, King's son, in robes, and sword by his side.
4. TURKISH CHAMPION, in military attire, with sword and pistol.
5. A NOBLE DOCTOR.
6. BEELZEBUB.
7. A CLOWN.

Enter Captain Slasher.

[CAPT. S.] I beg your pardon for being so bold;

I enter your house, the weather's so cold.
Room! a room! brave gallants, give us room to sport;

For in this house we do resort,
Resort, resort, for many a day. 5
Step in, the King of England,
And boldly clear the way!

Enter King of England.

[KING OF E.] I am the King of England,
that boldly does appear.
I come to seek my only son, — my only son is here.

Enter Prince George.

[PRINCE G.] I am Prince George, a worthy knight. 10
I'll spend my blood for England's right;
England's right I will maintain;
I'll fight for old England once again.

Enter Turkish Knight.

[TURK. KN.] I am the Turkish Champion.¹
From Turkey's land I come; 15
I come to fight the King of England
And all his noble men.

Captain Slasher.

[CAPT. S.] In comes Captain Slasher.
Captain Slasher is my name,
With sword and pistol by my side. 20
I hope to win the game.

KING OF E. I am the King of England,
As you may plainly see.
These are my soldiers standing by me;
They stand by me your life to end; 25
On them doth my life depend.

PRINCE G. I am Prince George, the champion bold,
And with my sword I won three crowns of
gold;
I slew the fiery dragon and brought him to the slaughter,
And won the King of Egypt's only daugh-
ter. 30

TURK. KN. [sneeringly]. As I was going
by St. Francis' School,
I heard a lady cry, "A fool! a fool!"
"A fool!" was every word.
"That man's a fool,
Who wears a wooden sword!" 35

[Points to Prince George's sword.]

PRINCE G. A wooden sword, you dirty dog!

¹ Printed by William Kelly, Notices Illustrative of the Drama and Other Popular Amusements, 1865, p. 53. Kelly writes: "Among the most vivid of our boyish recollections some five and thirty years ago, is that of seeing parties of Mummers going about the town, from house to house, some of them wearing high conical caps of pasteboard, decorated with ribbons and gilt paper, and carrying wooden swords, a club, frying-pan, etc.;" and he adds: "As the last traces of this ancient custom will be inevitably swept away in a very few years, we gladly avail ourselves of the opportunity of placing before our readers the 'Mummers' Play' as performed in some villages near Lutterworth, at Christmas, 1863." One may find a vivid description of a very similar play, with Captain Slasher, Prince George, the Turkish Knight, and other characters, in Thomas Hardy's The Return of the Native, book ii, chapters iv and v.

My sword is made of the best of metal free.

If you would like to taste of it,
I'll give it unto thee.

[He draws his sword.]

Stand off! stand off! you dirty dog! 40
Or by my sword you'll die!
I'll cut you down the middle,
And make your blood to fly.

They fight; Prince George falls, mortally wounded.

KING OF E. Oh horrible! terrible! What hast thou done?

Thou hast ruin'd me! ruin'd me! 45
By killing of my only son!

Oh, is there ever a noble doctor to be found,

To cure this English champion
Of his deep and deadly wound?

Enter Noble Doctor.

[DOCTOR.] Oh yes, there is a noble doctor to be found, 50

To cure this English champion
Of his deep and deadly wound.

KING OF E. And pray what is your practice?

DOCTOR. I boast not of my practice; neither do I study in the practice of physic. 57

KING OF E. What can you cure?

DOCTOR. All sorts of diseases,
Whatever you pleases: 60

I can cure the itch, the pitch,
The phthisic, the palsy, and the gout;

And if the devil's in the man,

I can fetch him out.

My wisdom lies in my wig. 65

I torture not my patients with exactions

Such as pills, boluses, solutions, and em-brocations;

But by the word of command
I can make this mighty prince to stand.

KING. What is your fee? 70

DOCTOR. Ten pounds, is true.

KING. Proceed, noble doctor;
You shall have your due.

DOCTOR. Arise! arise! most noble prince,
arise,

And no more dormant lay! 75

And with thy sword
Make all thy foes obey.

The Prince arises.

PRINCE G. My head is made of iron,
My body is made of steel,

My legs are made of crooked bones 80
To force you all to yield!

Enter Beelzebub.

BEEL. In comes I, old Beelzebub;
Over my shoulder I carry my club,

And in my hand a frying-pan,
Pleased to get all the money I can. 85

Enter Clown.

CLOWN. In comes I, who's never been yet,
With my great head and little wit:

My head is great, my wit is small,
I'll do my best to please you all.

[The Clown turns somersaults, etc., while Beelzebub collects money in his frying-pan.]

Song, all join.

And now we are done, and must be gone,
No longer will we stay here; 91

But, if you please, before we go,

We'll taste your Christmas beer.

Ereunt omnes.

THE REVESBY SWORD PLAY ¹

Acted by a set of Plow Boys or Morris Dancers, in riband dresses, with swords, on October 20th, 1779, at Revesby Abbey, in Lincolnshire, the seat of the Right Hon. Sir Joseph Banks, Bart., P.R.S.²

THE PLOUGH BOYS, OR MORRIS DANCERS.

*Enter Fool.*¹

You gentle lords of honour,
Of high and low, I say,
We all desire your favour
For to see our pleasant play. 4

Our play it is the best, kind sirs,
That you would like to know;
And we will do our best, sirs,
And think it well bestowd. 8

Tho some of us be little,
And some of a middle sort,
We all desire your favour
To see our pleasant sport. 12

You must not look on our actions;
Our wits they are all to seek;
So I pray take no exceptions
At what I am a-going to speak. 16

We are come over the mire and moss;
We dance an Hobby Horse;¹
A Dragon² you shall see,
And a wild Worm³ for to flee.
Still we are all brave, jovial boys,
And takes delight in Christmas toys.⁴ 22

We are come both for bread and beer,
And hope for better cheer,
And something out of your purse,⁵ sir,
Which I hope you will be never the worse, sir.
Still we are all brave, jovial boys,
And takes delight in Christmas toys. 28

² Possibly suggesting the dragon killed by St. George, in which case the rider of the Hobby Horse may be regarded as St. George himself.

³ Dragon.

⁴ Several references in this composite play show that certain of its elements were designed for performance at Christmas.

⁵ For the custom of taking a collection, see pages 354, 356.

² Brand, Popular Antiquities, i, 573.

[Turning to the Fiddler.]

Come now, Mr. Musick Man, play me my delight.

FIDLER. What is that, old father? 31

FOOL. Ah! boy, times is hard! "I love to have money in both pockets." ¹

FID. You shall have it, old father.

FOOL. Let me see it. 35

The Fool then calls in his five sons; first Pickle Herring, then Blue Brütches, then Ginger Brütches, Pepper Brütches, and last calls out:

Come now, you Mr. Allspice!

They foot it once round the room, and the man that is to ride the Hobby Horse goes out, and the rest sing the following song:

[ALL.] Come in, come in, thou Hobby Horse, And bring thy old fool at thy arse!

Sing tanter[a]day, sing tanter[a]day,
Sing heigh down, down, with a derry
down a! 40

[Enter the Hobby Horse.]

Then The Fool and the Horse fights about the room, whilst the following song is singing by the rest:

[ALL.] Come in, come in, thou bonny wild Worm!

For thou hast ta'en many a lucky turn.
Sing tanteraday, sing tanteraday,
Sing heigh down, down, with a derry
down [a]! 44

[Enter the Wild Worm.]

The wild Worm is only sprung three or four times, as the man walks round the room, and then goes out; and the Horse and The Fool fights again, whilst the following song is sung:

[ALL.] Come in, come in, thou Dragon stout,²

And take thy compass round about!

Sing tanteraday, sing tanteraday,

² The manuscript does not note that a Dragon enters, although the Prologue seems to promise "A Dragon you shall see," as well as "a wild Worm." Probably the "Worm" and the "Dragon" are identical.

Sing heigh down, down, with a derry
down [a]! 48

Now you shall see a full fair fight Between our old Fool and his right.

Sing tanteraday, sing tanteraday,
Sing heigh down, down, with a derry
down [a]! 52

Now our scrimage is almost done;
Then you shall see more sport soon.

Sing tanteraday, sing tanteraday,
Sing heigh down, down, with a derry
down [a]! 56

FOOL. Up well hart,¹ and up well hind!

Let every man then to his own kind.

Sing tanteraday, sing tanteraday,
Sing heigh down, down, with a derry
down [a]! 60

Come, follow me, merry men all!

Tho' we have made bold for to call,²

It is only once by the year

That we are so merry here.

Still we are all brave, jovial boys,
And takes delight in Christmas toys. 66

Then they all foot it round the room and follows The Fool out.

They all re-enter, and lock their swords to make the glass;³ The Fool running about the room.

PICKLE HERRING. What is the matter now, father?

FOOL. Why, I tell the[e] what, Pickle Herring. As a I was a-looking round about me through my wooden spectacles made of a great, huge, little, tiney bit of leather, placed right behind me, even before me, I thought I saw a feat ⁴ thing — 75

P. H. You thought you saw a feat thing? What might this feat thing be, think you, father?

² Clearly this stanza marks the end of the first text.

³ See the Shelland Sword Dance, p. 352. The swords were locked together so that all might be lifted by the hilt of one.

⁴ Fine.

FOOL. How can I tell, boy, except I see it again? 80

P. H. Would you know it if you see it again?

FOOL. I cannot tell thee, boy. Let me get it looked at.

Pickle Herring, holding up the glass, says:

[P. H.] Is this it, father? 85

The Fool, looking round, says:

[FOOL.] Why, I protest, Pickle Herring, the very same thing! But what might thou call this very pretty thing?

P. H. What might you call it? You are older than I am. 90

FOOL. How can that be, boy, when I was born before you?

P. H. That is the reason that makes you older.

FOOL. Well, what dost thou call this very pretty thing? 96

P. H. Why, I call it a fine large looking-glass.

FOOL. Let me see what I can see in this fine large looking-glass. Here's a hole through it. [Looking through at Pickle Herring.] I see, I see, and I see! 102

P. H. You see, and you see? And what do you see?

FOOL. Marry, e'en a fool, just like the[e]!

P. H. It is only your own face in the glass. 107

FOOL. Why, a fool may be mistain sometimes, Pickle Herring. But what might this fine large looking-glass cost the[e]?

P. H. That fine large looking-glass cost me a guinea.¹

FOOL. A guinea, boy? Why, I could have bought as good a one at my own door for three half-pence. 115

P. H. Why, fools and cuckolds has always the best luck!

FOOL. That is as much to say thy father is one?

P. H. Why, you pass for one! 120

The Fool, keeping the glass all the while in his hands, says:

FOOL. Why was thou such a ninnie,² boy, to go to ware³ a guinea, to look for thy beauty where it never was? But I will shew thee, boy, how foolish thou hast wared a deal of good money.¹ 125

² Fool. ³ Invest, spend.

Then The Fool flings the glass upon the floor, jumps upon it; then the dancers every one drawing out his own sword [from the glass], and The Fool dancing about the room; Pickle Herring takes him by the collar and says:

[P. H.] Father, father, you are so merrily disposed this good time there is no talking to you! Here is very bad news.

FOOL. Very good news? I am glad to hear it! I do not hear good news every day. 131

P. H. It is very bad news!

FOOL. Why, what is the matter now, boy? 134

P. H. We have all concluded to cut off your head.

FOOL. Be mercyfull to me, a sinner!² If you should do as you have said, there is no such thing. I would not lose my son Pickle Herring for fifty pounds. 140

P. H. It is your son Pickle Herring that must lose you. It is your head we desire to take off.

FOOL. My head? I never had my head taken off in all my life! 145

P. H. You both must and shall.

FOOL. Hold, hold, boy! Thou seem'st to be in good earnest! But I'll tell thee where I'll be buried. 149

P. H. Why, where will you be buried but in the churchyard, where other people are buried?

FOOL. Churchyard! I never was buried there in all my life! 154

P. H. Why, where will you be buried?

FOOL. Ah, boy! I am often dry; I will be buried in Mr. Mirfin's ale-celler.³

P. H. It is such a place as I never heard talk off in all my life.

FOOL. No, nor nobody else, boy. 160

P. H. What is your fancy to be buried there?

FOOL. Ah, boy! I am oftens dry; and, when they come to fill the quart, I'll ¹ This seems to be broken-down verse.

² A Biblical echo, the prayer of the publican, Luke xviii, 13.

³ Probably a local allusion.

Drink it off, and they will wonder what is the matter. 166

P. H. How can you do so when you will be dead? We shall take your head from your body; and you will be dead.

FOOL. If I must die, I will dye with my face to the light, for all you! 171

Then The Fool, kneeling down, with the swords round his neck, says [to the audience]:

[FOOL.] Now, gentlemen, you see how ungratefull my children is grown! When I had them all at home, small, about as big as I am, I put them out to good learning: I put them to Coxcomb Colledge, and then to the University of Loggerheads; and I took them home again this good time of Christmas,¹ and I examin'd them all one by one, all together² for shortness. And now they are grown so proud and so presumptuous they are a-going to kill their old father for his little means. So I must dye for all this? 185

P. H. You must dye, father.

FOOL. And I will die for all the tother. But I have a little something; I will give it amongst you as far as it goes, and then I shall dye quietly. 190

P. H. I hope you will.

FOOL. So, to my first son, Pickle Herring, — I'll give him the roaned nag, And that will make the rogue brag. 195

And to my second son, —

I'll give him the brindled cow.

.³

And to my third son, —

I'll give him the sanded sow;
And hope I shall please you all enow.

And to my fourth son, —

I'll give him the great ruff dog, 202
For he always lives like a hog.

And to my fifth son, —

I'll give him the ram,
And I'll dye like a lamb.

Then they draw their swords, and The Fool falls on the floor [as dead], and the dancers walk once round The Fool; and Pickle Herring stamps with his foot and The Fool rises on his knees again; and Pickle Herring says:

[P. H.] How now, father? 207

FOOL. How now, then, boy? I have another squeak for my life?

P. H. You have a many.

Then, the dancers puting their swords round The Fool's neck again, FOOL. So I must dye?

P. H. You must dye, father.¹ 212

FOOL. Hold! I have yet a little something more to leave amongst you, and then I hope I shall dye quietly. So, to my first son, Pickle Herring, —

I'll give him my cap and my coat, — 217
A very good sute, boy.

And to my second son, —

I'll give him my purse and apparel,
But be sure, boys, you do not quarrel.

As to my other three, 222
My executors they shall be.

Then, Pickle Herring, puting his hand to his sword,

FOOL. Hold, hold, boy! Now I submit my soul to God.

P. H. A very good thought, old father!

FOOL. Mareham churchyard,² I hope, shall have my bones. 228

[The Fool falls to the floor as dead.]

Then the dancers walk round The Fool with their swords in their hands; and Pickle Herring stamps with his foot and says:

[P. H.] Heigh, old father!

FOOL. Why, boy, since I have been out of this troublesome world I have heard so much musiek of fiddles playing and bells ringing that I have a great fancy to go away singing. So, prithee, Pickle Her-

¹ Apparently the dancers have run in a portion of the text of another play, thus necessitating a second killing of the Fool.

² This constitutes further evidence of a second text; cf. lines 148-60.

¹ The allusion points to a Christmas performance. Possibly the appearance of the plow boys at Revesby on October 20 was induced by some special occasion.

² Ordish altogether; corrected by Manly.

³ A line seems to be lost.

ring, let me have one of thy best songs.¹ 236

P. H. You shall have it, old father.

FOOL. Let me see it.

[The dancers again put their swords about the Fool's neck.]

They sing.

[SONS.] Good people all, I pray you now behold,

Our old Fool's bracelet is not made of gold,

But it is made of iron and good steel,
And unto death we'll make this old Fool yield. 242

[The Fool sings.]

FOOL. I pray forbear, my children small;
For, as I am lost as parent to you all,
O, let me live a while your sport for to advance,

That I may rise again and with you have a dance. 246

The Sons sing.

[SONS.] Now, old father, that you know our will,

That for your estate we do your body kill,
Soon after death the bell for you shall toll,
And wish the Lord he may receive your soul! 250

Then The Fool falls down; and the dancers, with their swords in their hands, sings the following song:

[SONS.] Good people all, you see what we have done:

We have cut down our father like the evening sun!

And here he lies all in his purple gore,
And we are afraid he never will dance [no] more. 254

Fool rises from the floor and says:

[FOOL.] No, no, my children! By chance you are all mistaen!

For here I find myself, I am not slain;
But I will rise, your sport then to advance,
And with you all, brave boys, I'll have a dance. 258

¹ Possibly a portion of a third text is here introduced, necessitating the third death of the Fool.

Then the Foreman and Cicely dances down, and the other two couple stand their ground. After a short dance called "Jack, the brisk young Drummer," they all go out but The Fool, Fidler, and Cicely.¹

FOOL. Hear you, do you please to hear the sport of a fool?

CICELY. A fool? for why?

FOOL. Because I can neither leap, skip, nor dance, but cut a caper thus high.

[He cuts capers while the dancers are changing costume.]

Sound, music! I must be gon; the Lord of Pool draws nigh. 265

Enter Pickle Herring.

P. H. I am the Lord of Pool,
And here begins my measure,
And after me a fool,

To dance a while for pleasure
In Cupid's school. 270

FOOL. A fool, a fool, a fool,

A fool I heard thou say,
But more the other way,

For here I have a tool
Will make a maid to play,
Although in Cupid's school.

Come all away! [Exit the Fool.] 277

Enter Blue Britches.

BLUE B. I am the Knight of Lee,
And here I have a dagger, Offended not to be.

Come in, thou needy beggar,
And follow me! 282

Enter Ginger Britches.

GINGER B. Behold, behold, behold
A man of poor estate!

Not one penny to infold! 285

¹ This, possibly, ends the second play, a sword play, the chief episode of which is the death of the Fool. The next play, beginning at line 266, is preceded by "capers" with which the Fool amuses the spectators while the dancers make a change of costume.

² A line seems to be lost. Possibly Ginger Britches and Pepper Britches originally appeared as Lazarus and Dives. The speech of Pepper Britches has been reduced to one line, doubtless through faulty memory.

Enter Pepper Britches.

PEPPER B. My money is out at use, or else I would.

Enter Mr. Allspice.

ALLSPICE. With a hack, a hack, a hack,
See how I will skip and dance
For joys that we have found!
Let each man take his chance,
And we will all dance round. 292

Then they dance the sword dance which is called "Nelly's Gig." Then they run under their swords, which is called "Running Battle." Then three dancers dances with three swords, and the Foreman jumping over the swords. Then The Fool goes up to Cicely.

FOOL [rushing in.] Here comes I that never come yet,
Since last time, lovy!

I have a great head but little wit.
Tho' my head be great and my wits be small,
I can play the fool for a while as well as [the] best of ye all. 297

My name is noble Anthony;
I am as meloncholly as a mantle-tree.
I am come to show you a little sport and activity,
And soon, too!
Make room for noble Anthony
And all his good company! 303

Drive out all these proud rogues, and let my lady and I have a parl!¹

[He drives out all the dancers, and remains with Cicely.]²

CICELY. O, ye clown! what makes you drive out my men so soon?³ 309

FOOL. O, pardon, madam, pardon! and I Will never offend you more.
I will make your men come in as fast
As ever they did before. 311

¹ Conversation.

² This, possibly, marks the end of the third play, a sword play, in which the text has largely disappeared.

³ This scene between the two clowns has the purpose of enabling the dancers to rest, or to change costume.

CICELY. I pray you at my sight,
And drive it not till night,
That I may see them dance once more
So lovely in my sight. 315

FOOL. A-faith, madam, and so I will!
I will play the man
And make them come in
As fast as ever I can. — 319

But hold, gip, Mrs. Clagars!
How do you sell geese?
CICELY. Go, look, Mister Midgecock!
Twelve pence apiece. 323

FOOL. Oh, the pretty pardon!
CICELY. A gip for a frown!
FOOL. An ale-wife for an apparitor!
CICELY. A rope for a clown!
FOOL. Why, all the devise in the country
Cannot pull this down! 329

I am a valiant knight just come from [over] the seas:
You do know me, do you?
I can kill you ten thousand, tho' they be but fleas.
I can kill you a man for an ounce of mustard,
Or I can kill you ten thousand for a good eustard.
I have an old sheep skin,
And I lap it well in,
Sword and buckler by my side, all ready for to fight! 337

Come out, you whores and gluttons all! for, had it not been in this country, I should not have shewen my valour amongst you. But sound, music! for I must be gone. [Exit the Fool.] 342

Enter Pickle Herring.

P. H. In, first and foremost, do I come,
All for to lead this race,¹ Seeking the country far and near
So fair a lady to embrace. 346

[He advances to Cicely.]

So fair a lady did I never see,
So comely in my sight,

Drest in her gaudy gold
And silver shining bright. 350

She has fingers long, and rings
Of honor of beaten gold:
My masters all, behold!
It is now for some pretty dancing time,
And we will foot it fine. 355
[He dances once round with Cicely.]

[Enter Blue Britches.]

BLUE B. I am a youth of jollitree!
Where is there one like unto me?
My hair is bush'd very thick;
My body is like an hasel stick; 359

My legs they quaver like an eel;
My arms become my body weel;
My fingers they are long and small:
Am not I a jolly youth, proper and tall? 363

Therefore, Mister Musick Man,
Whatsoever may be my chance,
It is for my ladie's love and mine,
Strike up the morris dance. 367
Then they foot it once round.

[Enter Ginger Britches.]

GINGER B. I am a jolly young man of flesh, blood and bone;
Give eare; my masters all, each one, 369

And especially you, my lady dear!
I hope you like me well.
Of all the gallants here
It is I that doth so well. 373

Therefore, Mister Musick Man,
Whatsoever may be my chance,
It is for my ladie's love and mine,
Strike up the morris dance. 377
Then they foot it round.

[Enter Pepper Britches.]

PEPPER B. I am my father's eldest son,
And heir of all his land[s],
And in a short time, I hope,
It will fall into my hands. 381

I was brought up at Lindsey Court

All the days of my life.
Here stands a fair lady,
I wish she was my wife. 385

I love her at my heart,
And from her I will never start.
Therefore, Mr. Musick Man, play up my part.
FOOL [rushing in]. And mine, too! 389

*Enter Allspice, and they foot it round.
Pickle Herring, suter to Cicely, takes her by the hand, and walks about the room.*

P. H. Sweet Ciss, if thou wilt be my love,
A thousand pounds I will give thee.

CICELY. No, you're too old, sir, and I am too young;
And alas! old man, that must not be! 393

P. H. I'll buy the[c] a gown of violet blue,
A petticoat imbroidered to thy knee;
Likewise my love to thee shall be true.

CICELY. But alas! old man, that must not bel 397

P. H. Thou shalt walk at thy pleasure, love, all the day,
If at night thou wilt but come home to me;
And in my house bear all the sway.

CICELY. Your children they'll find fault with me. 401

P. H. I'll turn my children out of doors.

CICELY. And so, I fear, you will do me.

P. H. Nay, then, sweet Ciss, ne'er trust me over,

For I never loved lass like the[c] before.¹ 405

Enter Fool.

FOOL. No, nor behind, neither.
Well met, sweet Cis! Well over-ta'en!
CICELY. You are kindly wellcome, sir, to
me.

FOOL. I'll wipe my eyes, and I'll look
again! 409
Methinks, sweet Cis, I now the[c] see!

¹ Manly adopts Kittredge's emendation "before like thee"; and this may have been the original form of the line; but the plow boys doubtless altered the verse for the sake of the Fool's witticism in the line that follows.

CICELY. Raf, what has thou to pleasure me?

FOOL. Why, this, my dear, I will give the[e],
And all I have it shall be thine.

CICELY. Kind sir, I thank you heartedly. 414

P. H. [to the Fool]. Stand back! stand back, thou silly old swain!

This girl shall go with none but me.

FOOL. I will not!

P. H. Stand back! stand back! or I'll cleave thy brain!

Then Pickle Herring goes up to Cis, and says:

O, now, sweet Cis, I am come to thee! 419

CICELY. You are as wellcome as the rest,
Wherein you brag so lustilly.

FOOL. For a thousand pounds she loves me best!

I can see by the twinkling of her ee.¹ 423

P. H. I have store of gold, whereon I boast; Likewise my sword, love, shall fight for
the[e];

When all is done, love, I'll scour the coast,
And bring in gold for thee and me. 427

CICELY. Your gold may gain as good as I,
But by no means it shall tempt me;

For youthfull years and frozen age
Cannot in any wise agree. 431

Then Blue Britches goes up to her, and says:

[BLUE B.] Sweet mistress, be advised by me:
Do not let this old man be denied,
But love him for his gold in store;
Himself may serve for a cloak, beside. 435

CICELY. Yes, sir, but you are not in the right.

Stand back! and do not council me!
For I love a lad that will make me laugh
In a secret place, to pleasure me.

FOOL. Good wench! 440

PICKLE HERRING. Love, I have a beard as white as milk.²

¹ Eye.

² An echo of the old Elizabethan song: "His head as white as milk?"

CICELY. Ne'er better for that, thou silly old man!

P. H. Besides, my skin, love, is soft as silk.

FOOL. And thy face shines like a dripping
pan. 444

P. H. Rafe, what has thou to pleasure her?

FOOL. Why a great deal more, boy, than there's in the[e].

P. H. Nay then, old rogue, I thee defye.

CICELY. I pray, dear friends, fall not out for me! 548

P. H. Once I could skip, leap, dance, and sing;

Why will you not give place to me?

FOOL. Nay, then, old rogue, I thee defye;

For thy nose stands like a Maypole
tree. 552

Then goes up Ginger Breeches to Cisley and says:

[GINGER B.] Sweet mistress, mind what this man doth say,

For he speaks nothing but the truth:

Look on the soldier, now I pray;
See, is not he a handsome youth? 556

CICELY. Sir, I am engaged to one I love,
And ever constant I will be,

There is nothing that I prize above.

P. H. For a thousand pounds, she's gone from me!

FOOL. Thou may lay two! 561

CICELY [to Pickle Herring]. Old father, for your reverend years,

Stand you the next man unto me;

Then, he that doth the weapon bear;

For I will have the hind man of the three! 565

FOOL [to Pickle Herring]. Old father, a fig for your old gold!

The soldier, he shall bear no sway!

But you shall see, and so shall we,
'Tis I that carries the lass away! 569

Then the dancers takes hold of their swords, and foots it round the room; then every man makes his obeisance to the master of the house, and the whole concludes.

¹ The author, John Heywood, was born about 1497, was for a time a musician in the employ of the court, and later became master of an organization of singing boys, probably those connected with St. Paul's Cathedral. The boys of Pauls, we know, were very active in presenting plays; but whether Heywood wrote his farces for them (which seems likely) or for some troupe connected with the court we cannot say. The date of The Four PP. is about 1521-25; Johan Johan, and The Weather were written a little later.

I have reproduced the text from the earliest edition (M.) printed by Wyllyam Myddlyton about 1545 (photographic facsimile by J. S. Farmer, 1908). With this I have collated Manly's careful reprint in Specimens, 1896, from which I have taken a few emendations (recorded in footnotes), and have derived aid in my effort to modernize the punctuation and equip the play with stage-directions.

² Used at this time in the sense of "play," generally implying an amusing performance.

³ One who spent his time traveling from shrine to shrine; having visited the Holy Land, he carried, as a sign thereof, a palm leaf in his hand.

Praying to them to pray for me

 Shall they thanke your craftes? Nay, thanke myn, chefe!

No soule, ye knowe, entreth heuen gate
 Tyll from the bodye he be separate; 170
 And whome haue ye knowen dye hof[n]est-
 lye

Without helpe of the potycary?
 Nay, all that commeth to our handlynge,— Except ye happe to come to hangynge —
 That way, perchaunce, ye shall nat myster² 175

To go to heuen without a glyster!³
 But, be ye sure, I wolde be wo
 If ye shulde chaunce⁴ to begyle me so.
 As good to lye with me a-nyght
 As hange abrode in the mone lyght! 180

There is no choyse to fle my hande
 But, as I sayd, into the bande.⁵
 Syns of our soules the multitude
 I sende to heuen, when all is vewed,
 Who shulde but I, then, all-together 185
 Haue thanke of all theyr commynge
 thyther?

PARDONER. If ye kylde a thousande in an houre space,
 When come they to heuen dyenge from state of grace?

POTYCARY. If a thousande pardons about your neckes were teyd,
 When come they to heuen yf they neuer dyed? 190

PALMER. Longe lyfe after good workes,

[The Pedler with his pack on his back has entered in time to hear the last speech.]

PEDLER. By Our Lady, then haue I gone
 wronge!

And yet to be here I thought longe.

POTYCARY. Brother, ye haue gone wronge
 no w[h]yt. 205

I prayse your fortune and your wyt
 That can dyrecte you so discretely
 To plante you in this company:
 Thou [a] palmer, and thou a pardoner,
 I a potycary.

PEDLER. And I a pedler! 210

POTYCARY. Nowe, on my fayth, full well matched! ¹

Were the deuyll were we foure hatched?

PEDLER. That maketh no mater, syns we be matched.

I coulde be mery yf that I catchyd
 Some money for parte of the ware in my packe. 215

POTYCARY. What the deuyll hast thou there at thy backe?

PEDLER. Why, dost thou nat knowe that every pedler ²

In euery tryfull must be a medler?
 Specyally in womens tryflynges, —
 Those vse we chafe aboue all thynges. 220
 Whiche thynges to se, yf ye be disposed,
 Beholde what ware here is disclosed.

 Euen at this packe he must begynne,
 Where is ryght many a proper token,
 Of whiche by name parte shall be spoken:
 Gloues, pynnes, combes, glasses vn-spottyd, 235

Pomanders, hookes, and lasses ¹ knotted,
 Broches, rynges, and all maner bedes,
 Lace, rounde and flat, for womens hedes,

Gyrdyls, knyues, purses, and pynceases.

POTYCARY. Do women bye theyr pyncases of you?

PEDLER. Ye, that they do, I make God
 a-vow!

POTYCARY. So mot I thryue, then for my parte, 245

I be-shrewe thy knaues nakyd herte
 For makyng my wyfeys pyncease so wyde!
 The pynnes fall out; they can nat abyde.
 Great pynnes must she haue, one or other;
 Yf she lese one, she wyll fynde an-other!
 Wherin I fynde cause to complayne, — 251
 New pynnes to her pleasure, and my payne!

PARDONER. Syr, ye seme well sene in womens causes.

I praye you, tell me what causeth this,
 That women, after theyr arysynge, 255
 Be so longe in theyr apparelynge?

PEDLER. Forsooth, women haue many lettes, ³

And they be masked in many nettes,
 As frontlettes, fyllettes, par[t]lettes and barcelettes;

And then theyr bonettes, and theyr poy-nettes. 260

By these lettes and nettes the lette is suche
 That spede is small whan haste is muche.

POTYCARY. An-other cause why they

Whiche maketh them dayly to draw back-

And yet is a thyng they can nat forbere — 265
The trymmynge and pynnyng v^p theyr

And, when they wolde haue it prycke in,
If it chaunce to double in the clothe Then be they wode¹ and swereth an be fyne. 280

Wherefore, yf ye be wyllynge to bye,
Ley downe money! Come of quyckely!
PALMER. Nay, by my trowth, we be lyke

We are but beggers, we be no byers.
PARDONER. Syr, ye maye showe your ware for your mynde, 285
But I thinke ye shall no profyete fynde.
PEDLER. Well, though thys iourney⁷ acquyte no coste,⁸
Yet thinke I nat my labour loste;
For, by the fayth of my body,
I lyke full well thys company. 290
Up shall thys packe, for it is playne

Pelitory, and arsefetita, 620
Cassy, and colloquintita.
These be the thynges that breke all stryfe
Betwene mannes sycknes and his lyfe.
From all payne these shall you deleuer,
And set you euen at reste for-euer! 625
Here is a medecyn — no mo lyke the same Whiche comenly is called thus by name
Alikakabus or alkakengy, —
A goodly thyng for dogges that be mangy.
Suche be these medecynes that I can 630
Helpe a dogge as well as a man.
Nat one thyng here partycularly
But worketh vniuersally, —
For it doth me as muche good when I sell it
As all the byers that taste it or smell it. 635
Now, syns my medecyns be so speycall,
And in operacion so generall,
And redy to worke when-so-euer they
shall,
So that in ryches I am principall,
Yf any rewarde may entreat ye, 640
I besech your mashyp³ be good to me,
And ye shall haue a boxe of marmelade

² Scruple. ³ Mastership.

So fyne that ye may dyg it with a spade.
PEDLER. Syr, I thanke you; but your re-warde

Is nat the thyng that I regarde. 645
I muste, and wyll, be indifferent:
Wherfore procede in your intente.

POTYCARY. Nowe, yf I wyst¹ thys wysch
no synne,

I wolde to God I myght begynne!

PARDONER. I am content that thou lye fyrste. 650

PALMER. Euen so am I; and say thy worste!

Now let vs here of all thy lyes
The greatest lye thou mayst deuysie,
And in the fewyst wordes thou can.

POTYCARY. Forsoth, ye be an honest
man. 655

PALMER. There sayde ye muche! but yet no lye.

PARDONER. Now lye ye bothe, by Our Lady!

Thou lyst in bost of hys honestie,
And he hath lyed in affyrmyng the.

POTYCARY. Yf we both lye, and ye say true, 660

Then of these lyes your parte adew!
And yf ye wyn, make none auaunt;
For ye are sure of one yll seruauente.

[To the Palmer.]

Ye may perceyue by the wordes he gauē
He taketh your mashyp but for a knaue.
But who tolde true, or lyed in-dede, 666
That wyll I knowe or we procede.

Syr, after that I fyrste began
To prayse you for an honest man,
When ye affyrmed it for no lye, — 670
Now, by our fayth, speke euen truely, —
Thought ye your affyrmacion true?

PALMER. Ye, mary, I! for I wolde ye knewe

I thynke my-selfe an honest man.

POTYCARY. What, thought ye in the contrary than? 675

PARDONER. In that I sayde the contrary,
I thynke from trouth I dyd nat vary.

POTYCARY. And what of my wordes?

PARDONER. I thought ye lyed.

POTYCARY. And so thought I, by God that dyed!

¹ Knew.

Nowe haue you twayne eche for hym-selfe
 layde 680
 That none hath lyed ou[gh]t, but both truesayd;
 And of vs twayne none hath denyed,
 But both affyrmed, that I haue lyed:
 Nowe syns [ye] both your trouthe confes,
 And that we both my lye so witnes 685
 That twayne of vs thre in one agree, —
 And that the lyer the wyinner must be, —
 Who coulede prouyde suche euydens
 As I haue done in this pretens?

[To the Pedler.]

Me thinketh this mater sufficient 690
 To cause you to gyue iudgement,
 And to giue me the mastrye,
 For ye perceyue these knaues can nat lye.
 PALMER. Though nother of vs as yet had lyed,
 Yet what we can do is vntryed; 695
 For yet we haue deuysed nothyng,
 But answered you and geuen hyryng.
 PEDLER. Therfore I haue deuysed one
 waye
 Wherby all thre your myndes may saye:
 For eche of you one tale shall tell; 700
 And whiche of you telleth most meruell¹
 And most vnlyke to be true,
 Shall most preuayle, what-euer ensew.
 POTYCARY. If ye be set in mervalyng,
 Then shall ye here a meruaylouse
 thyng; 705
 And though, in-dede, all be nat true,
 Yet suer the most parte shall be new.

[He begins his lie.]

I dyd a cure, no lenger a-go
 But Anno Domini millesimo,
 On a woman, yonge and so fayre 710
 That neuer haue I sene a gayre.
 God saue all women from that lyknes!
 This wanton had the fallen-syknes, —
 Whiche by dissent came lynally,
 For her mother had it naturally. 715
 Wherfore, this woman to recure
 It was more harde ye may be sure.
 But, though I boste my craftes in suche
 That in suche thynges I can do muche,
 How ofte she fell were muche to reporte; 720

¹ Marvelous.

But her hed so gydy and her helys¹ so shorte
 That, with the twynglyng of an eye,
 Downe wolde she falle cuynd-by-and-by.
 But, or she wolde aryse agayne,
 I shewed muche practyse, muche to my
 payne; 725
 For the tallest² man within this towne Shulde nat with ease haue broken her sowne.³
 All-though for lyfe I dyd nat doute her,
 Yet dyd I take more payne about her
 Then I wolde take with my owne syster. 730
 Syr, at the last I gaue her a glyster, —
 I thrust a tampion⁴ in her tewell
 And bad her kepe it for a iewell.
 But I knewe it so heuy to cary
 That I was sure it wolde nat tary; 735
 For where gonpouder is ones fyerd
 The tampion wyll no lenger be hyerd.
 Whiche was well sene in tyme of thys
 chauce;
 For, when I had charged this ordynaunce,
 Sodeynly, as it had thonderd, 740
 Euen at a clap losed her bumberd.
 Nowe marke, for here begynneth the reuell:⁵
 This tampion⁶ flew x longe myle leuell,
 To a fayre castell of lyme and stone, —
 For strength I knowe nat suche a one, — 745
 Whiche stode vpon an hyll full hie,
 At fote wherof a ryuer ranne bye,
 So depe, tyll chauce had it forbyden,
 Well myght the Regent⁷ there haue ryden.
 But when this tampion on this castell
 lyght, 750
 It put the castels so farre to flyght
 That downe they came eche vpon other,
 No stone lefte standyng, by Goddes
 Mother!
 But rolled downe so faste the hyll
 In suche a nomber, and so dyd fyll, 755
 From botom to bryme, from shore to shore,
 Thys forsayd ryuer, so depe before,
 That who lyste nowe to walke therto,
 May wade it ouer and wet no shoo.
 So was thys castell layd wyde open 760
 That euery man myght se the token.

² Stoutest. bravest.

³ Swoon.

⁴ M. tampion.

⁵ Merry-making.

⁶ Manly states in error that M. has tampton.

⁷ The name of a ship?

But — in a good houre maye these wordes be spoken! —

After the tampion on the walles was wroken,¹

And pece by pece in peces broken,
And she deluyered with suche violens 765
Of all her inconueniens,
I left her in good helth and luste.

And so she doth contynew, I truste!
PEDLER. Syr, in your cure I can nothyng
tell;

But to our purpose ye haue sayd well. 770 PARDONER. Well, syr, then marke what I can say!

[He begins his lie.]

I haue ben a pardoner many a day,
And done greater cures gostely
Then euer he dyd bodely;
Namely, thys one whiche ye shall here, 775
Of one departed within thys seuen yere, —
A frende of myne, and lykewyse I

To her agayne was as frendly, —
Who fell so syke so sodeynly
That dede she was euen by-and-by,² 780

And neuer spake with preste nor clerke,
Nor had no whyt of thys holy warke,
For I was thens, it coude nat be;
Yet harde I say she asked for me.
But when I bethought me howe thys chaunced, 785

And that I haue to heuen auanced
So many soules to me but straungers And coude nat kepe my frende from daungers,

But she to dy so daungerously,
For her soule helth especyally, — 790
That was the thyng that greued me soo
That nothyng coude release my woo
Tyll I had tryed euen out of hande³

In what estate her soule dyd stande.
For whiche tryall, shorte tale to make, 795
I toke thys iourney for her sake, —
Geue eare, for here begynneth the story! —
From hens I went to purgatory,

And toke with me thys gere in my fyste,
Wherby I may do there what I lyste. 800
I knocked, and was let in quyeckly;
But, Lorde, how lowe the soules made curtesy!

And I to euery soule agayne

¹ Avenged.

² Immediately.

³ At once.

Dyd gyue a beck them to retayne,
And axed them thys question than: 805
Yf that the soule of suche a woman
Dyd late amonge them there appere.
Wherto they sayd she came nat here.
Then ferd I muche it was nat well.
Alas! thought I, she is in hell! 810
For with her lyfe I was so acqueynted
That sure I thought she was nat saynted.
With thys it chaunced me to snese; “Christe helpe!” quoth a soule that ley for his fees.

“Those wordes,” quoth I, “thou shalt nat lees!”¹ 815

Then with these pardons of all degrees
I payed hys tole, and set hym so quyght²
That strayt to heuen he toke his flyght.
And I from thens to hell that nyght,
To help this woman, yf I myght, 820
Nat as who sayth by authorite,³
But by the waye of entreate.

And fyrst [to] the deuyll that kept the gate
I came, and spake after this rate:
“All hayle, syr deuyll!” and made lowe
curtesy. 825

“Welcome!” quoth he, thys smillyngly.
He knew me well. And I at laste Remembred hym syns longe tyme paste,
For, as good happe wolde haue it chaunce,
Thys deuyll and I were of olde acqueynt-
aunce, 830

For oft in the play of Corpus Cristi
He hath⁴ played the deuyll at Couentry.
By his acqueyntaunce and my behaouere
He shewed to me ryght frendly fauoure.
And — to make my returne the shorter — I sayd to this deuyll: “Good mayster porter, 836

For all olde loue, yf it lye in your power, Helpe me to speke with my lorde and your.”

“Be sure,” quoth he, “no tongue can tell What tyme thou coudest haue come so well, 840

For thys daye Lucyfer fell, — Whiche is our festyuall in hell.
Nothyng vnreasonable craued thys day
That shall in hell haue any nay.
But yet be-ware thou come nat in 845
Tyll tyme thou may thys pasporte wyn.

² Free.

³ M. authorite.

⁴ Manly has had.

Wherefore stande styll, and I wyll wyt¹
 Yf I can get thy sauc-condyt."
 He taryed nat, but shortely gat it,
 Under seale, and the deuyls hande at it, 850
 In ample wyse, as ye shall here.
 Thus it began: "Lucyfer,
 By the power of God chyefe deuyll of hell,
 To all the deuyls that there do dwell,
 And euery of them, we sende gretynge, 855
 Under streyght² charge and commaund-
 ynge,
 That they aydynge and assystant be To suche a pardonor," — and named³
 me, —
 "So that he may at lybertie
 Passe sauc without hys ieopardy 860
 Tyll that he be from vs extynete⁴
 And clerely out of helles precincte.
 And, hys pardons to kepe sauegarde,
 We wyll they lye in the porters ward.
 Geuyn in the fornes of our paly⁵, 865
 In our hye courte of maters of malys, Suche a day and yere of our reyne."
 "God saue the deuyll!" quoth I, "for playne,⁶
 I truste thys wrytynge to be sure."
 "Then put thy truste," quoth he, "in euer,⁷ 870
 Syns thou art sure to take no harme."
 Thys deuyll and I waket arme in arme,
 So farre tyll he had brought me thyther
 Where all the deuyls of hell togyther
 Stode in a-ray in suche apparell 875
 As for that day there metely fell:
 Theyr hornes well gylt, theyr elowes⁸ full
 clene,
 Theyr taylles well kempt,⁹ and, as I wene,
 With sothery¹⁰ butter theyr bodyes
 anoynted, —
 I neuer sawe deuyls so well appoynted. 880
 The mayster deuyll sat in his iacket,
 And all the soules were playnge at racket.
 None other rackettes they hadde in hande
 Saue euery soule a good fyre-brande;
 Wherwith they played so pretely 885
 That Lucyfer laughed merely,
 And all the rescdeu of the fendes¹¹

Dyd laugh full well togytther lyke frendes.
 But of my frende I sawe no whyt,
 Nor durst nat axe for her as yet. 890
 Anone all this rout was brought in silens,
 And I by an vsher brought in presens.
 Then to Lucyfer low as I coude
 I knelyd. Whiche he so well alowde
 That thus he beekte; and, by Saynt
 Antony, 895
 He smyled on me well-fauredly, Bendynge hys browes, as brode as barne-dures,
 Shakyng hys eares, as ruged as burres,
 Rolyng hys yes,¹ as rounde as two bushels, Flastyng² the fyre out of his nosethryls, 900
 Gnashynge hys teeth so vaynglorously
 That me thought tyme to fall to flatory.
 Wherwith I tolde, as I shall tell:
 "O plesant pycure! O prince of hell!
 Feutred³ in fashyon abominable! 905
 And syns that [it] is inestimable
 For me to prayse the worthy,
 I leue of prays, vnworthy
 To geue the prays, besechyng the
 To heare my sewte, and then to be 910
 So good to graunt the thyng I craue.
 And, to be shorte, thys wolde I haue, —
 The soule of one whiche hyther is flytted
 Deliuered hens, and to me remitted.
 And in thys doynge, though al be nat quyt,
 Yet some parte I shall deserue it — 916
 As thus: I am a pardonor,
 And ouer soules, as a controller, Thorough-out the erth my power doth
 stande,
 Where many a soule lyeth on my hande,
 That spede in maters as I vse them, 921
 As I receyue them or refuse them;
 Wherby, what tyme thy pleasure is,
 Ye⁴ shall requyre any part of thys, —
 The leste deuyll here that can come
 thyther 925
 Shall chose a soule and bryng hyn
 hyther."
 "Nowe," quoth the deuyll, "we are well pleased!
 What is hys name thou woldest haue eased?"
 "Nay," quoth I, "be it good or euyl,

 "What calste her?" quoth he, "thou

 "Forsoth," quoth I, "Margery Coorson."
 "Now, by our honour," sayd Lucyfer,
 "No deuyll in hell shall witholde her!
 And yf thou woldest haue twenty mo, 935
 Were nat for iustyce, they shulde goo.
 For all we deuyls within thys den
 Haue more to do with two women
 Then with all the charge we haue besyde.
 Wherefore, yf thou our frende wyll be

 Aply thy pardons to women so
 That vnto vs there come no mo."
 To do my beste I promysed by othe.
 Whiche I haue kepte; for, as the fayth
 goth,
 At these² dayes to heuen I do procure 945
 Ten women to one man, be sure.
 Then of Lucyfer my leue I toke,
 And streyght vnto the mayster coke.
 I was hadde into the kechyn,
 For Margaryes offyce was ther-in. 950
 All thyng handled there discretely, —
 For euery soule bereth offyce metely, —
 Whiche myght be sene to se her syt
 So bysely turnynge of the spyt;
 For many a spyt here hath she turned, 955
 And many a good spyt hath she burned,
 And many a spyt full hot³ hath tosted
 Before the meat coulde be halfe rosted.
 And, or the meate were halfe rosted in-
 dede, 959
 I toke her then fro the spyt for spede.
 But when she sawe thys brought to pas,
 To tell the ioy wherin she was,
 And of all the deuyls, for ioy how they Dyd rore at her delyuery, 964
 And how the cheymes⁴ in hell dyd ryng,
 And how all the soules therin dyd synge,
 And how we were brought to the gate,
 And how we toke our leue therat, —
 Be suer lacke of tyme sufferyth nat
 To reherse the xx parte of that! 970
 Wherefore, thys tale to conclude breuely,
 Thys woman thanked me chyefly
 That she was ryd of thys endles deth;
 And so we departed on New-Market Heth.
 And yf that any man do mynde her, 975

 PEDLER. Syr, ye haue sought her wonders
 well;
 And, where ye founde her, as ye tell,
 To here the chaunce ye founde in hell,
 I fynde ye were in great parell.¹ 980

[The Palmer begins his lie.]

PALMER. His tale is all muche parellous;
 But parte is muche more meruaylous.
 As where he sayde the deuyls complayne
 That women put them to suche payne
 By theyr condicions so croked and crabbed, 985
 Frowardly fashonde, so waywarde and wrabbed,
 So farre in deuision, and sturrynge suche
 stryfe,
 That all the deuyls be verry of theyr lyfe!
 This in effect he tolde for tructh;² 989
 Wherby muche maruell³ to me ensueth, That women in hell suche shrewes can
 be,
 And here so gentyll, as farre as I se.
 Yet haue I sene many a myle,
 And many a woman in the whyle, —
 Nat one good cytye, towne, nor borough
 In Cristendom but I haue ben th[o]rough, — 996
 And this I wolde ye shulde vnderstande:
 I haue sene women v hundred thousande [Wives and widows, maids and maryed,]
 And oft with them haue longe tyme taryed,⁴ 1000
 Yet in all places where I haue ben,
 Of all the women that I haue sene,
 I neuer sawe, nor knewe, in my consyens,
 Any one woman out of paciens.
 POTYCARY. By the masse, there is a great
 lye! 1005
 PARDONER. I neuer harde a greater, by Our Lady!
 PEDLER. A greater? nay, knowe ye any so great?
 PALMER. Syr, whether that I lose or get,
 For my parte, iudgement shall be prayed.⁵

¹ Peril.² M. tueth.³ M. maruell.⁴ M. maryed; Collier cites Allide's edition, 1569, as having taryed. I have inserted Manly's suggestion in the text.⁵ Asked for.

For I had leuer be without ye

Then haue suche besynesse aboute ye. 1120
PARDONER. So helpe me God, so were ye better!

What, shulde a begger be a ietter?²

It were no whyt your honestie
To haue vs twayne iet after ye.

POTYCARY. Syr, be ye sure he telleth you
true. 1125

Yf we shulde wayte,³ thys wolde ensew:
It wolde be sayd — truste me at a worde —

Two knaues made curtesy to the⁴ thyrde.
PEDLER [to the Palmer]. Now, by my trouth, to speke my mynde, —

Syns they be so loth to be assyned,⁵ 1130

To let them lose I thynke it beste,
And so shall ye lyue beste in rest.

PALMER. Syr, I am nat on them so fonde⁶
To compell them to kepe theyr bonde.

[To the Potycary and Palmer.]

And, syns ye lyste nat to wayte on me, 1135
I clerely of waytyng dyscharge ye.

PARDONER. Mary, syr, I hertely thanke
you!

POTYCARY. And I lyke-wyse, I make God
auowe!

PEDLER. Now be ye all euyn as ye begoon;
No man hath loste, nor no man hath woon. 1140

Yet in the debate wherwith ye began,

By waye of aduyse I wyll speke as I can:

[To the Palmer.]

² Swaggerer, strutter.

³ Attend as followers.

⁴ Manly has a.

⁵ Appointed (to the office of attending on the Palmer).

⁶ Infatuated.

I do perceyue that pylgrymage
Is chyefe the thyng ye haue in vsage;
Wherto, in effecte, for loue of Chryst 1145
Ye haue, or shulde haue, bene entyst.
And who so doth, with suche entent,
Doth well declare hys tyme well spent.

[To the Pardoner.]

And so do ye in your pretence,
If ye procure thus indulgence 1150
Unto your neyghbours charytably
For loue of them in God onely. —
All thys may be ryght well applyed
To shew¹ you both well occupied;
For, though ye walke nat bothe one
waye, 1155
Yet, walkyng thus, thys dare I saye:
That bothe your walkes come to one ende.
And so for all that do pretende,
By ayde of Goddes grace, to ensewe²
Any maner kynde of vertue: 1160
As, some great almyse for to gyue,
Some in wyllfull pouertie to lyue,
Some to make hye-ways and suche other warkes,
And some to mayntayne prestes and clarkes 1164
To synge and praye for soule departed, —
These, with all other vertues well marked,
All-though they be of sondry kyndes,
Yet be they nat vsed with sondry myndes;
But, as God only doth all those moue,
So euery man, onely for His loue, 1170
With loue and dred obediently
Worketh in these vertues vnyformely.
Thus euery vertue, yf we lyste to scan,
Is pleasaut to God and thankfull to man;
And who that by grace of the Holy Goste
To any one vertue is moued moste, 1176
That man, by that grace, that one apply,
And therin serue God most plentyfully!
Yet nat that one so farre wyde to wreste,
So lykyng the same to myslyke the reste; 1180
For who so wresteth hys worke in vayne.
And euen in that case I perceyue you
twayne,
Lykyng your vertue in suche wyse
That eche others vertue you do dyspyse.
Who walketh thys way for God wolde fynde hym, 1185

² Follow.

The farther they seke hym, the farther behynde hym.

One kynde of vertue to dyspyse another Is lyke as the syster myght hange the brother.

POTYCARY. For fere lest suche parel to me myght fall,

I thanke God I vse no vertue at all! 1190
PEDLER. That is of all the very worste
waye!

For more harde it is, as I haue harde
saye,

To begynne vertue where none is pre-tendyd¹

Then, where it is begonne, the abuse to be mended.

How-be-it, ye be nat all to begynne; 1195
One syn¹ of vertue ye are entred in:

As thys, I suppose ye dyd saye true,
In that ye sayd ye vse no vertue;

In the whiche wordes, I dare well reporte,
Ye are well be-loued of all thys sorte, 1200

By your raylyng here openly
At pardons ond relyques so leudly.

POTYCARY. In that I thynke my faute nat
great;

For all that he hath I knowe conterfete.
PEDLER. For his, and all other that ye knowe fayned, 1205

Ye be nother counceled nor constraigned

To any suche thyng in any suche case
To gyue any reuerence in any suche place;

But where ye dout the truthe, nat know-
yng,

Beleuyng the beste, good may be grow-
yng. 1210

In iudgyng the beste, no harme at the leste,

In iudgyng the worste, no good at the beste.

But beste in these thynges, it semeth to
me,

To take² no iudgement vpon ye;
But, as the Church doth iudge or take

them, 1215
So do ye receyue or forsake them;

And so, be sure, ye can nat erre,
But may be a frutfull folower.

POTYCARY. Go ye before, and, as I am truc man,

I wyll folow as faste as I can. 1220

¹ Sign.

² M. make; emend. b^v Manly.

PARDONER. And so wyll I; for he hath sayd so well,

Reason wolde we shulde folowe hys counsell.

[The Palmer addresses the audience by way of Epilogue.]

PALMER. Then to our reason God gyue vs his grace,

That we may folowe with fayth so fermely
His commaundementes, that we maye purchace 1225

Hys loue, and so consequently

To byleue hys Church faste and fayth-fully;

So that we may, accordyng to his prom-
yse,

Be kepte out of errour in any wyse.

And all that hath scapet vs here by neglygence, 1230

We clerely reuoke and forsake it.

To passe the tyme in thys without offence,

Was the cause why the maker dyd make
it;

And so we humbly beseche you take it;

Besechyng Our Lorde to prosper you
all 1235

In the fayth of hys Church Vniuersall!

A MERY PLAY BETWENE JOHAN JOHAN, THE HUSBANDE, TYB, HIS WYFE, AND SYR JOHAN,
THE PREEST ¹

[DRAMATIS PERSONÆ

JOHAN JOHAN, the husband.

TYB, his wife.

SYR JOHAN, the priest.]

Johan Johan, the Husbande.

God spede you, maysters, everychone!
Wote ye not whyther my wyfe is gone?
I pray God the dyvell take her!
For all that I do I can not make her
But she wyll go a gaddyng, very myche 5
Lyke an Anthony pyg, with an olde wyche ¹ Whiche ledeth her about hyther and
thyther;
But, by Our Lady, I wote not whyther.
But, by goggis ² blod, were she come home
Unto this, my house, by our lady of Crome,
I wolde bete her or that I drynke. 11 Bete her, quod a? yea, that she shall stynke!

And at every stroke lay her on the grounde,
And trayne her by the here ³ about the house rounde.
I am evyn mad that I bete her not nowe.
But I shall rewarde her hardly ⁴ well
ynowe; 16
There is never a wyfe betwene heven and hell
Whiche was ever beten halfe so well.
Beten, quod a? Yea, but what and she therof dye? 19

¹ Withe. St. Anthony was the patron saint of winneherds, and was usually pictured with a pig for his page.

² God's. ³ Drag her by the hair.

⁴ With energy.

Then I may chauce to be hanged shortly.
And when I have beten her tyll she smoke,
And gyven her many a C ¹ stroke,
Thynke ye that she wyll amende yet?
Nay, by Our Lady, the devyll spede whyt!
Therefore I wyll not bete her at all. 25

And shall I not bete her? No shall?
Whan she offendeth and doth a-mys,
And kepeth not her house, as her duetie is?
Shall I not bete her, if she do so?
Yes, by cokkis ² blood, that shall I do! 30
I shall bete her, and thwak her, I trow, That she shall beshyte the house for very
wo.

But yet I thynk what my neybour wyll say than.

He wyll say thus: "Whom chydest thou, Johan Johan?"
"Mary!" wyll I say, "I chyde my curst
wyfe, 35

The verest drab that ever bare lyfe,
Whiche doth nothyng but go and come,
And I can not make her kepe her at home."
Than I thynke he wyll say by and by: ³
"Walke her cote,⁴ Johan Johan! and bete her hardely!" 40

But than unto hym myn answere shal be:
"The more I bete her, the worse is she:

² At once.

³ God's.

⁴ Give her a beating.

¹ Scholars have generally assigned this play to John Heywood, and internal evidence of style supports the attribution. There is no external evidence, however, to connect his name with the production, and one should not ignore the possibility of its having been written by some other member of the minstrel-playwright class.

I have reproduced the copy in the Pepys Collection, Magdalene College, Cambridge, of the earliest edition, printed by William Rastell, 1533. Charles Whittington edited the play for the Chiswick Press, about 1830, from a copy of the same edition in the Ashmolean Museum, Oxford. Mr. A. W. Pollard, in Representative English Comedies, 1903, reproduced the Chiswick text corrected by the copy in the Pepys Collection. Unless the variations are due to differences between these two original copies of Rastell's edition, Pollard's reprint is not quite as accurate as modern scholars could wish; I have not been able to see the Ashmolean copy. I have modernized the punctuation, the use of capitals, the use of the letters u, v, i, j, and have added in brackets stage-directions to help the reader in following the action.

And wors and wors make her I shall!"

He wyll say than: "Bete her not at all."
"And why?" shall I say; "this wolde be wyst,¹ 45

Is she not myne to chastice as I lyst?"
But this is another poynt worst of all, —
The folkis wyll mocke me whan they here me brall.

But, for all that, shall I let² therefore
To chastyce my wyfe ever the more, 50
And to make her at home for to tary?
Is not that well done? Yes, by Saynt
Mary!

That is a poynt of an honest man
For to bete his wyfe well nowe and than.
Therefore I shall bete her, have ye no drede! 55

And I ought to bete her, tyll she be starke
dede.
And why? By God, because it is my pleasure!

And if I shulde suffre her, I make you sure, Nought shulde prevayle³ me, nother staffe nor waster;⁴

Within a while she wolde be my mayster.
Therefore I shall bete her, by cokkes
mother, 61

Both on the tone syde and on the tother,
Before and behynde — nought shall be her bote —⁵
From the top of the heed to the sole of the fote.

But, masters, for Goddis sake, do not entrete 65

For her whan that she shal be bete;
But, for Goddis passion, let me alone,
And I shall thwak her that she shall grone:
Wherfore I besече you, and hartely you
pray,

And I besече you say me not nay, 70
But that I may beate her for this ones.
And I shall beate her, by cokkes bones,
That she shall stynke lyke a pole-kat!
But yet, by goggis body, that nede nat,
For she wyll stynke without any betyng; 75
For every nyght, ones she gyveth me an hetyng,⁶

From her issueth suche a stynkyng smoke
That the savour therof almost doth me choke.

² Desist.

³ Avail.

⁴ Club.

⁵ Remedy, help.

⁶ Heating.

But I shall bete her nowe, without fayle;
I shall bete her toppe and tayle, 80
Heed, sholders, armes, legges, and all,
I shall bete her, I trowe; that I shall!
And, by goggis boddy, I tell you trewe,
I shall bete her tyll she be blacke and blewe.

But where the dyvell trowe ye she is
gon? 85

I holde a noble¹ she is with Syr Johan.

I fere I am begyled alway;

But yet, in fayth, I hope well nay.

Yet I almost enrage that I ne can Se the behaviour of our gentywoman. 90

And yet, I thyнке, thyther as she doth go,
Many an honest wyfe goth thyther also,
For to make some pastyme and sporte.
But than my wyfe so ofte doth thyther
resorte

That I fere she wyll make me weare a fether. 95

But yet I nede not for to fere nether,
For he is her gossyp, that is he.

But abyde a while! yet let me se!
Where the dyvell hath our gyssyp² began?

My wyfe had never chylde, daughter nor
son. 100

Nowe if I forbede her that she go no more,
Yet wyll she go as she dyd before;
Or els wyll she chuse some other place,
And then the matter is in as yll case.

But, in fayth, all these wordes be in wast, 105

For I thyнке the matter is done and past.
And whan she cometh home she wyll
begyn to chyde;

But she shall have her payment-styk³ by her syde!

For I shall order her, for all her brawlyng,
That she shall repent to go a catter-wawlyng.⁴ 110

[Tyb has entered during this speech.]

TYB. Why, whom wyll thou beate, I say, thou knave?

JOHAN. Who, I, Tyb? None, so God me
save.

¹ I wager a noble (a coin, 6s. 8d.).

² Gossyp, spiritual relationship, here referring to sponsorship at the baptism of a child.

³ Beating.

⁴ Go, like cats, on amorous expeditions.

TYB. Yes, I harde the say thou woldest one bete.

JOHAN. Mary, wyfe, it was stokfysse¹ in Temmes Strete,

Whiche wyll be good meate agaynst Lent. Why, Tyb, what haddest thou thought that I had ment? 116

TYB. Mary, me-thought I harde the bawlyng.

Wylt thou never leve this wawlyng?² Howe the dyvell dost thou thy selfe behave? Shall we ever have this worke, thou knave? 120

JOHAN. What! wyfe, howe sayst thou? was it well gest of me,

That thou woldest be come home in safete As sone as I had kendled a fyre?

Come warme the, swete Tyb, I the requyre. TYB. O, Johan, Johan, I am afrayd, by this lyght, 125

That I shalbe sore syk this nyght. JOHAN [aside]. By cokkis soule, nowe, I dare lay a swan

That she comes nowe streyght fro Syr Johan!

For ever when she hath fatched of hym a lyk,³

Than she comes home, and sayth she is syk. 130

TYB. What sayst thou? JOHAN. Mary, I say

It is mete for a woman to go play Abrode in the towne for an houre or two.

TYB. Well, gentylman, go to, go to! JOHAN. Well, let us have no more debate. 135

TYB [aside]. If he do not fyght, chyde, and rate,

Braule, and fare as one that were frantyke, There is nothyng that may hym lyke.⁴

JOHAN [aside]. If that the parysshe preest, Syr Johan,

Dyd not se her nowe and than, 140

And gyve her absolution upon a bed, For wo and payne she wolde sone be deed.

TYB. For goddis sake, Johan Johan, do the not displease;

Many a tyme I am yll at ease.

¹ Dried fish, too hard to be cooked without beating.

² Squalling, noise-making.

³ Pleasure. ⁴ Compare to.

What thynekst nowe, am not I somewhat syk? 145

JOHAN [aside]. Nowe wolde to God, and swete Saynt Dyryk,

That thou warte in the water up to the throte,

Or in a burnyng oven red hote, To se and I wolde pull the out!

TYB. Nowe, Johan Johan, to put the out of dout, 150

Imagyn thou where that I was Before I came home.

JOHAN. My percase,¹ Thou wast prayenge in the Church of Poules

Upon thy knees for all Chrysten soules. TYB. Nay.

JOHAN. Than if thou wast not so holy, Shewe me where thou wast, and make no lye? 156

TYB. Truly, Johan Johan, we made a pye,

I and my gossyp Margery, And our gossyp the preest, Syr Johan,

And my neybour's yongest daughter An. The preest payde for the stuffe and the makyng, 161

And Margery she payde for the bakyng. JOHAN [aside]. By cokkis lylly woundis,² that same is she

That is the most bawde to Coventre. TYB. What say you?

JOHAN. Mary, answe're me to this: 165 Is not Syr Johan a good man?

[TYB.] Yes, that he is. JOHAN. Ha, Tyb, if I shulde not greve the,

I have somewhat wherof I wolde meve³ the.

TYB. Well, husbände, nowe I do conject That thou hast me somewhat in suspect. 170

But, by my soule, I never go to Syr Johan But I fynde hym lyke an holy man;

For eyther he is sayenge his devotion, Or els he is goynge in processyon.

JOHAN [aside]. Yea, rounde about the bed doth he go, 175

You two together, and no mo; And for to fynyshe the processyon,

He lepeh up, and thou lyst downe.

³ Exhort, request.

TYB. What sayst thou?
 JOHAN. Mary, I say he doth well;
 For so ought a shepherde to do, as I harde
 tell, 180
 For the salvation of all his folde.
 TYB. Johan Johan!
 [JOHAN]. What is it that thou wolde?
 TYB. By my soule I love thee too too!¹
 And I shall tell the, or I further go,
 The pye that was made, I have it nowe
 here, 185
 And therwith I trust we shall make good
 chere.
 JOHAN. By kokkis body, that is very happy!
 TYB. But wotest who gave it?
 JOHAN. What the dyvel rek² I?
 TYB. By my fayth, and I shall say trewe, than:
 The Dyvell take me and it were not Syr
 Johan. 190
 JOHAN. O, holde the peas, wyfe, and swere no more!
 [Aside.] But I beshrewe both your hartes
 therfore.
 TYB. Yet peradventure, thou hast suspencion
 Of that that was never thought nor done.
 JOHAN. Tusshe, wyfe, let all suche matters be. 195
 I love thee well, though thou love not me.
 But this pye doth nowe catche harme;
 Let us set it upon the harth to warme.
 TYB. Than let us eate it as fast as we can.
 But bycause Syr Johan is so honest a
 man, 200
 I wolde that he shulde therof eate his part.
 JOHAN. That were reason, I thee ensure.
 TYB. Than, syns that it is thy pleasure,
 I pray the than go to hym ryght, 204
 And pray hym come sup with us to nyght.
 JOHAN [aside]. Shall he cum hyther?
 By kokkis soule, I was a-curst
 When that I graunted to that worde furst!
 But syns I have sayd it I dare not say nay,
 For than my wyfe and I shulde make a fray;
 But whan he is come, I swere by goddis
 mother, 210
 I wold gyve the dyvell the tone to cary away the tother!

TYB. What sayst?
 JOHAN. Mary, he is my curate, I say,
 My confessour, and my frende alway.
 Therfore go thou and seke hym by and by,
 And tyll thou come agayne, I wyll kepe the
 pye. 215
 TYB. Shall I go for him! Nay, I shrewe me than!
 Go thou, and seke, as fast as thou can,
 And tell hym it.
 JOHAN. Shall I do so?
 In fayth, it is not mete for me to go.
 TYB. But thou shalte go tell hym, for all that. 220
 JOHAN. Than shall I tell hym, wotest [thou]¹ what?
 That thou desyrest hym to come make some chere.
 TYB. Nay, that thou desyrest hym to come sup here.
 JOHAN. Nay, by the rode, wyfe, thou shalt have the worshyp
 And the thankes of thy gest that is thy gossyp. 225
 TYB [aside]. Full ofte, I se, my husbände wyll me rate
 For this hether commyng of our gentyll
 curate.
 JOHAN. What sayst, Tyb? Let me here that agayne.
 TYB. Mary, I perceyve very playne That thou hast Syr Johan somewhat in suspect; 230
 But, by my soule, as far as I coniect,
 He is vertuose and full of charyte.
 JOHAN [aside]. In fayth, all the towne knoweth better — that he Is a hore-monger, a haunter of the stewes,
 An ypocrite, a knave that all men refuse, 235
 A lyer, a wretche, a maker of stryfe — Better than they knowe that thou art my good wyfe.
 TYB. What is that that thou hast sayde?
 JOHAN. Mary, I wolde have the table set and layde,
 In this place or that, I care not whether.
 TYB. Than go to, brynge the trestels²
 hyther. 241

¹ Supplied by P.² The table was a board set on trestles; when not in use, board and trestles were placed out of the way.

JOHAN.¹ Abyde a whyle, let me put of my gown!

But yet I am afrayde to lay it down,
For I fere it shal be sone stolen.
And yet it may lye safe ynough un-stolen. 245

It may lye well here, and I lyst, —
But, by cokkis soule, here hath a dogge pyst!

And if I shulde lay it on the harth bare,
It myght hap to be burned or I were ware.

[To one of the audience.]

Therefore I pray you take ye the payne
To kepe my gowne tyll I come agayne.

[Snatches it back.]

But yet he shall not have it, by my fay;
He is so nere the dore he myght ron away.

[To another one of the audience.]

But bycause that ye be trusty and sure,
Ye shall kepe it, and it be your pleasure; 255

And bycause it is arrayde² at the skyrt,
Whye ye do nothyng, skrape of the dyrt.

[He turns to his wife.]

Lo, nowe am I redy to go to Syr Johan,
And byd hym come as fast as he can.

[TYB.] Ye, do so without ony taryeng.

[As he reaches the door she calls him back.]

But, I say, harke! thou hast forgot one
thyng; 261

Set up the table, and that by and by.³

[Johan returns and sets the boards on the trestles.]

Nowe go thy ways.

JOHAN. I go shortly;
But se your candelstykkis be not out of the way.

TYB [as he reaches the door]. Come agayne, and lay the table I say. 265

[He returns and lays the table.]

What! me thynkis, ye have sone don!

JOHAN. Nowe I pray God that his malediction

Lyght on my wyfe, and on the baulde¹
preest!

TYB. Nowe go thy ways, and hyc the!
seest?

[Johan starts out.]

JOHAN. I pray to Christ, if my wyshe be no synne, 270

That the preest may breke his neck whan he comes in.

TYB [as he reaches the door]. Now cum
agayn!

JOHAN. What a myschefe wylt thou, fole!

TYB. Mary, I say, brynge hether yender stole.

JOHAN. Nowe go to! A lyttell wolde make me

For to say thus: "A vengauce take
the!" 275

[He brings her the stool.]

TYB. Nowe go to hym, and tell hym
playn

That tyll thou brynge hym thou wylt not come agayn.

JOHAN. This pye doth borne here as it doth stande.

[He starts out.]

TYB [as he reaches the door]. Go, washe me these two cuppes in my hande.

[He washes the cups, and brings them to her.]

JOHAN. I go, with "a myschyefe lyght on thy face!" 280

TYB. Go, and byd hym hyc hym a-pace;
And the whyle I shall all thynges amende.

JOHAN. This pye burneth here at this ende.
Understandest thou?

TYB. Go thy ways, I say!

JOHAN. I wyll go nowe, as fast as I may.

[Johan starts out.]

TYB [as he reaches the door]. How! come ones agayne: I had forgot. 286

Loke, and there be ony ale in the pot.

JOHAN. Nowe, a vengauce and a very myschyefe

¹ R. assigns this speech to Johan, rightly, as it seems to me. Pollard assigns it to Tyb. What has happened is that the marginal catch-names at lines 250 and 263 have been carelessly set by a printer confused by the paragraph signs.

² Soiled with dirt.

³ Instantly.

Lyght on the pylde¹ preest, and on my
wyfe,

On the pot, the ale, and on the table, 290
The candyll, the pye, and all the rable,
On the trystels, and on the stole!
It is moche ado to please a curst fole.

[He fills the pot with ale.]

TYB. Go thy ways nowe; and tary no
more,

For I am a-hungred very sore. 295

JOHAN. Mary, I go.

TYB [as he reaches the door]. But come ones agayne yet!

Brynge hyther that breade, lest I forget it.

[He brings the bread.]

JOHAN. I-wys, it were tyme for to torne
The pye; for, y-wys, it doth borne.

TYB. Lorde! how my husbände nowe doth patter, 300

And of the pye styl doth clatter.

Go nowe, and byd hym come away;

I have byd the an hundred tymes to day.

JOHAN. I wyll not gyve a strawe, I tell you playne,

If that the pye waxe cold agayne — 305

TYB. What! art thou not gone yet out of this place?

I had went² thou haddest ben come agayne
in the space!

But, by cokkis soule, and I shulde do the
ryght,

I shulde breke thy knaves heed to nyght.

JOHAN. Nay, than, if my wyfe be set a chydyng, 310

It is tyme for me to go at her byddyng.

There is a proverbe, whiche trewe nowe
preveth:

“He must nedes go that the dyvell dryveth.”

[He arrives at the Priest's house.]

How, mayster curate, may I come in 314
At your chamber dore without any syn?

Syr Johan, the preest.

Who is there nowe that wolde have
me?

What! Johan Johan! What newes with
the?

² Thought.

JOHAN. Mary, Syr, to tell you shortly,
My wyfe and I pray you hartely,
And eke desyre you wyth all our myght,
That ye wolde come and sup with us to nyght. 321

Syr J. Ye must pardon me; in fayth I ne
can.

JOHAN. Yes, I desyre you, good Syr
Johan,

Take payne this ones. And, yet at the lest,

If ye wyll do nought at my request, 325
Yet do somewhat for the love of my wyfe.

Syr J. I wyll not go, for makyng of stryfe.
But I shall tell the what thou shalte do, — Thou shalt tary, and sup with me or thou go.

JOHAN. Wyll ye not go than? Why
so? 330

I pray you tell me, is there any dysdayne,
Or any enmyte, betwene you twayne?

Syr J. In fayth, to tell the, betwene the and me,

She is as wyse a woman as any may be.

I know it well; for I have had the charge Of her soule, and serchyd her conscyens at large. 336

I never knew her but honest and wyse,

Without any yvyll or any vyce,

Save one faut — I know in her no more —
And because I rebuke her now and then

therfore, 340
She is angre with me, and hath me in hate.

And yet that that I do, I do it for your welth.¹

JOHAN. Now God yeld it yow,² god master curate,

And as ye do, so send you your helth.

Ywys, I am bound to you a plesure. 345

Syr J. Yet thou thynkyst amys, peradventure,

That of her body she shuld not be a good woman.

But I shall tell the what I have done,
Johan,

For that matter; she and I be somtyme
aloft,

And I do lye uppon her many a tyme and oft 350

To prove her; yet could I never espy
That ever any dyd worse with her than I.

² Reward you for it.

JOHAN. Syr, that is the lest care I have of nyne,

Thankyd be God, and your good doctryne.
But, yf it please you, tell me the matter,

And the debate ¹ betwene you and her.

SYR J. I shall tell the; but thou must kepe secret.

JOHAN. As for that, Syr, I shall not let.²

SYR J. I shall tell the now the matter
playn:

She is angry with me, and hath me in dysdayn,

Because that I do her oft intyce

To do some penance, after myne advyse,

Because she wyll never leve her wrawlyng,³ But alway with the she is chydng and brawlyng.

And therefore, I knowe, she hatyth my⁴
presens.

JOHAN. Nay, in good feyth, sayng your reverens.

SYR J. I know very well she hath me in hate.

JOHAN. Nay, I dare swere for her, master
curate.

[Aside.] But, was I not a very knave!

I thought surely, so God me save,

That he had lovdyd my wyfe for to deseyve
me.

And now he quytyth⁵ hym-self; and here
I se

He doth as much as he may, for his lyfe,

To stynte⁶ the debate betwene me and my
wyfe.

SYR J. If ever she dyd, or though[t] me any yll,

Now I forgyve her with my⁷ fre wyll.

Therefore, Johan Johan, now get the home;

And thank thy wyfe, and say, I wyll not
come.

JOHAN. Yet let me know now, good Syr
Johan,

Where ye wyll go to supper than.

SYR J. I care nat greatly and I tell the.

On Saturday last I and ii or thre

Of my frendes made an appoyntement,

And agaynst this nyght we dyd assent

That in a place we wolde sup together.

And one of them sayd, [s]he wolde brynge thether

Ale and bread; and for my parte, I

Sayd that I wolde gyve them a pye, —

And there I gave them money for the makyng;

And an-other sayd, she wolde pay for the bakyng;

And so we purpose to make good chere

For to dryve away care and thought.

JOHAN. Than I pray you, Syr, tell me
here,

Whyther shulde all this geare be brought?

SYR J. By my fayth, and I shulde not
lye,

It shulde be delyvered to thy wyfe, the pye.

JOHAN. By God! it is at my house stand-yng by the fyre.

SYR J. Who bespake that pye? I the
requyre.

JOHAN. By my feyth, and I shall not lye:

It was my wyfe, and her gossyp Mar-
gerye,

And your good masshyp callyd Syr Johan,

And my neybours yongest doughter An;

Your masshyp payde for the stuffe and
makyng,

And Margery she payde for the bakyng.

SYR J. If thou wylte have me nowe, in faithe I wyll go.

JOHAN. Ye, mary, I beseche your masshyp do so.

My wyfe taryeth for none but us twayne;

She thynketh longe or I come agaync.

SYR J. Well nowe, if she chyde me in thy
presens

I wylbe content, and take [it]¹ in pacyens.

JOHAN. By cokkis soule, and she ones
chyde,

Or frowne, or loure, or loke asyde,

I shall brynge you a staffe, as myche as I may heve.²

Than bete her, and spare not! I gyve you good leve

To chastyce her for her shreude varyeng.³

[They return to Johan's house.]⁴

TYB. The devyll take the for thy long taryeng!

Here is not a whyt of water, by my gowne,

² Omit to do.

³ Squalling (in quarrels).

² As big as I may lift.

³ Wicked quarreling.

⁴ Added by P.

To washe our handis that we myght syt
downe.¹

Go, and hye the as fast as a snayle, 419
And with fayre water fyll me this payle.

JOHAN. I thanke our Lorde of his good
grace

That I can not rest longe in a place!

TYB. Go, fetch water, I say, at a worde,
For it is tyme the pye were on the borde;
And go with a vengeance, and say thou art
prayde. 425

[Johan takes the pail and starts out.]

SYR J. A, good gossyp! is that well sayde?

TYB. Welcome, myn owne swete harte!

We shall make some chere or we departe.²

JOHAN. Cokkis soule, loke howe he ap-procheth nere

Unto my wyfe! This abateth my chere.

[Exit Johan with the pail.]

SYR J. By God, I wolde ye had harde the tryfys, 431

The toys, the mokkes, the fables, and the nyfys,³

That I made thy husbände to beleve and thynke!

Thou myghtest as well into the erthe synke,
As thou coudest forbear laughyng any wyle. 435

TYB. I pray the, let me here parte of that wyle.⁴

SYR J. Mary, I shall tell the as fast as I can —

But peas! no more; yonder cometh thy good man.

[Re-enter Johan.]

JOHAN. Cokkis soule, what have we
here!

As far as I sawe, he drewe very nere 440
Unto my wyfe.

TYB. What, art come so sone?
Gyve us water to wasshe now; have
done.

Than he bryngeth the payle empty.

JOHAN. By kockes soule, it was even nowe full to the brynk,

But it was out agayne or I coude thynke;
Wherof I marveled, by God Almyght.

And than I loked betwene me and the
lyght, 446

And I spyed a clyfte, bothe large and wyde.

Lo, wyfe! here it is on the tone syde.

TYB. Why dost not stop it?

JOHAN. Why, howe shall I do it?

TYB. Take a lytle wax.

JOHAN. Howe shal I come to it? 450

SYR J. Mary, here be ii wax candyls, I
say,

Whiche my gossyp Margery gave me yesterday.

TYB. Tusshe, let hym alone; for, by the rode,

It is pyte to helpe hym, or do hym
good.

SYR J. What! Johan Johan, canst thou make no shyfte? 455

Take this waxe, and stop therwith the clyfte.

JOHAN. This waxe is as harde as any wyre.

TYB. Thou must chafe it a lytle at the
fyre.

JOHAN. She that boughte the these waxe candelles twayne,

She is a good companyon certayn! 460

[Johan goes to the fire to mend the pail.]

TYB. What, was it not my gossyp Margery?

SYR J. Yes; she is a blessed woman, surely.

TYB. Nowe wolde God I were as good as she,

For she is vertuous, and full of charyte.

JOHAN [aside]. Nowe, so God helpe me, and by my holydome,¹ 465

She is the erranst baud betwene this and Rome.

TYB. What sayst?

JOHAN. Mary, I chafe the wax,
And I chafe it so hard that my fyngers krakks.

But take up this py that I here torne;

And it stand long, y-wys, it wyll borne.

TYB [removing the pie]. Ye, but thou must chafe the wax, I say. 471

¹ It was customary to wash the hands immediately before eating.

² Separate.

³ Fictitious tales.

⁴ Wile, stratagem.

[Johan approaches the table.]

JOHAN. Byd hym syt down, I the pray —
Syt down, good Syr Johan, I you requyre.

TYB. Go, I say, and chafe the wax by the
fyre,

Whyle that we sup, Syr Johan and I. 475

JOHAN. And how now! what wyll ye do with the py?

Shall I not ete therof a morsell?

TYB. Go, and chafe the wax whyle thou art well!

And let us have no more pratyng thus.

[Syr Johan starts to say grace.]

SYR J. Benedicite —

JOHAN [approaching]. Dominus. 480

TYB. Now go chafe the wax, with a myschyfel!

JOHAN. What! I come to blysse the bord, swete wyfe.

It is my custome now and than.

Mych good do it you, Master Syr Johan.

TYB. Go chafe the wax, and here no lenger tary. 485

[Johan returns to the fire.]

JOHAN [aside]. And is not this a very purgatory —

To se folkis ete, and may not ete a byt?

By kokkis soule, I am a very wodcok.

This payle here, now a vengeaunce take it!

Now my wyfe gyveth me a proud mok! 490

TYB [eating]. What dost?

JOHAN. Mary, I chafe the wax here,

And I ymagyn to make you good chere —

[Aside]. That a vengeaunce take you both as ye syt;

For I know well I shall not ete a byt.

But yet, in feyth, yf I myght ete one morsell, 495

I wold think the matter went very well.

SYR J. [eating]. Gossyp Johan Johan, now “mych good do it you!”

What chere make you, there by the fyre?

JOHAN. Master parson, I thank yow now,

I fare well inow after myne own desyre.

SYR J. What dost, Johan Johan, I the
requyre? 501

JOHAN. I chafe the wax here by the fyre.

TYB. Here is good drynk! and here is a good py!

SYR J. We fare very well, thankyd be Our Lady.

TYB. Loke how the kokold chafyth the wax that is hard, 505

And, for his lyfe, daryth not loke hetherward.

SYR J. [to Johan]. What doth my gossyp?

JOHAN. I chafe the wax —

[Aside]. And I chafe it so hard that my fyngers krakks;

And eke the smoke puttyth out my eyes
two:

I burne my face, and ray my clothys also,
And yet I dare not say one word; 511

And they syt laughyng yender at the bord.

TYB. Now, by my trouth, it is a prety jape,¹

For a wyfe to make her husband her ape.

Loke of Johan Johan, which maketh hard
shyft 515

To chafe the wax, to stop therwith the clyft!

JOHAN [aside]. Ye, that a vengeaunce take ye both two,

Both hym and the, and the and hym, also!
And that ye may choke with the same mete

At the furst mursell that ye do ete. 520

TYB. Of what thyng now dost thou clatter,²

Johan Johan? or whereof dost thou patter?

JOHAN. I chafe the wax, and make hard
shyft

To stoep her-with of the payll the ryft.

SYR J. So must he do, Johan Johan, by my father kyn, 525

That is bound of wedlok in the yoke.

JOHAN [aside]. Loke how the pyld preest crammyth in;

That wold to God he myght therwith
choke!

TYB. Now, Master Parson, pleasyth your goodnes

To tell us some tale of myrth or sadnes 530

For our pastyme, in way of communycay-
cyon?

SYR J. I am content to do it for our recreacyon;

And of iii myracles I shall to you say. †

¹ Jest.

² R. misprints clatier; at line 523 thafe for chafe; at line 600 notwithstankyng; and at line 661 nonght.

JOHAN. What! must I chafe the wax all
day,

And stond here, rostyng by the fyre? 535

SYR J. Thou must do somewhat at thy wyves desyre.

I know a man whych weddyd had a
wyfe, —

As fayre a woman as ever bare lyfe, —
And within a senyght after, ryght sone,
He went beyond se, and left her alone, 540
And taryed there about a vii yere.
And as he cam homeward he had a hevvy
chere,

For it was told hym that she was in heven.
But when that he comen home agayn was,
He found his wyfe, and with her chyldren
seven, 545

Whiche she had had in the mene space —
Yet had she not had so many by thre
Yf she had not had the help of me.

Is not this a myracle, yf ever were any,
That this good wyfe shuld have chyldren so many 550

Here in this town, whyle her husband shuld
be

Beyond the se, in a farre contre?

JOHAN [aside]. Now, in good soth, this is a wonderous myracle!

But for your labour, I wolde that your tacle

Were in a skaldyng water well sod.¹ 555

TYB. Peace, I say; thou lettest the worde of God.

SIR J. An other myracle eke I shall you
say,

Of a woman whiche that many a day
Had ben wedded, and in all that season
She had no chylde, nother doughter nor
son. 560

Wherefore to Saynt Modwin she went on pilgrimage,

And offered there a lyve pyg, as is the usage
Of the wyves that in London dwell;
And through the vertue therof, truly to tell,
Within a moneth after, ryght shortly, 565
She was delyvered of a chylde as moche
as I.

How say you, is not this myracle wonder-ous?

JOHAN. Yes, in good soth, syr, it is marvelous.

¹ Boiled.

But surely, after myn opynyon,
That chylde was nother doughter nor son.
For certaynly, and I be not begylde, 571
She was delyvered of a knave¹ chylde.

TYB. Peas, I say, for Goddis passyon!
Thou lettest Syr Johans communication.

SIR J. The thyerde myracle also is this:
I knewe another woman eke, y-wys, 576
Whiche was wedded, and within v monthis
after

She was delyvered of a fayre doughter,
As well formed in every membre and joynt,
And as perfyte in every poynt, 580
As though she had gone v monthis full to th' ende.

Lo! here is v monthis of advantage.

JOHAN. A wonderous myracle, so God me mende!

I wolde eche wyfe that is bounde in mar-
yage,

And that is wedded here within this place,
Myght have as quicke spede in every suche
case. 586

TYB. Forsoth, Syr Johan, yet for all that I have sene the day that pus, my cat,
Hath had in a yere kytlyns eyghtene.

JOHAN. Ye, Tyb my wyfe, and that have I
sene. 590

But howe say you, Syr Johan, was it good,
your pye?

The dyvell the morsell that therof eate I.
By the good Lorde, this is a pyteous warke.
But nowe I se well the olde proverbe is treu:

“The pyrysse preest forgetteth that ever he was clarke!” 595

But, Syr Johan, doth not remembre you How I was your clerke, and holpe you masse to syng,

And hylde the basyn alway at the offryng?
Ye² never had halfe so good a clarke as I!
But, notwithstanding all this, nowe our pye 600

Is eaten up, there is not lefte a byt;
And you two together there do syt, Eatynge and drynkyng at your owne de-syre,

And I am Johan Johan, whiche must stande by the fyre

Chafyng the wax, and dare none other wyse do. 605

² P. prints He.

SYR J. And shall we alway syt here styll, we two?

That were to mych.

TYB. Then ryse we out of this place.

SYR J. And kys me than in the stede of grace.¹

And farewell, leman,² and my love so dere.

JOHAN. Cokkis body, this waxe it waxte colde agayn here. 610

But what! shall I anone go to bed,

And eate nothyng, nother meate nor brede?

I have not be wont to have suche fare.

TYB. Why! were ye not served there as ye
are,

Chafyng the waxe, standingy by the
fyre? 615

JOHAN. Why, what mete gave ye me, I you requyre?

SIR J. Wast thou not served, I pray the hartely,

Both with the brede, the ale, and the pye?

JOHAN. No, syr, I had none of that fare.

TYB. Why! were ye not served there as ye
are, 620

Standyng by the fyre chafyng the waxe?

JOHAN [aside]. Lo, here be many tryfylys and knakks —

By kokkis soule, they wene I am other dronke or mad!

TYB. And had ye no meate, Johan Johan?
no had?

JOHAN. No, Tyb my wyfe, I had not a whyt. 625

TYB. What, not a morsel?

JOHAN. No, not one byt.

For honger, I trowe, I shall fall in a sowne.³

SIR J. O, that were pyte, I swere by my crowne.

TYB. But is it trewe?

JOHAN. Ye, for a surete.

TYB. Dost thou ly?

JOHAN. No, so mote I the! ⁴ 630

TYB. Hast thou had nothyng?

JOHAN. No, not a byt.

TYB. Hast thou not dronke?

JOHAN. No, not a whyt.

TYB. Where wast thou?

JOHAN. By the fyre I dyd stande.

TYB. What dydyst?

JOHAN. I chafed this waxe in my hande, Where-as I knewe of wedded men the
payne 635

That they have, and yet dare not com-
playne;

For the smoke put out my eyes two,
I burned my face, and rayde my clothes
also,

Mendyng the payle, whiche is so rotten and
olde 639

That it wyll not skant together holde.

And syth it is so, and syns that ye twayn Wold gyve me no meate for my suffys-
aunce,

By kokis soule, I wyll take no lenger
payn!

Ye shall do all your-self, with a very vengaunce,

For me. And take thou there thy payle
now, 645

And yf thou canst mend it, let me se how.

[Hurls the pail to the floor.]

TYB. A! horson knave! hast thou brok my payl?

Thou shalt repent, by kokis lylly nayll.¹

Rech me my dystaf, or my clyppyn-sherys!

I shall make the blood ronne about his erys. 650

[Johan takes up a shovel full of coals.]

JOHAN. Nay, stand styll, drab, I say, and come no nere;

For, by kokkis blood, yf thou come here,
Or yf thou onys styr toward this place,

I shall throw this shovyll full of colys in thy face.

TYB. Ye! horson dryvyll! get the out of my dore! 655

JOHAN. Nay! get thou ² out of my house, thou prestis hore!

SIR J. Thou lyst, horson kokold, evyn to thy face!

JOHAN. And thou lyst, pyld preest, with an evyll grace!

TYB. And thou lyst!

JOHAN. And thou lyst!

SYR J. And thou lyst agayn!

² Sweetheart. ³ Swoon.

⁴ May I thrive.

¹ By God's lovely nail (alluding either to the nails used in the crucifixion, or to the fingers).

² R. thy. P. prints thou without note.

JOHAN. By kokkis soule, horson preest, thou shalt be slayn. 660

Thou hast eate our pye, and gyve me
nought.

By kokkes blod, it shalbe full derely bought!

TYB. At hym, Syr Johan, or els God gyve
the sorow.

JOHAN. And have at you,¹ hore and thefe, Saynt George to borrow!²

*Here they fyght by the crys a whyle, and than the preest and the wyfe go out of the
place.*

JOHAN. A! syrs! I have payd some of them even as I lyst. 665

They have borne many a blow with my fyst.

² Saint George speed me!

I thank God, I have walkyd them well,
And dryven them hens. But yet, can ye
tell

Whether they be go? For, by God, I fere
me

That they be gon together, he and she, 670 Unto his chamber; and perhappys she
wyll,

Spyte of my hart, tary there styll;
And, peradventure, there he and she Wyll make me cokold, evyn to anger me.
And then had I a pyg in the woysr pan-yer!¹ 675

Therefore, by God, I wyll hye me thyder
To se yf they do me any vylany.

And thus, fare well this noble company!

The first edition was issued by William Rastell in 1533. The printer seems to have had excellent copy (possibly the author's own manuscript), and his text is unusually good. An undated edition, attributed to Robert Wyer, was printed from Rastell's edition; and another, by Anthony Kytson (without date, but between 1549 and 1579) was printed from Wyer. These two later editions have no textual value. In 1906 there was discovered in Ireland still another edition, printed by John Awdeley (without date, but between 1559 and 1575). My collation shows this to be perhaps the poorest of all the editions; innumerable errors are introduced by a slovenly type-setter, and at times whole lines are dropped.

I have reproduced Rastell's edition of 1533 (R.). Mr. A. W. Pollard's reprint (P.) of the same copy of this edition, in Representative English Comedies, 1903, is very unsatisfactory, due, probably, to the initial troubles he had in securing copy, and to the difficulty of reading proof in a book printed across the ocean. Only occasionally have I noted readings from the edition by Awdeley (A.). I have modernized the punctuation, and the use of the letters u and v; and I have normalized the catch-names of the speakers.

How-be-yt, he alledgeth that of longe tyme past
Lytell hath prevayled his great dylygens.
Full oft uppon yerth his fayre frost he hath cast, 45
All thynges hurtfull to banysh out of
presens;
But Phebus, entyndynge to kepe hym in sylens,
When he hath labored all nyght in his powres,⁴
His glarynge beamys maryth all in two howres.

Phebus to this made no maner answer-
ynge. 50
Whereuppon they both then Phebe defyed.
Eche for his parte leyd in her reprovynge That by her showres superfluous they have tryed ¹
In all that she may theyr powres be de-
nyed.
Wherunto Phebe made answer no more Then Phebus to Saturne hadde made before. 56

Anone uppon Eolus all these dyd fle, Complaynyng theyr causes, eche one arow,²
And sayd, to compare none was so evyll as
he;
For, when he is dysposed his blastes to blow, 60
He suffereth neyther sone-shyne, rayne, nor snow.
They eche agaynste other, and he agaynste all thre —
Thus can these iiiii in no maner agre!

Whyche sene in themselfe, and further consyderynge,
The same to redres was cause of theyr assemble. 65
And also — that we evermore beyng,
Besyde our puysaunt power of deite,
Of wysedom and nature so noble and so fre,
From all extremytees the meane devydy-
ynge,
To pease and plente eche thynges attemper-
ynge — 70

They have, in conclusyon, holly surrendryd
Into our handes, as mych as concernynge
All maner wethers by them engendryd,
The full of theyr powrs, for terme everlast-
ynge,
To set suche order as standyth wyth our pleasyng; 75
Whyche thynges, as of our parte no parte requyred,
But of all theyr partys ryght humbly de-syred

To take uppon us; wherto we dyd assente.

⁴ Powers (i.e. spreading frost and snow).

And so in all thynges, wyth one voyce agre-able,

We have clerly fynshed our foresayd
parlament, 80

To your great welth,¹ whyche shall be fyrme and stable,

And to our honour farre inestymable;
For syns theyr powers, as ours, addyd to our owne,

Who can, we say, know us as we shulde be knowne?

But now, for fyne,² the rest of our entent Wherfore, as now, we hyther are dyscendyd 86

Is onely to satsysfy and content
All maner people whyche have ben of-fendyd

By any wether mete to be amendyd;
Uppon whose complayntes, declarynge theyr grefe, 90

We shall shape remedy for theyr relefe.

And to gyve knowledge for theyr hyther
resorte

We wolde thys afore proclaymed to be
To all our people, by some one of thys

Whom we lyst to choyse here amongst all ye. 95

Wherfore eche man avaunce, and we shal
se

Whyche of you is moste mete to be our cryer.

*Here entreth Mery-reporte.*⁴

MERY-REPORTE. Brother, holde up your torche a lytell hyer!⁵

Now, I besече you, my lorde, loke on me
furste.

I truste your lordshyp shall not fynde me
the wurste. 100

JUPYTER. Why! what arte thou that approchyst so ny?

MERY-REPORTE. Forsothe, and please your lordshyppe, it is I.

JUPYTER. All that we knowe very well;
but what I?

MERY-REPORTE. What I? Some saye I am I perse I.¹

But, what maner I so ever be I, 105
I assure your good lordshyp, I am I.

JUPYTER. What maner man arte thou, shewe quykely!

MERY-REPORTE. By god! a poore gentylman, dwellyth here by.

JUPYTER. A gentylman! Thyselfe bryng-eth wytnes naye,

Bothe in thy lyght behaviour and araye. 110
But what arte thou called where thou dost
resorte?

MERY-REPORTE. Forsoth, my lorde, Mayster Mery-reporte.

JUPYTER. Thou arte no mete man in our bysynes,

For thyne apparence ys of to mych lyght-
nes.

MERY-REPORTE. Why, can not your lord-shyp lyke my maner, 115

Myne apparell, nor my name nother?

JUPYTER. To nother of all we have devo-
cyon.

MERY-REPORTE. A proper lyklyhod of promocyon!

Well, than, as wyse as ye seme to be,
Yet can ye se no wysdome in me. 120

But syns ye dysprayse me for so lyghte an elfe,

I praye you gyve me leve to prayse my-selfe.

And, for the fyrste parte, I wyll begyn
In my behaviour at my comynge in;

Wherin I thynke I have lytell offendyd, 125 For, sewer, my curtesy coulde not be amendyd!

And, as for my sewt your servaunt to be,
Myghte yll have bene myst for your hon-
este;

For, as I be saved, yf I shall not lye,
I saw no man sew for the offyce but I! 130

Wherfore yf ye take me not or I go,
Ye must anone whether ye wyll or no.

And syns your entent is but for the wethers,
What skyls² our apparell to be fryse³ or fethers?

I thynke it wysdome, syns no man for-bad
it, 135

¹ Profit.

³ The audience.

⁴ Presumably he came from the audience.

⁵ Addressed to one of the torch-bearers on the stage.

¹ Used in naming a letter which by itself forms a word, as A per se, O per se, and I per se.

² Matters.

³ Frieze.

Wyth thys to spare a better — yf I had it!
 And, for my name: reportyng alwaye
 trewly,
 What hurte to reporte a sad mater merely?
 As, by ocaسیون, for the same entent,
 To a serteyne wedow thys daye was I sent, 140
 Whose husbande departyd wythout her wyttyng, ¹ —
 A speeyall good lover, and she hys owne swettyng! ²
 To whome, at my comyng, I caste suche
 a figure,
 Mynglynge the mater accordyng to my nature,
 That when we departyd, ³ above al other
 thynges 145
 She thanked me hartely for my mery tyd-ynges!
 And yf I had not handled yt meryly, Perchaunce she myght have take[n] yt
 hevely;
 But in suche faycon I coniuere and bounde
 her,
 That I left her meryer then I founde
 her! 150
 What man may compare to shew the lyke
 comforte
 That dayly is shewed by me, Mery-reporter?
 And, for your purpose at this tyme ment,
 For all wethers I am so indyfferent, ⁴ Without affeccion, standyng so up-ryght, ⁵ 155
 Son-lyght, mone-lyght, ster-lyght, twylyght, torch-light,
 Cold, hete, moyst, drye, hayle, rayne,
 frost, snow, lightnyng, thunder, Cloudy, mysty, wyndy, fayre, fowle above hed or under,
 Temperate, or dystemperate, what-ever yt
 be,
 I promyse your lordshyp, all is one to
 me. 160

JUPYTER. Well, sonne, consydrynge thyne indyfferency,
 And partely the rest of thy declaracyon,
 We make the our servaunte. And immediately

We ¹ woll thou departe and cause procla-
 macyon,
 Publyshyng our pleasure to every na-
 cyon; 165
 Whyche thynges ons done, wyth all dylygens
 Make thy returne agayne to this presens,
 Here to receyve all sewters of eche degre;
 And suche as to the may seme moste
 metely,
 We wyll thow bryng them before our maieste; 170
 And for the rest, that be not so worthy,
 Make thou reporte to us effectually,
 So that we may heare eche maner sewte at large.
 Thus se thow departe, and loke upon thy charge!

MERY-REPORTE. Now, good my lorde god, Our Lady be wyth ye! 175

[To the audience.]

Friendes, a fellyshyppe, ² let me go by ye!
 Thyne ye I may stand thurstyng amonge
 you there?
 Nay, by god, I muste thrust about other geres!

Mery-reporter goth out [to make proclamation].

At thende of this staf ³ the god hath a song played in his trone or Mery-reporter come in

JUPITER. Now, syns we have thus farre set forth our purpose,
 A whyle we woll wythdraw our godly pres-
 ens, 180
 To enbold all such more playnely to dys-
 close,
 As here wyll attende, in our foresayde
 pretens.
 And now, accordyng to your obedyens,
 Reioyce ye in us wyth ioy most ioyfully.
 And we our-selfe shall ioy in our owne glory! 185

[Jupiter draws a curtain about his throne, thus concealing himself from the audience;
 thereafter the song is played.]

Mery-report cometh in.

MERY-REPORTE. Now, syrs, take hede!
for here cometh goddes servaunt!
Avaunte! carte[r]ly¹ keytyfs, avaunt!
Why, ye dronken horesons, wyll yt not be?
By your fayth, have ye nother cap nor kne?
Not one of you that wyll make curtsy 190
To me, that am squyre for goddes precyous body?

Regarde ye nothyng myne authorityte?
No "Welcome home!" nor "Where have ye be?"

How-be-yt, yf ye axyd, I coulde not well
tell;

But suer I thynke a thousande myle from hell, 195

And, on my fayth, I thynke, in my conscyens,

I have ben from hevyn as farre as heven is hens —

At Lovyn, at London, and in Lombardy,
At Baldock, at Barfolde, and in Barbary,
At Canturbery, at Coventre, at Colches-
ter, 200

At Wansworth, and Welbeeke, at Westchester,

At Fullam, at Faleborne, and at Fenlow,
At Wallyngford, at Wakefeld, and at Waltamstow,

At Tawnton, at Typtre, and at Totnam,
At Glouceter, at Gylford, and at Gotham, At Hartforde, at Harwyche, at Harowe on the Hyll, 206

At Sudbery, Suthhampton, at Shoters
Hyll,

At Walsyngham, at Wyttam, and at Werwycke,

At Boston, at Brystow, and at Berwycke,
At Gravelyn, at Gravesend, and at Glas-tynbery, 210

Ynge Gyngiang Iayberd, the parysfe of Butsbery —

The devyll hym-selfe, wythout more lea-
sure,

Coulde not have gone halfe thus myche, I am sure!

But, now I have warned² them, let them even chose;

For, in fayth, I care not who wyne or lose. 215

Here the gentyman before he cometh in bloweth his horne.

MERY-REPORTE. Now, by my trouth, this was a goodly hearyng!

I went¹ yt had ben the gentylwomens
blowyng;

But yt is not so, as I now suppose,
For womens hornes sounde more in a man-ny's nose.

GENTYLMAN. Stande ye mery, my frendes, everychone. 220

MERY-REPORTE. Say that to me and let the reste alone!

Syr, ye be welcome, and all your meyny.²

GENTYLMAN. Now, in good sooth, my frende, god a mery!

And syns that I mete the here thus by
chaunce,

I shall requyre the of further aequyent-
aunce; 225

And brevely to shew the, this is the mater:
I come to sew to the great god Iupyer

For helpe of thynges concernynge my rec-
reacyon,

Aecordynge to his late proclamaeyon.

MERY-REPORTE. Mary, and I am he that this must spede. 230

But fyrste tell me, what be ye in-dede?

GENTYLMAN. Forsoth, good frende, I am a gentyman.

MERY-REPORTE. A goodly occupacyon, by Seynt Anne!

On my fayth, your mashyp³ hath a mery
lyfe.

But who maketh all these hornes, your self or your wife? 235

Nay, even in earnest I aske you this questyon.

GENTYLMAN. Now, by my trouth, thou art a mery one!

MERY-REPORTE. In fayth, of us both I thynke never one sad,

For I am not so mery but ye seme as
mad!

But stande ye styll and take a lyttell
payne; 240

I wyll come to you, by and by, agayne.

¹ Thought.

² Attendants. Possibly the Gentyman was attended by hunters leading dogs.

³ Mastership.

⁴ Alluding to the horns of the cuckold.

[He approaches Jupyter's throne.]

Now, gracious god, yf your wyll so be,
I pray ye let me speke a worde wyth ye.
JUPYTER. My sonne, say on! Let us here thy mynde.

MERY-REPORTE. My lord, there standeth a sewter even here behynde, 245
A Gentyman, in yonder corner;
And, as I thinke, his name is Mayster Horner.
A hunter he is, and comyth to make you
sporte.
He wolde hunte a sow or twayne out of thys sorte.¹

Here he poynteth to the women.

JUPYTER. What-so-ever his mynde be, let hym appere. 250

MERY-REPORTE. Now, good Mayster Horner, I pray you come nere.

GENTYLMAN. I am no horner,² knave! I wyll thou know yt.

MERY-REPORTE. I thought ye had [been],
for when ye dyd blow yt, Harde I never horson make horne so
goo.

As lefe ye kyste myne ars as blow my hole
soo! 255

Come on your way, before the God Iupy-
ter,

And there for your selfe ye shall be sewter.

[He leads him to the throne of Jupyter.]

GENTYLMAN. Most myghty prynce, and god of every naeyon,

Pleasyth your hyghnes to vouchsave the heryng

Of me, whyche, accordyng to [y]our³ proclamacyon, 260

Doth make apparaunce, in way of besceh-
yng

Not sole for my-self, but generally
For all come of noble and auneyent stock, Whych sorte above all doth most thankfully

Dayly take payne for welth of the comen flocke,⁴ 265

With dylygent study alway devysynge
To kepe them in order and unyete,
In peace to labour the encrees of their lvy-
yng,

Wherby eche man may prosper in plente.
Wherfore, good god, this is our hole desyr-
yng, 270

That for ease of our paynes, at tymes vacuant,¹

In our recreacyon, whyche chyefely is huntyng,

It may please you to sende us wether pleas-aunt,

Drye and not mysty, the wynde calme and styll,

That after our houndes yournyng² so
meryly, 275

Chasyng the dere over dale and hyll,
In heryng we may folow and to-comfort the cry.

JUPYTER. Ryght well we do perceyve your hole request,

Whyche shall not fayle to reste in memory.

Wherfore we wyll ye set your-selfe at
rest, 280

Tyll we have herde eche man indyfferently;
And we shall take suche order, unyversally,
As best may stande to our honour infynyte,
For welth in commune and ech mannys synguler profyete.

GENTYLMAN. In heven and yerth honoured be the name 285

Of Iupyter, who³ of his godly goodnes
Hath set this mater in so goodly frame
That every wyght shall have his desyre, doutles.

And fyrst for us nobles and gentylnen, 289
I doute not, in his wysedome, to provyde Suche wether as in our huntyng, now and then,

We may both teyse⁴ and receyve⁵ on every syde.

Whyche thyng ones had, for our seyde rec-
reacyon,
Shall greatly prevayle⁶ you in preferryng
our helth.

For what thyng more nedefull then our preservacyon, 295

Bynge the weale and heddes of all comen-welth?

MERY-REPORTE. Now I besech your mashyp, whose hed be you?

GENTYLMAN. Whose hed am I? Thy hed! What seyst thou now?

MERY-REPORTE. Nay, I thinke yt very trew, so god me helpe! 299

For I have ever ben, of a lyttell whelpe,
So full of fansyes, and in so many fyttes,
So many smale reasons, and in so many wyttes,

That, even as I stande, I pray god I be dede
If ever I thought them all mete for a hedde. 304

But syns I have one hed more then I knew, Blame not my reioycyng, — I love all thynges new.

And suer yt is a treasour of heddes to have store.

One feate can I now that I never coude before.

GENTYLMAN. What is that?

MERY-REPORTE. By god, syns ye came
hyther, 309

I can set my hedde and my tayle to-gyther!
This hed shall save mony, by Saynt Mary;
From hens-forth I wyll no potycary;
For at al tymys, when suche thynges shall myster,¹

My new hed shall geve myne olde tayle a glyster.²

And, after all this, then shall my hedde
wayte 315

Uppon my tayle, and there stande at receyte.

Syr, for the reste I wyll not now move you;
But yf we lyve, ye shall smell how I love
yow.

And, syr, touchyng your sewt here, depart
when it please you;

For, be ye suer, as I can I wyll ease you. 320

GENTYLMAN. Then gyve me thy hande!

That promyse I take.

And yf for my sake any sewt thou do make,
I promyse thy payne to be requyted
More largely than now shall be recyted.

[Exit the Gentlyman.]

MERY-REPORTE. Alas, my necke! God-des pyty, where is my hed? 325

Entreth the Marchaunt.

Mayster person,¹ now welcome, by my
lyfe!

I pray you, how doth my mastres, your wyfe? ² 330

MARCHAUNT. Syr, for the presthod, and wyfe that ye alledge,

I se ye speke more of dotage then knowledge.

But let pas, syr. I wolde to you be sewter
To brynge me, yf ye can, before Iupiter.

[MERY-REPORTE.] Yes, mary, can I; and wyll do yt, in-dede. 335

Tary, and I shall make wey for your spede.

[Goes to the throne of Jupyter.]

In fayth, good lord, yf it please your gracyous godshyp,

I muste have a worde or twayne wyth your lordshyp!

Syr, yonder is a nother man in place,
Who maketh great sewt to speke wyth your
grace. 340

Your pleasure ones knowen, he commeth by and by.³

JUPYTER. Bryng hym before our presens, sone, hardely.

MERY-REPORTE. Why! where be you?
Shall I not fynde ye?

Come a-way! I pray god, the devyll blynde ye!

[He leads him to the throne.]

MARCHAUNT. Moste myghty prynce, and lorde of lordes all, 345

Ryght humbly beseceth your maieste
Your marchaunt-men thorow the worlde
all,

That yt may please you, of your benyg-
nyte,

In the dayly daunger of our goodes and
lyfe,

¹ Parson; perhaps suggested by the merchant's

² The clergy were supposed to be celibate, hence the witticism.

³ At once.

Fyrste to consyder the desert of our request, 350
 What welth we bryng the rest, to our great care and stryfe,
 And then to rewarde us as ye shall thynke best.
 What were the surplysage of eche commoditye¹
 Whyche groweth and increaseth in every lande, 354
 Exepte exchaunge by suche men as we be,
 By wey of entercours, that lyeth on our hande!²
 We fraught³ from home thynges wherof there is plente,
 And home we brynge such thynges as there be scant.
 Who sholde afore us marchauntes accomplished be?
 For were not we, the worlde shuld wyshe and want 360
 In many thynges, whych now shall lack rehersall.
 And, bremely to conelude, we beseche your hyghnes
 That of the benefyte proclaymed in generall
 We may be parte-takers, for comen ences,
 Stablyshynge wether thus, pleasyng your grace; 365
 Stormy nor mysty, the wynde mesurable,
 That savey we may passe from place to place,
 Berynge our seyls for spede moste vayleable.⁴
 And also the wynde to change, and to turne
 Eest, West, North, and South, as best may be set; 370
 In any one place not to longe to sojourne,
 For the length of our vyage may lese our market.
 JUPYTER. Ryght well have ye sayde; and we accept yt so,
 And so shall we rewarde you ere we go hens.
 But ye muste take pacyens tyll we have harde mo,⁵ 375

¹ The over-abundance of each article of commerce.² That we are unable to dispose of.³ Freight, convey as freight.⁴ Advantageous.⁵ Heard more suitors.

That we may indyfferently gyve sentens;
 There may passe by us no spot of neglygence,
 But iustly to iudge eche thyng so up-ryghte
 That ech mans parte maye shyne in the selfe ryghte.¹
 MERY-REPORTE. Now, syr, by your fayth, yf ye shulde be sworne, 380
 Harde ye ever god speke so, syns ye were borne?
 So wysely, so gentyllly hys wordes be showd!
 MARCHAUNT. I thanke hys grace. My sewte is well bestowd.
 MERY-REPORTE. Syr, what vyage entende ye nexte to go?
 MARCHAUNT. I truste or myd-lente to be to Syo.² 385
 MERY-REPORTE. Ha, ha! Is it your mynde to sayle at Syo?
 Nay, then, when ye wyll, byr lady, ye maye go.
 And let me alone with thys; be of good chere!
 Ye maye truste me at Syo as well as here.
 For though ye were fro me a thousande myle space, 390
 I wolde do as myche as ye were here in place;
 For, syns that from hens it is so farre thyther,
 I care not though ye never come agayne hyther.
 MARCHAUNT. Syr, yf ye remember me when tyme shall come,
 Though I requyte not all, I shall deserve some. 395

Exeat Marchaunt.

MERY-REPORTE. Now, farre ye well, and god thanke you, by Saynt Anne!
 I pray you, marke the fasshyon of thys honeste manne;
 He putteth me in more truste at thys metynge here,
 Then he shall fynde cause why thys twenty yere.

RANGER. God be here! Now Cryst kepe thys company! 400

MERY-REPORT. In fayth, ye be welcome
evyn very skantely!

Syr, for your comynge what is the mater?

RANGER. I wolde fayne speke with the god Iupyter.

MERY-REPORT. That wyll not be. But ye may do thys — 404

Tell me your mynde; I am an offycer of hys.

RANGER. Be ye so? Mary, I crye you marcy!

Your maystershpy may say I am homely.¹

But syns your mynde is to have reportyd

The cause wherfore I am now resortyd,

Pleasyth your maystershpy it is so: 410

I come for my-selfe and suche other mo,

Rangers² and keepers of certayne places,

As forestes, parkes, purlews, and chasys,³

Where we be chargyd with all maner game.

Smale is our profyete, and great is our blame. 415

Alas! For our wages, what be we the nere?⁴

What is forty shyllynge, or fyve marke, a yere!

Many tymes and oft, where we be flyttinge,

We spende forty pens a pece at a syttynge!

Now for our vantage, whyche chefely is wyndefale,⁵ 420

That is ryght nought; there blowyth no wynde at all.

Whyche is the thyng wherin we fynde
most grefe,

And cause for my commynge to sew for re-
lefe,

That the god, of pyty, all thys thyng
knowynge,

May sende us good rage of blustryng and
blowyng; 425

And yf I can not get god to do some good,
I wolde hyer the devyll to runne thorow the
wood,

The rootes to turne up, the toppys to brynge under.

A myschyefe upon them, and a wylde thunder!

MERY-REPORT. Very well sayd! I set by your charyte 430

As mych, in a maner, as by your honeste.

I shall set you somewhat in ease anone;

Ye shall putte on your cappe, when I am gone.

For, I se, ye care not who wyn or lese,

So ye maye fynde meyns to wyn your fees.¹ 435

RANGER. Syr, as in that, ye speke as it please ye.

But let me speke wyth the god, yf it maye
be.

[He tries to approach the throne.]

I pray you, lette me passe ye.

MERY-REPORT. Why, nay, syr! By the masse, ye —

RANGER. Then wyll I leve you evyn as I

No water have we to grynde at any stynt;

The wynde is so stronge the rayne cannot fall,⁴

Whyche kepeth our myldams as drye as a flynt.

We are undone! We grynde nothyng at
all! 449

The greter is the pyte, as thynketh me.

For what avayleth to eche man hys corne
Tyll it be grounde by such men as we be?

There is the losse, yf we be forborne.⁵

For, touchynge our-selfes, we are but drudgys, 454

And very beggers — save onely our tole, Whiche is ryght smale, and yet many grudges

For gryste of a busshell to gyve a quarte bole.⁶

Yet, were not reparacyons,¹ we myght do
wele:

Our mylston, our whele with her kogges, and our trindill²

Our floodgate, our mylpooll, our water
whele, 460

Our hopper, our extre,³ our yren spynd-
yll, —

In this, and mych more, so great is our

That we wolde not recke though no water

Save onely it toucheth eche man so

And ech for our neyghbour Cryste byddeth

Wherfore my conscyence hath prycked me
hyther,

In thys to sewe, accordyng to the cry,⁴
For plente of rayne to the god Iupiter.

To whose presence I wyll go evyn boldely!

[Mery-reporte bars his way.]

MERY-REPORTE. Sir, I dowl nothyng your audacyte, 470

But I feare me ye lacke capacitye;

For, yf ye were wyse, ye myghte well espye
How rudely ye erre from rewl of courtesye.

What! ye come in revelyng and rehey-nyng,⁵

Evyn as a knave myght go to a beare-beytyng! 475

WATER MYLLER. All you bere recorde what favour I have!

Herke, howe famylyerly he calleth me
knave!

Dowtles the gentyman is universall!
But marke thys lesson, syr: You shulde never call

Your felow⁶ knave, nor your brother hore-
son; 480

For nought can ye get by it when ye have
done.

MERY-REPORTE. Thou arte nother brother
nor felowe to me,

For I am goddes servaunt, mayst thou not
se?

Wolde ye presume to speke wyth the great
god? 484

Nay! dyscrecyon and you be to farre od!¹
Byr lady, these knavys must be tyed shorter!²

Syr, who let you in? Spake ye wyth the porter?

WATER MYLLER. Nay, by my trouth; nor wyth no nother man,

Yet I saw you well when I fyrst began. 489

How-be-it, so helpe me god and holydam,³
I toke you but for a knave, as I am.

But, mary! now, syns I knowe what ye be,
I muste, and wyll, obey your authoritye.

And yf I maye not speke wyth Iupiter,
I besече you be my solycyter. 495

MERY-REPORTE. As in that, I wyl be your well-wyller.

I perceyve you be a water myller;
And your hole desyre, as I take the mater,

Is plente of rayne for ences of water. 499

The let⁴ wherof, ye affyrme determynately,
Is onely the wynde, your mortall enemy.

WATER MYLLER. Trouth it is; for it blowyth so alofte,

We never have rayne, or, at the most, not ofte.

Wherfore, I praye you, put the god in
mynde

Clerey for ever to banysh the wynde. 505

Here entreth the Wynd Myller.

WYNDE MYLLER. How! Is all the wether gone or I come?

For the passyon of god, helpe me to some!
I am a wynd myller, as many mo be.

No wretch in wretchydnes so wrechyd as we!

The hole sorte⁵ of my crafte be all mard at onys! 510

The wynde is so weyke it sturryth not our
stonys,

Nor skantely can shatter⁶ the shyttyn sayle

That hangeth shatteryng⁷ at a womans taylor.

The rayne never resteth, so longe be the

An-other begynneth as soone as that is done.
 Such revel of rayne, ye knowe well inough,
 Destroyeth the wynde, be it never so rough;
 Wherby, syns our mylls be come to styll standyng,
 Now maye we wynd myllers go evyn to hangyng.
 A myller! Wyth a moryn¹ and a myscheyfe!
 Who wolde be a myller? As good be a thefe!
 Yet in tyme past, when gryndyng was plente,
 Who were so lyke goddys felows as we?
 As faste as god made come, we myllers made meale.
 Whyche myght be best forborne² for comyn-weale?
 But let that gere³ passe; for I feare our pryde
 Is cause of the care whyche god doth us provyde.
 Wherfore I submyt me, entenyng to se
 What comforte may come by humylyte.
 And, now, at thys tyme, they sayd in the crye,
 The god is come downe to shape remedye.
 MERY-REPORTE. No doute he is here,
 even in yonder trone;
 But in your mater he trusteth me alone.
 Wherein, I do perceyve by your complaynte,
 Oppressyon of rayne doth make the wynde so faynte
 That ye wynde myllers be clene caste away.
 WYNDE MYLLER. If Iupyter helpe not, yt is as ye say.
 But, in few wordes to tell you my mynde rounde;
 Uppon this condycyon I wolde be bounde
 Day by day to say Our Ladyes sauter⁴ —
 That in this world were no drope of water,
 Nor never rayne, but wynde contynuall.
 Then shold we wynde myllers be lordes over all!

MERY-REPORTE. Come on, and assay how you twayne can agre —

A brother of yours, a myller, as ye be!

WATER MYLLER. By meane of our craft we may be brothers,
 But whyles we lyve shall we never be lovers.
 We be of one craft, but not of one kynde —
 I lyve by water and he by the wynde.

Here Mery-report goth out.

And, syr, as ye desyre wynde contynuall,
 So wolde I have rayne ever-more to fall;
 Whyche two, in experyence ryght well ye se,
 Ryght selde or never to-gether can be.
 For as longe as the wynde rewleth, yt is playne,
 Twenty to one ye get no drop of rayne;
 And when the element is to farre opprest,
 Downe commeth the rayne and setteth the wynde at rest.
 By this, ye se, we can not both obtayne;
 For ye must lacke wynde, or I must lacke rayne.
 Wherfore I thynke good, before this audyens,
 Eche for our selfe to say, or we go hens;
 And whom is thought weykest, when we have fynysht,
 Leve off[] his sewt and content to be banyshyt.
 WYNDE MYLLER. In fayth, agreed! But then, by your lycens,
 Our mylles for a tyme shall hange in suspens.
 Syns water and wynde is chyefely our sewt,
 Whyche best may be spared we woll fyrst dyspute.
 Wherfore to the sec my reason shall resort,
 Where shypes by meane of wynd try from port to port,
 From lande to lande, in dystaunce many a myle, —
 Great is the passage and smale is the whyle.
 So great is the profyte, as to me doth seme,
 That no mans wysdome the welth can exteme.
 And syns the wynde is conveyer of all
 Who but the wynde shulde have thanke above all?

¹ Plague.

WATER MYLLER. Amytte¹ in thys place
 a tree here to growe,
 And therat the wynde in great rage to blowe;
 When it hath all blowen, thys is a clere
 case, 580
 The tre removyth no here-bred² from hys
 place.
 No more wolde the shypys, blow the best it cowde!
 All-though it wolde blow downe both mast
 and shrowde,
 Except the shyppe flete³ upon the water
 The wynde can ryght nought do, — a playne mater. 585
 Yet maye ye on water, wythout any
 wynde,
 Row forth your vessell where men wyll have her synde.⁴
 Nothyng more reioyceth the maryner
 Then meane coolys⁵ of wynde and plente of water; 589
 For commenly the cause of every wracke
 Is excesse of wynde where water doth lacke.
 In rage of these stormys the perell is suche That better were no wynde then so farre to muche.
 WYNDE MYLLER. Well, yf my reason in thys may not stande, 594
 I wyll forsake the see and lepe to lande.
 In every chyche where goddys servyce is,
 The organs beare brunt of halfe the quere,
 i-wys.
 Whyche causyth the sounde, or⁶ water or
 wynde?
 More-over, for wynde thys thyng I
 fynde — 599
 For the most parte all maner mynstrelsy,
 By wynde they delyver theyr sound chefly.
 Fyll me a bagpype of your water full,
 As swety shall it sounde as it were stuffyd with wull!
 WATER MYLLER. On my fayth, I thynke
 the moone be at the full!
 For frantyke fansyes be then most plente-
 full, 605
 Whych are at the pryde of theyr sprynge⁷
 in your hed,
 So farre from our matter he is now fled.

As for the wynde in any instrument,
 It is no percell¹ of our argument; 609
 We spake of wynde that comyth naturally,
 And that is wynde forcyd artyfyceally — Whyche is not to purpose. But, yf it were,
 And water, in-dede, ryght nought coude
 do there,
 Yet I thynke organs no suche commod-
 yte² 614
 Wherby the water shulde banyshed be.
 And for your bagpypes, I take them as nyfuls.³
 Your mater is all in fansyes and tryfuls.
 WYNDE MYLLER. By god, but ye shall not tryfull me of[f] so!
 Yf these thynges serve not, I wyll reherse
 mo.
 And now to mynde there is one olde prov-erbe come, 620
 "One bushell of Marche dust is worth a kynges raunsome."
 What is a hundreth thousande bushels worth than?
 WATER MYLLER. Not one myte, for the thyng selfe, to no man.
 WYNDE MYLLER. Why, shall wynde every-where thus be obiecte?⁴ 624
 Nay, in the hyc-wayes he shall take effecte, Where-as the rayne doth never good, but hurt;
 For wynde maketh but dust, and water
 maketh durt.
 Powder, or syrop, syrs, whyche lyeke ye
 beste?
 Who lycketh not the tone maye lyeke up the rest.
 But, sure, who-so-ever hath assayed such sypes 630
 Had lever have dusty eyes then dirty lypes.
 And it is sayd syns afore⁵ we were borne That "drought doth never make derth of corne."
 And well it is knowen to the most foole
 here
 How rayne hath pryced corne within this vii yere.⁶ 635
 WATER MYLLER. Syr, I pray the, spare me a lytyll season,

And I shall brevely conclude¹ the wyth
reason.
Put case on[e] somers daye wythout wynde
to be,
And ragyous wynde in wynter dayes two or
thre;
Mych more shall dry that one calme daye
in somer, 640
Then shall those thre wyndy dayes in wynter.
Whom shall we thanke for thys, when all is
done?
The thanke to wynde? Nay! Thanke chyefely the sone.
And so for drought, yf corne therby
encres,
The sone doth comfort and rype all dowl-
les. 645
And oft the wynde so leyth the corne, god
wot,
That never after can it rype, but rot.
Yf drought toke place, as ye say, yet maye
ye se,
Lytell helpeth the wynde in thys com-modityte. 649
But, now, syr, I deny your pryncypyll.
Yf drought ever were, it were impossybill
To have ony grayne; for, or it can grow, Ye must plow your lande, harrow, and sow, — Whyche wyll not be, except ye maye have rayne 654
To temper the grounde; and after agayne,
For spryngyng and plumpyng² all maner
corne,
Yet muste ye have water, or all is forlorne.³
Yf ye take water for no commodityte, Yet must ye take it for thyng of neces-
syte.
For washyng, for skowryng, all fylth
clensyng, 660
Where water lacketh what bestely beyng!
In brewyng, in bakynge, in dressyng of meate,
Yf ye lacke water what coude ye drynke or eate?
Wythout water coude lyve neyther man
nor best, 664
For water preservyth both moste and lest.

For water coude I say a thousande thynges
mo,
Savyng as now the tyme wyll not serve so.
And as for that wynde that you do sew
fore,
Is good for your wyndemyll, and for no
more! 669
Syr, syth all thys in experyence is tryde,
I say thys mater standeth clere on my syde.
WYNDE MYLLER. Well, syns thys wyll not serve, I wyll alledge the reste.
Syr, for our myllys, I saye myne is the beste.
My wyndmyll shall grynd more corne in one our Then thy water-myll shall in thre or foure — 675
Ye, more then thyne shulde in a hole yere, Yf thou myghtest have as thou hast wysyhd here.
For thou desyrest to have excesse of rayne, Whych thyng to the[e] were the worst thou couldyst obtayne.
For, yf thou dydyst, it were a playne induccyon¹ 680
To make thyne owne desyer thyne owne destruccyon.
For in excesse of rayne at any flood
Your myllys must stande styll; they can do no good.
And when the wynde doth blow the utter-most
Our wyndmylles walke a-mayne² in every cost.³ 685
For, as we se the wynde in hys estate,⁴
We moder⁵ our saylys after the same rate.
Syns our myllys grynde so farre faster then
yours,
And also they may grynde all tymes and howrs,
I say we neede no watermylles at all, 690
For wyndmylles be suffycyent to serve all.
WATER MYLLER. Thou spekest of "all"
and consyderest not halfe!
In boste⁶ of thy gryste thou art wyse as a calfe!
For, though above us your mylles grynde
farre faster,

What helpe to those from whome ye be myche farther? 695
And, of two sortes, yf the tone shold be conserved,¹
I thynke yt mete the moste number be served.
In vales and weldes,² where moste commoditye is,
There is most people; ye must graunte me
this.
On hylles and downes, whyche partes are moste barayne, 700
There muste be few; yt can no mo sus-
tayne.
I darre well say, yf yt were tryed even now,
That there is ten of us to one of you.
And where shuld chyefely all necessaryes
be, 704
But there as people are moste in plente?
More reason that you come vii myle to myll
Then all we of the vale sholde clyme the hyll.
If rayne came reasonable, as I requyre yt,
We sholde of your wyndemylles have nede
no whyt.

Entreth Mery-reporte.

MERY-REPORTE. Stop, folysh knaves! for your reasonyng is suche, 710
That ye have reasoned even ynough, and to much.
I hard all the wordes that ye both have hadde.
So helpe me god, the knaves be more then madde!
Nother of them both that hath wyt nor
grace
To perceyve that both mylls may serve in
place. 715
Betwene water and wynde there is no suche let But eche myll may have tyme to use his fet.³
Whyche thyng I can tell by experyens;
For I have, of myne owne, not farre from hens, 719
In a corner to-gether, a couple of mylls, Standyng in a marres⁴ betwene two hylls —

Not of inheerytaunce, but by my wyfe;
She is fehered in the taylor terme of her
lyfe,
The one for wynde, the other for water.
And of them both, I thanke god, there standeth¹ nother; 725
For, in a good hour be yt spoken,
The water gate is no soner open,
But clap, sayth the wyndmyll, even strayght behynde!
There is good spedde the devyll and all they grynde!
But whether that the hopper be dusty, 730
Or that the mylstonys be sumwhat rusty,
By the mas, the meale is myschevous musty!
And yf ye thynke my tale be not trusty,
I make ye trew promyse: come, when ye
lyst,
We shall fynde meane ye shall taste of the gryst. 735

ye shuld burste your bones, 740 Except ye be perfyt in settyng your Fere not the lydger,⁴ beware your ronner.⁵

Yet this for the lydger, or ye have wonne
her —

MERY-REPORTE. So sayth my wyfe; and that maketh all our checkyng.⁶ 745
She wolde have the myll peckt, peckt, peckt, every day!
But, by god, myllers muste peeke when they may!
So oft have we peckt that our stones wax

quyre.

But, syns ye can not agree, I wyll desyre
Iupyter to set you both in suche rest

GENTYLWOMAN. Now, good god! what a foly is this?

What sholde I do where so mych people is?
I know not how to passe in to the god
now.

MERY-REPORTE. No, but ye know how he may passe into you.

GENTYLWOMAN. I pray you let me in at MERY-REPORTE. Ye, shall I so and your foresyde so wyde?

Nay, not yet! But syns ye love to be
alone,

We twayne wyll into a corner anone.
But fyrste, I pray you, come your way
hyther, 774

And let us twayne chat a while to-gyther.
GENTYLWOMAN. Syr, as to you I have lyttell mater.

My commynge is to speke wyth Iupiter.

MERY-REPORTE. Stande ye styll a while, and I wyll go prove

Whether that the god wyll be brought in love. 779

[He goes to Jupyter's throne.]

My lorde, how nowe! Loke uppe lustely!
Here is a derlynge come, by Saynt Antony!
And yf yt be your pleasure to mary,
Speke quyckly, for she may not tary.

In fayth, I thinke ye may wynne her anone,¹

For she wolde speke wyth your lordshyp
alone. 785

JUPYTER. Sonne, that is not the thyng at this tyme ment.

If her sewt concerne no cause of our hyther
resorte,

Sende her out of place; but yf she be bent
To that purpose, heare her and make us reporte.

MERY-REPORTE. I count women lost, yf
we love them not well, 790

For ye se god loveth them never a dele!
Maystres ye can not speake wyth the god.

GENTYLWOMAN. No! why?

MERY-REPORTE. By my fayth, for his lordshyp is ryght besy

Wyth a peece of worke that nedes must be doone. 794

Even now is he makyng of a new moone.
He sayth your olde moones be so farre

That all the goodnes of them is wasted;
Whyche of the great wete³ hath ben moste

For olde moones be leake;⁴ they can holde

Except a few droppes at her goyng downe,
Ye get no rayne tyll her arysynge —

Wythout yt nede, and then no mans devys-
ynge

Coulede wyshe the fashyon of rayne to be so
good;

Not gushynge out lyke gutters of Noyes flood, 805

But small droppes sprynklyng softly on the
grounde;

Though they fell on a sponge they wold gyve no sounde.

² Tried by tasting, or eating.

³ Flood. ⁴ Leaky.

This new moone shall make a thing spryng
more in this while

Then a olde moone shal while a man may

By that tyme the god hath all made an ende, 810

Ye shall se how the wether wyll amende.

By Saynt Anne, he goeth to worke even boldely!

I thinke hym wyse ynough; for he loketh oldely!

Wherfore, maystres, be ye now of good
chere;

For though in his presens ye can not appere, 815

Tell me your mater and let me alone;

May-happe I wyll thinke on you when you be gone.

GENTYLWOMAN. Forsoth, the cause of my commyng is this:

I am a woman ryght fayre, as ye se; 819
In no creature more beauty then in me is.

And, syns I am fayre, fayre wolde I kepe
me;

But the sonne in somer so sore doth burne
me,

In wynter the wynde on every syde me,
No parte of the yere wote I where to turne
me,

But even in my house am I fayne to hyde
me. 825

And so do all other that beuty have.

In whose name at this tyme this sewt I
make,

Besechyng Iupytter to graunt that I
craue;

Whyche is this: that yt may please hym,
for our sake, 829

To sende us wether close and temperate,
No sonne-shyne, no frost, nor no wynde to blow.

Then wolde we get ¹ the stretes trym as a parate.²

Ye shold se how we wolde set our-selfe to show!

MERY-REPORTE. Iet where ye wyll, I swere, by Saynte Quintyne,

Ye passe them all, both in your owne con-ceyt and myne. 835

GENTYLWOMAN. If we had wether to walke at our pleasure,

Our lyves wolde be mery out of measure:
One part of the day for our apparelyng,
A nother parte for eatyng and drynk-
yng, 839
And all the reste in stretes to be walkyng,
Or in the house to passe tyme wyth talk-
yng.

MERY-REPORTE. When serve ye God?
GENTYLWOMAN. Who bosteth in vertue are but daws.¹

MERY-REPORTE. Ye do the better, namely syns there is no cause.
How spende ye the nyght?
GENTYLWOMAN. In daunsyng and syngyng 844
Tyll mydnyght, and then fall to slepyng.
MERY-REPORTE. Why, swete herte! by your false fayth, can ye syng?
GENTYLWOMAN. Nay, nay, but I love yt

MERY-REPORTE. Now, by my trowth, for the love that I owe you,
You shall here what pleasure I can shew

nay, syr, I wys ye. 865

MERY-REPORTE. What! yes, hardely!
Kys me ons and no more.

I never desyred to kys you before.

Here the Launder cometh in.

LAUNDER. Why! have ye alway kyst her behynde?

In fayth, good enough, yf yt be your
mynde. 869

And yf your appetyte serve you so to do,
Byr lady, I wolde ye had kyst myne ars,
to!

MERY-REPORTE. To whom dost thou speke, foule hore? canst thou tell?

LAUNDER. Nay, by my trouth, syr,¹ not very well;

But by coniecture this ges I have, 874
That I do speke to an olde baudy knave!

I saw you dally with your symper de cokket.²

I rede³ you beware she pyck not your pok-ket.

Such ydyl huswyfes do now and than Thynke all well wonne that they pyck from a man.

Yet such of some men shall have more favour 880

Then we, that for them dayly toyle and labour.

But I trust the god wyll be so indyfferent
That she shall fayle some parte of her en-tent.

MERY-REPORTE. No dout he wyll deale so gracyously 884

That all folke shall be served indyfferently.
How-be-yt, I tell the trewth, my offyce is suche

That I muste reporte eche sewt, lyttell or muche.

Wherefore, wyth the god syns thou canst not speke,

Trust me wyth thy sewt; I wyll not fayle yt to breke.⁴

LAUNDER. Then leane not to myche to yonder gyglet,¹ 890

For her desyre contrary to myne is set.

I herde by her tale she wolde banyshe the
sonne,

And then were we pore launders all un-donne.

Excepte the sonne shyne that our clothes may dry, 894

We can do ryght nought in our laundry.

A nother maner losse, yf we sholde mys,
Then of suche nycebyceters² as she is.

GENTYLWOMAN. I thynke yt better that thou envy me,

Then I sholde stande at rewarde³ of thy pytte.

It is the guyse of such grose queynes as thou art 900

Wyth such as I am evermore to thwart.

Bycause that no beauty ye can obtayne
Therefore ye have us that be fayre in dysdayne.

LAUNDER. When I was as yonge as thou art now,

I was wythin lyttell as fayre as thou; 905
And so myght have kept me, yf I hadde

wolde;

And as derely my youth I myght have solde

As the tryckest and fayrest of you all.
But I feared parel⁴ that after myght
fall. 909

Wherefore some besynes I dyd me provyde,
Lest vyce myght enter on every syde,

Whyche hath fre entre where ydylnesse doth reyne.

It is not thy beauty that I dysdeyne,
But thyne ydyl lyfe that thou hast re-hersed,

Whych any good womans hert wolde have perced.⁵ 915

For I perceyve in daunsynge and syngynge,
In eatynge and drynkyng, and thyne apparellynge,

Is all the ioye wherin thy herte is set.

But nought of all this doth thyne owne labour get;

For haddest thou nothyng but of thyne
owne travayle⁶ 920

Thou myghtest go as naked as my nayle.
Me-thynke thou shuldest abhorre suche
ydylnes,
And passe thy tyme in some honest besy-
nes.

Better to lese some parte of thy beaute 924
Then so ofte to ieoberd all thyne honeste.¹
But I thinke, rather then thou woldest so
do,

Thou haddest lever have us lyve ydylly to.
And so, no doute, we shulde, yf thou myghtest have
The clere sone banyshyt, as thou dost
crave!

Then were we launders marde; and unto
the 930
Thyne owne request were smale commoditye.

For of these twayne I thinke yt farre better

Thy face were sone-burned, and thy clothis
the swetter,²

Then that the sonne from shynynge sholde be smytten,

To kepe thy face fayre and thy smocke
beshytten. 935

SYT, howe lycke ye my reason in her case?

MERY-REPORTE. Such a raylynge hore, by the holy mas,

I never herde, in all my lyfe, tyll now!

In-dede, I love ryght well the ton of you;
But, or I wolde kepe you both, by goddes
mother, 940

The devyll shall have the tone to fet³ the
tother!

LAUNDER. Promise me to speke that the sone may shyne bryght,

And I wyll be gone quyckly for all nyght.

MERY-REPORTE. Get you both hens, I pray you hartely.

Your sewtes I perceyve, and wyll reporte them trewly 945

Unto Iupyer at the next leysure,
And, in the same, desyre to know his pleasure;

Whyche knowledge hadde, even as he doth show yt,

Feare ye not, tyme inough ye shall know

GENTYLWOMAN. SYT, yf ye medyll, remember me fyrste 950

LAUNDER. Then in this medlynge my

MERY-REPORTE. Now, I beseche our lorde, the devyll the burst!

Who medlyth wyth many I hold hym accurst,

Thou hore, can I medyl wyth you both at ones?

Here the Gentywoman goth forth.

LAUNDER. By the mas, knave, I wold I had both thy stones 955

In my purs, yf thou medyl not indyfferently, That both our maters in ysew may be lyckly.

MERY-REPORTE. Many wordes, lyttell mater, and to no purpose —

Suche is the effect that thou dost dys-
close. 959

The more ye byb,¹ the more ye babyll;
The more ye babyll, the more ye fabyll;

The more ye fabyll, the more unstabyll;
The more unstabyll, the more unabyll

In any maner thyng to do any good.
No hurt though ye were hanged, by the holy rood! 965

LAUNDER. The les your sylence, the lesse

The les your credens, the les your honeste;

The les your honeste, the les your as-systems;

The les your assystens, the les abylyte

In you to do ought. Wherefore, so god mo
save, 970

No hurte in hangynge such a raylynge
knave!

MERY-REPORTE. What monster is this! I never harde none suche!

For loke how myche more I have made her to myche;

And so farre, at lest, she hath made me to lyttell.

Wher be ye, Launder? I thinke in some spyttell.² 975

Ye shall washe me no gere, for feare of fret-ynge.³

I love no launders that shrynke my gere in wettyng.

I praye the go hens, and let me be in rest.
I wyll do thyne erand as I thinke best.

The lenger I lyve the more knave you!
MERY-REPORTE. The lenger thou lyvest
the pyte the gretter,
The soner thou be ryd, the tydynges the better!

[Exit the Launder.]

Is not this a swete offyce that I have, 984
When every drab shall prove me a knave?
Every man knoweth not what goddes servyce is;

Nor I my selfe knewe yt not before this.
I thinke goddes servauntes may lyve
holylly,

But the devyls servauntes lyve more
meryly.

I know not what god geveth in standynges fees, 990

But the devyls servauntes have cas-weltees¹

A hundred tymes mo then goddes servauntes have.

For, though ye be never so starke a knave,
If ye lacke money the devyll wyll do no wurse

But brynge you strayght to a nother mans purse. 995

Then wyll the devyll promote you here in this world,

As unto suche ryche² yt doth moste accord.

And then ye shall sens⁴ the shryfe wyth

The Boy comyth in, the lest that can play.

BOY. This same is even he, by al lyklyhod.

Syr, I pray you, be not you master god?

MERY-REPORTE. No, in good fayth, sonne. But I may say to the

I am suche a man that god may not mysse
me. 1005

Wherefore wyth the god yf thou woldest have ought done,

Tell me thy mynde, and I shall shew yt,
sone.

BOY. Forsothe, syr, my mynde is thys, at few wordes:

All my pleasure is in catchynge of byrdes,
And makyng of snow-ballys and throwyng
the same; 1010

For the whyche purpose to have set in frame,¹

Wyth my godfather god I wolde fayne have spoken,

Desyrynge hym to have sent me by some token

Where I myghte have had great frost for my pytfallys,

And plente of snow to make my snow-ballys. 1015

O, to se my snow-ballys lyght on my fel-

And to here the byrdes how they flycker

In the pytfale! I say yt passeth all thynges.

Syr, yf ye be goddes servaunt, or his kyns-
man, 1020

I pray you helpe me in this yf ye can.

MERY-REPORTE. Alas, pore boy, who sent the hether?

BOY. A hundred boys that stode together,

Where they herde one say in a cry
That my godfather, god almyghty, 1025

Was come from heven, by his owne ac-
corde,

This nyght to suppe here wyth my lorde;³
And farther he sayde, come whoso⁴ wull,

They shall sure have theyr bellyes full
Of all wethers, who lyste to crave, 1030

Eche sorte suche wether as they lyste to have.

And when my felowes thought this wolde be had,

And saw me so prety a pratelynge lad,
Uppon agrement, wyth a great noys,
"Sende lyttell Dycke!" cryed all the boys.

 Or lend us a bushell of snow, or twayne,

MERY-REPORTE. Ye, farewell, good sonne, wyth all my harte! 1050

Now suche an other sorte ⁴ as here hath
 bene

In all the dayes of my lyfe I have not sene!
 No sewters now but women, knavys, and boys;

And all theyr sewtys are in fansyes and toys! 1054

Yf that there come no wyser after thys cry
 I wyll to the god and make an ende quykely.

[He makes a proclamation to the audience.]

Oyes! yf that any knave here
 Be wyllynge to appere,
 For wether fowle or clere,
 Come in before thys flocke; 1060
 And be he hole or syckly,
 Come shew hys mynde quykely;
 And yf hys tale be not lykly ⁵
 Ye shall lyeke my tayle in the noeke.

[He pauses; no one advances.]

All thys tyme, I perceyve, is spent in wast To wayte for mo sewters. I se none make hast. 1066

Wherfore I wyll shew the god all thys

 And be delyvered of my symple ² offys.

[He goes to the throne of Jupyter.]

Now, lorde, accordynge to your com-
 maundement, 1069

Attendynge sewters I have ben dyligent.
 And, at begynnynge as your wyll was I sholde,

I come now at ende to shewe what eche man wolde.

The fyrst sewter before your selfe dyd ap-
 pere, —

A gentyman desyrynge wether clere, 1074
 Clowdy nor mysty, nor no wynde to blow, For hurt in hys huntynge. And then, as ye know,

The marcheant sewde for all of that kynde,
 For wether clere, and mesurable wynde,
 As they maye best bere theyr saylys to make spede.

And streyght after thys there came to me,
 in-dede, 1080

An other man, who namyd hym-selfe a ranger,

And sayd all of hys crafte be farre brought in daunger

For lacke of lyvynge, whyche chefely ys
 wynde-fall:

But he playnely sayth there bloweth no
 wynde at al;

Wherfore he desyreth, for encrease of theyr
 fleesys, ³ 1085

Extreme rage of wynde, trees to tere in peeces.

Then came a water-myller, and he cryed out

For water, and sayde the wynde was so stout

The rayne could not fale; wherfore he made request

For plenty of rayne to set the wynde at
 rest. 1090

And then, syr, there came a wyndemyller
 in,

Who sayde for the rayne he could no
 wynde wyn;

The water he wysht to be banyshd all,
 Beseehyng your grace of wynde contynu-
 all.

³ Plunder.

Then came there an other that wolde banyssh all this — 1095

A goodly dame, an ydyll thyng e iwys!
Wynde, rayne, nor froste, nor sonshyne, wold she have,

But fayre close wether, her beautye to save.
Then came there a nother that lyveth by laundry,

Who muste have wether hote and clere
here clothys to dry. 1100

Then came there a boy for froste and snow
contynual,

Snow to make snowballys, and frost for his pytfale;

For whyche, god wote, he seweth full gredely!

Your fyrst man wold have wether clere and not wyndy;

The seconde the same, save cooles to blow
meanly; ¹ 1105

The thyrd desyred stormes and wynde moste extremely;

The fourth all in water, and wolde have no
wynde;

The fyft no water, but al wynde to grynde;
The syxt wold have none of all these, nor no bright son;

The seventh extremely the hote son wold have wonne; 1110

The eyght, and the last, for frost and snow
he prayd.

Byr lady, we shall take shame, I am a-frayd!

Who marketh in what maner this sort is led
May thynke yt impossyble all to be sped.
This number is smale — there lacketh
twayne of ten — 1115

And yet, by the masse, amonge ten thousand men

No one thyng could stand more wyde from the tother!

Not one of theyr sewtes agreeth wyth an other.

I promise you, here is a shrewed pece of warke! 1119

This gere wyll trye wether ye be a clarke.
Yf ye trust to me, yt is a great foly;
For yt passeth my braynes, by goddes

deferd, 1134

So longe the bodyes in dystemperaunce be:
This perceyve ye all, but none can helpe save we.

But as we there have made peace con-
cordantly,

So woll we here now gyve you remedy.

GENTYLMAN. Pleaseth yt your maieste, lorde, so yt is,

We, as your subieetes and humble sewters
all,

Aecordynge as we here your pleasure is,
Arc presyd ⁴ to your presens, beyng pryn-cypall 1150

Hed and governour of all in every place.

Who ioeyth not in your syght, no ioy can have.

Wherfore we all commyt us to your grace

² Reached.

³ I have paid dear for them (i.e. the search was tedious).

⁴ Hurried.

As lorde of lordes us to peryshe¹ or save.

JUPYTER. As longe as dyscrecyon so well doth you gyde 1155

Obedyently to use your dewte,
Dout ye not we shall your savete provyde.
Your grevys we have harde; wherfore we sent for ye

To receyve answeere, eche man in his degre. 1159

And fyrst to content, most reason yt is,
The fyrste man that sewde; wherfore marke ye this:

Oft shall ye have the wether clere and styl
To hunt in for recompens of your payne.

Also you marchauntes shall have myche
your wyll;

For oft-tymes, when no wynde on lande
doth remayne, 1165

Yet on the see pleasaunt cooles you shall obtaine.

And syns your huntynge maye reste in the
nyght,

Oft shall the wynde then ryse, and before day-lyght.

It shall ratyll downe the wood in suche
case 1169

That all ye rangers the better lyve may.
And ye water-myllers shall obeyne this
grace —

Many tymes the rayne to fall in the valey,
When at the selfe tymes on hyllys we shall purvey

Fayre wether for your wyndmilles, with such coolys of wynde

As in one instant both kyndes of mylles may grynde. 1175

And for ye fayre women that close wether wold have,

We shall provyde that ye may suffyeyently
Have tyme to walke in, and your beauty
save.

And yet shall ye have, that lyveth by
laundry,

The hote sonne oft ynough your clothes to
dry. 1180

Also ye, praty chylde, shall have both frost and snow.

¹ Destroy.

Now marke this conclusyon, we charge you arow: ¹

Myche better have we now devysed for ye
all

Then ye all can perceyve, or coude desyre.
Eche of you sewd to have contynuall 1185
Suche wether as his crafte onely doth re-
quyre.

All wethers in all places yf men all tymes
myght hyer,

Who could lyve by other? What is this neglygens

Us to atempt in suche inconvenyens!

Now, on the tother syde, yf we had graunted 1190

The full of some one sewt, and no mo,
And from all the rest the wether had forbyd,

Yet who so hadde obtayned had wonne his owne wo.

There is no one craft can preserve man so,
But by other craftes, of necessity, 1195
He muste have myche parte of his commoditye.

All to serve at ones, and one destroy a nother,

Or ellys to serve one and destroy all the
rest, —

Nother wyll we do the tone nor the
tother,

But serve as many, or as few, as we thynke
best. 1200

And where, or what tyme, to serve moste or lest,

The dyreceyon of that doutles shall stande
Perpetually in the power of our hande.

Wherfore we wyll the hole worlde to at-tende

Eche sorte on suche wether as for them
doth fall, 1205

Now one, now other, as lyketh us to sende.
Who that hath yt, ply ² it; and suer we shall

So gyde the wether in course to you all,
That eche wyth other ye shall hole ³ re-
mayne 1209

In pleasure and plentyfull welth, certayne.

² Make use of it.

³ Whole, hale, sound.

GENTYLMAN. Blessyd was the tyme wherin we were borne!

Fyrst for the blyssfull chaunce of your godly
presens,

Next for our sewt. Was there never man
before

That ever harde so excellent a sentens 1214
As your grace hath geuyn to us all arow?
Wherin your hyghnes hath so bountyfully Dystrybuted my parte that your grace shall know

Your selfe sooll¹ possessed of hertes of all chyualry.

MARCHAUNT. Lyke-wyse we marchauntes shall yeld us holy,²

Onely to laude the name of Iupytter 1220
As god of all goddes, you to serve soolly;
For of every thyng, I se, you are norysher.

RANGER. No dout yt is so, for so we now
fynde.

Wherin your grace us rangers so doth bynde,
That we shall gyve you our hertes with one accorde, 1225

For knowledge to know you as our onely
lorde.

WATER MYLLER. Well, I can no more,
but — for our water
We shall geve your lordshyp Our Ladyes sauter.

WYNDE MYLLER. Myche have ye bounde us; for, as I be saved,

We have all obteyned better then we craved. 1230

GENTYLWOMAN. That is trew; wherefore your grace shal trewly

The hertes of such as I am have surely.

LAUNDER. And suche as I am — who be as good as you! —

¹ Solely.

² Wholly.

His hyghnes shall be suer on, I make a vow.

BOY. Godfather god, I wyll do somewhat for you agayne. 1235

By Cryste, ye may happe to have a byrd or twayne!

And I promyse you, yf any snow come,
When I make my snow-ballys ye shall have some.

MERY-REPORTE. God thanke your lord-shyp. Lo, how this is brought to pas!

Syrs, now shall ye have the wether even as yt was. 1240

JUPYTER. We nede no whyte our selfe any farther to bost,

For our dedes declare us apparauntly.

Not onely here on yerth, in every cost,

But also above in the hevynly company, 1244

Our prudens hath made peace unyversally; Whyche thyng, we sey, recordeth us as pryncypall

God and governour of heven, yerth, and all.

Now unto that heven we woll make re-tourne,

Where we be glorifyed most tryumphantly. 1249

Also we woll all ye that on yerth sojourne, Syns cause gyveth cause, to know us your lord onely,

And now here to syng moste joyfully,

Reioycynge in us. And in meane-tyme we shall

Ascende into our trone celestyall. 1254

¹ In the first quarter of the sixteenth century the scholars of England came under the influence of the great neo-classical revival of Roman plays inaugurated by the Italian academies, and English high schools and colleges began to present before school audiences (and occasionally, by invitation, before the Court and before persons of eminence) the comedies of Terence and Plautus. Though at first the students acted the original plays of the Roman dramatists, very soon they began to compose and present plays modeled after the classical masterpieces, some in Latin and some in English. The earliest of the English adaptations of the classical comedy that has come down to us is Roister Doister, written by Nicholas Udall, and, in all probability, while he was headmaster of Eton, 1534-41. The importance of the academic drama in calling attention to the technique of the classical drama (act- and scene-divisions, coherence of plot, the unities of time and place, the careful motivation of entrances and exits, etc.) is obvious. And in still another way, perhaps, the efforts of the scholars to revive the drama of the ancients exerted an influence upon the English drama. The great revival of interest in Roman plays led, especially in Italy, to a revival of interest in the classical mode of stage representation. With hints derived from Vitruvius, and under the inspiration of enthusiastic Italian scholars, the architects and painters began to develop theatres and stage-scenery for presenting plays in "the manner of the ancients." The scenery devised consisted usually of canvas stretched over wooden frames (called "players' houses"), and painted in perspective to represent a street. There were entrances at either side into the houses of the chief personages, and a passage or door at the end of the street, leading, as it were, into the town. The figure entitled "The Comical Scene," here reproduced from Serlio's The Second Book of Architecture, illustrates a rather elaborate setting for a comedy; in the English plays, no doubt, the setting was much simpler. The actors of Roister Doister, we may suppose, placed on one side the house of Dame Custance, on the other side the house of Royster, with a street in perspective between; and all the performers came in or went out at the doors of these two houses, or at the rear end of the street.

Only one copy of the play is extant (now preserved at Eton, and referred to hereafter as E.), and that lacks the title-page. The play, however, was licensed to Thomas Hacket in 1566/67, and was presumably issued shortly afterwards. I have based the text on Arber's reprint, with the corrections noted by Gayley (Representative English Comedies, 1903) as a result of his careful collation of this reprint with the unique copy at Eton. The punctuation and the bracketed stage-directions are mine.

THE PROLOGUE

What creature is in health, eyther yong or olde,
 But som mirth with modestie wil be glad to vse —
 As we in thys enterlude shall now vnfolde?
 Wherin all seurlitie we vtterly refuse;
 Auoiding such mirth wherin is abuse;
 Knowing nothing more commendable for a mans recreation
 Than mirth which is vsed in an honest fashion. 7

For myrth prolongeth lyfe, and causeth health;
 Mirth recreates our spirites, and voydeth pensiuenesse;
 Mirth increaseth amitie, not hindring our wealth;
 Mirth is to be vsed both of more and lesse,¹
 Being mixed with vertue in decent comlynesse —
 As we trust no good nature can gainsay the same.
 Which mirth we intende to vse, auoidyng all blame. 14

The wyse poets long time heretofore
 Vnder merrie comedies secretes did declare,
 Wherein was contained very vertuous lore,
 With mysteries and forewarnings very rare.
 Suche to write neither Plautus nor Terence dyd spare, Whiche among the learned at this day beares the bell.²
 These with such other therein dyd excell. 21

Our comedie, or enterlude, which we intende to play
 Is named "Royster Doyster," in-deede,
 Which against the vayne-glorious doth inuey,
 Whose humour the roysting sort continually doth feede.
 Thus, by your pacience, we intende to proceede
 In this our enterlude, by Gods leaue and grace.
 And here I take my leaue for a certaine space. 28

ACTUS I. SCÆNA I

MATHEWE MERYGREEKE.¹ He entreth singing.

[M. MERY.] As long lyueth the mery man, they say,
 As doth the sory man, and longer by a day;
 Yet the grassehopper, for all his sommer
 pipyng,
 Sterueth in winter wyth hungrie gripyng.
 Therefore an-other sayd sawe² doth men
 aduise 5

That they be together both mery and wise.
 Thys lesson must I practise, or else ere long Wyth mee, Mathew Merygreeke, it will be wrong.
 In-deede, men so call me; for, by Him that vs bought,
 What-euer chaunce betide, I can take no
 thought. 10
 Yet wisedom woulde that I did my-selfe
 bethinke
 Where to be prouided this day of meate and drinke;
 For knowe ye, that, for all this merie note of mine,

He might appose¹ me now that should aske where I diffe.
 My lyuing lieth heere, and there, of Gods
 grace: — 15
 Sometime wyth this good man, sometyme
 in that place;
 Sometime Lewis Loytrer biddeth me come
 neere;
 Somewhyles Watkin Waster maketh vs
 good cheere;
 Sometime Daury Diceplayer, when he hath well cast,
 Keepeth reuell-route as long as it will last; 20
 Sometime Tom Titiuile maketh vs a feast;
 Sometime with Sir Hugh Pye I am a bidden
 gecast;
 Sometime at Nichol Neuerthriues I get a soppe;
 Sometime I am feasted with Bryan Blink-insoppe;
 Sometime I hang on Hankyn Hoddydodies
 sleuce — 25
 But thys day, on Ralph Royster Doysters, by hys leue!
 For truly of all men he is my chiefe banker,
 Both for meate and money, and my chiefe shootanker.²
 For, sooth³ Roister Doister in that he doth
 say,
 And require what ye will; ye shall haue no
 nay. 30
 But now of Roister Doister somewhat to expresse,
 That ye may esteeme him after hys worthi-
 nesse:
 In these twentie townes, and seke them throughout,
 Is not the like stocke whereon to graffe a loute.
 All the day long is he facing and crak-ing⁴ 35
 Of his great actes in fighting and fraymaking;
 But, when Roister Doister is put to his
 prooffe,
 To keepe the Queenes⁵ peace is more for his behoofe.

If any woman smyle, or cast on hym an
 eye,
 Vp is he to the harde cares in loue by-and-by!¹ 40
 And in all the hotte haste must she be hys
 wife,
 Else farewell hys good days, and farewell
 his life!
 Maister Raufe Royster Doister is but dead and gon
 Excepte she on hym take some compassion.
 Then chiefe of counsell must be Mathew Merygreeke. 45
 "What if I for mariage to suche an one
 seeke?"
 Then must I sooth it, what-euer it is;
 For what he sayth or doth can not be amisse.
 Holde vp his yea and nay, be his nowne
 white sonne;²
 Prayse and rouse³ him well, and ye haue his heart wonne; 50
 For so well liketh he his owne fonde⁴ fashions
 That he taketh pride of false commendations.
 But such sporte haue I with him as I would not leese
 Though I should be bounde to lyue with bread and cheese.
 For exalt hym, and haue hym as ye lust,
 in-deede — 55
 Yea, to hold his finger in a hole for a neede.
 I can, with a worde, make him fayne or loth;
 I can, with as much, make him pleased or wroth;
 I can, when I will, make him mery and glad;
 I can, when me lust, make him sory and sad; 60
 I can set him in hope, and eke in dis-
 paire;
 I can make him speake rough, and make him speake faire.
 But I maruell I see hym not all thys same day.
 I wyll seeke him out. — But, loe! he commeth thys way!

I haue yond espied hym sadly coming, — 65
 And in loue, for twentie pounce, by hys glommyng! ¹

ACTUS I. SCÆNA II

[Enter] Rafe Roister Doister. Mathew Merygreeke [remains].

R. ROYSTER. Come, death, when thou wilt! I am weary of my life!

M. MERY. I tolde you, I, we should wowe another wife!

R. ROYSTER. Why did God make me suche a goodly person?

M. MERY. He is in by the weke. We shall haue sport anon.

R. ROYSTER. And where is my trustie friende, Mathew Merygreeke? 5

M. MERY. I wyll make as I sawe him not. He doth me seeke.

R. ROYSTER. I haue hym espyed, me thinketh; yond is hee.

Hough, Mathew Merygreeke, my friend! a worde with thee!

M. MERY. I wyll not heare him, but make as I had haste.

[Pretending to go.]

Farewell, all my good friendes! the tyme away dothe waste; 10

And the tide, they say, tarieth for no man!

R. ROYSTER. Thou must with thy good counsell helpe me if thou can.

M. MERY. God keepe thee, worshipfull Maister Roister Doister!

And fare-well the[e], lustie Maister Roister Doister!

[As he starts away, Roister Doister holds him.]

R. ROYSTER. I muste needes speake with thee a worde or twaine. 15

M. MERY. Within a month or two I will be here againe.

Negligence in greate affaires, ye knowe, may marre all.

R. ROYSTER. Attende vpon me now, and well rewarde thee I shall.

M. MERY. I haue take my leaue, and the tide is well spent.

¹ Scowling.

R. ROYSTER. I die except thou helpe! I pray thee, be content. 20

Doe thy parte wel, nowe, and aske what thou wilt;

For without thy aide my matter is all spilt.

M. MERY. Then, to serue your turne, I will some paines take,

And let all myne owne affaires alone — for your sake.

R. ROYSTER. My whole hope and trust resteth onely in thee. 25

M. MERY. Then can ye not doe amisse, what-euer it bee.

R. ROYSTER. Gramercies, Merygreeke! most bounde to thee I am.

M. MERY. But vp with that heart, and speake out like a ramme!

Ye speake like a capon that had the cough now.

Bee of good cheere! Anon ye shall doe well ynow. 30

R. ROYSTER. Vpon thy comforte I will all things well handle.

M. MERY. So, loe, that is a breast to blowe out a candle!

But what is this great matter, I woulde faine knowe?

We shall fynde remedie therefore, I trowe. Doe ye lacke money? Ye knowe myne olde offers; 35

Ye haue always a key to my purse and coffers.

R. ROYSTER. I thanke thee! Had euer man suche a frende?

M. MERY. Ye gyue vnto me; I must needes to you lende.

R. ROYSTER. Nay, I haue money plentie all things to discharge.

M. MERY. [aside]. That knewe I ryght well when I made offer so large. 40

R. ROYSTER.¹ But it is no suche matter. M. MERY. What is it, than?

Are ye in daunger of debte to any man? If ye be, take no thought, nor be not afraide;

Let them hardly take thought how they shall be paide.

R. ROYSTER. Tut! I owe nought!

M. MERY. What then? Fear ye imprisonment? 45

R. ROYSTER. No.

M. MERY. No, i-wist, ye offende not so to be shent.¹

But if ye² had, the Toure³ coulde not you so holde

But to breake out at all times ye would be bolde.

What is it? Hath any man threatned you to beate?

R. ROYSTER. What is he that durst haue put me in that heate? 50

He that beateth me — by His armes! — shall well fynde

That I will not be farre from him, nor runne behinde.⁴

M. MERY. That thing knowe all men euer
since ye ouerthrew

The fellow of the lion which Hercules slewe.
But what is it, than?

R. ROYSTER. Of loue I make my mone

M. MERY. Ah, this foolishe a loue! Wilt neare let vs alone? 56

But, bicause ye were refused the last day,⁵ Ye sayd ye would nere more be intangled that way.

I would medle no more, since I fynde all so vnkinde.

R. ROYSTER. Yea, but I can not so put loue out of my minde. 60

MATH. MER. But is your loue — tell me first, in any wise —

In the way of mariage, or of merchandise? ⁶

If it may otherwise than lawfull be founde, Ye get none of my helpe for a hundred pounde.

R. ROYSTER. No, by my trouth; I would haue hir to my wife. 65

M. MERY. Then are ye a good man, and God saue your life!

And what, or who, is she with whome ye are in loue?

R. ROYSTER. A woman, whome I knowe not by what meanes to moue.

M. MERY. Who is it?

R. ROYSTER. A woman, yond!

[He points to Custance's house]

M. MERY. What is hir name?

R. ROYSTER. Hir, yonder.

¹ Blamed.

² E. he.

³ The Tower of London.

⁴ The reader should observe the numerous double entendres.

⁵ Yesterday.

⁶ I.e., illicit love.

M. MERY. Whom?

R. ROYSTER. Mistresse — ah —

M. MERY. Fy, fy, for shame! 70 Loue ye, and know not whome, but “hir yonde,” “a woman”?

We shall then get you a wyfe I can not tell whan!

R. ROYSTER. The faire woman that supped wyth vs yesternyght;

And I hearde hir name twice or thrice, and had it ryght.

M. MERY. Yea, ye may see ye nere take me to good cheere with you; 75

If ye had, I coulde haue tolde you hir name
now.

R. ROYSTER. I was to blame in-deede; but the nexte tyme, perchance —

And she dwelleth in this house.

M. MERY. What! Christian Custance?

R. ROYSTER. Except I haue hir to my wife, I shall runne madde.

M. MERY. Nay, vnwise perhaps, but I warrant you for madde! 80

R. ROYSTER. I am vtterly dead vnlesse I haue my desire.

M. MERY. Where be the bellows that blewe this sodeine fire?

R. ROYSTER. I heare she is worthe a thousande pounde and more.

M. MERY. Yea, but learne this one lesson of me afore:

An hundred pounde of marriage-money,
doubtlesse, 85

Is euer thirtie pounde sterlyng, or somewhat lesse.

So that hir thousande pounde, yf she be thrifite,

Is muche neere about two hundred and fiftie.

Howbeit, wowers and widowes are neuer
poore!

R. ROYSTER. Is she a widowe? I loue hir better therefore. 90

M. MERY. But I heare she hath made promise to another.

R. ROYSTER. He shall goe without hir, and ¹ he were my brother!

M. MERY. I haue hearde say — I am right well aduised —

That she hath to Gawyn Goodlucke promised.

¹ If.

R. ROYSTER. What is that Gawyn Good-lucke?

M. MERY. A merchant man. 95

R. ROYSTER. Shall he speede afore me? Nay, sir, by sweete Sainct Anne!

Ah, sir, "Backare,"¹ quod Mortimer to his sowe.

I wyll haue hir myne owne selfe, I make God a-vow —

For, I tell thee, she is worthe a thousande pounde!

M. MERY. Yet a fitter wife for your maship might be founde. 100

Suche a goodly man as you might get one wyth lande,

Besides poundes of golde a thousande, and a thousande,

And a thousande, and a thousande, and a thousande,

And so to the summe of twentie hundred thousande.

Your most goodly personage is worthie of no lesse. 105

R. ROYSTER. I am sorie God made me so comely, doubtlesse;

For that maketh me eche-where so highly faoured,

And all women on me so enamoured.

M. MERY. "Enamoured," quod you? Haue ye spied out that?

Ah, sir, mary, nowe I see you know what is what. 110

"Enamoured," ka? Mary, sir, say that againe!

But I thought not ye had marked it so plaine.

R. ROYSTER. Yes, eche-where they gaze all vpon me, and stare.

M. MERY. Yea, Malkyn, I warrant you, as muche as they dare.

And ye will not beleue what they say in the streete 115

When your mashyp passeth by, all such as I meete,

That sometimes I can scarce finde what aunswere to make.

"Who is this?" sayth one, "Sir Launcelot du Lake?"

"Who is this? Greate Guy² of War-wike?" sayth an-other.

² E. Cuy.

"No," say I, "it is the thirteenth Hercules brother." 120

"Who is this? Noble Hector of Troy?" sayth the thirde.

"No, but of the same nest," say I, "it is a birde."

"Who is this? Greate Goliah, Sampson, or Colbrande?"

"No," say I, "but it is a brute of the Alic¹ Lande."

"Who is this? Greate Alexander? or Charle le Maigne?" 125

"No, it is the tenth Worthie," say I to them agayne.

I knowe not if I sayd well?

R. ROYSTER. Yes; for so I am.

M. MERY. Yea, for there were but nine Worthies before ye came.

To some others, the thirde Cato I doe you call.

And so, as well as I can, I aunswere them all. 130

"Sir, I pray you, what lorde, or great gentleman, is this?"

"Maister Ralph Roister Doister, dame," say I, ywis.

"O Lorde!" sayth she than, "what a goodly man it is!

Woulde Christ I had such a husbände as he is!"

"O Lorde," say some, "that the sight of his face we lacke!" 135

"It is inough for you," say I, "to see his backe;

His face is for ladies of high and noble parages.²

With whome he hardly scapeth great mariages";

With muche more than this — and much otherwise.

R. ROYSTER. I can³ thee thanke that thou canst suche answeres devise.

But I perceyue thou doste me throughly knowe. 141

M. MERY. I marke your maners for myne owne learnyng, I trowe.

But suche is your beautie, and suche are your actes,

Suche is your personage, and suche are your factes,⁴

¹ Holy?
² Give.

³ Lineage.
⁴ Deeds of prowess.

That all women, faire and fowle, more and
lesse, 145
They¹ eye you, they lubbe you, they talke of you doubtlesse.
Your p[leasant] looke maketh them all
merie;
Ye passe not by but they laugh till they be weric;
Yea, and money coulde I haue, the truthe
to tell,
Of many, to bryng you that way where they dwell. 150
R. ROISTER. Merygreeke, for this thy reporting well of mee —
M. MERY. What shoulde I else, sir? It is my duetie, pardee!
R. ROISTER. I promise thou shalt not lacke, while I haue a grote.
M. MERY. Faith, sir, and I nere had more nede of a newe cote.
R. ROISTER. Thou shalte haue one tomorrowe, and golde for to spende. 155
M. MERY. Then I trust to bring the day to a good ende;
For, as for mine owne parte, hauing money
inowe,
I could lyue onely with the remembrance of
you.
But nowe to your widowe, whome you loue
so hotte.
R. ROISTER. By Cocke, thou sayest truthe! I had almost forgotte. 160
M. MERY. What if Christian Custance will not haue you? what?
R. ROISTER. Haue me? yes, I warrant you, neuer doubt of that!
I knowe she loueth me, but she dare not speake.
M. MERY. In-deede, meete it were somebody should it breake.²
R. ROISTER. She looked on me twentie tymes yesternight, 165
And laughed so —
M. MERY. That she coulde not sitte vpright?
R. ROISTER. No, faith, coulde she not.
M. MERY. No, euen such a thing I cast.³
R. ROISTER. But, for wowyng, thou knowest, women are shamefast.

But, and she knewe my minde, I knowe she would be glad,
And thinke it the best chaunce that euer
she had. 170
M. MERY. Too hir, then, like a man, and be bolde forth to starte!
Wowers neuer speede well that haue a false harte.
R. ROISTER. What may I best doe?
M. MERY. Sir, remaine ye a while [here];¹
Ere long one or other of hir house will appere.
Ye knowe my minde.
R. ROISTER. Yea, now, hardly, lette me alone! 175
M. MERY. In the meane-time, sir, if you please, I wyll home
And call your musitians; for in this your case
It would sette you forth, and all your wowyng grace;
Ye may not lacke your instrumentes to play and sing.
R. ROISTER. Thou knowest I can doe that.
M. MERY. As well as any-thing. 180 Shall I go call your folkes, that ye may shewe a cast? ²
R. ROISTER. Yea, runne, I beseeche thee, in all possible haste.
M. MERY. I goe. Ereat.
R. ROISTER. Yea, for I loue singyng out of measure;
It comforteth my spirites, and doth me great pleasure.
But who commeth forth yond from my swete hearte Custance? 185
My matter frameth well; thys is a luckie
chaunce.

ACTUS I. SCÆNA III

[Enter] Mage Mumble-crust,³ spinning on the distaffe, Tibet Talk-apace, sowyng; [later enter] Annot Alyface, knittyng.
R. Roister [remains].

M. MUMBL. If thys distaffe were spoonne,
Margerie Mumblecrust — [Seating herself on the bench.]

TIB. TALK. Where good stale ale is, will drinke no water, I trust.

M. MUMBL. Dame Custance hath promised vs good ale and white bread —

TIB. TALK. If she kepe not promise I will beshrewe hir head!

But it will be starke nyght before I shall haue done. 5

R. ROYSTER. I will stande here a-while, and talke with them anon.

I heare them speake of Custance, which doth my heart good;

To heare hir name spoken doth euen comfort my blood.

M. MUMBL. Sit downe to your worke, Tibet, like a good girle.

TIB. TALK. Nourse, medle you with your spyndle and your whirle! 10

No haste but good, Madge Mumblecrust; for, whip and whurre,

The olde prouerbe doth say, neuer made good furre.

M. MUMBL. Well, ye wyll sitte downe to your worke anon, I trust.

TIB. TALK. Soft fire maketh sweete malte, good Madge Mumblecrust.

M. MUMBL. And sweete malte maketh ioly good ale for the nones. 15

TIB. TALK. Welche will slide downe the lane without any bones.

*She sings:*¹

Old browne bread crustes must haue much good numblyng,

But good ale downe your throte hath good easie tumbling.

R. ROYSTER. The iolyest wenche that ere I hearde! little mouse!

May I not reioyce that she shall dwell in my house? 20

[Tibet seats herself.]

TIB. TALK. So, sirrha,² nowe this geare beginneth for to frame.

M. MUMBL. Thanks to God, though your work stand stil, your tong is not lame!

TIB. TALK. And, though your teeth be gone, both so sharpe and so fine,

Yet your tongue can renne on patins³ as well as mine.

² Formerly used in addressing women as well as men.

³ Make a great clatter (as the feet do in pattens, or wooden shoes).

M. MUMBL. Ye were not for nought named Tyb Talke-apace. 25

TIB. TALK. Doth my talke grieue you? Alack, God saue your grace!

M. MUMBL. I holde¹ a grote ye will drinke anon for this geare.

TIB. TALK. And I wyll pray you the stripes for me to beare.

M. MUMBL. I holde a penny, ye will drink without a cup.

TIB. TALK. Wherein-so-ere ye drinke, I wote ye drinke all vp. 30

[Enter Annot Alyface knitting.]

AN. ALYFACE. By Cock!² and well sowed, my good Tibet Talke-apace!

TIB. TALK. And cen as well knitte, my nowne Annot Alyface!

R. ROYSTER. See what a sort³ she kepeth that must be my wife!

Shall not I, when I haue hir, leade a merrie life?

TIB. TALK. Welcome, my good wenche, and sitte here by me iust! 35

AN. ALYFACE. And howe doth our old beldame here, Mage Mumblecrust?

TIB. TALK. Chyde, and finde faultes, and threaten to complaine.

AN. ALYFACE. To make vs poore girles shent, to hir is small gaine.

M. MUMBL. I dyd neyther chyde, nor complaine, nor threaten.

R. ROYSTER. It woulde grieue my heart to see one of them beaten. 40

M. MUMBL. I dyd nothing but byd hir worke, and holde hir peace.

TIB. TALK. So would I, if you coulde your clattering cease;

But the deuill can not make olde trotte⁴ holde hir tong.

AN. ALYFACE. Let all these matters passe, and we three sing a song!

So shall we pleasantly bothe the tyme beguile now 45

And eke dispatche all our workes ere we can tell how.

TIB. TALK. I shrew them that say nay, and that shall not be I!

M. MUMBL. And I am well content.

TIB. TALK. Sing on, then, by-and-by.

² Retinue.

³ God.

⁴ Hag.

R. ROYSTER. And I will not away, but listen to their song.
Yet Merygreeke and my folkes tary very long. 50

Tib, An, and Margerie, doe singe here.

Pipe, mery Annot, etc.¹
Trilla, trilla, trillarie!
Worke, Tibet; worke, Annot; worke,
Margerie!
Sewe, Tibet; knitte, Annot; spinne,
Margerie!
Let vs see who shall winne the victorie. 55

TIB. TALK. This sleue is not willyng to be sewed, I trowe.
A small thing might make me all in the grounde to throwe!

Then they sing agayne.

Pipe, merrie Annot, etc.
Trilla, trilla, trillarie!
What, Tibet? what, Annot? what,
Margerie? 60
Ye sleepe, but we doe not, that shall we trie.
Your fingers be nombde, our worke will not lie.

TIB. TALK. If ye doe so againe, well, I would aduise you nay.
In good sooth, one stoppe more, and I make holy-day.

They singe the thirde tyme.

Pipe, mery Annot, etc. 65
Trilla, trilla, trillarie!
Nowe, Tibbet; now, Annot; nowe,
Margerie!
Nowe whippet apace for the maystrie!
But it will not be, our mouth is so drie.

TIB. TALK. Ah, eche finger is a thombe to-day, me thinke! 70
I care not to let all alone, choose it swimme or sinke!

They sing the fourth tyme.

Pipe, mery Annot, etc.
Trilla, trilla, trillarie!

¹ I suppose etc. is to be expanded as Pipe, Tibet; pipe, Margerie! — Manly.

When, Tibet? when, Annot? when,
Margerie?
I will not! I can not! No more can I! 75
Then giue we all oucr, and there let it
lye!

Lette hir [Tibet] caste downe hir worke.

TIB. TALK. There it lieth! The worste is but a curried cote.¹

Tut, I am vsed therto; I care not a grote!

AN. ALYFACE. Hauē we done singyng sincē? Then will I in againe.

Here I founde you, and here I leaue both twaine. Exeat. 80

M. MUMBL. And I will not be long after.
[She spies Roister.] Tib Talke-apace!

TIB. TALK. What is the matter?

M. MUMB. Yond stode a man al this space,
And hath hearde all that euer we spake to-gyther.

TIB. TALK. Mary! the more loute he for his comming hither!

And the lesse good he can, to listen maidens talke! 85
I care not and I go byd him hence for to walke.

It were well done to knowe what he maketh
here-away.

R. ROYSTER. Nowe myght I speake to them, if I wist what to say.

M. MUMBL. Nay, we will go both off, and see what he is.

*[They approach him.]*²

R. ROYSTER. One that hath hearde all your talke and singyng, ywis. 90

TIB. TALK. The more to blame you! A good thriftie husbände³ Woulde elsewhere haue had some better matters in hande.

R. ROYSTER. I dyd it for no harme, but for good loue I beare

To your dame, Mistresse Custance, I did your talke heare.

And, mistresse nource, I will kisse you for acquaintance. 95

M. MUMBL. I come anon,⁴ sir.

² Added by Manly.

³ One who manages his affairs with care.

⁴ At once, without delay.

TIB. TALK. Faith, I would our dame
Custance
Sawe this geare!

M. MUMBL. I must first wipe al cleane, yea, I must!

[She wipes her mouth with her apron.]

TIB. TALK. Ill chieue¹ it, dotyng foole, but it must be cust!

[Roister kisses Madge.]

M. MUMBL. God yelde² you, sir! Chad not so much ichotte³ not whan, Nere since chwas bore, chwine, of such a gay gentleman! 100

R. ROYSTER. I will kisse you, too, maiden, for the good will I beare
you.

TIB. TALK. No, forsoth, by your leaue, ye shall not kisse me!

R. ROYSTER. Yes; be not afearde; I doe not disdayne you a whit.

TIB. TALK. Why shoulde I feare you? I haue not so little wit.

Ye are but a man, I knowe very well.

R. ROYSTER. Why, then? 105

TIB. TALK. Forsooth, for I wyll not. I vse not to kisse men.

R. ROYSTER. I would faine kisse you too, good maiden, if I myght.

TIB. TALK. What shold that neede?

R. ROYSTER. But to honor you, by this
light!

I vse to kisse all them that I loue, to God I vowe.

TIB. TALK. Yea, sir, I pray you, when dyd ye last kisse your cove? 110

R. ROYSTER. Ye might be proude to kisse me, if ye were wise.

TIB. TALK. What promotion were there-
in?

R. ROYSTER. Nurse is not so nice.

TIB. TALK. Well, I haue not bene taught to kissing and licking.

R. ROYSTER. Yet I thanke you, mistresse nurse, ye made no sticking.

M. MUMBL. I will not sticke for a kosse with such a man as you! 115

TIB. TALK. They that lust! I will againe to my sewyng now.

[Re-enter Annot Alyface.]

AN. ALYFAC[E]. Tidings, hough! tidings!
Dame Custance greeteth you well!

R. ROYSTER. Whome? me?

AN. ALYFACE. You, sir? no, sir; I do no suche tale tell.

R. ROYSTER. But, and she knewe me
here —

AN. ALYFACE. Tybet Talke-apace, Your mistresse, Custance, and mine, must speake with your grace. 120

TIB. TALK. With me?

AN. ALYFACE. Ye muste come in to hir, out of all doutes.

TIB. TALK. And my work not half done!
A mischief on all loutes!

[Ex[eant] am[bae. Roister and Madge Mumblecrust are left alone.]

R. ROYSTER. Ah, good, sweet nurse!

M. MUMBL. A, good, sweete gentleman!

R. ROYSTER. What?

M. MUMBL. Nay, I can not tel, sir; but what thing would you?

R. ROYSTER. Howe dothe sweete Custtance, my heart of gold, tell me how? 125

M. MUMBL. She dothe very well, sir, and commaunde me¹ to you.

R. ROYSTER. To me?

M. MUMBL. Yea, to you, sir.

R. ROYSTER. To me? Nurse, tel me plain, —

To me?

M. MUMBL. Ye.

R. ROYSTER. That word maketh me alieue again!

M. MUMBL. She commaunde me to one last day, who-ere it was.

R. ROYSTER. That was een to me and none other, by the masse! 130

M. MUMBL. I can not tell you surely, but one it was.

R. ROYSTER. It was I and none other.
This commeth to good passe!

I promise thee, nurse, I fauour hir.

M. MUMBL. Een so, sir.

R. ROYSTER. Bid hir sue to me for mariage.

¹ Presents her kind regards to you.

³ Ich wott, I know. The pronominal form ich and its compounds (ich had, chad; ich was, chwas; ich ween, chwine; etc.) was the stage dialect of the rustie.

- M. MUMBL. Een so, sir.
 R. ROYSTER. And surely, for thy sake, she shall speede.
 M. MUMB. Een so, sir. 135
 R. ROYSTER. I shall be contented to take hir.
 M. MUMB. Een so, sir.
 R. ROYSTER. But at thy request, and for thy sake.
 M. MUMB. Een so, sir.
 R. ROYSTER. And, come hearke in thine eare what to say.
 M. MUMB. Een so, sir.

Here lette him tell hir a great long tale in hir eare.

ACTUS I. SCÆNA III

[Enter at a distance] Maihew Merygreeke, Dobinet Doughtie, Harpax [and Musicians]. Ralph Royster [and] Margerie Mumblecrust [remain whispering].

- M. MERY. Come on, sirs, apace; and quite your-selues like men.
 Your pains shalbe rewarded.
 D. DOU. But I wot not when.
 M. MERY. Do your maister worship as ye haue done in time past.
 D. DOUGH. Speake to them; of mine office he shall haue a cast.
 M. MERY. Harpax, looke that thou doe well, too, and thy fellow. 5
 HARPAX. I warrant, if he will myne example folowe.
 M. MERY. Curtsie, whooresons; douke you and crouche at euery worde!
 D. DOUGH. Yes, whether our maister speake earnest or borde.¹
 M. MERY. For this lieth vpon² his preferment indeede.
 D. DOUGH. Oft is hee a wower, but neuer doth he speede. 10
 M. MERY. But with whome is he nowe so sadly roundyng³ yond?
 D. DOUGH. With *Nobs nicebecctur miserere*⁴ fonde.

[Merygreeke advances and pretends to think Mumblecrust Roister's bride.]

- [M.] MERY. God be at your wedding!
 Be ye spedde alreddie?
 I did not suppose that your loue was so greedie.
 I perceiue nowe ye haue chose of deuotion; 15
 And ioy haue ye, ladie, of your promotion!
 R. ROYSTER. Tushe, foole, thou art deceiued; this is not she.
 M. MERY. Well, mocke muche of hir, and keepe hir well, I vise ye;
 I will take no charge of such a faire piece keeping.
 M. MUMBL. What ayleth thys fellowe?
 He driueth me to weeping. 20
 M. MERY. What! weepe on the wedding day? Be merrie, woman!
 Though I say it, ye haue chose a good gentleman.
 R. ROYSTER. Kocks nownes!¹ what meanest thou man? tut a whistle!
 [M. MERY.]² Ah, sir, be good to hir; she is but a gristle!
 Ah, sweete lambe and coney!³
 R. ROYSTER. Tut, thou art deceiued! 25
 M. MERY. Weepe no more, lady; ye shall be well receiued.

[To the musicians.]

- Vp wyth some mery noyse, sirs, to bring home the bride!
 R. ROYSTER. Gogs armes, knaue! Art thou madde? I tel thee thou art wide.
 M. MERY. Then ye entende by nyght to haue hir home brought?
 R. ROYSTER. I tel thee, no!
 M. MERY. How then?
 R. ROYSTER. Tis neither ment ne thought. 30
 M. MERY. What shall we then doe with hir?
 R. ROYSTER. Ah, foolish harebraine! This is not she!
 M. MERY. No is? Why then, vnsayde againe!
 And what yong girle is this with your mashyp so bolde?
 R. ROYSTER. A girle?

¹ Jest.

² Is necessary to.

³ Whispering.

⁴ Dear dainty-girl, have mercy!

³ Rabbit, a term of endearment.

M. MERY. Yea; I dare say scarce yet three-score yere old.

R. ROYSTER. This same is the faire widowes nourse of whome ye wotte. 35

M. MERY. Is she but a nourse of a house?
Hence home, olde trotte! ¹

Hence at once!

R. ROYSTER. No! no!

M. MERY. What! an please your maship

A nourse talke so homely ² with one of your worship?

R. ROYSTER. I will haue it so: it is my pleasure and will.

M. MERY. Then I am content. Nourse, come againe; tarry still. 40

R. ROYSTER. What! she will helpe forward this my sute for hir part.

M. MERY. Then ist mine owne pygs-nie, ³ and blessing on my hart!

R. ROYSTER. This is our best friend, man!

M. MERY. Then teach hir what to say.

M. MUMBL. I am taught alreadie.

M. MERY. Then go, make no delay!

R. ROYSTER. Yet hark one word in thine care. [He begins again to whisper.]

M. MERY. Back, sirs from his taile! 45

[Merygreek pushes the musicians on Roister.]

R. ROYSTER. Backe vilaynes! Will ye be priuie of my counsaile?

M. MERY. Backe, sirs! so! I tolde you afore ye woulde be shent!

[He pushes them away from Roister.]

R. ROYSTER. She shall haue the first day a whole pecke of argent.

M. MUMBL. A pecke! Nomine Patris!
haue ye so much spare?

R. ROYSTER. Yea, and a carte-lode therto, or else were it bare, ⁴ 50

Besides other mouables, housholde stuffe and lande.

M. MUMBL. Haue ye lands too?

R. ROYSTER. An hundred marks.

M. MERY. Yea, a thousand!

M. MUMBL. And haue ye cattell too? and sheepe too?

R. ROYSTER. Yea, a fewe.

¹ Hag.

² Intimately.

³ Pig's eye, a term of endearment.

⁴ Perhaps this speech should be assigned to Mery-greek.

M. MERY. He is ashamed the numbre of them to shewe.

Een rounde about him as many thousande
sheepe goes 55

As he and thou and I too haue fingers and toes.

M. MUMBL. And how many yeares olde be you?

R. ROYSTER. Fortie at lest.

M. MERY. Yea, and thrice fortie to them!

R. ROYSTER. Nay, now thou dost iest:
I am not so olde; thou misreekonest my yeares.

M. MERY. I know that; but my minde was on bullockes and steeres. 60

M. MUMBL. And what shall I shewe hir your masterships name is?

R. ROYSTER. Nay, she shall make sute ere she know that, ywis!

M. MUMBL. Yet let me somewhat knowe.

M. MERY. This is hee, vnderstand, That killed the Blewe Spider in Blanchepouder Lande.

M. MUMBL. Yea, Iesus! William! Zee law! Dyd he zo? Law! 65

M. MERY. Yea, and the last elephant that euer he sawe;

As the beast passed by, he start out of a buske,

And een with pure strength of armes pluckt out his great tuske.

M. MUMBL. Iesus! Nomine Patris! what a thing was that!

R. ROYSTER. Yea, but, Merygreke, one thing thou hast forgot. 70

M. MERY. What?

R. ROYSTER. Of thother elephant.

M. MERY. Oh, hym that fledde away?

R. ROYSTER. Yea.

M. MERY. Yea! he knew that his match was in place that day.

Tut, he bet the King of Crickets on Christmasse-day,

That he crept in a hole, and not a worde to
say!

M. MUMBL. A sore ¹ man, by zembletee!

M. MERY. Why, he wrong a club 75

Once, in a fray, out of the hande of Belze-bub.

R. ROYSTER. And how when Mumfision?

M. MERY. Oh, your coustrelyng ²

² Groom, lad.

Bore the lanterne a-fielde so before the gozelyng —

Nay, that is to long a matter now to be tolde!

Neuer aske his name, nurse! I warrant thee, be bolde. 80

He conquered in one day from Rome to Naples,

And woonne townes, nourse, as fast as thou canst make apples.

M. MUMBL. O Lorde! My heart quaketh for feare! He is to sore!

R. ROYSTER. Thou maekest hir to much afearde. Merygreecke, no more!

This tale woulde feare my sweete heart
Custance right euill. 85

M. MERY. Nay, let hir take him, nurse — and feare not the deuill!

But this is our song dasht. Sirs, ye may home againe.

R. ROYSTER. No, shall they not! I charge you all here to remaine.

The villaine slaues! a whole day ere they can be founde!

M. MERY. Couche! On your marybones, whoosons! Down to the ground!

[They kneel before Roister.]

Was it meete he should tarie so long in one
place 91

Without harmonie of musike, or some solace?

Who-so hath suche bees as your maister in hys head

Had neede to haue his spirites with musike to be fed.

By your maisterships licence!

[Picks something from his coat.]

R. ROYSTER. What is that? a moate?

M. MERY. No; it was a foolles feather had light on your coate. 96

R. ROYSTER. I was nigh no feathers since
I came from my bed.

M. MERY. No, sir, it was a haire that was fall from your hed.

R. ROYSTER. My men com when it ples
them. —

M. MERY. By your leue!

[Brushes something from his gown.]

R. ROYSTER. What is that?

M. MERY. Your gown was foule spotted with the foot of a gnat. 100

R. ROYSTER. Their maister to offende
they are nothing afearde.

[Merygreeke picks something from Roister's doublet.]

What now?

M. MERY. A lousy haire from your masterships beard.

ALL SERVANTS.¹ And, sir, for nurses sake, pardon this one offence.

We shall not after this shew the like negligence.

R. ROYSTER. I pardon you this once; and come sing nere the wurse! 105

M. MERY. How like you the goodnesse of this gentleman, nurse?

M. MUMBL. God saue his maistership that so can his men forgeue!

And I wyll heare them sing ere I go, by his leau.

R. ROYSTER. Mary, and thou shalt, wenche!
Come, we two will daunce!

M. MUMBL. Nay, I will by myne owne selfe foote the song perchance.

R. ROYSTER. Go to it, sirs, lustily!

M. MUMBL. Pipe vp a mery note.
Let me heare it playde, I will foote it, for a grote! 112

[They sing,² while Mumblecrust foots it.]

Who-so to marry a minion wife

Hath hadde good chauce and happe,
Must loue hir and cherishe hir all his life,
And dandle hir in his lappe. 116

If she will fare well, yf she wyll go gay,
A good husbände euer styll,
What-euer she lust to doe or to say,
Must lette hir haue hir owne will. 120

About what affaires so-euer he goe,
He must shewe hir all his mynde;
None of hys counsell she may be kept froe,³
Else is he a man vnkynde. 124

R. ROYSTER [producing a letter]. Now, nurse, take thys same letter here to thy mistresse;

² E. Content. The song is printed at the end of the play, and entitled "The Seconde Song."

³ E. free; corr. by Cooper.

And, as my trust is in thee, plie my busi-
nesse.

M. MUMBL. It shalbe done.

M. MERY. Who made it?

R. ROYSTER. I wrote it, ech whit.

M. MERY. Then nedes it no mending.

R. ROYSTER. No, no!

M. MERY. No; I know your wit;
I warrant it wel.

M. MUMBL. It shal be deliuered.

But, if ye speede, shall I be considered? 130

M. MERY. Whough! dost thou doubt of that?

MADGE. What shal I haue?

M. MERY. An hundred times more than thou canst deuise to craue.

M. MUMBL. Shall I haue some newe geare? ¹ for my olde is all spent.

M. MERY. The worst kitchen wench shall goe in ladies rayment.

M. MUMBL. Yea?

M. MERY. And the worst drudge in the house shal go better 135

Than your mistresse doth now.

M. MUMBL.² Then I trudge with your letter.

[Exit Mumblecrust into the house.]

R. ROYSTER. Now may I repose me,
Custance is mine owne.

Let vs sing and play homeward, that it may be knowne.

M. MERY. But are you sure that your letter is well enough?

R. ROYSTER. I wrote it my-selfe!

M. MERY. Then sing we to dinner! 140

Here they sing, and go out singing.

ACTUS I. SCÆNA V

[Enter] Christian Custance [with the letter, unopened; followed by] Margerie Mumblecrust.

C. CUSTANCE. Who tooke ³ thee thys letter, Margerie Mumblecrust?

M. MUMBL. A lustie gay bachelor tooke
it me of trust;

And if ye seeke to him, he will lowe ⁴ your doing.

¹ Clothes.

² Gave.

³ E. Mar. (i.e. Margery).

⁴ Allow.

C. CUSTANCE. Yea, but where learned he that manner of wowing?

M. MUMBL. If to sue to hym you will any paines take, 5

He will haue you to his wife, he sayth, for my sake.

C. CUSTANCE. Some wise gentleman, be-like! I am bespoken; ¹

And I thought, verily, thys had bene some token

From my dere spouse, Gawin Goodluck;
whom, when him please,

God luckily sende home to both our heartes ease! 10

M. MUMBL. A ioyly man it is, I wote well
by report,

And would haue you to him for marriage resort.

Best open the writing, and see what it doth
speake.

C. CUSTANCE. At thys time, nourse, I will neither reade ne breake.

M. MUMBL. He promised to giue you a whole pecke of golde. 15

C. CUSTANCE. Perchaunce lacke of a pynte, when it shall be all tolde!

M. MUMBL. I would take a gay, riche husbande, and I were you.

C. CUSTANCE. In good sooth, Madge, een so would I, if I were thou.

But no more of this fond talke now; let vs go in.

And see thou no more moue me folly to begin, 20

Nor bring mee no mo letters for no mans
pleasure,

But thou know from whom.

M. MUMBL. I warrant ye, shall be sure!

[Exeunt into the house.]

ACTUS II. SCÆNA I

[Enter] Dobinet Doughtie [Roister's page].

D. DOUGH. Where is the house I goe to?
before or behinde?

I know not where, nor when, nor how, I shal it finde.

If I had ten mens bodies and legs and strength,

This trotting that I haue must needes lame me at length.
And nowe that my maister is new set on wowyng, 5
I trust there shall none of vs finde lacke of doying.
Two paire of shoes a day will nowe be too litle
To serue me, I must trotte to and fro so mickle.
"Go beare me thys token!" "Carrie me this letter!"
"Nowe this is the best way"; "nowe that way is better!" 10
"Vp before day, sirs, I charge you, an houre or twaine!"
"Trudge!" "Do me thys message, and bring worde quicke againe!"
If one misse but a minute, then: "His armes and woundes,
I woulde not haue slacked for ten thousand poundes!
Nay, see, I beseeche you, if my most trustie page 15
Goe not nowe aboute to hinder my marriage!"
So feruent hotte wowyng, and so farre
from wiuing,
I trowe neuer was any creature liuyng.
With euery woman is he in some loues pang.
Then vp to our lute at midnight, twangledome twang; 20
Then twang with our sonets, and twang with our dumps,¹
And heyhough from our heart, as heaue as lead lumpes;
Then to our recorder,² with toodleloodle
poope,
As the howlet out of an yuie bushe should hoope;
Anon to our gitterne,³ thrumpledum,
thrumpledum thrum, 25
Thrumpledum, thrumpledum, thrumpledum, thrumpledum thrum!
Of songs and balades also he is a maker,
And that can he as finely doe as Iacke
Raker;⁴
Yea, and extempore will he dities compose, —

¹ Mournful songs.² A wind instrument like the flute.³ A stringed instrument like the guitar.⁴ Proverbial as a writer of bad verse.

Foolishe Marsias nere made the like, I suppose! 30
Yet must we sing them; as good stuffe, I vndertake,
As for such a pen-man is well-fitting to
make.
"Ah, for these long nights! heyhow! when will it be day?
I feare, ere I come, she will be wowed away."
Then, when aunswere is made that it may not bee, 35
"O death, why comdest thou not by-and-
by?" sayth he.
But then, from his heart to put away sor-
owe,
He is as farre in with some newe loue next morowe.
But in the meane season we trudge and we trot;
From dayspring to midnyght I sit not nor rest not. 40
And now am I sent to Dame Christian
Custance;
But I feare it will ende with a mocke for pastance.
I bring hir a ring, with a token in a cloute;¹
And, by all gesse,² this same is hir house,
out of doute.
I knowe it nowe perfect, I am in my right
way. 45
And loe yond the olde nourse that was wyth vs last day!

ACTUS II. SCÆNA II

[Enter hurriedly] Mage Mumblecrust. Dobi-net Doughtie [remains].

M. MUMBL. I was nere so shoke vp afore since I was borne!
That our mistresse coulde not haue chid, I wold haue sworne;
And I pray God I die if I ment any harme.
But, for my life-time, this shall be to me a charme!³
D. DOUGH. God you saue and see, nurse!
And howe is it with you? 5 M. MUMBL. Mary, a great deale the worse it is, for suche as thou!

duct in the future.

D. DOUGH. For me? Why so?
M. MUMBL. Why, wer not thou one of them, say,

That song and playde here with the gentleman last day?

D. DOUGH. Yes; and he would know if you haue for him spoken;
And prayes you to deliuer this ring and
token. 10

M. MUMBL. Nowe, by the token that God tokened, brother,

I will deliuer no token, one nor other!
I haue once ben so shent for your maisters
pleasure
As I will not be agayne for all hys treasure.

D. DOUGH. He will thank you, woman.

M. MUMBL. I will none of his thanke.

Ex[it into the house].

D. DOUGH. I weene I am a prophete! this geare will proue blanke! 16

But what! should I home againe without answere go?

It were better go to Rome on my head than
so.

I will tary here this moneth but some of the house

Shall take it of me; and then I care not a louse. 20

But yonder commeth forth a wenche — or,
a ladde;

If he haue not one Lumbardes touche,¹ my lucke is bad.

ACTUS II. SCÆNA III

[Enter] Trupeny. D. Dough[ie remains].
Tibet T[alk-apace and] Anot Al[yface enter later].

TRUPENY. I am cleane lost for lacke of mery companie!

We gree not halfe well within, our wenches and I.

They will commaunde like mistresses; they will forbyd;

If they be not serued, Trupeny must be chyd.

Let them be as mery nowe as ye can desire, 5

¹ Coin of Lombardy, with a pun on the meaning of Loubard, a pawnbroker.

With turnyng of a hande our mirth lieth in the mire!

I can not skill of such chaungeable mettle;
There is nothing with them but "in docke, out nettle!"

D. DOUGH. Whether is it better that I speake to him furst, Or he first to me? It is good to cast the wurst. 10

If I beginne first he will smell all my purpose;

Otherwise, I shall not neede any-thing to disclose.

TRUPENY. What boy haue we yonder? I will see what he is.

D. DOUGH. He commeth to me. [Pretends to be looking for a house.] It is hereabout, ywis.

TRUPENY. Wouldest thou ought, friende, that thou lookest so about? 15

D. DOUGH. Yea; but whether ye can helpe me or no, I dout.

I seeke to one Mistresse Custance house, here dwellyng.

TRUPENY. It is my mistresse ye seeke too, by your telling.

D. DOUGH. Is there any of that name heere but shee?

TRUPENY. Not one in all the whole towne that I knowe, pardee. 20

D. DOUGH. A widowe she is, I trowe?

TRUPENY. And what and she be?

D. DOUGH. But ensured to an husbände?

TRUPENY. Yea, so thinke we.

D. DOUGH. And I dwell with hir hus-bände that trusteth to be.

TRUPENY. In faith, then must thou needes be welcome to me.

Let vs for acquaintance shake handes together; 25

And, what-ere thou be, heartily welcome
hither!

[Enter Tibet and Anot.]

TIB. TALK. Well, Trupeny, neuer but flinging? ¹

AN. ALYFACE. And frisking?

TRUPENY. Well, Tibet and Annot, still swyngyng and whiskyng?

TIB. TALK. But ye roile ² abroad.

AN. ALYFACE. In the streete, cucrwhere.

² Gad about.

TRUPIENE. Where are ye twaine, in chambers, when ye mete me there? ¹ 30
But come hither, fooles; I haue one nowe
by the hande, Seruant to hym that must be our mistresse
husbande.
Byd him welcome.
AN. ALYFACE. To me, truly, is he welcome!
TIB. TALK. Forsooth, and as I may say, heartily welcome!
D. DOUGH. I thank you, mistresse maidens.
AN. ALYFACE. I hope we shal better
know. 35
TIB. TALK. And when wil our new master
come?
D. DOUGH. Shortly, I trow.
TIB. TALK. I would it were to-morow;
for, till he resorte,
Our mistresse, being a widow, hath small
comforte.
And I hearde our nourse speake of an husbande to-day
Ready for our mistresse, a riche man and a gay; 40
And we shall go in our Frenche hoodes
euery day,
In our silke cassocks, I warrant you, freshe
and gay,
In our tricke ferdegews ² and billiments ³ of golde,
Braue ⁴ in our sutes of change seuen double folde.
Then shall ye see Tibet, sirs, treade the mosse so trimme, —
Nay, why sayd I treade? ye shall see hir glide and swimme, 46
Not lumperdee clumperdee like our spaniell Rig.

[She struts like a grand lady.]

TRUPENY. Mary, then, prickmedaintie, ⁵ come toste me a fig!
Who shall then know our Tib Talke-apace, trow ye?

¹ I.e. "Are you two in-doors when you meet me in the street?"

² Trim farthingales.

³ Head-dresses.

⁴ Handsome.

⁵ One who is ridiculously finical in matters of dress.

AN. ALYFACE. And why not Annot Alyface as fyne as she? 50 TRUPENY. And what! had Tom Trupeny a father, or none?

AN. ALYFACE. Then our prety newecome man will looke to be one.

TRUPENY. We foure, I trust, shall be a ioily, mery knot! ¹

Shall we sing a fitte to welcome our friende, Annot?

AN. ALYFACE. Perchaunce he can not sing.

D. DOUGH. I am at all assayes. ²

TIB. TALK. By Coecke, and the better welcome to vs alwayes! 56

Here they sing:

A thing very fitte
For them that haue witte,
And are felowes knitte,
Seruants in one house to bce,
Is fast ³ for to sitte,
And not oft to flitte,
Nor varie a whitte,
But louingly to agree. 64

No man complainyng,
Nor other disdaynyng,
For losse or for gainyng,
But felowes or friends to bee;
No grudge remainyng,
No worke refrainyng,
Nor helpe restrainyng,
But louingly to agree. 72

No man for despite
By worde or by write
His felowe to twite, ⁴
But further in honestie;
No good turnes entwite, ⁵
Nor olde sores recite,
But let all goe quite,
And louingly to agree. 80

After drudgerie,
When they be werie,
Then to be merie,
To laugh and sing they be free;
With chip and cherie

¹ Group.

² Attempts.

³ E. Is fast fast

⁴ Blame.

⁵ Rebuke.

Heigh derie derie,
Trill on the berie,¹

And louingly to agree. 88

Finis.

TIB. TALK. Wyll you now in with vs vnto our mistresse go?

D. DOUGH. I haue first for my maister an errand or two.

But I haue here from him a token and a ring;

They shall haue moste thanke of hir that first doth it bring.

TIB. TALK. [snatching]. Mary, that will I!

TRUPENY. See and Tibet snatch not now!

TIB. TALK. And why may not I, sir, get thanks as well as you?

Exeat [Tibet hastily into the house].

AN. ALYFACE. Yet get ye not all; we will go with you both, 95

And haue part of your thanks, be ye neuer so loth!

Exeat omnes [in haste after Tibet].

D. DOUGH. So my handes are ridde of it,
I care for no more.

I may now return home; so durst I not afore. Exeat.

ACTUS II. SCÆNA III

[Enter] C. CUSTANCE, Tibet, Annot Alyface, [and] Trupeny.

C. CUSTANCE. Nay, come forth all three!
and come hither, pretie mayde!

Will not so many forewarnings make you afrayde?

TIB. TALK. Yes, forsoth.

C. CUSTANCE. But stil be a runner vp and downe?

Still be a bringer of tidings and tokens to towne?

TIB. TALK. No, forsoth, mistresse.

C. CUSTANCE. Is all your delite and ioy 5

In whiskeyng and ramping abroad like a tom-boy?

TIB. TALK. Forsoth, these were there too, — Annot and Trupeny.

TRUPENY. Yea, but ye alone tooke it, ye can not denie.

ANNOY ALY. Yea, that ye did!

TIBET. But if I had not, ye twaine would.

C. CUSTANCE. You great calfe! ye should haue more witte, so ye should! 10

But why shoulde any of you take such things in hande?

TIBET. Because it came from him that must be your husbunde.

C. CUSTANCE. How do ye know that?

TIBET. Forsoth, the boy did say so.

C. CUSTANCE. What was his name?

AN. ALYFACE. We asked not.

C. CUSTANCE. No did?

AN. ALYFACE. He is not farre gone, of likelyhod.

TRUPENY. I will see. 15

C. CUSTANCE. If thou canst finde him in the streete, bring him to me.

TRUPENY. Yes. Exeat.

C. CUSTANCE. Well, ye naughty girles,
if euer I perceiue

That henceforth you do letters or tokens
receiue

To bring vnto me from any person or
place,

Except ye first shewe me the partie face to
face, 20

Eyther thou, or thou, full truly abyethou shalt.

TIBET. Pardon this, and the next tyme pouder¹ me in salt!

C. CUSTANCE. I shall make all girles by you twaine to beware.

TIBET. If euer I offende againe, do not me
spare.

But if euer I see that false boy any more,
By your mistreshyps licence, I tell you afore, 26

I will rather haue my cote twentie times
swinged

Than on the naughtie wag not to be auenged.

C. CUSTANCE. Good wenches would not so rampe abroad ydelly,

But keepe within doores, and plie their work earnestly. 30

If one would speake with me that is a man likely,

¹ Preserve.

Ye shall haue right good thanke to bring me worde quickly;
But otherwyse with messages to come in post,
From henceforth, I promise you, shall be to your cost.

Get you in to your work!

TIB. AN. Yes, forsoth.

C. CUSTANCE. Hence, both twaine; 35
And let me see you play me such a part
again!

[Exeunt Tibet and Annot. Re-enter Trupeny.]

TRUPENY. Maistresse, I haue runne past the farre ende of the streete, Yet can I not yonder craftie boy see nor meete.

C. CUSTANCE. No?

TRUPENY. Yet I looked as farre beyonde the people
As one may see out of the toppe of Paules steeple. 40

C. CUSTANCE. Hence in at doores, and let me no more be vext!

TRUPENY. Forgeue me this one fault, and lay on for the next! [Exeat.]

C. CUSTANCE. Now will I in too; for I thinke, so God me mende,
This will proue some foolishe matter in the ende! [Exeat.]

ACTUS [I]II. SCÆNA I

[Enter Mathewe Merygreeke.]

M. MERY. Nowe say thys againe: — he hath somewhat to dooing Which followeth the trace ¹ of one that is wowing,
Specially that hath no more wit in his hedde Than my cousin Roister Doister withall is ledde.
I am sent in all haste to espie and to marke 5
How our letters and tokens are likely to warke.
Maister Roister Doister must haue aunswere in haste,
For he loueth not to spende much labour in waste.

Nowe, as for Christian Custance, by this
light,

Though she had not hir trowth to Gawin
Goodluck plight, 10

Yet rather than with such a loutishe dolte
to marie,

I dare say, woulde lyue a poore lyfe soli-tarie.

But fayne would I speake with Custance, if I wist how,

To laugh at the matter. Yond commeth one forth now!

ACTUS III. SCÆNA II

[Enter] Tibet. M. Merygreeke [remains].
Christian Custance [enters later].

TIB. TALK. Ah, that I might but once in my life haue a sight

Of him that made vs all so yll-shent, by this light!

He should neuer escape if I had him by the eare,

But euen from his head I would it bite or teare;

Yea, and if one of them were not inowe, 5
I would bite them both off, I make God
auow!

M. MERY. What is he whome this little mouse doth so threaten?

TIB. TALK. I woulde teache him, I trow, to make girles shent or beaten!

M. MERY. I will call her. Maide, with whome are ye so hastie?

TIB. TALK. Not with you, sir, but with a little waggpastie, 10

A deceiuer of folkes by subtill craft and gule.

M. MERY. [aside]. I knowe where she is;
Dobinet hath wrought some wile.

TIB. TALK. He brought a ring and token which he sayd was sent

From our dames husbände; but I wot well I was shent!

For it liked hir as well, to tell you no lies, 15

As water in hir shyppe, or salt cast in hir eies.

And yet whence it came neyther we nor she can tell.

M. MERY. [aside]. We shall haue sport anone; I like this very well! —

And dwell ye here with Mistresse Custance, faire maide?

TIB. TALK. Yea, mary, doe I, sir. What would ye haue sayd? 20

M. MERY. A little message vnto hir by worde of mouth.

TIB. TALK. No messages, by your leaue, nor tokens, forsoth!

M. MERY. Then help me to speke with hir.
TIBET. With a good wil that.

Here she commeth forth. Now speake — ye know best what.

[Enter Custance.]

C. CUSTANCE. None other life with you, maide, but abrode to skip? 25

TIB. TALK. Forsoth, here is one would speake with your mistresship.

C. CUSTANCE. Ah, haue ye ben learning of mo messages now?

TIB. TALK. I would not heare his minde, but bad him shewe it to you.

C. CUSTANCE. In at dores!

TIB. TALK. I am gon. Ex[eat].

M. MERY. Dame Custance, God ye
saue!

C. CUSTANCE. Welcome, friend Merygreeke! And what thing wold ye
haue? 30

M. MERY. I am come to you a little matter to breake.

C. CUSTANCE. But see it be honest, else better not to speake.

M. MERY. Howe feele ye your-selfe affected here of late?

C. CUSTANCE. I feele no maner change, but after the olde rate.

But wherby do ye meane?

M. MERY. Concerning mariage. 35
Doth not loue lade¹ you?

C. CUSTANCE. I feele no such cariage.²

M. MERY. Doe ye feele no pangues of dotage? aunswere me right.

C. CUSTANCE. I dote so that I make but one sleepe all the night.

But what neede all these wordes?

M. MERY. Oh Iesus! will ye see What dissembling creatures these same women be? 40

The gentleman ye wote of, whome ye doe
so loue

¹ Load.

² Burden.

That ye woulde fayne marrie him, yf ye durst it moue,

Among other riche widowes, which are of him glad,

Lest ye for lesing of him perchaunce might runne mad,

Is nowe contented that, vpon your sute
making, 45

Ye be as one in election of taking.

C. CUSTANCE. What a tale is this! That I wote of? Whome I loue?

M. MERY. Yea, and he is as louing a worme, againe, as a doue.

Een of very pitie he is willyng you to take, Bicause ye shall not destroy your-selfe for his sake. 50

C. CUSTANCE. Mary, God yelde¹ his mashyp! What-euer he be,

It is gentmanly spoken!

M. MERY. Is it not, trowe ye?

If ye haue the grace now to offer your-self,
ye speede.

C. CUSTANCE. As muche as though I did,
this time it shall not neede.

But what gentman is it, I pray you tel me plaine, 55

That woweth so finely?

M. MERY. Lo where ye be againe,
As though ye knewe him not!

C. CUSTANCE. Tush, ye speake in iest!

M. MERY. Nay, sure, the partie is in good knacking earnest;

And haue you he will, he sayth, and haue
you he must.

C. CUSTANCE. I am promised duryng my life; that is iust. 60

M. MERY. Mary, so thinketh he, vnto him alone.

C. CUSTANCE. No creature hath my faith and trouth but one, —

That is Gawin Goodlucke; and, if it be not
hee,

He hath no tittle this way, what-euer he be,
Nor I know none to whome I haue such worde spoken. 65

M. MERY. Ye, knowe him not you by his letter and token?

C. CUSTANCE. In-dede, true it is that a letter I haue;

But I neuer reade it yet, as God me
saue!

¹ Reward.

M. MERY. Ye a woman, and your letter
so long vnredde?

C. CUSTANCE. Ye may therby know what hast I haue to wedde. 70

But now who it is for my hande, I knowe by gesse.

M. MERY. Ah well, I say!

C. CUSTANCE. It is Roister Doister,
doubtlesse.

M. MERY. Will ye neuer leaue this dissimulation?

Ye know hym not?

C. CUSTANCE. But by imagination;
For no man there is but a very dolt and
loute 75

That to wowe a widowe woulde so go about.

He shall neuer haue me hys wife while he doe liue.

M. MERY. Then will he haue you if he may, so mote I thriue!

And he biddeth you sende him worde by me That ye humbly beseech him ye may his wife be, 80

And that there shall be no let in you, nor mistrust,

But to be wedded on Sunday next, if he lust;
And biddeth you to looke for him.

C. CUSTANCE. Doth he byd so?

M. MERY. When he commeth, aske hym whether he dyd or no.

C. CUSTANCE. Goe, say that I bid him
keepe him warme at home! 85

For, if he come abroade, he shall cough me a mome.¹

My mynde was vexed, I shrew his head!
Sottish dolt!

M. MERY. He hath in his head —

C. CUSTANCE. As much braine as a burbolt!

M. MERY. Well, Dame Custance, if he heare you thus play choploge² —

C. CUSTANCE. What will he?

M. MERY. Play the deuill in the horologe.³ 90

C. CUSTANCE. I defye him, loute!

M. MERY. Shall I tell hym what ye say?

C. CUSTANCE. Yea; and adde what-soeuer thou canst, I thee pray,

And I will auouche it, what-so-euer it bee.

M. MERY. Then let me alone! we will laugh well, ye shall see.

It will not be long ere he will hither re-
sorte. 95

C. CUSTANCE. Let hym come when hym lust, I wishe no better sport.

Fare ye well. I will in and read my great
letter;

I shall to my wower make answere the better. Exeat.

ACTUS III. SCÆNA III

Mathew Merygreeke [remains; enter] Roister Doister [later].

M. MERY. Nowe that the whole answere
in my deuise doth rest,

I shall paint out our wower in colours of the best;

And all that I say shall be on Custances mouth;

She is author of all that I shall speake, forsoth.

But yond commeth Roister Doister nowe, in a traunce. 5

[Enter Roister.]

R. ROYSTER. Iuno sende me this day good lucke and good chaunce!

I can not but come see how Merygreeke doth speede.

M. MERY. I will not see him, but giue him a iutte, in-deede.

[Runs into him.]

I erie your mastershyp mercie!

R. ROYSTER. And whither now?

M. MERY. As fast as I could runne, sir, in poste against you. 10

But why speake ye so faintly? or why are ye so sad?

R. ROYSTER. Thou knowest the prouerbe — bycause I can not be had.

Hast thou spoken with this woman?

M. MERY. Yea, that I haue!

R. ROYSTER. And what, will this gear
be?

M. MERY. No, so God me saue!

R. ROYSTER. Hast thou a flat answer?

M. MERY. Nay, a sharp answer!

² Chop-logic, contentious argument.

³ The devil in the clock, playing havoc with its works, creating confusion.

M. MERY. Ye shall not, she sayth, by hir will marry hir cat!
Ye are such a calfe! such an asse! such a blocke!
Such a lilburne! such a hoball! such a lobcocke!
And, bicause ye shoulde come to hir at no
season,
She despised your maship out of all reason. 20
"Bawawe¹ what ye say," ko I, "of such a ientman!"
"Nay, I feare him not," ko she, "doe the best he can.
He vaunteth him-selfe for a man of prow-
esse greate,
Where-as a good gander, I dare say, may him beate.
And, where he is louted, and laughed to skorne, 25
For the veriest dolte that euer was borne,
And veriest lubber, slouen, and beast Liuing in this worlde from the west to the east,
Yet of himselfe hath he suche opinion
That in all the worlde is not the like minion. 30
He thinketh eche woman to be brought in dotage
With the onely sight of his goodly personage;
Yet none that will haue hym. We do hym loute and flocke,
And make him among vs our common sporting-stocke.
And so would I now," ko she, "sauē onely
bicause" — 35
"Better nay," ko I, — "I lust not medle with dawes."
"Ye are happy," ko I, "that ye are a
woman!
This would cost you your life in case ye were a man."
R. ROYSTER. Yea, an hundred thousand pound should not saue hir life!
M. MERY. No, but that ye wowe hir to haue hir to your wife. 40
But I coulde not stoppe hir mouth.
R. ROYSTER [sinking on a bench]. Heigh how, alas!

¹ Beware?

M. MERY. Be of good cheere, man, and let the worlde passe!
R. ROYSTER. What shall I doe, or say, nowe that it will not bee?
M. MERY. Ye shall haue choise of a thousande as good as shee.
And ye must pardon hir; it is for lacke of witte. 45
R. ROYSTER. Yea, for were not I an husbande for hir fitte?
Well, what should I now doe?
M. MERY. In faith, I can not tell.
R. ROYSTER. I will go home and die!
M. MERY. Then shall I bidde toll the bell?
R. ROYSTER. No.
M. MERY. God haue mercie on your soule! Ah, good gentleman, That er ye shuld th[u]s dye for an vnkinde
woman! 50
Will ye drinke once ere ye goc? ¹
R. ROYSTER. No, no, I will none.
M. MERY. How feele your soule to God?
R. ROYSTER. I am nigh gone.
M. MERY. And shall we hence streight?
R. ROYSTER. Yea.
M. MERY. Placebo dilexi:²
Maister [R]oister Doister will streight go home and die.³
Our Lorde Iesus Christ his soule haue mercie vpon: 55
Thus you see to day a man, to morrow
Iohn.
Yet sauing for a womans extreeme cru-
eltie,
He might haue lyued yet a moneth or two or three.
R. ROYSTER. Heigh how, alas, the pangs of death my hearte do breake!
M. MERY. Holde your peace! For shame, sir! a dead man may not speake! 60
Nequando: What mourners and what torches shall we haue?
R. ROYSTER. None.
M. MERY. Dirige: He will go darklyng to his graue, —

¹ It was customary to offer those who were to be executed something to drink.

² What follows is an amusing parody on the Catholic service for the dead.

³ E. adds ut infra. I have inserted the four lines, 55-58, from the mock requiem as printed after the songs at the end of the play.

Neque lux, neque crux, neque mourners,
*neque clinke;*¹

He will steale to heauen vnknoing to God,
I thinke,

A porta inferi. Who shall your goodes possesse? 65

R. ROYSTER. Thou shalt be my sectour,² and haue all, more and lesse.

M. MERY. Requiem æternam! Now God reward your mastershyp!

And I will erie halfepenie-doale for your worshyp.

Come forth, sirs, heare the dolefull newes I shall you tell!

*He calls in Roister's servants.*³

Our good maister here will no longer with vs dwell. 70

But, in spite of Custance, which hath hym
weried,

Let vs see his mashyp solemnly buried;
And, while some piece of his soule is yet hym within,

Some part of his funeralls let vs here begin.
Audiui vocem: All men, take heede by this one gentleman 75

Howe you sette your loue vpon an vnkinde
woman!

For these women be all suche madde,
pieuishe elues,

They will not be wonne except it please them-selues.

But, in fayth, Custance, if euer ye come in hell,

Maister Roister Doister shall serue you as well. 80

And will ye needes go from vs thus, in very decde?

R. ROYSTER. Yea, in good sadnesse.

M. MERY. Now Iesus Christ be your speede!

Good night, Roger, olde knaue! farewell,
Roger, olde knaue!

Good night, Roger, old knaue! knaue, knap!

¹ The clinking of the bell, supposed to drive away evil spirits. In the moek requiem printed at the end of the play we find this variant reading:

Neque lux, neque crux, nisi solum clinke.
Neuer gentman so went toward heauen I thinke.
Yet sirs, as ye wyl the blisse of heauen win,
When he commeth to the graue lay hym softly in.

The last two lines probably should follow line 74.

² Executor.

Nequando. Audiui vocem. Requiem
*æternam.*¹ 85

Pray for the late Maister Roister Doisters
soule!

And come forth, parish clarke, let the passing bell toll. [Enter Parish Clerk.]

*To Roister's servants.*²

Pray for your mayster, sirs, and for hym ring a peale;

He was your right good maister while he was in heale.

THE PEALE OF BELLES RONG BY THE PARISH CLERK AND ROISTER DOISTERS
FOURE MEN.³

The first Bell a Triple.

When dyed he? When dyed he? 90

The seconde.

We haue hym! We haue hym!

The thirde.

Royster Doyster! Royster Doyster!

The fourth Bell.

He commeth! He commeth!

The greate Bell.

Our owne! Our owne!

M. MERY. Qui Lazarum.

R. ROYSTER. Heigh how!

M. MERY. Dead men go not so fast 95
In Paradisum.

R. ROYSTER. Heihow!

M. MERY. Soft, heare what I haue
cast!

R. ROYSTER. I will heare nothing, I am past.⁴

M. MERY. Whough, wellaway!
Ye may tarie one houre, and heare what I shall say.

Ye were best, sir, for a-while to reuiue
again

And quite⁵ them er ye go.

R. ROYSTER. Trowest thou so?

M. MERY. Ye, plain. 100

R. ROYSTER. How may I reuiue, being nowe so farre past?

of the moek requiem as printed at the end of the play.

³ The Peale I have added from the text of the moek requiem at the end of the play.

⁴ Dead.

⁵ Requite, get even with.

M. MERY. I will rubbe your temples, and fette you againe at last.

R. ROYSTER. It will not be possible.

M. MERY. Yes, for twentie pounce.
[Rubs his head roughly.]

R. ROYSTER [leaping up angrily]. Armes!
what dost thou?

M. MERY. Fet you againe out of your sound.

By this crosse, ye were nigh gone in-deede!
I might feele 105

Your soule departing within an inche of your heele.

Now folow my counsell.

R. ROYSTER. What is it?

M. MERY. If I wer you, Custance should eft¹ seeke to me ere I woulde bowe.

R. ROYSTER. Well, as thou wilt haue me, euen so will I doe.

M. MERY. Then shall ye reuiue againe for an houre or two? 110

R. ROYSTER. As thou wilt; I am content, for a little space.

M. MERY. Good happe is not hastie; yet in space com[eth] grace.

To speake with Custance your-selfe shoulde be very well;

What good therof may come, nor I nor you
can tell.

But, now the matter standeth vpon your
mariage, 115

Ye must now take vnto you a lustie courage.

Ye may not speake with a faint heart to Custance,

But with a lusty breast and countenance,
That she may knowe she hath to answere
to a man.

R. ROYSTER. Yes, I can do that as well as any can. 120

M. MERY. Then, bicause ye must Cus-
tance face to face wowe,

Let vs see how to behaue your-selfe ye can doe.

Ye must haue a portely bragge,² after your estate.³

R. ROYSTER. Tushe, I can handle that after the best rate.

¹ A second time.² Pompous demeanor.³ State, rank.[He struts back and forth.]

M. MERY. Well done! So loe! Vp, man, with your head and chin! 125

Vp with that snoute, man! So loe! nowe ye begin!

So! that is somewhat like! But, prankie cote,¹ nay, whan!

That is a lustie brute! Handes vnder your side, man!

So loe! Now is it euen as it shoulde bee!
That is somewhat like for a man of your degree! 130

Then must ye stately goe, ietting² vp and downe.

Tut! can ye no better shake the taile of your gowne?

There, loe! suche a lustie bragge it is ye must make!

R. ROYSTER. To come behind and make curtsie, thou must som pains take.

M. MERY. Else were I much to blame, I thanke your mastershyps. 135

[Making curtsy.]

The Lorde one day all to-begrime you with worshyp!

[Shoving imaginary persons out of the way.]

Backe, sir sauce! let gentlefolkes haue elbowe room!

Voyde, sirs! see ye not Maister Roister, Doister come?

Make place, my maisters!
[He bumps hard into Roister.]

R. ROYSTER. Thou iustlest nowe to nigh.

M. MERY. Back, al rude loutes!
[Bumps him again.]

R. ROYSTER. Tush!

M. MERY. I crie your maship
mercy! 140

Hoighdagh! if faire, fine Mistresse Cus-
tance sawe you now,

Ralph Royster Doister were hir owne, I
warrant you.

R. ROYSTER. Neare an M by your girdle?³

M. MERY. Your Good Mastershyps

¹ Set your coat in order. (But N.E.D., citing this passage, defines prankie as "full of pranks.")² Strutting.³ A proverbial phrase: have you no respectful terms of address to employ towards me?

Maistershyp were hir owne Mistreshyps Mistreshyps!

Ye were take vp for haukes,¹ ye were gone, ye were gone! 145

But now one other thing more yet I thinke vpon.

R. ROYSTER. Shewe what it is.

M. MERY. A wower be he neuer so
poore,

Must play and sing before his bestbeloues
doore;

How much more, than, you!

R. ROYSTER. Thou speakest wel, out of dout.

M. MERY. And perchance that woulde make hir the sooner come out. 150

R. ROYSTER. Goe call my musitians; bydde them high apace.

M. MERY. I wyll be here with them ere ye can say trey ace. Excat.

R. ROYSTER. This was well sayde of Merygreeke! I lowe hys wit.

Before my sweete hearts dore we will haue
a fit,

That, if my loue come forth that I may with hir talke, 155

I doubt not but this geare shall on my side
walke.

But lo, how well Merygreeke is returned sence!

[Re-enter Merygreeke with Musicians.]

M. MERY. There hath grown no grasse on my heele since I went hence!

Lo, here haue I brought that shall make you pastance.

R. ROYSTER. Come, sirs, let vs sing, to winne my deare loue Custance! 160

*[They sing.]*²

I mun be maried a Sunday;

I mun be maried a Sunday;

Who-soeuer shall come that way,

I mun be maried a Sunday. 164

Royster Doyster is my name,

Royster Doyster is my name;

A lustie brute, I am the same.

I mun be maried a Sunday. 168

¹ Hawks, used of officers of the law who pounced on criminals.

² E., Cantent. The song, entitled "The fourth Song," is printed at the end of the play.

Christian Custance haue I founde,
Christian Custance haue I founde,
A wydowe worthe a thousande pounde.

I mun be maried a Sunday. 172

Custance is as sweete as honey,

Custance is as sweete as honey;

I hir lambe and she my coney.

I mun be maried a Sunday. 176

When we shall make our weddyng-feast,
When we shall make our weddyng-feast,
There shall bec cheere for man and beast.

I mun be maried a Sunday.

I mun be maried a Sunday, etc. 181

M. MERY. Lo, where she commeth!
Some countenance to hir make,
And ye shall heare me be plaine with hir for your sake.

ACTUS III. SCÆNA IIII

[Enter Custance. Merygreeke [and] Roister Doister [remain].

C. CUSTANCE. What gaudyng and foolyng is this afore my doore?

M. MERY. May not folks be honest, pray you, though they be pore?

C. CUSTANCE. As that thing may be true, so rich folks may be fooles!

R. ROYSTER. Hir talke is as fine as she had learned in schooles. 4

M. MERY. [aside to Roister]. Looke partly towards hir, and drawe a little nere.

C. CUSTANCE. Get ye home, idle folkes!

M. MERY. Why, may not we be here?
Nay, and ye will haze,¹ haze; otherwise, I tell you plaine,

And ye will not haze, then giue vs our geare agaïne.

C. CUSTANCE. In-deede I haue of yours much gay things, God saue all!

R. ROYSTER [aside to Merygreeke]. Speake gently vnto hir, and let hir take all.

M. MERY. Ye are to tender-hearted; shall she make vs dawes? 11

Nay, dame, I will be plaine with you in my friends cause.

R. ROYSTER. Let all this passe, sweete heart, and accept my seruice!

- C. CUSTANCE. I will not be serued with a foole, in no wise; .
When I choose an husbände, I hope to take
a man. 15
- M. MERY. And where will ye finde one which can doe that he can?
Now, thys man towarde you being so
kinde,
You not to make him an answere somewhat to his minde!
- C. CUSTANCE. I sent him a full answere by you, dyd I not?
- M. MERY. And I reported it.
- C. CUSTANCE. Nay, I must speake it againē. 20
- R. ROYSTER. No, no! he tolde it all.
- M. MERY. Was I not metely plaine?
- R. ROYSTER. Yes.
- M. MERY. But I would not tell all;
for, faith, if I had,
With you, Dame Custance, ere this houre
it had been bad;
And not without cause, for this goodly personage
Ment no lesse than to ioynē with you in mariage. 25
- C. CUSTANCE. Let him wast no more labour nor sute about me.
- M. MERY. Ye know not where your preferment lieth, I see,
He sending you such a token, ring and
letter.
- C. CUSTANCE. Mary, here it is. Ye neuer sawe a better!
- M. MERY. Let vs see your letter.
- C. CUSTANCE. Holde;¹ readē it, if ye can, 30
And see what letter it is to winne a woman!
- [He reads the superscription on the outside.]
- M. MERY. "To mine owne deare coney,² birde, swete-heart, and pigsny,³ Good Mistresse Custance, present these by and by."
Of this superscription do ye blame the stile?
- C. CUSTANCE. With the rest as good stuffe as ye redde a great while! 35
- [He opens the letter, and reads.]
- M. MERY. "Sweete mistresse, where as I loue you nothing at all,
- Regarding your substance and richesse chiefe of all,
For your personage, beautie, demeanour
and wit,
I commende me vnto you neuer a whit.
Sorie to heare report of your good welfare. 40
For (as I heare say) suche your conditions
are
That ye be worthie fauour of no liuing man.
To be abhorred of euery honest man;
To be taken for a woman enclined to vice;
Nothing at all to vertue gyuing hir due price. 45
Wherefore concerning mariage, ye are
thought Suche a fine paragon, as nere honest man
bought.
And nowe by these presentes I do you aduertise
That I am minded to marrie you in no wise.
For your goodes and substance, I coulde bee content 50
To take you as ye are. If ye mynde to bee my wyfe,
Ye shall be assured for the tyme of my lyfe
I will keepe ye ryght well from good ray-ment and fare;
Ye shall not be kepte but in sorowe and
care.
Ye shall in no wyse lyue at your owne libertie; 55
Doe and say what ye lust, ye shall neuer
please me;
But when ye are mery, I will be all sadde,
When ye are sory, I will be very gladdē;
When ye seeke your heartes ease, I will be vnkinde;
At no tyme, in me shall ye muche gentle-nesse finde. 60
But all things contrary to your will and
minde
Shall be done: otherwise I wyll not be be-hinde
To speake. And as for all them that woulde do you wrong
I will so helpe and mainteyne, ye shall not lyue long.
Nor any foolishe dolte shall cumbre you but I. 65
I, who ere say nay, wyll sticke by you tyll I die.

Thus good mistresse Custance, the Lorde
you saue and kepe
From me Roister Doister, whether I wake
or slepe.

Who fauouresth you no lesse (ye may be bolde)

Than this letter purporteth, which ye haue
vnfolde." 70

C. CUSTANCE. Howe by this letter of loue? is it not fine?

R. ROYSTER. By the armes of Caleys, it is none of myne!

M. MERY. Fie! you are fowle to blame!
This is your owne hand!

C. CUSTANCE. Might not a woman be proude of such an husbände?

M. MERY. Ah, that ye would in a letter shew such despite! 75

R. ROYSTER. Oh, I would I had hym here, the which did it endite!

M. MERY. Why, ye made it your-selfe, ye tolde me, by this light!

R. ROYSTER. Yea, I ment I wrote it myne owne selfe, yesternight.

C. CUSTANCE. Ywis, sir, I would not haue sent you such a mocke.

R. ROYSTER. Ye may so take it, but I ment it not so, by Cocke! 80

M. MERY. Who can blame this woman to fume, and frette, and rage?

Tut, tut! your-selfe nowe haue marde your owne marriage.

Well, yet, Mistresse Custance, if ye can this remitte,

This gentleman other-wise may your loue
requite.

C. CUSTANCE. No! God be with you both, and seeke no more to me. 85

Exeat [Custance].

R. ROYSTER. Wough! she is gone foreuer! I shall hir no more see!

[He begins to weep.]

M. MERY. What, weepe? fye, for shame!
and blubber? For manhods sake, Neuer lette your foe so muche pleasure of you take!

Rather play the mans parte, and doe loue refraine.

If she despise you, een despise ye hir
againel 90

R. ROYSTER. By Gosse, and for thy sake
I defye hir, indeede!

M. MERY. Yea, and perchaunce that way ye shall much sooner speede;

For one madde propertie these women
haue, in fey:

When ye will, they will not; will not ye,
then will they.

Ah, foolishe woman! Ah, moste vnluckie
Custance! 95

Ah, vnfortunate woman! Ah, pieuishe
Custance!

Art thou to thine harmes so obstinately bent
That thou canst not see where lieth thine high preferment?

Canst thou not lub dis man, which coulede
lub dee so well? 99

Art thou so much thine own foe?

R. ROYSTER. Thou dost the truth tell.

M. MERY. Wel, I lament —

R. ROYSTER. So do I.

M. MERY. Wherfor?

R. ROYSTER. For this thing:
Bicause she is gone.

M. MERY. I mourne for an-other thing.

R. ROYSTER. What is it, Merygreeke, wherfore thou dost grieffe take?

M. MERY. That I am not a woman my-selfe, for your sake.

I would haue you my-selfe, and a strawe for yond Gill! 105

And mocke much of you, though it were against my will.

I would not, I warrant you, fall in such a rage

As so to refuse suche a goodly personage.

R. ROYSTER. In faith, I heartily thanke thee, Merygreeke.

M. MERY. And I were a woman —

R. ROYSTER. Thou wouldest to me
seeke. 110

M. MERY. For, though I say it, a goodly person ye bee.

R. ROYSTER. No, no.

M. MERY. Yes, a goodly man as ere I dyd see.

R. ROYSTER. No, I am a poore homely man, as God made mee.

M. MERY. By the faith that I owe to God, sir, but ye bee!

Woulde I might, for your sake, spende a thousande pound land. 115

R. ROYSTER. I dare say thou wouldest haue me to thy husbände.

M. MERY. Yea; and I were the fairest lady in the shiere,
And knewe you as I know you, and see you nowe here —
Well, I say no more!

R. ROYSTER. Gramercies, with all my hart!

M. MERY. But, since that can not be, will ye play a wise parte? 120

R. ROYSTER. How should I?

M. MERY. Refraine from Custance a-while now,
And I warrant hir soone right glad to seeke to you;
Ye shall see hir anon come on hir knees creeping,
And pray you to be good to hir, salte teares weeping.

R. ROYSTER. But what and she come not?

M. MERY. In faith, then, farewel she! 125

Or else, if ye be wroth, ye may auenged be.

R. ROYSTER. By Cocks precious pot-sticke,¹ and een so I shall!
I wyll vtterly destroy hir, and house, and all!
But I woulde be auenged, in the meane space,
On that vile scribler,² that did my wowyng disgrace. 130

M. MERY. "Scribler," ko you? in-deede, he is worthy no lesse!
I will call hym to you and ye bidde me, doubtlesse.

R. ROYSTER. Yes, for although he had as many liues
As a thousande widowes, and a thousande wiues,
As a thousande lyons, and a thousand rattes, 135
A thousande wolues, and a thousande cattes,
A thousande bulles, and a thousande calues,
And a thousande legions diuided in halues,
He shall neuer scape death on my swordes point —
Though I shoulde be torne therfore ioynt by ioynt! 140

¹ By God's precious stick for stirring the pot; a meaningless oath.

² Roister means "scrivener."

M. MERY. Nay, if ye will kyll him, I will not fette him;
I will not in so muche extremitie sette him.
He may yet amende, sir, and be an honest man.
Therefore pardon him, good soule, as muche as ye can.

R. ROYSTER. Well, for thy sake, this once with his lyfe he shall passe. 145
But I wyll hewe hym all to pieces, by the masse!

M. MERY. Nay, fayth, ye shall promise that he shall no harme haue, Else I will not fet him.

R. ROYSTER. I shall, so God me saue!
But I may chide him a good?

M. MERY. Yea, that do, hardely.

R. ROYSTER. Go, then.

M. MERY. I returne, and bring him to you by-and-by.¹ Ex[eat]. 150

ACTUS III. SCÆNA V

Roister Doister [remains. Later] Mathewe Merygreeke [enters with the] Scriuener.

R. ROYSTER. What is a gentleman but his worde and his promise?
I must nowe saue this vilaines lyfe in any wise;
And yet at hym already my handes doe tickle.
I shall yneth² holde them, they wyll be so fickle.
But lo and Merygreeke haue not brought him sens! 5

[Enter at a distance Merygreeke and the Scrivener, talking angrily.]

M. MERY. Nay, I woulde I had of my purse payde fortie pens!
SCRUIENER. So woulde I, too; but it needed not that stounde.³

M. MERY. But the ientman had rather spent fieve thousande pounde;
For it disgraced him at least fieve tymes so muche.

SCRUIENER. He disgraced hym-selfe, his loutishnesse is suche. 10

R. ROYSTER. Howe long they stande prating! Why comst thou not away?

M. MERY. Come nowe to hymselfe, and hearke what he will say.

SCRUIENER. I am not afrayde in his presence to appeere.

[They approach Roister.]

R. ROYSTER. Arte thou come, felow?

SCRUIENER. How thinke you? am I not here?

R. ROYSTER. What hindrance hast thou done me, and what villanic? 15

SCRUIENER. It hath come of thy-selfe, if thou hast had any.

R. ROYSTER. All the stocke thou comest of, later or rather,¹

From thy fyrst fathers grandfathers fathers father,

Nor all that shall come of thee, to the worldes ende,

Though to three-score generations they descende, 20

Can be able to make me a iust recompense For this trespasse of thine and this one offense!

SCRUIENER. Wherin?

R. ROYSTER. Did not you make me a letter, brother?

SCRUIENER. Pay the like hire, I will make you suche another.

R. ROYSTER. Nay, see and these whoore-son Phariseys and Scribes 25

Doe not get their liuyng by polling² and bribes!

If it were not for shame —

[Drawing back to strike.]

SCRUIENER. Nay, holde thy hands still!

M. MERY. Why, did ye not promise that ye would not him spill? 3

SCRUIENER. Let him not spare me.

R. ROYSTER. Why, wilt thou strike me again?

SCRUIENER. Ye shall haue as good as ye bring, of me; that is plaine! 30

M. MERY. I can not blame him, sir, though your blowes wold him greue,

For he knoweth present death to ensue of all ye geue.

R. ROYSTER. Well, this man for once hath purchased thy pardon.

SCRUIENER. And what say ye to me? or else I will be gon.

R. ROYSTER. I say the letter thou madest me was not good. 35

SCRUIENER. Then did ye wrong copy it, of likelyhood.

R. ROYSTER. Yes, out of thy copy worde for worde I wrote.

[Roister produces his copy of the letter, and also the Scrivener's original draft.]

SCRUIENER. Then was it as ye prayed to haue it, I wote.

But in reading and pointyng there was made some faulte.

R. ROYSTER. I wote not; but it made all my matter to haulte. 40

SCRUIENER. Howe say you, is this mine originall or no?

R. ROYSTER. The selfe-same that I wrote out of,¹ so mote I go!

SCRUIENER. Loke you on your owne fist,² and I will looke on this,

And let this man be iudge whether I reade amisse.

[Reads the superscription.]

“To myne owne dere coney, birde, sweete-heart, and pigsny, 45

Good mistresse Custance, present these by and by.”

How now? doth not this superscription agree?

R. ROYSTER. Reade that is within, and there ye shall the fault see.

[The Scrivener opens the letter and reads.]

SCRUIENER. “Sweete mistresse, where as I loue you — nothing at all

Regarding your richesse and substance, chiefe of all 50

For your personage, beautie, demeanour and witte —

Nothing at all; to vertue giuing hir due price.
 Wherefore, concerning mariage, ye are

 Suche a fine paragon as nere honest man

 And nowe by these presents I doe you ad-

 That I am minded to marrie you — in no

 Thus, good mistresse Custance, the Lorde
 you saue and kepe. 80
 From me, Roister Doister, whether I wake
 or slepe,
 Who fauoureth you no lesse (ye may be bolde)
 Than this letter purporteth, which ye haue
 vnfolde.”
 Now, sir, what default can ye finde in this letter?

R. ROYSTER. Of truth, in my mynde
 there can not be a better. 85 SCRIBENER. Then was the fault in read-yng, and not in writyng, —
 No, nor, I dare say, in the fourme of endit-
 yng.
 But who read this letter, that it sounded so
 nought?
 M. MERY. I redde it, in-deede.
 SCRIBENER. Ye red it not as ye ought.
 [Roister draws back as though to strike Merygreeke.]
 R. ROYSTER. Why, thou wretched villaine! was all this same fault in
 thee? 90
 M. MERY. I knocke your costarde if ye offer to strike me!
 [Strikes him.]
 R. ROYSTER. Strikest thou in-deede? and I offer but in iest.
 M. MERY. Yea, and rappe you againe, except ye can sit in rest.
 And I will no longer tarie here, me beleue.
 R. ROYSTER. What! wilt thou be angry, and I do thee forgeue? 95 Fare ye well, scribler. I crie thee mercie,¹ indeede!
 SCRIBENER. Fare ye well, bibbler, and worthily may ye speede!
 [Exit the Scrivener.]
 R. ROYSTER. If it were an-other but thou, it were a knaue.
 M. MERY. Ye are an-other your-selfe, sir,
 the Lorde vs both saue!
 Albeit, in this matter I must your pardon
 craue. 100
 Alas! woulde ye wyshe in me the witte that ye haue?
 But, as for my fault, I can quickly
 amende;
 I will shewe Custance it was I that did of-
 fende.
 R. ROYSTER. By so doing, hir anger may be reformed.
 M. MERY. But, if by no entreatie she will be turned, 105
 Then sette lyght by hir, and bee as testie as shee,

And doe your force vpon hir with extremitie.

R. ROISTER. Come on, therefore, lette vs go home, in sadnesse.

M. MERY. That if force shall neede, all may be in a readinesse.

And, as for thys letter, hardely let all go;

We wyll know where she refuse you for that or no. 110
Exeant am[bo].

ACTUS III. SCÆNA I

[Enter] Sym Suresby [servant to Gawin Goodluck].

SIM SURE. Is there any man but I, Sym Suresby, alone,
That would haue taken such an enterprise him vpon,

In suche an outragious tempest as this was,
Suche a daungerous gulfe of the sea to passe?
I thinke verily Neptunes mightie godshyp
Was angry with some that was in our shyp;
And, but for the honestie which in me he founde,

I thinke for the others sake we had bene drownde.

But fye on that seruant which for his maisters wealth

Will sticke¹ for to hazarde both his lyfe and his health! 10

My maister, Gawyn Goodlucke, after me a day,

Bicause of the weather, thought best hys shyppe to stay.

And now that I haue the rough sourges so well past,

God graunt I may finde all things safe here at last!

Then will I thinke all my trauaile well spent. 15

Nowe the first poynt wherfore my maister hath me sent

Is to salute Dame Christian Custance, his wife

Espoused, whome he tendreth² no lesse than his life.

I must see how it is with hir, well or wrong,
And whether for him she doth not now thinke long. 20

¹ Hesitate.

² Esteemeth.

Then to other friendes I haue a message or tway;

And then so to returne and mete him on the way.

Now wyll I goe knocke, that I may dispatche with speede —

But loe, forth commeth hir-selfe, happily, in-deede!

ACTUS III. SCÆNA II

[Enter] Christian Custance. Sim Suresby [remains].

C. CUSTANCE. I come to see if any more stirryng be here.

But what straunger is this which doth to me appere?

SYM SURS. I will speake to hir. Dame, the Lorde you saue and see!

C. CUSTANCE. What! friende Sym Suresby? Forsooth, right welcome ye be!

Howe doth mine owne Gawyn Goodlucke? I pray the tell. 5

S. SURESBY. When he knoweth of your health, he will be perfect well.

C. CUSTANCE. If he haue perfect helth, I am as I would be.

SIM SURE. Suche newes will please him well; this is as it should be.

C. CUSTANCE. I thinke now long for him. SIM SURE. And he as long for you.

C. CUSTANCE. When will he be at home? SIM SURE. His heart is here een now; 10

His body commeth after.

C. CUSTANCE. I woulde see that faine. SIM SURE. As fast as wynde and sayle can cary it a-maine. —

But what two men are yonde comming hitherwarde?

C. CUSTANCE. Now, I shrew their best Christmasse chekes, both togetherward!

ACTUS III. SCÆNA III

Christian Custance [and] Sym Suresby [remain]. At a distance enter Ralph Roister [and] Mathew Merygreke. Trupeny [enters later].

C. CUSTANCE [aside]. What meane these lewde felowes thus to trouble me stil?

Sym Suresby here, perchance, shal therof
deme som yll,

And shall su[s]pect in me some point of naughtinesse,

And ¹ they come hitherward.

SYM SURE. What is their businesse?

C. CUSTANCE. I haue nought to them, nor they to me, in sadnesse. 5

SIM SURE. Let vs hearken them. [Aside.]
Somewhat there is, I feare it.

R. ROYSTER. I will speake out aloud;e;
best that she may heare it.

M. MERY. Nay, alas, ye may so feare hir out of hir wit!

R. ROYSTER. By the crosse of my sworde,
I will hurt hir no whit!

M. MERY. Will ye doe no harme, indeede? Shall I trust your worde? 10

R. ROYSTER. By Roister Doisters fayth, I will speake but in borde! ²

SIM SURE. Let vs hearken them. [Aside.]
Somewhat there is, I feare it.

R. ROYSTER. I will speake out aloud;e, I care not who heare it!

[He pretends to speak to his servants within.]

Sirs, see that my harnessse, my tergat, and my shield

Be made as bright now as when I was last in fiede, 15

As white as I shoulde to warre againe tomorrowe;

For sicke shall I be but I worke some folke sorow.

Therefore see that all shine as bright as Sainct George,

Or as doth a key newly come from the smiths forge.

I woulde haue my sworde and harnessse to shine so bright 20

That I might therwith dimme mine enemics
sight;

I would haue it east beames as fast, I tell
you playne,

As doth the glittryng grasse after a showre of raine.

And see that, in case I shoulde neede to come to arming,

All things may be ready at a minutes warning! 25

¹ If.

² Jest.

For such chaunce may chaunce in an houre, do ye heare?

M. MERY. As perchance shall not chaunce
againe in seuen yeare.

R. ROYSTER. Now draw we neare to hir, and here what shall be sayde.

M. MERY. But I woulde not haue you make hir too muche afrayde.

[They advance to Custance.]

R. ROYSTER. Well founde, sweete wife, I trust, for al this your soure looke!

C. CUSTANCE. Wife! why cal ye me wife?

SIM SURE. [aside.] Wife! this gear goth
aerook! 31

M. MERY. Nay, Mistresse Custance, I warrant you, our letter

Is not as we redde een nowe, but much better;

And, where ye halfe stomaked ¹ this gentleman afore

For this same letter, ye wyll loue hym now therefore. 35

Nor it is not this letter, though ye were a
queene,

That shoulde breake marriage betweene you twaine, I weene.

C. CUSTANCE. I did not refuse hym for the letters sake.

R. ROYSTER. Then ye are content me for your husbände to take?

C. CUSTANCE. You for my husbände to take? nothing lesse, truly! 40

R. ROYSTER. Yea, say so, sweete spouse, afore straungers hardly!

M. MERY. And, though I haue here his letter of loue with me,

Yet his ryng and tokens he sent keepe safe with ye.

C. CUSTANCE. A mischiefe take his tokens! and him, and thee too!

But what prate I with fooles? Haue I nought else to doo? 45

Come in with me, Sym Suresby, to take some repast.

SIM SURE. I must, ere I drinke, by your leau;e, goe in all hast

To a place or two with earnest letters of his.

C. CUSTANCE. Then come drink here with
me.

SIM SURE. I thank you.

C. CUSTANCE. Do not misse;
You shall have a token to your maister
with you. 50

SYM SURE. No tokens this time, gram-mercies! God be with you! Excat.

C. CUSTANCE. Surely this fellowe mis-deedeth some yll in me;

Which thing, but God helpe, will go neere to spill me.

[Roister calls after Sim Suresby:]

R. ROYSTER. Yea, farewell, fellow! And tell thy maister, Goodlucke, That he commeth to late of thys blossome to plucke! 55

Let him keepe him there still, or, at least-
wise, make no hast;

As for his labour hither, he shall spende in wast:

His betters be in place now!

M. MERY. [aside]. As long as it will hold.

C. CUSTANCE. I will be euen with thee, thou beast, thou mayst be bolde! ¹

R. ROYSTER. Will ye haue vs, then?

C. CUSTANCE. I will neuer haue thee! 60

R. ROYSTER. Then will I haue you.

C. CUSTANCE. No, the deuill shal haue
thee!

I haue gotten this houre more shame and harne by thee

Then all thy life-days thou canst do me
honestie.

M. MERY. Why, nowe may ye see what it comth too in the ende

To make a deadly foe of your most louing
frende! 65

And, ywis, this letter, if ye woulde heare it
now —

C. CUSTANCE. I will heare none of it!

M. MERY. In faith, would raiushe you.

C. CUSTANCE. He hath stained my name for-cuer, this is cleare.

R. ROYSTER. I can make all as well in an heure.

M. MERY. As ten yeare.

How say ye? Wil ye haue him?

C. CUSTANCE. No.

M. MERY. Wil ye take him? 70

C. CUSTANCE. I defie him.

M. MERY. At my word? ²

C. CUSTANCE. A shame take him!
Waste no more wynde, for it will neuer
bee.

M. MERY. This one faulte with twaine shall be mended, ye shall see.

Gentle Mistresse Custance now, good
Mistresse Custance,

Honey Mistresse Custance now, sweete
Mistresse Custance, 75

Golden Mistresse Custance now, white ¹
Mistresse Custance,

Silken Mistresse Custance now, faire Mis-tresse Custance —

C. CUSTANCE. Faith, rather than to mary with suche a doltishe loute,

I woulde matche my-selfe with a begger,
out of doute!

M. MERY. Then I can say no more. [To Roister.] To speede we are not like, 80

Except ye rappe out a ragge of your rhetorike.

C. CUSTANCE. Speake not of winnyng me;
for it shall neuer be so.

R. ROYSTER. Yes, dame! I will haue you, whether ye will or no.

I commaunde you to loue me! Wherefore shoulde ye not?

Is not my loue to you chafing and burning hot? 85

M. MERY. Too hir! That is well sayd!

R. ROYSTER. Shall I so breake my braine

To dote vpon you, and ye not loue vs
again?

M. MERY. Wel sayd yet!

C. CUSTANCE. Go to, you goose!

R. ROYSTER. I say, Kit Custance,
In case ye will not haze, ² — well, better
yes, perchaunce!

C. CUSTANCE. Auaunt, lozell! Picke thee hence!

M. MERY. Wel, sir, ye perceiue, 90
For all your kinde offer, she will not you receiue.

R. ROYSTER. Then a strawe for hir! And a strawe for hir, againe!

She shall not be my wife, woulde she neuer
so faine!

No, and though she woulde be at ten thousand pounce cost!

² On my assurance.

² Have us.

M. MERY. Lo, dame, ye may see what an husbande ye haue lost! 95

C. CUSTANCE. Yea, no force;¹ a iewell much better lost than founde!

M. MERY. Ah, ye will not beleue how this doth my heart wounde!

How shoulde a mariage betwene you be toward

If both parties drawe backe and become so frowarde?

R. ROYSTER. Nay, dame, I will fire thee out of thy house, 100

And destroy thee and all thine, and that by-and-by.²

M. MERY. Nay, for the passion of God, sir, do not so!

R. ROYSTER. Yes, except she will say yea to that she sayde no.

C. CUSTANCE. And what! be there no officers, trow we, in towne

To checke idle loytrers braggyng vp and
downe? 105

Where be they by whome vacabunds
shoulde be repress,

That poore sillie³ widowes might liue in peace and rest?

Shall I neuer ridde thee out of my companie?
I will call for helpe. What, hough! Come forth, Trupenie!

TRUPENIE [within]. Anon. [Entering.] What is your will, mistresse? Dyd ye call me? 110

C. CUSTANCE. Yea; go runne apace, and,
as fast as may be,

Pray Tristran Trusty, my moste assured
frende,

To be here by-and-by, that he may me defende.

TRUPENIE. That message so quickly shall be done, by Gods grace,

That at my returne ye shall say I went apace. Exeat. 115

C. CUSTANCE. Then shall we see, I trowe, whether ye shall do me harme!

R. ROYSTER. Yes, in faith, Kitte, I shall thee and thine so charme⁴

That all women incarnate by thee may beware.

C. CUSTANCE. Nay, as for charming me, come hither if thou dare!

I shall cloute¹ thee tyll thou stinke, both thee and thy traine, 120

And coyle² thee mine owne handes, and sende thee home againe.

R. ROYSTER. Yea, sayst thou me that, dame? Dost thou me threaten?

Goe we, I will³ see whether I shall be beaten.

M. MERY. Nay, for the paishe of God, let me now treate peace;

For bloudshed will there be, in case this strife increace. 125

Ah, good Dame Custance, take better way
with you!

C. CUSTANCE. Let him do his worst!

[Roister Doister advances on Custance; she beats him.]

M. MERY. Yeld in time.

R. ROYSTER [to Merygreeke]. Come hence, thou!

Exeant Roister et Mery.

ACTUS III. SCÆNA III

Christian Custance [remains. Later enter] Anot Alyface, Tibet T., M. Mumblecrust.

C. CUSTANCE. So, sirra! If I should not with hym take this way,
I should not be ridde of him, I thinke, till doomes-day.

I will call forth my folkes, that, without any mockes,
If he come agayne, we may giue him rappes and knockes.

Mage Mumblecrust, come forth! and Tibet
Talke-apace! 5

Yea, and come forth, too, Mistresse Annot Alyface!

ANNOT ALY. [entering]. I come.

TIBET [entering]. And I am here.

M. MUMB. [entering]. And I am here too at length.

C. CUSTANCE. Like warriers, if nede bee, ye must shew your strength.

The man that this day hath thus begiled you Is Ralph Roister Doister, whome ye know well inowe,⁴ 10

The moste loute and dastarde that euer on grounde trode.

TIB. TALK. I see all folke mocke hym when he goth abroad.

C. CUSTANCE. What, pretie maide! will ye talke when I speake?

TIB. TALK. No, forsooth, good mistresse.

C. CUSTANCE. Will ye my tale breake?
He threatneth to come hither with all his force to fight; 15

I charge you, if he come, on him with all your might!

M. MUMBL. I with my distaffe will reache hym one rappe!

TIB. TALK. And I with my newe broome will sweepe hym one swappe,

And then with our greate clubbe I will reache hym one rappe!

AN. ALIFACE. And I with our skimmer ¹ will fling him one flappe! 20

TIB. TALK. Then Trupenies fireforke ² will him shrewdly fray, ³

And you with the spitte may driue him quite away.

C. CUSTANCE. Go make all ready, that it may be een so.

TIB. TALK. For my parte, I shrewe ⁴ them that last about it go!

Exeat [the Servants].

ACTUS III. SCÆNA V

*Christian Custance [remains]. Trupenie
[and] Tristram Trusty [enter later].*

C. CUSTANCE. Trupenie dyd promise me to runne a great pace,

My friend Tristram Trusty to fet into this
place.

In-deede he dwelleth hence a good stert, ⁵ I confesse;

But yet a quicke messenger might twice
since, as I gesse,

Haue gone and come againe. Ah, yond I spie him now! 5

[Enter Trupeny and Trusty.]

TRUPENY. Ye are a slow goer, sir, I make God auow;

² An iron fork for stirring the fire.

³ Frighten, assault.

⁴ Curse.

⁵ Distance.

My Mistresse Custance will in me put all the blame.

Your leggs be longer than myne; come apace, for shame!

C. CUSTANCE. I can thee thanke, Trupenie; thou hast done right wele.

TRUPENY. Maistresse, since I went, no grasse hath growne on my hele; 10
But Maister Tristram Trustie here maketh
no speede.

C. CUSTANCE. That he came at all, I thanke him in very deede,
For now haue I neede of the helpe of some wise man.

T. TRUSTY. Then may I be gone againe, for none such I [a]m.

TRUPENY. Ye may bee, by your going; ¹ for no alderman 15

Can goe, I dare say, a sadder pace than ye
can.

C. CUSTANCE. Trupenie, get thee in.
Thou shalt among them knowe
How to vse thy-selfe like a propre man, I trowe.

TRUPENY. I go. Ex[eat].

C. CUSTANCE. Now, Tristram Trusty,
I thank you right much;

For, at my first sending, to come ye neuer grutch. 20

T. TRUSTY. Dame Custance, God ye sauē! and, while my life shall last,
For my friende Goodluckes sake ye shall not sende in wast.

C. CUSTANCE. He shal giue you thanks.

T. TRUSTY. I will do much for his sake.

C. CUSTANCE. But, alack, I feare, great displeasure shall be take!

T. TRUSTY. Wherefore?

C. CUSTANCE. For a foolish matter.

T. TRUSTY. What is your cause? 25

C. CUSTANCE. I am yll accombred with a couple of dawes.

T. TRUSTY. Nay, weepe not, woman, but tell me what your cause is.

As concerning my friende is any thing
amisse?

C. CUSTANCE. No, not on my part; but here was Sym Suresby —

T. TRUSTIE. He was with me and told me
so.

C. CUSTANCE. And he stooed by 30

¹ Walking, pace.

While Ralph Roister Doister, with helpe of Merygreeke,

For promise of marriage dyd vnto me see-ke.
T. TRUSTY. And had ye made any promise before them twaine?

C. CUSTANCE. No; I had rather be terne in peeces and slaine!

No man hath my faith and trouth but Gawyn Goodlucke, 35

And that before Suresby dyd I say, and there stucke.

But of certaine letters there were suche words spoken —

T. TRUSTIE. He tolde me that too.

C. CUSTANCE. And of a ring, and token,

That Suresby, I spied, dyd more than halfe suspect

That I my faith to Gawyn Goodlucke dyd reiect. 40

T. TRUSTY. But there was no such matter, Dame Custance, in-deede?

C. CUSTANCE. If euer my head thought it, God sende me yll speede!

Wherefore I beseech you with me to be a witnesse

That in all my lyfe I neuer intended thing lesse.

And what a brainsicke foole Ralph Roister Doister is 45

Your-selfe know well enough.

T. TRUSTY. Ye say full true, ywis!

C. CUSTANCE. Bicause to bee his wife I ne graunt nor apply,¹

Hither will he com, he sweareth, by-and-by, To kill both me and myne, and beate downe my house flat.

Therefore I pray your aide.

T. TRUSTIE. I warrant you that. 50

C. CUSTANCE. Haue I so many yeres liued a sobre life,

And shewed my-selfe honest, mayde, widowe, and wyfe,

And nowe to be abused in such a vile sorte?

Ye see howe poore widowes lyue, all voyde of comfort!

T. TRUSTY. I warrant hym do you no harme nor wrong at all. 55

C. CUSTANCE. No; but Mathew Merygreeke doth me most appall,

That he woulde ioyne hym-selfe with suche a wretched loute.

T. TRUSTY. He doth it for a iest; I knowe hym out of doubt.

And here cometh Merygreeke.

C. CUSTANCE. Then shal we here his mind.

ACTUS III. SCÆNA VI

[Enter] Merygreeke [to] Christian Custance [and] Trist. Trusty.

M. MERY. Custance and Trustie both, I doe you here well finde.

C. CUSTANCE. Ah, Mathew Merygreeke, ye haue vsed me well!

M. MERY. Nowe for altogether¹ ye must your answeere tell:

Will ye haue this man, woman? or else, will ye not?

Else will he come — neuer bore so brymme² nor tost so hot. 5

TRIS. AND CU. But why ioyn ye with him?

T. TRUSTY. For mirth?

C. CUSTANCE. Or else in sadnesse?

M. MERY. The more fond of you both! hardly the mater gesse.

TRISTRAM. Lo, how say ye, dame?

M. MERY. Why, do ye thinke, Dame Custance,

That in this wowyng I haue ment ought but pastance?

C. CUSTANCE. Much things ye spake, I wote, to maintaine his dotage. 10

M. MERY. But well might ye iudge I spake it all in mockage.

For-why, is Roister Doister a fitte husband for you?

T. TRUSTY. I dare say ye neuer thought it.

M. MERY. No; to God I vow!

And dyd not I knowe afore of the insurance Betweene Gawyn Goodlucke and Christian Custance? 15

And dyd not I, for the nonce, by my conceyance,

Reade his letter in a wrong sense for daliance,

That, if you coulde haue take it vp at the first bounde,

¹ Definitely.

² Furious.

We should therat such a sporte and pastime
haue founde
That all the whole towne should haue ben the merier? 20
C. CUSTANCE. Ill ake your heades both!
I was neuer werier,
Nor neuer more vexte, since the first day I was borne!
T. TRUSTY. But very well I wist he here did all in scorne.
C. CUSTANCE. But I feared therof to take dishonestie.¹
M. MERY. This should both haue made sport and shewed your honestie; 25
And Goodlucke, I dare sweare, your witte therin would low.²
T. TRUSTY. Yea, being no worse than we know it to be now.
M. MERY. And nothing yet to late; for,
when I come to him,
Hither will he repaire with a sheepes looke full grim,
By plaine force and violence to driue you to yelde. 30
C. CUSTANCE. If ye two bidde me, we will with him pitche a fielde,
I and my maides together.
M. MERY. Let vs see! be bolde!
C. CUSTANCE. Ye shall see womens warre!
T. TRUSTY. That fight wil I behold.
M. MERY. If occasion serue, takyng his parte full brim,³
I will strike at you, but the rappe shall light on him. 35
When we first appeare —
C. CUSTANCE. Then will I runne away
As though I were afeard.
T. TRUSTY. Do you that part wel play;
And I wil sue for peace.
M. MERY. And I wil set him on.
Then will he looke as fierce as a Cotssold lyon.⁴
T. TRUSTY. But when gost thou for him?
M. MERY. That do I very nowe. 40
C. CUSTANCE. Ye shal find vs here.
M. MERY. Wel, God haue merye on you! Ex[eat].
T. TRUSTY. There is no cause of feare.
The least boy in the streete —

C. CUSTANCE. Nay, the least girle I haue will make him take his feete.

[The sound of a drum is heard within.]

But hearke! me-thinke they make preparation.

T. TRUSTY. No force,¹ it will be a good recreation. 45

C. CUSTANCE. I will stand within, and steppe forth speedily,
And so make as though I ranne away dreadfully.

[Exeunt Custance and Trusty.]

ACTUS III. SCÆNA VII

[*Enter R. Royster [and] M. Merygreeke
[with Roister's servants in martial array].
C. Custance, D. Doughtie, Harpax,
[and] Tristram Trusty [enter later].*]

R. ROYSTER. Nowe, sirs, keepe your ray; and see your heartes be stoute!

But where be these caitifes? me-think they dare not route!²

How sayst thou, Merygreeke? What doth Kit Custance say?

M. MERY. I am loth to tell you.

R. ROYSTER. Tushe, speake, man! yea or nay?

M. MERY. Forsooth, sir, I haue spoken for you all that I can. 5

But, if ye winne hir, ye must een play the
man;

Een to fight it out ye must a mans heart
take.

R. ROYSTER. Yes, they shall know, and thou knowest, I haue a stomacke.³

[M. MERY.] "A stomacke," quod you?
yea, as good as ere man had.

R. ROYSTER. I trowe they shall finde and feele that I am a lad. 10

M. MERY. By this crosse, I haue seene you eate your meate as well

As any that ere I haue seene of or heard
tell!

"A stomacke," quod you? He that will that denie,

² Allow, approve. ³ Fiercely.

⁴ A humorous appellation for a sheep.

² Stir forth.

³ Courage, valor; but Merygreeke insists upon misunderstanding.

I know was neuer at dynner in your companie!

R. ROYSTER. Nay, the stomacke of a man it is that I meane! 15

M. MERY. Nay, the stomacke of a horse, or a dogge, I weene.

R. ROYSTER. Nay, a mans stomacke with a weapon, meane I.

M. MERY. Ten men can scarce match you with a spoone in a pie.

R. ROYSTER. Nay, the stomake of a man to trie in strife.

M. MERY. I neuer sawe your stomacke cloyed yet in my lyfe. 20

R. ROYSTER. Tushe! I meane in strife or fighting to trie.

M. MERY. We shall see how ye will strike nowe, being angry.

R. ROYSTER. Haue at thy pate, then! and saue thy head if thou may!

[Strikes at him.]

M. MERY. Nay, then, haue at your pate agayne, by this day! [Strikes back.]

R. ROYSTER. Nay, thou mayst not strike at me againe, in no wise. 25

M. MERY. I can not in fight make to you such warrantise.

But, as for your foes here, let them the bargaine bie.

R. ROYSTER. Nay, as for they, shall euery mothers childe die!

And in this my fume ¹ a little thing might make me

To beate downe house and all, and else the deuill take me! 30

M. MERY. If I were as ye be, by Gogs deare mother,

I woulde not leaue one stone vpon an-other, Though she woulde redeeme it with twentie thousand poundes!

R. ROYSTER. It shall be euen so, by His lily ² woundes!

M. MERY. Bee not at one ³ with hir vpon any amendes. 35

R. ROYSTER. No, though she make to me neuer so many frendes,

Nor if all the worlde for hir woulde vnder-take; ⁴

No, not God hymselfe, neither, shal not hir peace make!

² Reconciled.

³ Lovely.

⁴ Intercede.

[To his servants.]

On, therefore! Marche forwarde! Soft; stay a-whyle yet!

M. MERY. On!

R. ROYSTER. Tary!

M. MERY. Forth!

R. ROYSTER. Back!

M. MERY. On!

R. ROYSTER. Soft! Now forward set!

[Custance enters.]

C. CUSTANCE. What businesse haue we here? Out! alas! alas! 41

[She flees, as if in terror.]

R. ROYSTER. Ha, ha, ha, ha, ha! Dydst thou see that, Merygreeke? how afrayde she was?

Dydst thou see how she fledde apace out of my sight?

Ah, good sweete Custance! I pitie hir, by this light! 45

M. MERY. That tender heart of yours wyll marre altogether.

Thus will ye be turned with waggyng of a fether?

R. ROYSTER. On, sirs! keepe your ray!

M. MERY. On! Forth, while this geare is hot!

R. ROYSTER. Soft! The armes of Caley! I haue one thing forgot.

M. MERY. What lacke we now?

R. ROYSTER. Retire! or else we be all slain! 50

M. MERY. Backe! for the pashe of God! backe, sirs! backe againe!

What is the great mater?

R. ROYSTER. This hastie forth-goyng Had almost brought vs all to vtter vndoing!

It made me forget a thing most necessarie.

M. MERY. Well remembered of a captaine, by Sainct Marie! 55

R. ROYSTER. It is a thing must be had.

M. MERY. Let vs haue it, then.

R. ROYSTER. But I wote not where, nor how.

M. MERY. Then wote not I when. But what is it?

R. ROYSTER. Of a chiefe thing I am to seeke.

M. MERY. Tut! so will ye be when ye haue studied a weke.

But tell me what it is.

R. ROYSTER. I lacke yet an hedpiece.¹

M. MERY. The kitchen collocaut² — the best hennes to Greece! 61

Runne fet it, Dobinet, and come at once withall.

And bryng with thee my potgunne³ hangyng by the wall!

[Exit Dobinet.]

I haue seene your head with it full many a tyme

Couered as safe as it had bene with a skrine;⁴ 65

And I warrant it saue your head from any stroke,

Except perchance to be amased⁵ with the smoke;⁶

I warrant your head therewith — except for the mist —

As safe as if it were fast locked vp in a chist.
And loe, here our Dobinet commeth with it nowe! 70

[Re-enter Dobinet.]

D. DOUGH. It will couer me to the shoulders well inow.

M. MERY. Let me see it on.

[He sets it on Roister's head.]

R. ROYSTER. In fayth, it doth metely well.

M. MERY. There can be no fitter thing.
Now ye must vs tell

What to do.

R. ROYSTER. Now forth in ray, sirs! and stoppe no more!

M. MERY. Now Saint George to borow!⁷
Drum, dubbe-a-dubbe afore! 75

[The drum sounds. Enter Trusty.]

T. TRUSTY. What meane you to do, sir?
committe manslaughter?

R. ROYSTER. To kyll fortie such is a matter of laughter.

T. TRUSTY. And who is it, sir, whome ye intende thus to spill?

¹ Helmet.

² The pot used for cooking meats and vegetables.

³ A large pistol.

⁴ A strong box for keeping valuables.

⁵ Stupefied. ⁶ The fumes. ⁷ Be our speed!

R. ROYSTER. Foolishe Custance, here, forceth me against my will.

T. TRUSTY. And is there no meane your extreme wrath to slake? 80

She shall some amendes vnto your good mashyp make.

R. ROYSTER. I will none amendes.

T. TRUSTY. Is hir offence so sore?

M. MERY. And he were a loute, she coulede haue done no more.

She hath calde him foole, and dressed¹ him
like a foole,

Mocked hym lyke a foole, vsed him like a foole. 85

T. TRUSTY. Well, yet the sheriffe, the iustice, or constable,

Hir misdemeanour to punishe might be able.

R. ROYSTER. No, sir! I mine owne selfe will in this present cause

Be sheriffe, and iustice, and whole iudge of the lawes.

This matter to amende, all officers be I
shall — 90

Constable, bailiffe, sergeant —

M. MERY. And hangman and all.

T. TRUSTY. Yet a noble courage, and the hearte of a man,

Should more honour winne by bearyng with a woman.

Therefore, take the lawe, and lette hir aunswere therto.

R. ROYSTER. Merygreeke, the best way were euen so to do. 95

What honour should it be with a woman to fight?

M. MERY. And what then! will ye thus forgo and lese your right?

R. ROYSTER. Nay, I will take the lawe on hir withouten grace.

T. TRUSTY. Or, yf your mashyp coulede pardon this one trespase, 99

I pray you forgiue hir.

R. ROYSTER. Hoh!²

M. MERY. Tushe! tushe, sir, do not!
[T. TRUSTY.] Be good, maister, to hir.

R. ROYSTER. Hoh!

M. MERY. Tush, I say, do not!

And what! shall your people here returne streight home?

R. ROYSTER. Yea; leuie the campe, sirs, and hence againe, eche one!

¹ Chastised.

² Halt! (Retire?)

But be still in readinesse if I happe to
call;

I can not tell what sodaine chaunce may befall.¹ 105

M. MERY. Do not off your harnessse,² sirs, I you aduise,

At the least for this fortnight, in no maner
wise;

Perchaunce in an houre when all ye thinke least,

Our maisters appetite to fight will be best.
But soft! Ere ye go, haue once at Cus-tance house! 110

[He aims his harquebus at Custance's door.]

R. ROYSTER. Soft! what wilt thou do?

M. MERY. Once discharge my harquebouse;

And, for my heartes ease, haue once more with my potgoon.

R. ROYSTER. Holde thy handes! else is all our purpose cleane fordoone.

M. MERY. And it cost me my life!

R. ROYSTER. I say thou shalt not!

M. MERY. By the matte,³ but I will!
[Shoots the harquebus.] Haue once more with haile-shot! 115

[Shoots the potgun.]

I will haue some penyworth! I will not leese all!

ACTUS IIII. SCÆNA VIII

*M. Merygreeke. C. Custance. R. Roister.
Tib. T. An. Alyface. M. Mumblecrust.
Trupenie. Dobinet Doughtie. Harpax.
Two drummes with their ensignes.*⁴

C. CUSTANCE [rushing out]. What caiftes are those that so shake my house-
wall?

M. MERY. Ah, sirrha! now, Custance, if ye had so muche wit,

I woulde see you aske pardon, and yourselues submit.

C. CUSTANCE. Haue I still this adoe with a couple of foolles?

M. MERY. Here ye what she saith?

C. CUSTANCE. Maidens, come forth with your tooles! 5

² Armour. ³ Mass.

⁴ One drum with ensign (flag) was borne by Roister's forces, and one by Custance's army.

[Enter the maids, armed, and Truepenny with drum and ensign.]

R. ROYSTER. In a-ray!

M. MERY. Dubba-dub, sirrha!

R. ROYSTER. In a-ray!

They come sodainly on vs.

M. MERY. Dubbadub!

R. ROYSTER. In a-ray!

That euer I was borne! We are taken tardie!

M. MERY. Now, sirs, quite our-selues like tall ¹ men and hardie.

C. CUSTANCE. On afore, Truepenie!
Holde thyne owne, Annot! 10

On towarde them, Tibet! for scape vs they can not.

Come forth, Madge Mumblecrust! So!
stand fast together!

M. MERY. God sende vs a faire day.

R. ROYSTER. See, they marche on hither!

TIB. TALK. But, mistresse!

C. CUSTANCE. What sayst thou? ²

TIB. [TALK.] Shall I go fet our goose?

C. CUSTANCE. What to do?

TIB. [TALK.] To yonder captain I will turne hir loose: 15

And she gape and hisse at him, as she doth at me,

I durst icoparde my hande she wyll make him flee.

[Custance and her forces advance to the fray.]

C. CUSTANCE. On! Forward!

R. ROYSTER. They com!

M. MERY. Stand!

R. ROYSTER. Hold!

M. MERY. Kepe!

R. ROYSTER. There!

M. MERY. Strike!

R. ROYSTER. Take heede!

C. CUSTANCE. Wel sayd, Truepeny!

TRUPENY. Ah, whooresons!

C. CUSTANCE. Wel don, in-deede!

M. MERY. Hold thine owne, Harpax!
Downe with them, Dobinet! 20

C. CUSTANCE. Now, Madge! There,
Annot! Now, sticke them, Tibet!

TIB. TALK. [singing out Dobinet]. All my chiefe quarell is to this same little knaue

¹ Valiant.

² E. ycu.

That begyled me last day. Nothyng shall him saue!
D. DOUGH. Downe with this litle queane that hath at me such spite!
Sauce you from hir, maister; it is a very sprite! 25
C. CUSTANCE. I my-selfe will Mounsire Graunde Captaine vndertake!
R. ROYSTER. They win grounde!
M. MERY. Saue your-selfe, sir, for Gods sake!

[*Merygreek lands a blow on Roister's
"helmet."*]

R. ROYSTER. Out! alas, I am slaine! help!
M. MERY. Saue your-self!
R. ROYSTER. Alas!
M. MERY. Nay, then, haue at you, mis-tresse!

[Pretending to strike at Custance he hits Roister.]

R. ROYSTER. Thou hittest me, alas!
M. MERY. I wil strike at Custance here.

[Hits him again.]

R. ROYSTER. Thou hittest me!
M. MERY. So I wil! 30
Nay, Mistresse Custance!

[Hits him again.]

R. ROYSTER. Alas, thou hittest me still!
Hold!
M. MERY. Saue your-self, sir.

[Hits him again.]

R. ROYSTER. Help! out! alas, I am slain!
M. MERY. Truce! hold your hands! truce for a pissing-while or twaine!

[All cease fighting.]

Nay, how say you, Custance? For sauing of your life,
Will ye yelde, and graunt to be this gentmans wife? 35

C. CUSTANCE. Ye tolde me he loued me.
Call ye this loue?

M. MERY. He loued a-while, euen like a turtle-doue.

C. CUSTANCE. Gay loue, God saue it, so soone hotte, so soone colde!

M. MERY. I am sorry for you. He could loue you yet, so he coulde.

R. ROYSTER. Nay, by Cocks precious, she shall be none of mine! 40

M. MERY. Why so?

R. ROYSTER. Come away. By the matte, she is mankine! 1

I durst aduventure the losse of my right
hande

If shee dyd not slee hir other husbnde.
And see, if she prepare not againe to fight!

M. MERY. What then? Sainct George to borow, our Ladies knight! 45

R. ROYSTER. Slee else whom she will, by Gog, she shall not slee mee!

M. MERY. How then?

R. ROYSTER. Rather than to be slaine,
I will flee.

C. CUSTANCE. Too it againe, my knight-esses! Downe with them all!

[The fight is resumed.]

R. ROYSTER. Away! away! away! She will else kyll vs all!

M. MERY. Nay, sticke to it, like an hardie man and a tall. 50

[Hits him.]

R. ROYSTER. Oh, bones! thou hittest me!
Away! or else die we shall!

M. MERY. Away, for the pashe of our sweete Lord Iesus Christ!

C. CUSTANCE. Away, loute and lubber! or
I shall be thy priest!

[Roister flees, followed by all his men.]²

So this felde is ours! We haue driuen them all away!

TIB. TALK. Thanks to God, mistresse, ye haue had a faire day! 55

C. CUSTANCE. Well, nowe goe ye in, and make your-selfe some good cheere.

ALL.³ We goe.

[Exeunt the maids and Truepenny.]

T. TRUST. Ah, sir, what a field we haue had heere!

C. CUSTANCE. Friend Tristram, I pray you, be a witnessse with me.

³ E. Omnes pariter.

T. TRUSTY. Dame Custance, I shall depose¹ for your honestie.

And nowe fare ye well, except some-thing else ye wolde. 60

C. CUSTANCE. Not now; but, when I nede to sende, I will be bolde.

Exeat [Tristram].

I thanke you for these paines. And now I will get me in.

Now Roister Doister will no more wowyng begin! Ex[eat].

ACTUS V. SCÆNA I

[Enter] Gawyn Goodlucke [and] Sym Suresby [in front of Custance's house].

[G. GOODL.] Sym Suresby, my trustie man, nowe advise thee well,
And see that no false surmises thou me tell:
Was there such adoe about Custance, of a truth?

SIM SURE. To reporte that I hearde and sawe, to me is ruth,

But both my duetie and name and prop-retie 5

Warneth me to you to shewe fidelitie.

It may be well enough, and I wyshe it so to
be;

She may hir-selfe discharge, and tric² hir
honestie.

Yet their clayme to hir, me-thought, was very large,³

For with letters, rings and tokens they dyd hir charge; 10

Which when I hearde and sawe, I would none to you bring.⁴

G. GOODL. No, by Sainet Marie! I allowe thee in that thing!

Ah, sirra, nowe I see truthe in the prouerbe
olde:

All things that shineth is not by-and-by pure golde.

If any doe lyue a woman of honestie, 15

I would haue sworne Christian Custance had bene shee.

SIM SURE. Sir, though I to you be a seruant true and iust,

Yet doe not ye therfore your faithfull spouse mystrust;

But examine the matter, and if ye shall it finde

To be all well, be not ye for my wordes vn-
kinde. 20

G. GOODL. I shall do that is right, and as I see cause why.

But here commeth Custance forth; we shal know by-and-by.

ACTUS V. SCÆNA II

[Enter] C. Custance. Gawyn Goodlucke [and] Sym Suresby [remain].

C. CUSTANCE. I come forth to see and hearken for newes good,

For about this houre is the tyme, of likely-
hood,

That Gawyn Goodlucke, by the sayings of Suresby,

Would be at home. And lo, yond I see hym, I!

[She runs to him.]

What, Gawyn Goodlucke, the onely hope of my life, 5

Welcome home! and kysse me, your true espoused wife!

GA. GOOD. Nay, soft, Dame Custance!
I must first, by your licence,

See whether all things be cleere in your conscienc.

I heare of your doings, to me very straunge.

C. CUSTANCE. What, feare ye that my faith towards you should change?

GA. GOOD. I must needs mistrust ye be elsewhere entangled, 11

For I heare that certaine men with you haue wrangled

About the promise of mariage by you to them made.

C. CUSTANCE. Coulede any mans reporte your minde therein persuede?

GA. GOOD. Well, ye must therin declare your-selfe to stande cleere, 15

Else I and you, Dame Custance, may not ioyne this yere.

C. CUSTANCE. Then woulde I were dead, and faire layd in my graue!

Ah, Suresby! is this the honestie that ye
haue,

² Prove.

³ Ample, great.

⁴ I.e. no token; cf. Act IV, Sc. iii, lines 50-51.

To hurt me with your report, not knowyng
the thing?

SIM SURE. If ye be honest, my wordes can hurt you nothing; 20

But what I hearde and sawe, I might not but report.

C. CUSTANCE. Ah, Lorde, helpe poore widowes, destitute of comfort!

Truly, most deare spouse, nought was done
but for pastance.

G. GOOD. But such kynde of sporting is homely¹ daliance.

C. CUSTANCE. If ye knewe the truthe, ye would take all in good parte. 25

GA. GOOD. By your leaue, I am not halfewell skilled in that arte.

C. CUSTANCE. It was none but Roister
Doister, that foolishe mome.²

GA. GOOD. Yea, Custance, "Better," they say, "a badde scuse than none."

C. CUSTANCE. Why, Tristram Trustie,
sir, your true and faithfull frende,

Was priuic bothe to the beginning and the
ende. 30

Let him be the iudge and for me testifie.

GA. GOOD. I will the more credite that he shall verifie.

And, bicause I will the truthe know een as it
is,

I will to him my-selfe, and know all without misse.

Come on, Sym Suresby, that before my friend thou may 35

Auouch the same wordes which thou dydst to me say.

Exeant [Goodluck and Suresby].

ACTUS V. SCÆNA III

Christian Custance [remains].

C. CUSTANCE. O Lorde! howe necessarie
it is nowe-of-dayes

That eche bodie liue vprightly all maner
wayes;

For lette neuer so little a gappe be open,
And be sure of this: — the worst shall be spoken!

Howe innocent stande I in this for deede or
thought! 5

And yet see what mistrust towardes me it hath wrought!

² Dolt.

But thou, Lorde, knowest all folkes thoughts and eke intents;

And thou arte the deliuerer of all innocentes.

Thou didst helpe the aduoutresse¹ that she might be amended;

Much more, then, helpe, Lorde, that neuer
yll intended! 10

Thou didst helpe Susanna, wrongfully accused,

And no lesse dost thou see, Lorde, how I am now abused.

Thou didst helpe Hester when she should haue died,

Helpe also, good Lorde, that my truth may be tried!

Yet, if Gawin Goodlucke with Tristram
Trusty speake, 15

I trust of yll report the force shall be but weake.

And loe! yond they come, sadly talking together.

I wyll abyde, and not shrinke for their comming hither.

ACTUS V. SCÆNA IIII

*[Enter at a distance] Gawyn Goodlucke [and] Tristram Trustie [walking towards] C.
Custance. Sym Suresby [accompanying them].*

GA. GOOD. And was it none other than ye to me reporte?

TRISTRAM. No; and here were ye wished to haue scene the sporte.

GA. GOOD. Wolde I had, rather than halfe of that in my purse!

SIM SURE. And I doe muche reioyce the matter was no wurse.

And, like as to open it I was to you faith-
full, 5

So of Dame Custance honest truth I am ioyfull;

For God forfende that I shoulde hurt hir by false reporte.

GA. GOOD. Well, I will no longer holde hir in discomforte.

C. CUSTANCE. Nowe come they hitherwarde. I trust all shall be well.

GA. GOOD. Sweete Custance, neither heart can thinke nor tongue tell 10

¹ Adulteress.

Howe much I ioy in your constant fidelitie.
Come nowe, kisse me, the pearle of perfect
honestie!

C. CUSTANCE. God lette me no longer to continue in lyfe

Than I shall towards you continue a true
wyfe!

GA. GOODL. Well now, to make you for this some parte of amendes, 15

I shall desire first you, and then suche of our frendes

As shall to you seeme best, to suppe at home with me,

Where at your fought felde we shall laugh and mery be.

SIM SURE. And, mistresse, I beseech you, take with me no greefe;

I did a true mans part, not wishyng you re-preefe. 20

C. CUSTANCE. Though hastie reportes through surmises growyng

May of poore innocentes be vtter ouer-throwyng,

Yet, bicause to thy maister thou hast a true hart,

And I know mine owne truth, I forgiue thee for my part.

GA. GOODL. Go we all to my house. And of this geare no more! 25

Goe prepare all things, Sym Suresby;
hence, runne afore!

SIM SURE. I goe. Ex[eat].

G. GOOD. But who commeth yond?
M. Merygreeke?

C. CUSTANCE. Roister Doisters champion; I shrewe his best cheeke!

T. TRUSTY. Roister Doister selfe, your wower, is with him, too.

Surely some-thing there is with vs they haue to doe. 30

ACTUS V. SCÆNA V

*[Enter at a distance] M. Merygreeke [and] Ralph Roister. Gawyn Goodlucke,
Tristram Trustie [and] C. Custance [remain].*

M. MERY. Yond I see Gawyn Goodlucke, to whom lyeth my message.

I will first salute him after his long voyage,
And then make all thing well concerning your behalfe.

R. ROYSTER. Yea, for the pashe of God!

M. MERY. Hence out of sight, ye calfe, Till I haue spoke with them, and then I will you fet.¹ 5

R. ROYSTER. In Gods name!

[Roister retires.]

M. MERY. [advancing]. What, Master
Gawyn Goodluck, wel met!

And from your long voyage I bid you right welcome home.

GA. GOOD. I thanke you.

M. MERY. I come to you from an honest mome.²

GA. GOOD. Who is that?

M. MERY. Roister Doister, that dough-tie kite.

C. CUSTANCE. Fye! I can scarce abide ye shoulde his name recite. 10

M. MERY. Ye must take him to fauour, and pardon all past.

He heareth of your returne, and is full yll
agast.

GA. GOOD. I am ryght well content he haue with vs some chere.

C. CUSTANCE. Fye vpon him, beast!
Then wyll not I be there!

GA. GOOD. Why, Custance! do ye hate hym more than ye loue me? 15

C. CUSTANCE. But for your mynde, sir, where he were would I not be!

T. TRUSTY. He woulde make vs all laugh.

M. MERY. Ye nere had better sport.

GA. GOOD. I pray you, sweete Custance, let him to vs resort.

C. CUSTANCE. To your will I assent.

M. MERY. Why, suche a foole it is As no man for good pastime would forgoe or misse. 20

G. GOODL. Fet him to go wyth vs.

M. MERY. He will be a glad man.

Ex[eat Merygreeke].

T. TRUSTY. We must, to make vs mirth, maintaine³ hym all we can.

And loe, yond he commeth, and Merygreeke with him!

C. CUSTANCE. At his first entrance ye shall see I wyll him trim!

¹ Fetch.

² Fool.

³ Back him up (with flattery and encouragement).

But first let vs hearken the gentlemans wise talke. 25
 T. TRUSTY. I pray you marke if euer ye sawe crane so stalke.

ACTUS V. SCÆNA VI

[Enter at a distance] R. Roister [and] M. Merygreeke. C. Custance, G. Goodlucke, T. Trustie [remain]. D. Doughtie [and] Harpaz [enter later].

R. ROYSTER. May I then be bolde?
 M. MERY. I warrant you, on my worde.
 They say they shall be sicke but ye be at theyr borde.
 R. ROYSTER. Thei wer not angry, then?
 M. MERY. Yes, at first, and made strange;
 But, when I sayd your anger to fauour shoulde change,
 And therewith had commended you accordingly, 5
 They were all in loue with your mashyp
 by-and-by,
 And cried you mercy that they had done
 you wrong.
 R. ROYSTER. For-why no man, woman, nor childe can hate me long?
 M. MERY. "We feare," quod they, "he will be auenged one day;
 Then for a peny giue all our liues we
 may!" 10
 R. ROYSTER. Sayd they so in-decede?
 M. MERY. Did they? yea, euen with one voice.
 "He will forgiue all," quod I. Oh, how they did reioyce!
 R. ROYSTER. Ha, ha, ha!
 M. MERY. "Goe fette hym," say they,
 "while he is in good moode,
 For, haue his anger who lust, we will not,
 by the roode!" 15
 R. ROYSTER. I pray God that it be all true that thou hast me tolde —
 And that she fight no more.
 M. MERY. I warrant you, be bolde.
 Too them, and salute them!
 R. ROYSTER [advancing]. Sirs, I greeete you all well!
 OMNES. Your maistership is welcom!
 C. CUSTANCE. Sauyng my quarell,
 For, sure, I will put you vp into the Eschequer — 20

M. MERY. Why so? better nay. Wherfore?
 C. CUSTANCE. For an vsurer.
 R. ROYSTER. I am no vsurer, good mis-tresse, by His armes!
 M. MERY. When tooke he gaine of money to any mans harmes?
 C. CUSTANCE. Yes, a fowle vsurer he is,
 ye shall see els, —
 R. ROYSTER. Didst not thou promise she would picke no mo quarels? 25 C. CUSTANCE. He will lende no blowes
 but he haue in recompence Fiftene for one: whiche is to muche, of conscience!
 R. ROYSTER. Ah, dame, by the auncient lawe of armes, a man Hath no honour to foile¹ his handes on a
 woman.
 C. CUSTANCE. And, where other vsurers take their gaines yerely, 30
 This man is angry but he haue his by-
 and-by.
 GA. GOODL. Sir, doe not for hir sake beare me your displeasure.
 M. MERY. Well, he shall with you talke therof more at leasure.
 Vpon your good vsage, he will now shake your hande.
 R. ROYSTER. And much heartily welcome from a straunge lande! 35
 M. MERY. Be not afearde, Gawyn, to let him shake your fyst!
 GA. GOODL. Oh, the moste honeste gentleman that ere I wist!²

[They shake hands.]

I beseeche your mashyp to take payne to suppe with vs!
 M. MERY. He shall not say you nay; and I too, by Iesus!
 Bicause ye shall be friends, and let all quarels passe. 40
 R. ROYSTER. I will be as good friends with them as ere I was.
 M. MERY. Then let me fet your quier that we may haue a song.
 R. ROYSTER. Goe.

[Exit Merygreeke.]

G. GOODLUCK. I haue hearde no melodie all this yeare long.

² Knew.

[Re-enter Merygreeke with the musicians.]

M. MERY. Come on, sirs, quickly!

R. ROYSTER. Sing on, sirs, for my friends sake!

D. DOUGH. Cal ye these your friends?

R. ROYSTER. Sing on, and no mo words make! 45

*Here they sing.*¹

[After the song, the actors all kneel.]

GA. GOOD. The Lord preserue our most noble Queene of renowne,
And hir virtues rewarde with the heauenly
crowne.

C. CUSTANCE. The Lorde strengthen hir
most excellent Maiestie, Long to reigne ouer vs in all prosperitie.

¹ The song is not given.

T. TRUSTY. That hir godly proceedings the faith to defende 50
He may stablishe and maintaine through to the ende.

M. MERY. God graunt hir, as she doth, the Gospell to protect,
Learning and vertue to aduaunce, and vice to correct.

R. ROYSTER. God graunt hir louyng subjects both the minde and grace Hir most godly procedyngs worthily to imbrace. 55

HARPAX. Hir Highnesse most worthy counsellers God prosper

With honour and loue of all men to minister.

OMNES. God graunt the Nobilitie hir to serue and loue,

With all the whole Commontie,¹ as doth them behoue.

Amen.

GOD SAUE THE QUEENE!

¹ Professor Henry Bradley has presented evidence rendering it highly probable that this play was written by William Stevenson, Fellow of Christ's College, Cambridge, and acted by the students in Christ's College in 1553-54, and revived in 1559-60, possibly with the assistance of John Bridges. The play was entered by Thomas Colwell in the Stationers' Registers, 1563, as Dyccoon of Bedlam, etc., and he may then, or shortly after, have issued an edition. The only edition of which we know, however, bears the date 1575.

I have based the present text on the copy of the 1575 edition (A.) in the British Museum. In modernizing the punctuation and stage directions, as well as in other details, I have derived some assistance from the editions by Manly, Specimens, 1896, and Bradley, in Representative English Comedies, 1903.

THE PROLOGUE

As Gammer Gurton with manye a wyde styche
 Sat pesynge ¹ and patching of Hodg her mans briche,
 By chance, or misfortune, as shee her geare ² tost,
 In Hodge lether bryches her needle shee lost.
 When Diccon the bedlem had hard by report 5
 That good Gammer Gurton was robde in thys sorte,
 He quyetly perswaded with her in that stound ³
 Dame Chat, her deare gossyp,⁴ this needle had found.
 Yet knew shee no more of this matter, alas,
 Then knoeth Tom, our clarke, what the priest saith at masse! 10
 Here-of there ensued so fearfull a fraye
 Mas Doctor was sent for these gossyps to staye,
 Because he was Curate, and estemed full wyse;
 Who found that he sought not,⁵ by Diccons deuce.
 When all thinges were tumbled and cleane out of fassion, 15
 Whether it were by fortune or some other constellacion,
 Sodenlye the neele Hodge found by the prickynge,
 And drew it out of his bottocke where he felt it stickynge.
 Theyr hartes then at rest with perfect securytie,
 With a pot of good nale ⁶ they stroake vp theyr plauditie. 20

THE FYRST ACTE

THE FYRST SCEANE

[A village street in perspective. Gammer Gurton's house on one side, Dame Chat's ale-house on the other. The time, Saturday evening after sun-down.]

[Enter] Diccon [out of Gammer Gurton's house].

DICCON. Many a myle haue I walked diuers and sundry waies,
 And many a good mans house haue I bin at
 in my daies,
 Many a gossips cup in my tyme haue I tasted,
 And many a broche and spyt haue I both turned and basted,
 Many a peece of bacon haue I had out of thir balkes ¹ 5
 In ronnyng ouer the countrey with long and were walkes —
 Yet came my foote neuer within those doore-cheekes,
 To seeke flesh, or fysh, garlyke, onyons, or leekes,

That euer I saw a sorte ¹ in such a plyght
 As here within this house appereth to my
 syght! 10
 There is howlyng and scowlyng, all cast in a dumpe;²
 With whewling and pewling, as though they had lost a trump;
 Syghing and sobbing they weepe and they wayle.
 I maruell in my mynd what the deuill they ayle.
 The olde trot ³ syts groning, with "alas!"
 and "alas!" 15
 And Tib wringes her hands, and takes on in worse case,
 With poore Cocke, theyr boye. They be dryuen in such fyts
 I feare mee the folkes be not well in theyr wyts.
 Aske them what they ayle, or who brought them in this staye,
 They aunswer not at all but "alacke!" and
 "welaway!" 20
 Whan I saw it booted not, out at doores I hyed mee,

And caught a slyp of bacon, when I saw that none spyed mee;
Which I intend not far hence, vnles my purpose fayle, Shall serue for a shoinghorne ¹ to draw on two pots of ale.

[He starts over towards Dame Chat's ale-house.]

THE FYRST ACTE

THE SECOND SCEANE

[Enter, as from the fields] Hodge [to] Diccon.

HODGE. See! So cham ² arayed with dabylng in the durt!

[Points to the dirt on his breeches.]

She that set me to ditchinge, ich wold she had the squirt!

Was neuer poore soule that such a life had!
Gogs bones, thys vylthy glaye hase drest ³
mee to bad!

Gods soule, see how this stuffe teares! ⁵

[Shows the torn state of his breeches.]

Iche were better to bee a bearward and set to keepe beares!

By the masse, here is a gasshe! a shamefull hole in-deade!

And one stytech teare furdur, a man may thruste in his heade.

DICCON. By my fathers soule, Hodge, if I shulde now be sworne
I can not chuse but say thy breech is foule be-torne! ¹⁰

But the next remedye in such a case and hap
Is to plaunche ⁴ on a piece as brode as thy cap.

HODGE. Gogs soule, man, tis not yet two dayes fully ended

Synce my dame Gurton, chem sure, these breches amended!

But cham made such ⁵ a drudge, to trudge
at every neede, ¹⁵

Chwold rend it though it were stitched wath ⁶ sturdy pachtrede.

¹ The N.E.D. defines as "an appetizer." It possibly means here that Diccon will exchange the bacon for two pots of ale.

² The southern dialect (ich = I, icham = cham = I am, chawe = I have, etc.) early became the conventional stage dialect for rustics.

³ Spoiled.

⁴ Clap.

⁵ A suce, possibly intentionally.

⁶ A. what.

DICCON. Hoge, let thy breeches go, and speake and tell mee soone
What deuill ayleth Gammer Gurton and Tib, her mayd, to frowne.

HODGE. Tush, man, thart deceyued! Tys
theyr dayly looke;

They coure ¹ so ouer the coles theyr eyes be bleard with smooke. ²⁰

DICCON. Nay, by the masse! I perfectly perceiued, as I came hether, That eyther Tib and her dame hath ben by the eares together,

Or els as great a matter — as thou shalt shortly see.

HODGE. Now iche beseeche our Lord they neuer better agree!

DICCON. By Gogs soule, there they syt as still as stones in the streite, ²⁵

As though they had ben taken ² with fairies, or els with some il sprite.

HODGE. Gogs hart! I durst haue layd
my cap to a crowne

Chwold lerne of some prancome ³ as sone as ich came ⁴ to town!

DICCON. Why, Hodge, art thou inspyred? or dedst thou therof here?

HODGE. Nay; but ich saw such a wonder as ich saw nat this vii yere. ³⁰

Tome Tannkards cow — be Gogs bones! —
she set me vp her saile,

And fyanging about his halfe-aker, fysking with her taile,

As though there had ben in her ars a swarme of bees —

And chad not cryed, "Tphrowh, hoore!"
shad lept out of his lees. ⁵

DICCON. Why, Hodg! lies the connyng in Tom Tankards coves taile? ³⁵

HODGE. Well, ich chaue hard some say such tokens do not fayle.

But ca[n]st thou not tell, ⁶ in faith, Diccon, why she frownes, or wher-at?

Hath no man stolne her ducks, or henes, or gelded Gyb, her cat?

DICCON. What deuyll can I tell, man? I cold not haue one word;

They gaue no more hede to my talk then thou woldst to a lorde. ⁴⁰

HODGE. Iche cannot styll but muse what meruaylous thinge it is!

⁴ Manly come.

⁵ Pastures.

⁶ A. till.

Chyll in, and know my-selfe what matters are amys.

DICCON. Then farewell, Hodge, a-while,
synce thou doest inward hast,
For I will into the good-wyfe Chats, to fele how the ale dooth taste.

[Exit Diccon into Dame Chat's ale-house.]

THE FYRST ACTE

THE THYRD SCEANE

Hodge [remains. Later enter] Tyb.

HODGE. Cham agast, by the masse! Ich wot not what to do.

Chad nede blesse me well before ich go them to! [Crosses himself.]

Perchance some felon sprit may haunt our house indeed,
And then chwere but a ¹ noddy to venter
where cha no neede!

[While he stands, afraid to enter, Tyb comes out of the house.]

TIB. Cham worse then mad, by the masse, to be at this staye! ² 5

Cham chyd, cham blamd, and beaton all thoures on the daye,

Lamed, and hunger-storued, prycked vp
all in iagges,

Hauyng no patch to hyde my backe saue a few rotten ragges!

HODGE. I say, Tyb, — if thou be Tyb, as I trow sure thou bee, —

What deuyll make-a-doe is this betweene our dame and thee? 10

TYB. Gogs breade, Hodg, thou had a good turne thou warte not here [this while!] ³

It had ben better for some of vs to haue ben hence a myle!

My gammer is so out of course and frantyke all at ones

That Cocks, our boy, and I, poore wench, haue felt it on our bones.

HODGE. What is the matter — say on, Tib — wherat she taketh so on? 15

TYB. She is vndone, she sayth! Alas, her ioye and life is gone!

If shee here not of some comfort, she is,
sayth, but dead;

Shall neuer come within her lyps one inch of meate ne bread!

HODGE. Byr Ladie, cham not very glad to see her in this dumpe.

Cholde a noble ¹ her stole hath fallen and shee hath broke her rumpe! 20

TYB. Nay, and that were the worst we wold not greatly care,

For bursting of her huckle-bone, or break-
yng of her chaire;

But greater, greater, is her grief! as,
Hodge, we shall all feele.

HODGE. Gogs woundes, Tyb! my gammer has neuer lost her — neele? ²

TYB. Her neele!

HODGE. Her neele?

TIB. Her neele! 25

By him that made me, it is true, Hodge, I tell thee.

HODGE. Gogs sacrament, I would she had lost tharte ³ out of her bellie!

The deuill, or els his dame, they ought ⁴ her, sure, a shame!

How a murryon came this chauce — say,
Tib — vnto our dame?

TYB. My gammer sat her downe on her pes, ⁵ and bad ⁶ me reach thy breeches; 30

And by-and-by, — a vengeance in it! — or she had take two stiches

To clap a clout vpon thine ars, by chauce a-syde she leares,

And Gyb, our cat, in the milke-pan she spied ouer head and eares.

“Ah, hore! Out, thefe!” she cryed aloud, and swapt the breches downe.

Up went her staffe, and out leapt Gyb at doors into the towne. 35

And synce that time was neuer wyght cold set their cies vpon it.

Gogs malison ⁷ chauce Cocks and I byd twenty times light on it.

HODGE. And is not, then, my breches sewid vp, to-morow that I shuld were? ⁸

⁴ Owed. ⁵ Stool. ⁶ Manly had. ⁷ Curse.

⁸ Hodge's anxiety about his breeches is explained by the fact that he was eager to go to church on the morrow to see Kirstian Claek, a young lady who smiled at him last Sunday. See II, i, 61-64.

³ Added by Dodsley.

TYB. No, in faith, Hodge. Thy breeches lie, for al this, neuer the nere.¹

HODGE. Now a vengeance light on al the sort, that better shold haue kept it, — 40

The cat, the house, and Tib our maid that better shold haue swept it!

[He spies Gammer coming out.]

Se where she commeth crawling! Come on, in twenty deuils way!

Ye haue made a fayre daies worke, haue you not? pray you say!

THE FYREST ACTE

THE IIII SCEANE

[Enter from her house] Gammer. Hodge [and] Tyb [remain]. Cocke [enters later].

GAMMER. Alas, Hoge! Alas! I may well curse and ban

This daie, that euer I saw it, with Gyb and the mylke-pan!

For these, and ill lucke to-gather, as knoweth Cocke, my boye,

Haue stacke² away my deare neele, and robd me of my ioye, —

My fayre, longe, strayght neele, that was myne onely treasure! 5

The fyrst day of my sorow is, and last end of my pleasure!

HODGE. Might ha kept it when ye had it! But fooles will be fooles styll!

Lose that is vast in your handes? — ye neede not; but ye will!

GAMMER. Go hie thee, Tib, and run, thou hoore, to thend here of the towne!³

Didst cary out dust in thy lap; seeke wher thou porest it downe; 10

And, as thou sawest me roking⁵ in the asshes wher I morned,⁶

So see in all the heape⁷ of dust thou leaue no straw vnturned.

TYB. That chal, Gammer, swythe and tyte,⁸ and sone be here agayne!

GAMMER. Tib, stoope, and loke downe to

² Stuck.

³ The yard attached to a house.

⁵ Possibly raking.

⁶ Mourned?

⁷ Manly heaps.

⁸ Quickly and speedily.

the ground! To it, and take some paine! [Exit Tyb.]

HODGE. Here is a prety matter! To see this gere how it goes! 15

By Gogs soule, I think you wold loes your ars and it were loose!

Your neele lost? It is a pitie you shold lack care and endlesse sorow!

Gogs deth, how shall my breches be sewid? Shall I go thus to-morrow? 1

GAMMER. Ah, Hodg, Hodg! if that ich cold find my neele, by the reed,²

Chould sow thy breches, ich promise thee³ with full good double threed, 20

And set a patch on either knee shuld last this monethes twaine.

Now God and good Saint Sithe I praye to send it home againe!

HODGE. Wherto serued your hands and eies but this your neele to kepe?

What deuill had you els to do? Ye kept, ich wot, no sheepe!

Cham faine a-brode to dyg and delue, in water, myre, and claye, 25

Sossing and possing in the durte styll⁴ from day to daye;

A hundred things that be abrode, cham set to see them weele, —

And foure of you syt idle at home, and can not kepe a neele!

GAMMER. My neele, alas! Ich lost it, Hodge, what time ich me vp-hasted

To saue the milke set vp for the, which Gib our cat hath wasted. 30

HODGE. The deuill he burst both Gib and Tib, with all the rest!

Cham alwayes sure of the worst end, who-euer haue the best!

Wher ha you ben fidging⁵ abroad since you your neele lost?

GAMMER. Within the house, and at the dore sitting by this same post,

Wher I was loking a long howre before these folks came here. 35

But, welaway! all was in wayne; my neele is neuer the nere!

HODGE. Set me a candle; let me seeke and grope where-euer it bee.

³ A. has yt.

⁴ Continuously.

⁵ Moving about unceasily.

Gogs hart, ye be so folish, ich thinke you knowe it not when you it see!

GAMMER. Come hether, Cocke! What, Cocke, I say!

[Enter from the house Gammer's boy, Cocke.]

COCKE. Howe, Gammer!

GAMMER. Goe hye the soone,
And grope behynd the old brasse pan;
whych thing when thou hast done,
Ther shalt thou fynd an old shooe; wher-in,
if thou looke well, 41
Thou shalt fynd lyeng an inche of a whyte tallow-candell.¹

Lyght it, and brynge it tite awaye.

COCKE. That shalbe done anone.

[Exit Cocke into the house.]

GAMMER. Nay, tary, Hodg, til thou hast light, and then weele seke ech one.

HODGE. Cum away, ye horson boy! Are ye a slepe? Ye must haue a crier!² 45

COCKE. Ich cannot get the candel light; here is almost no fier.³

HODGE. Chil hold the a peny chil make the come if that ich may catch thine eares!

Art deffe, thou horson boy? Cocke, I say, why, canst not heares?

GAMMER. Beate hym not, Hodge, but help the boy, and come you two together.

[Hodge rushes into the house.]

THE I ACTE

THE V SCEANE

Gammer [remains. Enter] Tyb. Cocke
[and] Hodge [enter later].

GAMMER. How now, Tyb? Quycke, lets here what newes thou hast brought hether!

TYB. Chaue tost and tumbled yender heap ou[e]r and ouer againe,

And winowed it through my fingers as men wold winow grain;

Not so much as a hens turd but in peeces I tare it,

² One to summon you by formal proclamation.

³ Cocke was attempting to light the candle from the coals in the fire-place.

Or what-so-euer clod or clay I found, I did not spare it, 5

Lokyng within, and eke without, to fynd your neele, alas!

But all in vaine, and without help. Your neele is where it was!

GAMMER. Alas, my neele! We shall neuer meete! Aduel! Aduel, for aye!

TYB. Not so, Gammer; we myght it fynd if we knew where it laye.

[Enter Cocke from the house, laughing.]

COCKE. Gogs crosse, Gammer! if ye will laugh, looke in but at the doore, 10
And see how Hodg lieth tomblynge and tossing amids the floure!

Rakyng there some fyre to find amonge the asshes dead, —

Where there is not one sparke so byg as a pyns head, —

At last in a darke corner two sparkes he thought he sees,

Whiche were,¹ indede, nought els but Gyb our cats two eyes. 15

"Puffe!" quod Hodg, thinking therby to haue fyre without doubt;

With that Gyb shut her two eyes, and so the fyre was out.

And by-and-by them opened, euen as they were before;

With that the sparkes appered, euen as they had done of yore.

And euen as Hodge blew the fire, as he did thincke, 20

Gyb, as she felt the blast, strayght-way began to wyncke.

Tyll Hodge fell of swering, as came best to his turne,

The fier was sure bewicht, and therefore wold not burne.

At last Gyb vp the stayers among the old postes and pinnes;

And Hodge he hied him after till broke were both his shinnes, — 25

Cursyng and swering othes were neuer of his makyng,

That Gyb wold fyre the house if that shee were not taken.

GAMMER. See! here is all the thought that the foolysh urchyn taketh!

And Tyb, me thinke, at his elbowe almost as mery maketh!

This is all the wyt ye haue, when others make their mone. 30

Come downe, Hodge! Where art thou?
And let the cat alone!

HODGE [within]. Gogs harte, helpe and come vp! Gyb in her tayle hath fyre,
And is like to burne all if shee get a lytle hier!

"Cum downe," quoth you? nay, then you might count me a patch!

The house cometh downe on your heads if it take ons the thatch.¹ 35

GAMMER. It is the cats eyes, foole, that shineth in the darke!

HODGE [within]. Hath the cat, do you thinke, in euery eye a sparke?

GAMMER. No, but they shyne as lyke fyre as euer man see.

HODGE [within]. By the masse, and she burne all, yoush beare the blame for mee!

GAMMER. Cum downe, and help to seeke here our neele, that it were found. 40

Downe, Tyb, on thy² knees, I say!
Downe, Cocke, to the ground!

To God I make a-vowe, and so to good Saint Anne,

A candell shall they haue a-peece, get it where I can,

If I may my neele find in one place or in other.

[Enter Hodge.]

HODGE. Now a vengeance on Gib lyght, on Gyb and Gybs mother, 45
And all the generacyon of cats both far and nere!

Looke on the ground, horson? Thinks then the neele is here?

COCKE. By my trouth, Gammer, me thought your neele here I saw,

But, when my fyngers toucht it, I felt it was a straw.

TYB. See, Hodge! whats tys? May it not be within it? 50

HODGE. Breake it, foole, with thy hand, and see and thou canst fynde it.

TYB. Nay, breake it you, Hodge, accord-yng to your word.

HODGE. Gogs sydes! fye, it styncks! It is a cats tourd!

It were well done to make thee eate it, by
the masse!

GAMMER. This matter amendeth not; my neele is still where it wasse; 55

Our candle is at an ende: let vs all in quight,

And come another tyme, when we haue more lyght!

[They go into the house.]

THE II ACTE

*Fyrste a songe:*¹

Backe and syde, go bare, go bare;

Booth foote and hande, go colde:

But, bellye, God sende thee good ale ynoughe,
Whether it be newe or olde! 4

I can not eate but lytle meate,

My stomacke is not good;

But, sure, I thinke that I can dry[n]cke

With him that weares a hood.

Thoughe I go bare, take ye no care,

I am nothings a-colde,

I stuffe my skyn so full within

Of ioly good ale and olde. 12

Backe and syde, go bare, go bare;

Booth foote and hand, go colde:

But, belly, God send the good ale inoughe,
Whether it be new or olde! 16

I loue no² rost, but a nut-browne toste³

And a crab⁴ layde in the fyre;

A lytle bread shall do me stead,

Much breade I not desyre.

No froste nor snow, no winde, I trowe,

Can hurte mee if I wolde,

I am so wrapt and throwly lapt

Of ioly good ale and olde. 24

Backe and syde, go bare, &c.

And Tyb, my wyfe, that as her lyfe

Loueth well good ale to seeke,

¹ In the academic drama we find evidence that the acts were separated by music; cf. II, v, 11-12.

² Manly incorrectly gives the reading of A. as to.

³ A piece of toasted bread, soaked in the ale.

⁴ Crab-apple, roasted at the fire and dropped into the pot of ale.

Full ofte drynkes shee tyll ye may see
 The teares run downe her cheeke; ¹
 Then dooth she trowle to mee the bowle,
 Euen as a mault-worme shuld,
 And sayth, "Sweete hart, I tooke my part Of this ioly good ale and olde." 32

Backe and syde, go bare, &c.

Now let them drynke tyll they nod and winke,

Euen as good felowes shoulde doe;
 They shall not mysse to haue the blisse
 Good ale doth bringe men to.
 And all poore soules that haue scowred boules

Or haue them lustely trolde,
 God saue the lyues of them and theyr
 wyues,

Whether they be yonge or olde! 40

Backe and syde, go bare, &c.

THE FYRST SCEANE

[Enter Diccon [from Dame Chat's ale-house, with a pot of ale in his hand]. Hodge [enters later].]

DICCON. Well done, be Gogs malt! Well songe, and well sayde!

Come on, mother Chat, as thou art true
 mayde!

One fresh pot of ale lets see, to make an
 ende,

Agaynst this colde wether my naked armes to defende!

[Dame Chat gives him a fresh pot of ale, which he drinks off.]

This gere it warms the soule! Now, wind, blow on thy ² worst! 5

And let vs drink and swill till that our bellies burste!

Now were he a wyse man by cunynge
 colde defyne

Which way my journey lyeth, or where Dyecon will dyne.

But one good turne I haue: be it by nyght,
 or daye,

South, east, north, or west, I am neuer out of my waye! 10

[Enter from Gammer's house Hodge with a

² A. the.

piece of barley bread in one hand, and an empty milk pan in the other.]

HODGE. Chym goodly rewarded, cham I not, do you thyneke?

Chad a goodly dynner for all my sweate and swyneke!

Neyther butter, cheese, mylke, onyons,
 fleshe, nor fyshe,

Sauē thys poor pece of barly bread, — tis a pleasant costly dishe!

DICCON. Haile, fellow Hodge, and will ¹ to fare with thy meat — if thou haue any! 15

But by thy words, as I them smelled, thy daintrels ² be not manye.

HODGE. Daintrels, Diccon? Gogs soule, man, saue this pece of dry horsbred,

Cha byt no byt this lyue-longe daie; no
 crome come in my hed;

My gutts they yawle-crawle, and all my belly rumbleth;

The puddynges ³ can not lye still, ech one ouer other tumbleth. 20

By Gogs harte, cham so vexte and in my belly pende

Chould one peece were at the spittlehouse, another at the castels ende!

DICCON. Why, Hodge, was there none at home thy dinner for to set?

HODGE. Godgs bread, Diccon, ich came to late; was nothing ther to get!

Gib — a fowle feind might on her light! — lickt the milke-pan so clene, — 25

See, Diccon, twas not so well washt this vii yere, as ich wene!

A pestilence lyght on all ill lucke! Chad thought yet, for all thys,

Of a morsell of bacon behynde the dore at worst shuld not misse;

But when ich sought a slyp to cut, as ich was wont to do,

Gogs soule, Diccon, Gyb, our cat, had eate
 the bacon to! 30

*Which bacon Diccon stole, as is declared
 before.*

DICCON. Ill ⁴ luck, quod he? mary, swere it, Hodg! This day, the trueth to tel, Thou rose not on thy right syde, or els blest thee not wel.

² Dainties.

³ Entrails.

⁴ Manly incorrectly states that A. reads All.

Thy mylk slopt vp, thy bacon filched, — that was to bad luck, Hodg!

HODGE. Nay, nay, ther was a fowler fault:
my gammer ga me the dodge!¹

Seest not how cham rent and torn — my heels, my knees, and my breech? 35 Chad thought as ich sat by the fire, help
here and there a stitch;

But there ich was powppte² indeede!

DICCON. Why, Hodge?

HODGE. Bootes not,³ man, to tell.
Cham so drest⁴ amonst a sorte of fooles chad better be in hell!

My gammer, cham ashamed to say, by God, serued me not weele!

DICCON. How so, Hodge?

HODGE. Hase she not gone, trowest now, and lost her neele? 40

DICCON. Her eele, Hodge? Who fysht of late? That was a dainty dysh!

HODGE. Tush, tush, her neele! her neele! her neele, man! Tys neyther flesh nor fysh.

A lytle thing, with an hole in the end, as bright as any syller,

Small, longe, sharpe at the poynt, and straight as any pyller.

DICCON. I know not what a deuil thou menest. Thou bringst me more in doubt! 45

HODGE. Knowest not with what Tom Tailers man sits broching throughe a clout?

A neele! neele! my gammers neele is gone!

DICCON. Her neele, Hodge? Now I smel thee! That was a chaunce alone!

By the masse, thou hadst a shamefull losse and it wer but for thy breeches!

HODGE. Gogs soule, man, chould giue a crown⁵ chad it but iii stitches! 50

DICCON. How sayest thou, Hodg? What shuld he haue, again thy neele got?

HODGE. Bem vathers soule,⁶ and chad it, chould giue him a new grot!

DICCON. Canst thou keepe counsaile in this case?

² Cheated, befooled. ³ It avails nothing.

⁴ Spoiled, undone.

⁵ A coin of the value of five shillings.

⁶ By my father's soul.

HODGE. Els chworld my tonge¹ were out.

DICCON. Do thou² but then by my ad-uise, and I will fetch it without doubt.

HODGE. Chyll runne, chyll ryde, chyll dygge, chyl delue, chill toyle, chill trudge, shalt see; 55

Chill hold, chil drawe, chil pull, chill pynche, chill kneele on my bare knee;

Chill scrape, chill scratche, chill syfte, chyll seeke, chill bowe, chill bende, chill sweate,

Chil stoop, chil stur, chil cap, chil knele,
chil crepe on hands and feete;

Chil be thy bondman, Diccon, ich sweare
by sunne and moone.

And channot sum-what to stop this gap,
cham vtterly vndone! 60

*Pointing behind to his torne breeches.*³

DICCON. Why, is ther any special cause thou takest hereat such sorow?

HODGE. Kirstian Clack, Tom Simsons maid, bi the masse, coms hether tomorrow!

Channot able to say, betweene vs what may hap, —

She smyled on me the last Sunday when ich put of my cap.

DICCON. Well, Hodge, this is a matter of weight, and must be kept close; 65

It might els turne to both our costes, as the world now gose.

Shalt sware to be no blab, Hodge!

HODGE. Chyll, Diccon!

DICCON. Then, go to!
Lay thine hand here; say after me as thou shalt here me do.

Haste no booke?

HODGE. Cha no booke, I!

DICCON. Then needes must force vs both

Upon my breech to lay thine hand, and there to take thine othe. 70

[Hodge places his hand on Diccon's breech, and recites the oath after Diccon line by line.]

HODGE. I, Hodge, breechelesse,

² A. than.

³ A. kreeches.

Swear to Diccon, rechelesse,¹
 By the crosse that I shall kysse,
 To kepe his counsaile close,
 And alwayes me to dispose
 To worke that his pleasure is. 76

Here he kysseth² Diccons breeche.

DICCON. Now, Hodge, see thou take heede
 And do as I thee byd.
 For so I iudge it meete
 This nedle againe to win, —
 There is no shift therin
 But coniure vp a spreete. 82

* HODGE. What! the great deuill? Diccon,
 I saye!

DICCON. Yea, in good faith, that is the waye, —
 Fet with some prety charme.

[Diccon begins to draw a magician's circle on the floor.]

HODGE. Softe, Diccon! Be not to hasty yet,
 By the masse, for ich begyn to sweat!
 Cham afrayde of some³ harme! 88

DICCON. Come hether then, and sturre
 the nat
 One inche out of this cyrcle plat,
 But stande as I thee teache.

[Places him in a small circle.]

HODGE. And shall ich be here safe from theyr clawes?

DICCON. The mayster deuill with his longe pawes
 Here to thee can not reache. 94

Now will I settle me to this geare.

[Takes his place in a larger circle, and prepares to conjure.]

HODGE. I saye, Diccon! Heare me,
 heare!

Go softly to thys matter!

DICCON. What deuyll, man! art afraide of nought?

HODGE. Canst not tarrye a lytle thought Tyll ich make a curtesie of water? 100

¹ Careless.

² Manly gives the reading of A. as kessech; it is kyssech.

³ A. syme.

DICCON. Stand still to it! Why shuldest thou feare hym?

[Resumes his conjuring.]

HODGE. Gogs sydes, Diccon, me thinke ich heare him!

And tarrye, chal mare all!

DICCON. The matter is no worse than I tolde it.

HODGE. By the masse, cham able no longer to holde it!

To bad! iche must beraye the hall! 106

DICCON. Stand to it, Hodge! Sture not, you horson!

What deuyll! be thine ars-strynges
 brusten?

Thy-selfe a-while but staye;
 The deuill — I smell hym — wyll be here
 anone.

HODGE. Hold him fast, Diccon! Cham gone! Cham gone!

Chyll not be at that fraye! 112

[Exit Hodge running.]

THE II ACTE

THE II SCEANE

Diccon [remains]. [Dame] Chat [enters later].

DICCON. Fy, shyttten knaue! and out vpon
 thee!

Aboue all other loutes fye on thee!

Is not here a clenly prancke?

But thy matter was no better,

Nor thy presence here no sweter,

To fye I can the thanke. 6

Here is a matter worthy glosynge¹

Of Gammer Gurtons nedle losynge,

And a foule peece of warke!

A man, I thyncke, myght make a playe,

And nede no worde to this they saye,

Being but halfe a clarke. 12

Softe, let me alone! I will take the charge
 This matter further to enlarge

Within a tyme shorte.

If ye will marke my toyes, and note,

I will geue ye leaue to cut my throte

If I make not good sporte. 18

[Advances to Dame Chat's door.]

Dame Chat, I say! Where be ye? within?

[Enter Dame Chat, with cards in her hand.]

CHAT. Who haue we there maketh such a din?

DICCON. Here is a good fellow maketh no great daunger.

CHAT. What? Diccon? Come nere; ye be no straunger!

We be fast set at trumpe, man, hard by the fyre.

Thou shalt set on the king, if thou come a litle nyer.

DICCON. Nay, nay, there is no tarying; I must be gone againe. ²⁵

But, first, for you in counce! I haue a word or twaine.

CHAT. Come hether, Dol! [Enter Dol.]

Dol, sit downe and play this game, And, as thou sawest me do, see thou do euen the same.

There is five trumps beside the queene, — the hindmost thou shalt finde her.

Take hede of Sim Glouers wife; she hath an eie behind her! [Exit Dol.] ³⁰

Now, Diccon, say your will.

DICCON. Nay, softe a litle yet! I wold not tel it my sister, the matter is so great.

There I wil haue you swears by our dere Lady of Bullaine,

S. Dunstone, and S. Donnyke, with the three Kings of Kullaine,

That ye shal keepe it secret.

CHAT. Gogs bread, that will I doo! ³⁵ As seeret as mine owne thought, by God, and the deuil two! ¹

DICCON. Here is Gammer Gurton, your neighbour, a sad and heuy wight, — Her goodly faire red cock at home was stole this last night.

CHAT. Gogs soule! her cock with the yellow legs, that nightly crowed so iust? ²

DICCON. That cocke is stollen.

CHAT. What! was he fet out of the hens ruste? ⁴⁰

DICCON. I can not tel where the deuil he was kept, vnder key or locke;

¹ Too.

² So accurately on the hour.

But Tib hath tykled ¹ in Gammers care that you shoulde steale the cocke.

CHAT. Haue I, stronge hoore? By bread and salte —

DICCON. What, softe, I say! be styl! Say not one word for all this geare.

CHAT. By the masse, that I wyl! I wil haue the yong hore by the head and the old trot by the throte! ⁴⁵ DICCON. Not one word, Dame Chat, I say! Not one word, for my cote!

CHAT. Shall such a begars brawle ² as that, thinkest thou, make me a theefe?

The pocks light on her hores sydes! a pestlence and a mischeefe!

[Starts towards Gammer Gurton's.]

Come out, thou hungry, nedy bytche! ⁰ that my nails be short!

[Diccon restrains her.]

DICCON. Gogs bred, woman, hold your peace! this gere wil els passe sport!

I wold not for an hundred pound this matter shuld be knownen, ⁵¹

That I am auctour of this tale or haue abrode it blowen!

Did ye not swears ye wold be ruled, before the tale I tolde?

I said ye must all secret keepe, and ye said sure ye wolde.

CHAT. Wolde you suffer, your-selfe, Diccon, such a sort to reuile you, ⁵⁵ With slaunderous words to blot your name, and so to defile you?

DICCON. No, goodwife Chat; I wold be loth such drabs shulde blot my name;

But yet ye must so order all that Diccon beare no blame.

CHAT. Go to, then! What is your rede? ³ Say on your minde; ye shall mee rule herein.

DICCON. Godamercye to Dame Chat! In faith, thou must the gere begin. ⁶⁰ It is twenty pound to a goose-turd my Gammer wil not tary,

But hetherward she comes as fast as her legs can her cary

To brawle with you about her cocke. For well I hard Tib say ¹ Whispered.

² Brat.

³ Advice.

The cocke was rosted in your house to breafast yesterday;
 And, when ye had the carcas eaten, the fethers ye out flunge; 65
 And Doll, your maid, the legs she hid a foote depe in the dunge.

CHAT. Oh gracyous God! my harte is bursted! ¹

DICCON. Well, rule your-selfe a space!
 And Gammer Gurton, when she commeth
 anon into thys place —

Then to the queane! Lets see! Tell her your mynd, and spare not!

So shall Diccon blamelesse bee; and then, go to, I care not! 70

CHAT. Then hoore, beware her throte! I can abide no longer! ²

In faith, old witch, it shalbe seene which of vs two be stronger!

And, Diccon, but at your request, I wold not stay one howre.

DICCON. Well, keepe it in till she be here, and then — out let it powre!

In the meane-while get you in, and make no wordes of this. 75

More of this matter with-in this howre to here you shall not misse.

Because I knew you are my freind, hide it
 I cold not, doubtles.

Ye know your harm; see ye be wise about your owne busines!

So fare ye will!

CHAT. Nay, soft, Diccon, and drynke!
 What, Doll, I say!

Bringe here a cup of the best ale; lets see!
 come quicly a-waye! 80

[Doll serves him with a cup of ale.]

THE II ACTT

THE III SCEANE

Hodge [later enters]. Diccon [remains].

DICCON. Ye see, masters, the one end tapt of this my short deuse!

Now must we broche tother, ³ to, before the smoke arise.

And, by the time they haue a-while run, I trust ye need not craue it,

² A. lenger, and its rhyme mate seems to be strenger; but the ink is blurred.

³ A. thoter.

But, loke, what lieth in both their harts, ye ar like, sure, to haue it.

[Hodge sticks his head through the door of Gammer's house.]

HODGE. Yea, Gogs soule, art aliuie yet?
 What, Diccon, dare ich come? 5

DICCON. A man is wel hied ¹ to trust to thee! I wil say nothing but mum.

But, and ye come any nearer, I pray you see all be sweete!

[Hodge advances, wearing his other breeches which Gammer had been mending.]

HODGE. Tush, man! Is Gammers neele found? That chould gladly weete! ²

DICCON. She may thanke thee it is not found; for if thou had kept thy standing,

The deuil he wold haue fet it out, euen,
 Hodg, at thy commaunding. 10

HODGE. Gogs hart! and cold he tel nothing wher the neele might be found?

DICCON. Ye folysh dolt, ye were to seek ear we had got our ground;

Therefore his tale so doubtfull was that I cold not perceiue it.

HODGE. Then ich se wel somthing was said. Chope one day yet to haue it.

But, Diccon, Diccon, did not the deuill cry
 "ho! ho! ho"? 15

DICCON. If thou hadst taryed where thou stoodst, thou woldest haue said so.

HODGE. Durst swere of a boke, chard ³ him rore, streight after ich was gon!

But tel me, Diccon, what said the knaue?
 let me here it anon.

DICCON. The horson talked to mee I know not well of what:

One whyle his tonge it ran and paltered of a cat; 20

Another whyle he stamered styll vppon a rat;

Last of all, there was nothing but euery word "chat!" "chat!"

But this I well perceyued, before I wolde him rid,

Betweene "chat" and the "rat" and the "cat", the nedle is hyd.

² Know. ³ I heard.

Now, wether Gyb, our cat, haue eate it in her mawe, 25
Or Doctor Rat, our curat, haue found it in the straw,
Or this Dame Chat, your neighbour, haue stollen it, God hee knoweth!
But by the morow at this time we shal learn how the matter goeth.
HODGE. Canst not learn to-night, man?
Seest not what is here?

Pointyng behind to his torne breeches.

DICCON. Tys not possyble to make it sooner appere. 30
HODGE. Alas, Diccon, then chaue no shyft but — least ich tary to longe — Hye me to Sym Glouers shop, theare to seeke for a thonge, Ther-with this breech to tatche and tye as ich may.
DICCON. To-morow, Hodg, if we chaunce to meete, shalt see what I will say.

[Exit Hodge down the street.]

THE II ACTE

THE IIII SCEANE

Diccon [remains]. Gammer [enters later].

DICCON. Now this gere must forward goe, for here my gammer commeth.
Be still a-while, and say nothing; make here a litle romth! ¹

[Enter from her house Gammer Gurton.]

GAMMER. Good Lord, shall neuer be my lucke my neele agayne to spye!
Alas the whyle, tys past my helpe! Where tis, still it must ly!

DICCON. Now Iesus, Gammer Gurton, what driueth you to this sadnes? 5
I feare me, by my conscience, you will sure fall to madnes.

GAMMER. Who is that? What, Diccon?
Cham lost, man, fye! fye!

DICCON. Mary, fy on them that be worthy! But what shuld be your troble?

GAMMER. Alas, the more ich thinke on it, my sorow it waxeth doble!

¹ Spacc.

My goodly tossing sporyars ¹ neele, chaue lost, ich wot not where. 10

DICCON. Your neele! Whan?

GAMMER. My neele! Alas, ich myght full ill it spare!

As God him-selfe he knoweth, nere one besyde chaue.

DICCON. If this be all, good Gammer, I warrant you all is saue.

GAMMER. Why, know you any tydings which way my neele is gone?

DICCON. Yea, that I do, doubtlesse, as ye shall here anone. 15

A ² see a thing this matter toucheth, within these xx howres,

Euen at this gate, ³ before my face, by a neighbour of yours:

She stooped me downe, and vp she toke a nedle or a pyn.

I durst be sworne it was euen yours, by all my mothers kyn.

GAMMER. It was my neele, Diccon, ich wot; ⁴ for here, euen by this poste, 20

Ich sat, what time as ich vp-starte, and so my neele it loste.

Who was it, leiu⁵ son? Speke, ich pray the, and quickly tell me that!

DICCON. A suttle queane as any in thys towne! your neighbour here, Dame Chat.

GAMMER. Dame Chat, Diccon? Let me be gone! Chil thyther in post-haste.

[Starting toward Dame Chat's.]

DICCON. Take my councell yet or ye go, for feare ye walke in wast! 25

It is a murrion crafty drab, and froward to be pleased;

And ye take not the better way, our nedle
yet ye lese ⁶ it.

For when she tooke it vp, euen here before your doores,

“What, soft, Dame Chat,” quoth I, “that same is none of yours!”

“Auant,” quoth she, “syr knaue! What pratest thou of that I fynd? 30

I wold thou hadst kist me I wot whear,” — she ment, I know, behind.

² I. ³ Door. ⁴ I know.

⁵ Dear. ⁶ A. lose; corr. by Manly.

And home she went as brag¹ as it had ben a bodelouce,²
 And I after as bold as it had ben the goodman of the house.
 But there and ye had hard her how she began to scolde —
 The tonge it went on patins,³ by hym that Iudas solde! 35
 Ech other worde I was a knaue, and you a hore of hores,
 Because I spake in your behalfe and sayde
 the neele was yours.

GAMMER. Gogs bread! and thinks the callet thus to kepe my neele me fro?

DICCON. Let her alone, and she minds non other but euen to dresse you so!

GAMMER. By the masse, chil rather spend the cote that is on my backe! 40 Thinks the false quean by such a slyght⁴ that chill my neele lacke?

DICCON. Slepe⁵ not you[r] gere, I counsell you, but of this take good hede:
 Let not be knowen I told you of it, how well
 soeuer ye sped!

GAMMER. Chil in, Diccon, a eleene aperne to take and set before me;
 And ich may my neele once see, chil, sure,
 remember the! 45

[Exit Gammer Gurton into her house.]

THE II ACTE

THE V SCEANE

Diccon [remains].

DICCON. Here will the sporte begin! If these two once may meete,
 Their ehre,⁶ durst lay money, will proue
 searsly sweete!

My gammer, sure, entendts to be vppon her bones

With staus or with elubs or els with coble-stones.

Dame Chat, on the other syde, if she be far
 behynde, 5

I am right far deceiued; she is geuen to it of kynde.⁷

He that may tarry by it a-whyle, and that but shorte,

² Body-louse.

³ Noisily, as a person wearing pattens, or wooden shoes.

⁴ A. slygh.

⁵ Slip.

⁶ Cheer.

⁷ By nature.

I warrant hym — trust to it — he shall see all the sporte.

Into the towne will I, my frendes to vysit
 there,

And hether straight againe to see thend of this gere. 10

In the meane-time, felowes, pype vpp your fiddles! I saie, take them,

And let your freyndes here such mirth as ye can make them!¹

[Exit Diccon down the street.]

THE III ACTE

THE I SCEANE

[Enter] Hodge [with thongs and awl, returning from Sym Glover's].

HODGE. Sym Glouer, yet gramercy! cham meetlye well-spued now.

Thart euen as good a felow as cuer kyste a cowe!

Here is a thonge² in-dede; by the masse,
 though ich speake it,

Tom Tankards great bald eurtal,³ I thinke, could not breake it!

And when he spyed my neede to be so straight and hard, 5

Hays lent me here his naul⁴ to set the gyb forward.⁵

As for my gammers neele, the flyenge feynd go weete!⁶

Chill not now go to the doore againe with it to meete.

Chould make shyfte good inough and ehad
 a candels ende.

The cheefe hole in my breeche with these two chil amende. 10

THE III ACTE

THE II SCEANE

Gammer [meets] Hodge [at the door].

GAMMER. How, Hodge! mayst nowe be glade! Cha newes to tell thee:

Ich knowe who hais my neele; ich trust soone shalt it see.

² A. thyng.

³ A horse with its tail cut short.

⁴ Awl.

⁵ To help matters.

⁶ With it.

HODGE. The deuyll thou does! Hast hard, Gammer, indeede, or doest but iest?

GAMMER. Tys as true as steele, Hodge.

HODGE. Why, knowest well where dydst leese it?

GAMMER. Ich know who found it, and tooke it vp; shalt see, or it be longe. 5

HODGE. Gods Mother dere, if that be true, far-wel both naule an thong! But who hais it, Gammer? say on! Chould faine here it disclosed.

GAMMER. That false fixen,¹ that same Dame Chat, that counts her-selfe so honest!

HODGE. Who tolde you so?

GAMMER. That same did Diccon the bedlam, which saw it done.

HODGE. Diccon? It is a vengeable knaue, Gammer! Tis a bo[m]nable horson! 10

Can do mo things then that, els cham de-cyued euill.

By the masse, ich saw him of late cal vp a great blacke deuill!

O, the knaue cryed "ho! ho!" He roared, and he thundred.

And yead bene here, cham sure yould mur-renly ha wondred!

GAMMER. Was not thou afraide, Hodge, to see him in this place? 15

HODGE. No! And chad come to me, chould haue laid him on the face!

Chould haue! promised him!

GAMMER. But, Hodge, had he no hores to pushe?

HODGE. As long as your two armes! Saw ye neuer Fryer Rushe

Painted on a cloth,² with a side long coves tayle,

And crooked clouen feete, and many a hoked nayle? 20

For al the world, if I shuld iudg, chould reckon him his brother.

Loke, euen what face Frier Rush had, the deuil had such another!

GAMMER. Now³ Iesus! mercy! Hodg! did Diccon in him bring?

HODGE. Nay, Gammer, heare me speke! Chil tel you a greater thing:

The deuil, when Diccon had him, — ich hard him wondrous weel, — 25
Sayd plainly here before vs that Dame Chat had your neele.

GAMMER. Then let vs go and aske her wherfore she minds to kepe it! Seing we know so much, tware a madnes now to slepe it.

HODGE. Go to her, Gammer. See ye not where she stands in her doores?

Byd her geue you the neele. Tys none of hers but yours! 30

THE III ACTE

THE III SCEANE

Gammer [advances to Dame] Chat. Hodge [keeps at a safe distance].

GAMMER. Dame Chat, chold praye the fair, let me haue that is mine! Chil not this twenty yeres take one fart that is thyne.

Therefore giue me mine owne, and let me liue besyde the!

CHAT. Why! art thou crept from home hether to mine own doores to chide me?

Hence, doting drab! au aunt, or I shall set the further! 5

Intends thou and that knaue mee in my house to murther?

GAMMER. Tush, gape not so on¹ me, woman! Shalt not yet cate mee!

Nor all the frends thou hast in this shall not intreate mee!

Mine owne goods I will haue, and aske the on beleue.²

What, woman! pore folks must haue right, though the thing you agreue. 10

CHAT. Giue thee thy right, and hang thee vp, with al thy baggers³ broode!

What, wilt thou make me a theefe, and say I stole thy good?

GAMMER. Chil say nothing, ich warrant thee, but that ich can proue it well. Thou fet⁴ my good euen from my doore, cham able this to tel!

¹ Vixen

² The painted cloths used to adorn the homes of the middle classes.

³ A. New.

³ Beggar's.

² Ask thee for quickly.

⁴ Fetched, took.

CHAT. Dyd I, olde witche, steale oft ¹ was thine? How should that thing be knowne? 15

GAMMER. Ich can not tel; but vp thou tokest it, as though it had ben thine owne.

CHAT. Mary, fy on thee, thou old gyb,² with al my very hart!

GAMMER. Nay, fy on thee, thou rampe,³ thou ryg,⁴ with al that take thy parte!

CHAT. A vengeaunce on those lips that laieht such things to my charge!

GAMMER. A vengeaunce on those callats⁵ hips whose conscience is so large! 20

CHAT. Come out, hogge!

GAMMER. Come out, hogge! and let me haue⁶ right!

CHAT. Thou arrant witche!

GAMMER. Thou bawdie bitche, chil make thee curse this night!

CHAT. A bag and a wallet!

GAMMER. A carte for a callet!

CHAT. Why, wenest thou thus to pre-uaile?

I hold thee a grote I shall patche thy coate!

GAMMER. Thou warte as good kysse my tayle!

Thou slut! thou kut! thou rakes! thou iakes! will not shame make thee⁷ hide? 25

CHAT. Thou skald! thou bald! thou rotten! thou glotton! I will no lenger chyd!⁸

But I will teache the to kepe home.

GAMMER. Wylt thou, drunken beaste?

[They fight.]

HODGE [at a distance]. Sticke to her, Gammer! Take her by the head! Chil warrant you thys feast!

Smyte, I saye, Gammer! Byte, I say, Gammer! I trow ye wyll be keene!

Where be your nayls? claw her by the iawes! Pull me out bothe her eyen! 30

¹ Aught.

² A cat; used as a term of reproach for an old woman.

³ A vulgar woman.

⁴ A wanton woman.

⁵ Whore's.

⁶ A. let haue me.

⁷ Manly states, incorrectly, that A. reads ye.

⁸ A. chyd the.

[Dame Chat gets Gammer down.]

Gogs bones, Gammer, holde vp your head!

CHAT. I trow, drab, I shall dresse thee.

[To Hodge.]

Tary, thou knaue, I hold the a grote I shall make these hands blesse thee!

[Exit Hodge. Dame Chat gives Gammer a sound beating.]

Take thou this, old hore, for a-mends, and lerne thy tonge well to tame,

And say thou met at this bickering, not thy¹ fellow, but thy dame!

[Exit Dame Chat. Hodge enters with a heavy club.]

HODGE. Where is the strong stued hore? Chil geare² a hores marke! 35

Stand out ones way that ich kyll none in the darke!

Up, Gammer, and ye be alyue! Chil feygh[t] now for vs bothe.

[Dame Chat re-appears at her door.]

Come no nere me, thou scalde callet! To kyll the ich wer loth.

CHAT. Art here agayne, thou hodyy-peke! What, Doll, bryng me out my spitte!

HODGE. Chill broche thee wyth this! Bim father soule, chyll coniure that foule sprete! 40

[Over his shoulder to Cocke:]

Let dore stand, Cock! [To Dame Chat:] Why coms in-deede? [To Cocke:]

Kepe dore, thou horson boy!

CHAT. Stand to it, thou dastard, for thine eares! Ise teche the, a sluttish toyel

[Dame Chat advances towards Hodge.]

HODGE. Gogs woundes, hore, chil make the auunte! [Hodge flees into the house.] Take heede, Cocke, pull in the latch!

CHAT. I faith, sir loose-breche, had ye taried, ye shold haue found your match!

² Give her.

[While Dame Chat stands at the door threatening Hodge, Gammer rises and attacks her from behind.]

GAMMER. Now ware thy throte, losell!
Thouse pay ¹ for all!

[Gets Dame Chat down and gives her a sound beating.]

HODGE [from the door]. Well said, Gammer, by my soule! 45

Hoyse her! souse her! bounce her! trounce her! pull out her throte-boule!

CHAT. Comst behynd me, thou withered witeh? And I get once on foote, Thouse pay for all, thou old tarlether! Ile teach the what longs to it!

[Dame Chat gets Gammer down and beats her again.]

Take the this to make vp thy mouth til time thou come by more!

[Exit Dame Chat in triumph. After a time Hodge cautiously advances.]

HODGE. Up, Gammer! Stand on your feete. Where is the old hore? 50
Faith, woulde ehad her by the face! choulde eraeke her callet erowne!

GAMMER. A, Hodg, Hodg, where was thy help, when fixen ² had me downe?

HODGE. By the masse, Gammer, but for my staffe, Chat had gone nye to spyl you!

Ieh think the harlot had not eared, and ehad not com, to kill you.

But shall we loose our neele thus?

GAMMER. No, Hodge, chwarde ³ lothe doo soo. 55

Thinkest thou chill take that at her hand? No, Hodge, ich tell the, no!

HODGE. Chold yet this fray wer wel take vp, and our own neele at home.

Twill be my chauce els some to kil, wher-euer it be, or whome!

GAMMER. We haue a parson, Hodge, thou knoes, a man estened wise,

Mast[er] Doctor Rat; chil for hym send, and let me here his aduise. 60

He will her shriue for all this gere, and geue her penance strait;

Wese ¹ haue our neele, els Dame Chat comes nere with-in heauen gate!

HODGE. Ye, mary, Gammer, that ich think best. Wyll you now for him send?

The sooner Doctor Rat be here, the soner wese ha an ende.

And here, Gammer! Dyceons deuill, as iche remember well, 65

Of eat, and Chat and Doctor Rat a felonous tale dyd tell.

Chold ² you forty pound that is the way your neele to get againe!

GAMMER. Chil ha him strait! Call out the boy; wese make him take the payn.

HODGE. What, Coke, I saye! Come out! What deuill! canst not here?

COCKE ³ [entering]. How now, Hodg? How does, Gammer? Is yet the wether cleare? 70

What wold chaue me to doo?

GAMMER. Come hether, Cocke, anon! Hence swythe ⁴ to Doctor Rat, hye the that thou were gone!

And pray hym come speke with me; cham not well at ease.

Shalt haue him at his chamber, or ⁵ els at Mother Bees; ⁶

Els seeke him at Hob Fylehers shop, for, as charde it reported, 75

There is the best ale in al the towne, and now is most resorted.

COCKE. And shall ich brynge hym with me, Gammer?

GAMMER. Yea, by-and-by, ⁷ good Cocke.

COCKE. Shalt see that shalbe here anone, els let me haue on ⁸ the docke! ⁹

[Exit Cocke down the street.]

HODGE. ¹⁰ Now, Gammer, shal we two go in, and tary for hys commynge?

What deuill, woman! plueke vp your hart, and leue of al this glomming! 80

Though she were stronger at the first, as ich thinke ye did find her,

Yet there ye drest the dronken sow what time ye cam behind her.

² I wager.

³ A. incorreclly assigns to Gammer.

⁴ Quickly.

⁵ A. of.

⁶ An ale house.

⁷ At once.

⁸ A. one.

⁹ Tail.

¹⁰ In A. this and the three preceding speakers' names are elevated one line in the margin above their correct place.

GAMMER. Nay, nay, cham sure she lost not all; for, set thend to the begining,
And ich doubt not but she will make small bost of her winning.

[They start to go in.]

THE III ACTE

THE III SCEANE

Tyb [entering hurriedly, meets] Hodge [and] Gammer. Cocke [enters later].

TYB. See, Gammer, Gammer, Gib, our cat! Cham afraid what she ayl-eth!

She standes me gasping behind the doore, as though her winde her failleth.

Now let ich doubt what Gib shuld mean, that now she doth so dote.

HODGE. Hold hether!¹ Ichould twenty pound your neele is in her throte!

[Hodge takes the cat.]

Grope² her, ich say! Me thinkes ich feele it. Does not priekie your hand? 5

GAMMER. Ich can feele nothing.

HODGE. No? Ich know thars not within this land

A muryner³ cat then Gyb is, betwixt the Tems and Tyne;

Shase as much wyt in her head almost as chaue in mine!

TYB. Faith, shase eaten some-thing that wil not easly downe.

Whether she gat it at home or abrode in the towne 10

Iche can not tell.

GAMMER. Alas, ich feare it be some croked pyn!

And then, farewell Gyb! she is vndone, and lost — al saue the skyn.

HODGE. Tys⁴ your neele, woman, I lay! Gogs soule, geue me a knyfe,

And chil haue it out of her mawe, or els chal lose my lyfe!

GAMMER. What! Nay, Hodg, fy! Kil not our cat. Tis al the cats we ha now! 15

³ A more cursed.

² Feel, probe.

HODGE. By the masse, Dame Chat hays me so moued iche care not what I kyll, ma[k] God a-vowe!

Go to, then, Tyb! to this gear! Holde vp har tayle, and take her!

Chil see what deuil is in her guts! Chil take the¹ paines to rake² her!

GAMMER. Rake a cat, Hodge? what woldst thou do?

HODGE. What! thinkst that cham not able?

Did not Tom Tankard rake his eurtal toore³ day, standing in the stable?

[Enter Cocke from down the street.]

GAMMER. Soft, be content; lets here what newes Cocke bringeth from Mais-t[er] Rat! 21

COCKE. Gammer, chaue ben ther-as you bad, you wot wel about what.

Twill not be long before he come, ich durst swear of a booke.

He byds you see ye be at home, and there for him to looke.

GAMMER. Where didst thou find him, boy? Was he not wher I told thee? 25

COCKE. Yes, yes, euen at Hob Filchers house, by him that⁴ bought and solde me;

A cup of ale had in his hand, and a crab lay in the fyer.

Chad much a-do to go and come, al was so ful of myer.

And, Gammer, one thing I can tel: Hob Filchers naule was loste,

And Doctor Rat found it againe, hard beside the doore-poste. 30

I chould a penny can say something your neele againe to fet.

GAMMER. Cham glad to heare so much, Cocke. Then trust he wil not let

To helpe vs herein best he can; therefore, tyl time he come,

Let vs go in. If there be aught to get, thou shalt haue some.

² Scrape clean.

³ The other. Manly prints toore.

⁴ Manly's scribe reads A. as y^t; to me it is clearly y^t.

THE III ACTE

THE I SCEANE ¹

[Enter] Doctor Rat. Gammer Gurton [enters later].

D. RAT. A man were better twenty times be a bandog and barke,
Then here among such a sort be parish-priest or clarke,
Where he shal neuer be at rest one pissing-
while a day,

But he must trudge about the towne this way and that way,
Here to a drab, there to a theefe, his shoes to teare and rent, ⁵

And, that which is worst of al, at euery knaues commaundement!
I had not sit the space to drinke two pots of ale

But Gammer Gurtens sory boy was strait-way at my taile,
And she was sicke, and I must come — to do I wot not what!

If once her fingers-end but ake, "Trudge!
Call for Doctor Rat!" ¹⁰

And when I come not at their call, I only therby loose;

For I am sure to lacke therefore a tythe-pyg
or a goose.

I warrant you, when truth is knowen, and told they haue their tale,

The matter where-about I come is not worth a half-peny-worth of ale!
Yet must I talke so sage and smothe as though I were a glosier, ¹⁵

Els, or the yere come at an end, I shalbe sure the loser.

[He sees Gammer Gurton working in her house.]

What! worke ye, Gammer Gurton! Hoow, here is your frend M[aster] Rat!

GAMMER [entering]. A, good M[aster]
Doctor, cha trobled, cha trobled you, chwot wel that!

D. RAT. How do ye, woman? Be ye lustie, or be ye not wel at ease?

¹ A. gives this as Act II scene iv, obviously in error; cf. the following scene.

² Flatterer.

GAMMER. By Gys, master, cham not sick, ¹ but yet chaue a disease. ²⁰
Chad a foule turne now of late; chill tell it you, by Gigs!

D. RAT. Hath your browne cow cast hir calfe, or your sandy sowe her pigs?

GAMMER. No; but chad ben as good they had as this, ich wot weel.

D. RAT. What is the matter?

GAMMER. Alas! alas! cha lost my good
neele!

My neele, I say! And, wot ye what? a drab came by and spied it, ²⁵
And, when I asked hir for the same, the filth flatly denied it.

D. RAT. What was she that —

GAMMER. A dame, ich warrant you!
She began to scold and brawle —

Alas, alas! Come hether, Hodge! This wr[e]tche can tell you all.

THE III ACTE

THE II SCEANE

[Enter] Hodge [to] Doctor Rat [and] Gammer.
Diccon [enters later]. ²

HODGE. God morow, Gaffer Vicar!

D. RAT. ³ Come on, fellow; let vs heare.
Thy dame hath sayd to me thou knowest of all this geare;

Lets see what thou canst saie.

HODGE. Bym fay, sir, that ye shall!
What matter so-euer here was done, ich can tell your maship [all].

My Gammer Gurton heare — see now? ⁵
Sat her downe at this doore — see now?
And, as she began to stirre her — see now?

Her neele fell in the floore — see now?
And while her staffe shее tooke — see now?

At Gyb her cat, to flynge — see now? ¹⁰
Her neele was lost in the floore — see now?

Is not this a wondrous thing — see now?
Then came the queane, Dame Chat — see
now?

To aske for hir blacke cup — see now?

² A. adds the name of Chat. But the author begins a new scene with the entrance of a new character creating a new situation. I have adopted Manly's scene division.

³ Manly says not in A. His copyist was mistaken.

And euen here at this gate — see now? 15

She tooke that neele vp — see now?

My gammer then she yeede ¹ — see now?

Hir neele againe to bring — see now?

And was caught by the head — see now?

Is not this a wondrous thing — see now? 20

She tare my gammers cote — see now?

And scratched hir by the face — see now?

Chad thought shad stopt hir throte — see now?

Is not this a wondrous case — see now?

When ich saw this, ich was wrothe ² — see now? 25

And start betwene them twaine — see now?

Els, ich durst take a booke-othe — see now?

My gammer had bene slaine — see now?

GAMMER. This is cuen the whole matter, as Hodge has plainly tolde.

And chould faine be quiet, for my part, that chould. 30

But helpe vs, good master, — beseech ye that ye doo, —

Els shall ³ we both be beaten, and lose our neele too.

D. RAT. What wold ye haue me to doo? Tel me, that I were gone. *

I will do the best that I can to set you both at one.

But be ye sure Dame Chat hath this your neele founde? 35

GAMMER. Here comes the man that see hir take it vp of the ground;

Aske him your-selfe, Master Rat, if ye beleue not me.

And helpe me to my neele, for Gods sake and Saint Charitie!

[Enter Diccon from down the street.]

D. RAT. Come nere, Diccon, and let vs heare what thou can expresse.

Wilt thou be sworne thou seest Dame Chat this womans neele haue? 40

DICCON. Nay, by S. Benit, wil I not! Then might ye thinke me raue.

GAMMER. Why, didst not thou tel me so euen here? Canst thou for shame deny it?

DICCON. I, mary, Gammer; but I said I wold not abide by it.

D. RAT. Will you say a thing, and not sticke to it to trie it?

DICCON. "Stick to it," quoth you, Master Rat? mary, sir, I defy it! 45

Nay, there is many an honest man, when he suche blastes hath blowne

In his freindes eares, he woulde be loth the same by him were knowne.

If such a toy be vsed oft among the honestie,

It may be-seme a simple man of ¹ your and my degree.

D. RAT. Then we be neuer the nearer for all that you can tell? 50

DICCON. Yes, mary, sir, if ye will do by mine aduise and counsaile.

If Mother Chat se al vs here, she knoweth how the matter goes;

Therefore I red you three go hence, and within keepe close;

And I will into Dame Chats house, and so the matter vse

That, or you cold go twise to church, I warrant you here news. 55

She shall looke wel about hir, but, I durst lay a pledge,

Ye shal of Gammers neele haue shortly better knowledge.

GAMMER. Now, gentle Diccon, do so; and, good sir, let vs trudge.

D. RAT. By the masse, I may not tarry so long to be your iudge.

DICCON. Tys but a litle while, man. What! take so much paine! 60

If I here no newes of it, I will come sooner againe.

HODGE. Tary so much, good Master Doctor, of your gentlenes!

D. RAT. Then let vs hie vs inward; and, Diccon, speede thy busines!

¹ Went.

² Angered. A. misprints worthe.

³ A. shall, or the final l may be merely broken.

[THE IIII ACT

THE III SCEANE] ¹

[Diccon remains.]

DICCON. Now, sirs, do you no more but kepe my counsaile iuste, And Docter Rat shall thus catch some good, I trust.
But Mother Chat, my gossop, talke first with-all I must,
For she must be chiefe captaine to lay the Rat in the dust.

[Diccon walks towards Dame Chat's house, and meets her coming out.]

God deuen, Dame Chat, in faith, and wel met in this place! 5

CHAT. God deuen, my friend Diccon. Whether walke ye this pace?

DICCON. By my truth, euen to you, to learne how the world goeth.

Hard ye no more of the other matter, say me now, by your troth!

CHAT. O yes, Diccon. Here the olde hoore, and Hodge, that great knaue —

But, in faith, I would thou hadst sene! — O Lord, I drest them braue! 10

She bare me two or three souses behind in the nape of the necke,

Till I made hir olde wesen ² to answeere againe, "kecke"! ³

And Hodge, that dirty dastard that at hir elbow standes, —

If one paire of legs had not bene worthe two paire of hands,

He had had his bearde shauen if my nayles wold haue serued! 15

And not without a cause, for the knaue it well deserued.

DICCON. By the masse, I can the thank, wench, thou didst so wel acquite the!

CHAT. And thodst seene him, Diccon, it wold haue made the beshite the

For laughter. The horsen dolt at last caught vp a club

As though he would haue slaine the master-deuil, Belsabub; 20

But I set him soone inward.

DICCON. O Lorde, there is the thing That Hodge is so offended! That makes him starte and flyng!

CHAT. Why, makes the knaue any moyling, as ye haue sene or hard?

DICCON. Euen now I sawe him last. Like a mad-man he farde, ¹

And sware by heauen and hell he would a-wreake ² his sorowe, 25

And leue you neuer a hen on-liue by viii of the clock to-morow.

Therefore marke what I say, and my wordes see that ye trust:

Your hens be as good as dead if ye leaue them on the ruste!

CHAT. The knaue dare as wel ³ go hang himself as go vpon my ground!

DICCON. Wel, yet take hede, I say! I must tel you my tale round. 30

Haue you not about your house, behind your furnace or leade, ⁴

A hole where a crafty knaue may crepe in for neade? ⁵

CHAT. Yes, by the masse, a hole broke down euen within these ii dayes.

DICCON. Hodge he intendes this same night to slip in there-a-wayes.

CHAT. O Christ, that I were sure of it! In faith, he shuld haue his mede! 35

DICCON. Watch wel, for the knaue wil be there as sure as is your crede.

I wold spend my-selfe a shilling to haue him swung well.

CHAT. I am as glad as a woman can be of this thing to here tell.

By Gogs bones, when he commeth, now that I know the matter,

He shal sure at the first skip to leape in scalding water, — 40

With a worse turne besides! When he will, let him come!

DICCON. I tell you as my sister. ⁶ You know what meaneth "mum"!

² Avenge.

³ A. wol, which may be Chat's pronunciation of "well."

⁴ Pot used for brewing ale.

⁵ A. neades.

⁶ In strict confidence.

² Throat.

³ A. kicke(?), corr. by Dodsley.

¹ Manly begins a new scene at this point, correctly, I think. Hazlitt would begin the scene five lines later.

[THE IIII ACT

THE IIII SCEANE] ¹[Diccon remains.]

[DICCON.] Now lacke I but my doctor to play his part againe.
And lo,² where he commeth towards, — peradventure, to his paine!

[Enter Dr. Rat from Gammer's house.]

D. RAT. What good newes, Diccon, fellow? Is Mother Chat at home?

DICCON. She is, syr, and she is not, but it please her to whome.

Yet dyd I take her tardy, as subtile as she
was! 5

D. RAT. The thing that thou wentst for, hast thou brought it to passe?

DICCON. I haue done that I haue done, be it worse, be it better!

And Dame Chat at her wyts ende I haue almost set her.

D. RAT. Why, hast thou spied the neele?
Quickly, I pray thee, tell!

DICCON. I haue spyed it, in faith, sir, I handled my-selfe so well. 10

And yet the crafty queane had almost take my trumpe.

But, or all came to an ende, I set her in a dumpe!

D. RAT. How so, I pray thee, Diccon?

DICCON. Mary, syr, will ye heare?
She was clapt downe on the backside, by

Cocks Mother dere,

And there she sat sewing a halter, or a bande, 15

With no other thing saue Gammers nedle in her hande.

As soone as any knocke, if the filth be in doubte,

She needes but once puffe, and her candle is out.

Now I, sir, knowing of euery doore the pin,

Came nycely, and said no worde till time I was within; 20

And there I sawe the neele, euen with thes two eyes.

Who-euer say the contrary, I will swere he
lyes!

D. RAT. O Diccon, that I was not there then in thy steade!

DICCON. Well, if ye will be ordred and do by my reade,¹

I will bring you to a place, as the house
standes, 25

Where ye shall take the drab with the neele in hir handes.

D. RAT. For Gods sake, do so, Diccon, and I will gage my gowne

To geue thee a full pot of the best ale in the towne!

DICCON. Follow me but a litle, and marke
what I will say.

Lay downe your gown beside you.

[Dr. Rat lays aside his clerical gown.]

Go to, come on your way! 30
Se ye not what is here? — a hole wherin ye

may creepe

Into the house, and sodenly vnwares among them leape.

There shal ye finde the bitchfox and the neele together.

Do as I bid you, man; come on your wayes hether!

D. RAT. Art thou sure, Diccon, the swiltub standes not here-about? 35

DICCON. I was within my-selfe, man, euen now, there is no doubt.

Go softly, make no noyse. Giue me your foote, sir John! ²

[Diccon helps him up.]

Here will I waite vpon you tyl you come out anone.

[Doctor Rat climbs into the house. Dame Chat and her maids fall upon him with clubs.]

D. RAT. Helpe, Diccon! Out, alas! I shal be slaine among them!

DICCON. If they giue you not the nedle
tel them that ye will hang them. 40

Ware that! Hoow, my wenches! haue ye caught the foxe

That vsed to make reuel among you hennes and cocks?

¹ The scene division added by Manly.² A. lo, but inking is heavy, and the reading may be lo.¹ Advice.² The conventional name for a parson.

Saue his life yet for his order, though he susteine some paine.
Gogs bread, I am afraide, they wil beate out his braine!

[*Exit Diccon down the street. Enter Doctor
Rat through the hole, wet and torn.*]

D. RAT. Wo worth the houre that I came
heare! 45

And wo worth him that wrought this geare!
A sort of drabs and queanes haue me blest!
Was euer creature halfe so euill drest?

Who-euer it wrought and first did inuent it,
He shall, I warrant him, erre long repent
it! 50

I wil spend all I haue, without my skinn,¹
But he shall be brought to the plight I am
in!

Master Bayly,² I trow, and he be worth his cares,

Will snaffle these murderers and all that them beares.³

I will surely neither byte nor suppe 55
Till I fetch him hether, this matter to take vp.

[Exit down the street.]

THE V ACTE

THE I SCEANE

[*Enter Master Bayly [led in by] Doctor Rat.
[Scapthryft attending.]*]

BAILIE. I can perceiue none other, I speke
it from my hart,

But either ye ar in al the fault, or els in the greatest part.

D. RAT. If it be counted his fault, besides all his greeces,

When a poore man is spoyled and beaten
among theeues,

Then I confesse my fault herein at this season; 5

But I hope you wil not iudge so much against reason.

BAILY. And me thinkes, by your owne tale, of all that ye name,

If any plaid the theefe, you were the very same.

³ Support, uphold.

² Bailiff.

The women they did nothing, as your words make probation,
But stoutly withstood your forcible inua-
sion. 1-

If that a theefe at your window to enter should begin,

Wold you hold forth your hand and helpe to pull him in?

Or wold you ¹ kepe him out? I pray you,
answere me.

D. RAT. Mary, kepe him out, and a good cause why!

But I am no theefe, sir, but an honest, learned clarke. 15

BAILY. Yea, but who knoweth that when he meets you in the darke.

I am sure your learning shines not out at your nose.

Was it any maruaile though the poore woman arose

And start vp, being afraide of that was in her purse?

Me thinke you may be glad that you[r]
lucke was no worse. 20

D. RAT. Is not this euill ynough, I pray you, as you thinke?

Showing his broken head.

BAILY. Yea, but a man in the darke, if ²
chaunces do wincke,

As soone he smites his father as any other
man,

Because for lacke of light discerne him he ne can.

Might it not haue ben your lucke with a spit to haue ben slaine? 25

D. RAT. I thinke I am litle better — my scalpe is clouen to the braine!

If there be all the remedy, I know who beares the k[n]ockes.

BAILY. By my troth, and well worthy besides to kisse the stockes.

To come in on the backe-side, when ye might go about!

I know non such, vnles they long to haue their braines knockt out. 30

D. RAT. Well, wil you be so good, sir, as talke with Dame Chat,

And know what she intended? I aske no more but that.

¹ A. you wold; like many other obvious corrections in the text; this was first noted by Dodsley.

² A. of.

BAYLY. Let her be called, fellow, because of Master Doctor.

[Scapethryft goes to Dame Chat's house.]

I warrant in this case she wil be hir owne
proctor;
She will tel hir owne tale, in metter or in prose, 35
And byd you seeke your remedy, and so go wype your nose!

THE V ACTE

THE II SCEANE

[To] M. Bayly [Scapethryft leads in Dame] Chat. D. Rat [remains]. Gammer,
Hodge, [and] Diccon [enter later].

BAYLY. Dame Chat, Master Doctor vpon you here complained That you and your maides shuld him much misorder,
And taketh many an oth that no word he
fained,

Laying to your charge how you thought him to murder;
And, on his part againe, that same man saith furdur
He neuer offended you in word nor intent.

To heare you answer hereto, we haue now for you sent. 7

CHAT. That I wold haue murdered him?
Fye on him, wretch!
And euil mought he thee ¹ for it, our Lord I besech.

I will swere on al the bookes that opens and shuttes,
He faineth this tale out of his owne guttes!
For this seuen weekes with me, I am sure,
he sat not downe.

Nay, ye haue other minions, in the other end of the towne,

Where ye were liker to catch such a blow
Then any-where els, as farre as I know! 15

BAYLY. Be-like then, Master Doctor, you[r] stripe there ye got not!

D. RAT. Thinke you I am so mad that where I was bet I wot not?

Will ye beleue this queane before she hath tryd ² it?

² Put it to proof.

It is not the first dede she hath done and afterward denide it.

CHAT. What, man, will you say I broke your head? 20

D. RAT. How canst thou proue the contrary?

CHAT. Nay, how prouest thou that I did the deade?

D. RAT. To plainly, by S. Mary!
This profe, I trow, may serue though I no word spoke!

Showing his broken head.

CHAT. Bicause thy head is broken, was it
I that it broke? 25

I saw thee, Rat, I tel thee, not once within this fortnight.

D. RAT. No, mary, thou sawest me not,
for-why thou hadst no light;
But I felt thee, for al the darke, beshrew thy smothe cheekes!

And thou groped me — this wil declare any day this six weekes.

Showing his heade.

BAYLY. Answere me to this, M[aster] Rat:
when caught you this harme of
yours? 30

D. RAT. A-while a-go, sir, God he knoweth, with-in les then these ii houres.

BAYLY. Dame Chat, was there none with you — confesse, i-faith — about that season?

What, woman! let it be what it wil, tis neither felony nor treason.

CHAT. Yes, by my faith, Master Bayly, there was a knaue not farre

Who caught one good philop on the brow with a dore-barre, — 35

And well was he worthy, as it semed to mee.
But what is that to this man, since this was not hee?

BAYLY. Who was it then? Lets here!

D. RAT. Alas! sir, aske you that?

Is it not made plain inough by the owne mouth of Dame Chat?

The time agreeth, my head is broken, her tong can not lye; 40

Onely vpon a bare nay she saith it was not I.

CHAT. No, mary, was it not, indeede. Ye shal here by this one thing:

This after-noone a frend of mine for good wil gauë me warning,

And bad me wel loke to my ruste ¹ and al
my capons pennes,

For, if I toke not better heede, a knaue
wold haue my hennes. 45

Then I, to saue my goods, toke so much pains as him to watch;

And, as good fortune serued me, it was my chaunce him for to catch.

What strokes he bare away, or other what was his gaines,

I wot not — but sure I am he had something for his paines!

BAILY. Yet telles thou not who it was.

CHAT. Who it was? A false theefe, 50 That came like a false foxe my pullaine ² to kil and mischeefe!

BAILY. But knowest thou not his name?

CHAT. I know it. But what than?

It was that crafty cullyon, ³ Hodge, my Gammer Gurtons man.

BAILIE. Call me the knaue hether. He shal sure kysse the stockes.

I shall teach him a lesson for filching hens or cocks! 55

[Exit Scapethryft into Gammer's house.]

D. RAT. ⁴ I maruaile, Master Bayly, so bleared be your eyes!

An egge is not so ful of meate as she is ful of
lyes.

When she hath playd this pranke to excuse
al this geare,

She layeth the fault in such a one as I know was not there.

CHAT. Was he not thear? Loke on his pate! That shalbe his wites! 60

D. RAT. I wold my head were half so hole,
I wold seeke no redresse!

[Enter Gammer Gurton.]

BAILY. God blesse you, Gammer Gurton!

GAMMER. God dylde you, master mine!

BAILY. Thou hast a knaue with-in thy hofulse, — Hodge, a seruant of thine.

They tel me that busy knaue is such a filching one

⁴ A. inserts this name before the preceding line;
but the ¶ mark clearly shows that it was misplaced
by printer's error.

That hen, pig, goose, or capon thy neighbour can haue none. 65

GAMMER. By God, cham much ameuod to heare any such reporte!

Hodge was not wont, ich trow, to haue ¹ him in that sort.

CHAT. A theeuisher knaue is not on-liue, more filching nor more false!

Many a truer man then he hase hanged vp by the halse. ²

And thou, his dame, of al his theft thou art
the sole receauer. 70

For Hodge to catch and thou to kepe I neuer knew none better.

GAMMER. Sir reuerence of your master-dome, and you were out a-dooere,

Chold be so bolde, for al hir brags, to cal
hir arrant whoore!

And ich knew Hodge so bad as tow, ³ ich wish me endlesse sorow

And chould ⁴ not take the pains to hang him vp before to-morow! 75

CHAT. What haue I stolne from the or thing, thou il-faured olde trot?

GAMMER. A great deale more, by Gods blest, then cheuer by the got!

That thou knowest wel, I neade not say it.
BAILY. Stoppe there, I say!

And tel me here, I pray you, this matter by
the way:

How chaunce Hodge is not here? Him wol[d]e I faine haue had. 80

GAMMER. Alas, sir, heel be here anon; ha be handled to bad!

CHAT. Master Bayly, sir, ye be not such a foole, wel I know,

But ye perceiue by this lingring there is a pad ⁵ in the straw.

Thinking that Hodg his head was broke, and that Gammer wold not let him come before them.

GAMMER. Chil shew you his face, ich warrant the, — lo now where he is!

[Scapethryft leads in Hodge.]

BAILIE. Come on, fellow! It is tolde me thou art a shrew, i-wysse. 85

Thy neighbours hens thou takest, and playes the two-legged foxe;

¹ Behave. ² Neck. ³ As thou. ⁴ If I would.
⁵ Toad; a proverbial saying — something hidden.

Their chickens and their eapons to, and now and then their cocks.

HODGE. Ich defy them al that dare it say!
Cham as true as the best!

BAILY. Wart not thou take within this houre in Dame Chats hens nest?

HODGE. Take there? No, master.
Chold not do't for a house-ful of
gold! 90

CHAT. Thou, or the deuil in thy cote!
swear this I dare be bold.

D. RAT. Swear me no swearing, quean!
The deuill he geue the sorow!

Al is not worth a gnat thou canst swear till to-morow.

Where is the harme he hath? Shew it, by Gods bread!

Ye beat him, with a witnes, but the stripes light on my head! 95

HODGE. Bet me? Gogs blessed body, chold first, ich trow, haue burst the.

Ich thinke, and chad my hands loose, cal-let, chould haue crust the!

CHAT. Thou shitten knaue, I trow thou knowest the ful weight of my fist!

I am fowly deceiued onles thy head and my doore-bar kyste!

HODGE. Hold thy chat, whore. Thou criest so loude can no man els be hard. 100

CHAT. Well, knaue, and I had the alone, I wold surely rap thy costard!

BAYLY. Sir, answer me to this: is thy head whole or broken?

CHAT. Yea, Master Bayly, blest be euery good token!

HODGE. Is my head whole? Ich warrant you tis neither secury nor scald!

What, you foule beast, does think tis either pild¹ or bald? 105

Nay, ich thanke God, chil not, for al that thou maist spend,

That chad one seab on my narse as brode as thy fingers end.

BAYLY. Come nearer heare!

HODGE. Yes, that iche dare.

[The bailiff examines Hodge's head.]

BAYLY. By Our Lady, here is no harme.
Hodges head is hole ynough, for al Dame

¹ Shorn.

CHAT. By Gogs blest, how-euer the thing
he clockes¹ or smolders, 110

I know the blowes he bare away either with head or shoulders.

Camest thou not, knaue, within this houre
creping into my pens,

And there was caught within my hous
groping among my hens?

HODGE. A plage both on thy hens and the!
A carte, whore! a carte!²

Chould I were hanged as hie as a tree and chware as false as thou art! 115

Geue my Gammer again her washical³ thou stole away in thy lap!

GAMMER. Yea, Maister Baily, there is a thing you know not on, mayhap:

This drab she kepes away my good — the deuil he might her snare!

Ich pray you that ich might haue a right action on her.

CHAT. Haue I thy good, old filth, or any such, old sowes?⁴ 120

I am as true, I wold thou knew, as skin be-twene thy browes!

GAMMER. Many a truer hath ben hanged, though you escape the daunger!

CHAT. Thou shalt answer, by Gods pity, for this thy foule slaunder!

BAILY. Why, what can ye charge hir withal? To say so ye do not well.

GAMMER. Mary, a vengeance to hir hart, the whore hase stoln my neele! 125

CHAT. Thy nedle, old witch? How so?
It were almes thy seul to knock!

So didst thou say the other day that I had stolne thy cock,

And rosted him to my breakfast, — which shal not be forgotten.

The deuil pul out thy lying tong and teeth that be so rotten!

GAMMER. Geue me my neele! As for my Cocke, chould be very loth 130

That chuld here tel he shuld hang on thy false faith and troth.

BAILY. Your talke is such I can scarce learne who shuld be most in fault.

² Whores were carted through the streets.

³ What-you-call-it.

⁴ A term of abuse, sometimes, as here, used in the plural of a single person.

GAMMER. Yet shal ye find no other wight sauē she, by bred and salt!

BAILY. Kepe ye content a-while; se that your tonges ye holde;

Me thinkes you shuld remembre this is no place to scolde. 135

How knowest thou, Gammer Gurton, Dame Chat thy nedle had?

GAMMER. To name you, sir, the party, chould not be very glad.

BAILY. Yea, but we must nedes heare it, and therefore say it boldly.

GAMMER. Such one as told the tale full soberly and coldly, Euen he that loked on — wil swears on a booke — 140

What time this drunken gossip my faire long neele vp tooke:

Diccon, Master, the bedlam. Cham very sure ye know him.

BAILIE. A false knaue, by Gods pitie! Ye were but a foole to trow ¹ him.

I durst auenture wel the price of my best
cap

That when the end is knowen all wil turne to a iape.² 145

Tolde he not you that, besides, she stole your cocke that tyde?³

GAMMER. No, master, no indede; for then he shuld haue lyed!

My cocke is, I thanke Christ, safe and wel
a-fine.

CHAT. Yea, but that ragged colt, that whore, that Tyb of thine, Said plainly thy cocke was stolne, and in my house was eaten. 150

That lying cut ⁴ is lost that she is not swinged and beaten, —

And yet for al my good name it were a small amendes!

I picke not this geare, heurst thou, out of my fingers endes;

But he that hard it told me, who thou of late didst name, —

Diccon, whom al men knowes, — it was the very same. 155

BAILY. This is the case: you lost your nedle about the dores,
And she answers againe she hase no cocke
of yours;

¹ Trust.² Jest.³ Time.⁴ A term of abuse.

Thus, in you[r] talke and action, from that you do intend

She is whole fūe mile wide from that she doth defend.

Will you saie she hath your cocke?

GAMMER. No, mary,¹ sir, that chil
not! 160

BAYLY. Will you confesse hir neele?

CHAT. Will I? no, sir, will I not!

BAYLY. Then there lieth all the matter.

GAMMER. Soft, master, by the way!
Ye know she could do litle and she cold
not say nay.

BAYLY. Yea, but he that made one lie about your cock-stealing,

Wil not sticke to make another, what time lies be in dealing. 165

I weene the ende wil proue this brawle did first arise

Upon no other ground but only Diccons
lyes.

CHAT. Though some be lies, as you belike
haue espyed them,
Yet other some be true — by proof I haue wel tryed them.

BAYLY. What other thing beside this,
Dame Chat.

CHAT. Mary, syr, euen this: 170
The tale I tolde before, the selfe-same tale
it was his;

He gaue me, like a frende, warning against my losse,

Els had my hens be stolne eche one, by Gods crosse!

He tolde me Hodge wold come, and in he came indeede;

But, as the matter chaunsed, with greater hast then speede. 175

This truth was said, and true was found, as truly I report.

BAYLY. If Doetor Rat be not deceiued, it was of another sort.

D. RAT. By Gods Mother, thou and he be a cople of suttle foxes!

Betweene you and Hodge I beare away the boxes.

Did not Diccon apoynt the place wher thou shuldst stand to mete him? 180

CHAT. Yes, by the masse; and, if he came, bad me not sticke to speet ²
hym.

D. RAT. Gods sacrament, the villain knaue hath drest vs round about!
He is the cause of all this brawle, that dyrty, shitten loute!
When Gammer Gurton here complained,
and made a ruful mone,
I heard him swear that you had gotten hir needle that was gone; 185
And this to try, he furder said, he was ful loth; how-be-it
He was content with small adoe to bring me where to see it.
And where ye sat, he said ful certain, if I wold folow his read,
Into your house a priuy way he wold me
guide and leade,
And where ye had it in your hands, sewing about a clowte; 190 Aud set me in the backe-hole, therby to finde you oute.
And, whiles I sought a quietnes, creping
vpon my knees,
I found the weight of your dore-bar for my reward and fees.
Such is the lucke that some men gets while they begin to mel
In setting at one such as were out, minding to make al wel. 195 HODGE. Was not wel blest, Gammer, to scape that stoure? ¹ And chad ben
there,
Then chad ben drest, ² be-like, as ill, by the masse, as Gaffar Vicar.
BAYLY. Mary, sir, here is a sport alone.
I loked for such an end.
If Diccon had not playd the knaue, this had ben sone amend.
My Gammer here he made a foole, and drest hir as she was; 200
And goodwife Chat he set to scole, till both partes cried "alas";
And D[oc]tor Rat was not behind, whiles
Chat his crown did pare;
I wold the knaue had ben starke blind, if Hodg had not his share!
HODGE. Cham meetly wel-spced alreedy amonges; cham drest like a coult!
And chad not had the better wit, chad bene made a doulte. 205 BAYLY. Sir knaue, make hast Diccon were here; fetch him where-euer he bee!

CHAT. Fie on the villaine! fie! fie! that makes vs thus agree!
GAMMER. Fie on him knaue, with al my hart! now fie! and fie againe!
D. RAT. Now fie on him! may I best say, whom he hath almost slaine.
[Scapethryft leads in Diccon.]
BAYLY. Lo where he commeth at hand.
Belike he was not fare! 210
Diccon, heare be two or three thy company can not spare.
DICCON. God blesse you — and ¹ you may be blest so many al at once!
CHAT. Come, knaue, it were a good deed to geld the, by Cockes bones!
Seest not thy handiwarke? Sir Rat, can ye forbeare him?
DICCON. A vengeance on those hands lite! for my hands cam not nere
hym. 215
The horsen priest hath lift the pot in some of these alewyues chayres,
That his head wolde not serue him, belyke, to come downe the stayres.
BAYLY. Nay, soft! thou maist not play the knaue and haue this language to!
If thou thy tong bridle a-while, the better
maist thou do.
Confesse the truth, as I shall aske, and cease a-while to fable; 220
And for thy fault, I promise the, thy handling shalbe reasonable.
Hast thou not made a lie or two to set these two by the eares?
DICCON. What if I haue? Fiue hundred such haue I seene within these seuen
yeares.
I am sory for nothing else but that I see not the sport
Which was betwene them when they met, as they them-selues report. 225
BAYLY. The greatest thing [*pointing to Dr.
Rat*] — Master Rat! Ye se how he is drest! ²
DICCON. What deuil nede he be groping so depe in goodwife Chats hens nest?
BAYLY. Yea, but it was thy drift to bring him into the briars.

DICCON. Gods bread! hath not such an old foole wit to saue his cares?

He showeth himselfe herein, ye see, so very a coxe,¹ 230

The cat was not so madly alured by the foxe
To run into the snares was set for him,
doubtlesse;

For he leapt in for myce, and this sir John²
for madnes.

D. RAT. Well, and ye shift no better, ye losel, lyther and lasyc,³

I will go neare, for this, to make ye leape at a dasye.⁴ 235

In the kings⁵ name, Master Bayly, I charge you set him fast!

DICCON. What? fast at cardes, or fast on-slepe? It is the thing I did last.

D. RAT. Nay, fast in fetters, false varlet, according to thy deedes!

BAYLY. Master doctor, ther is no remedy,
I must intreat you, needes,
Some other kinde of punishment.

D. RAT. Nay, by all halowes! 240
His punishment, if I may iudg, shalbe naught els but the gallous.

BAYLY. That ware to sore. A spiritual man to be so extreme!

D. RAT. Is he worthy any better, sir?
How do ye iudge and deame?

BAYLY. I graunt him wort[h]ie punishment, but in no wise so great.

GAMMER. It is a shame, ich tel you plaine, for such false knaues intreat! 245
He has almost vndone vs al; that is as true as steele.

And ye[t] for al this great ado cham neuer
the nere my neele!

BAYLY. Canst thou not say any-thing to that, Diccon, with least or most?

DICCON. Yea, mary, sir, thus much I can say: — wel, the nedle is lost!

BAYLY. Nay, canst not thou tel which way that nedle may be found? 250

DICCON. No, by my fay, sir, though I might haue an hundred pound.

HODGE. Thou lier, lickdish! didst not say the neele wold be gitten?

¹ Fool.

² Parson.

³ Ye scoundrel, base and lazy.

⁴ Be hanged.

⁵ This indicates that the play was written while a king was upon the throne. Professor Bradley has shown that the date of the original presentation of the play fell in the last year of Edward's reign.

DICCON. No, Hodge, by the same token you were¹ that time beshittene

For feare of Hobgobling, — you wot wel
what I meane;

As long as it is sence, I feare me yet ye be scarce cleane. 255

BAYLY. Wel, Master Rat, you must both learne and teach vs to forgeue.

Since Diccon hath confession made and is so cleane shreue,²

If ye to me consent, to amend this heauie
chaunce

I wil inioyne him here some open kind of penaunce, —

Of this condition: where ye know my fee is twenty pence 260

For the bloodshed, I am agreed with you here to dispence, —

Ye shal go quite,³ so that ye graunt the matter now to run

To end with mirth among vs al, euen as it was begun.

CHAT. Say yea, Master Vicar, and he shal sure confes to be your detter,

And al we that be heare present wil loue
you much the better. 265

D. RAT. My part is the worst; but, since you al here-on agree,

Go euen to, Master Bayly, — let it be so for mee!

BAYLY. How saiest thou, Diccon? art content this shal on me depend?

DICCON. Go to, M[aster] Bayly, say on your mind. I know ye are my frend.

BAYLY. Then marke ye wel: to recompence this thy former action, 270

Because thou hast offended al, to make them satisfaction,

Before their faces here kneele downe, and,
as I shal the teach, —

For thou shalt take on othe of Hodges
leather breache:

First, for Master Doctor, vpon paine of his cursse,

Where he wil pay for al thou neuer draw thy pursse, 275

And when ye meete at one pot, he shal haue the first pull,

And thou shalt neuer offer him the cup but it be full;

² Shriuen.

³ Freed from the sum due me.

To goodwife Chat thou shalt be sworne, euen on the same wyse,
If she refuse thy money once, neuer to offer it twice, —

Thou shalt be bound by the same here, as thou dost take it, 280

When thou maist drinke of free cost, thou neuer forsake it;

For Gammer Gurtons sake, againe sworne shalt thou bee,

To helpe hir to hir nedle againe, if it do lie
in thee, —

And likewise be bound by the vertue of that To be of good abering to Gib, hir great
cat; 285

Last of al, for Hodge, the othe to scanne, Thou shalt neuer take him for fine gentle-
man.

HODGE [stooping over]. Come on, fellow Diccon! Chalbe euen with thee
now!

BAYLY. Thou wilt not sticke to do this,
Diccon, I trow?

DICCON. No, by my fathers skin, my hand
downe I lay it! 290

Loke! as I haue promised, I wil not deny
it.

But, Hodge, take good heede now thou do not beshite me!

And gaue him a good blow on the buttocke.

HODGE [leaping up]. Gogs hart! Thou false villaine, dost thou bite mee?

BAYLY. What, Hodge! doth he hurt the or euer he begin?

HODGE. He thrust me into the buttocke with a bodkin or a pin! 295

[He draws out the needle.]

I saie, Gammer! Gammer!

GAMMER. How now, Hodge? how now?

HODGE. Gods malt, Gammer Gurton!

GAMMER. Thou art mad, ich trow!

HODGE. Will you see! The deuil, Gam-
mer!

GAMMER. The deuil, sonne? God blesse vs!

HODGE. Chould iche were hanged, Gam-
mer!

GAMMER. Mary, so¹ ye might dresse vs.

¹ A. se; emend. suggested by Manly.

HODGE. Chaué it, by the masse, Gammer!
GAMMER. What? Not my neele,

Hodge? 300

HODGE. Your neele, Gammer! your neele!

GAMMER. No, fie, dost but dodge!

HODGE. Cha found your neele, Gammer!
Here in my hand be it!

GAMMER. For al the loues on earth,
Hodge, let me see it!

HODGE. Soft, Gammer!

GAMMER. Good Hodge!

HODGE. Soft, ich say; tarie a while!

GAMMER. Nay, sweete Hodge, say truth, and do not me begile! 305

HODGE. Cham sure on it, ich warrant you it goes no more a-stray.

GAMMER. Hodge, when I speake so faire, wilt stil say me nay?

HODGE. Go neare the light, Gammer.
This wel! In faith, good lucke!

Chwas almost vndone, twas so far in my buttocke!

GAMMER. Tis min owne deare neele,
Hodge, sykerly I wot! 310

HODGE. Cham I not a good sonne, Gammer! cham I not?

GAMMER. Christs blessing light on thee!
hast made me for-euer!

HODGE. Ich knew that ich must finde it, els choud a had it neuer!

CHAT. By my troth, Gossyp Gurton, I am euen as glad

As though I mine owne selfe as good a turne had! 315

BAYLY. And I, by my concience, to see it so come forth,

Reioyce so much at it as three nedles be worth!

D. RAT. I am no whit sory to see you so reioyce!

DICCON. Nor I much the gladder for al
this noyce!

Yet say, "Gramercy, Diccon," for springing of the game. 320

GAMMER. Gramercy, Diccon, twenty times! O how glad cham!

If that chould do so much, your master-dome to come hether,

Master Rat, goodwife Chat, and Diccon, together, —

Cha but one halpenny, as far as iche know
it,

And chil not rest this night till ich bestow
it. 325

If euer ye loue me, let vs go in and drinke!

BAYLY. I am content, if the rest thinke as I thinke.

Master Rat, it shalbe best for you if we so
doo;

Then shall you warme you and dresse yourself too.

DICCON. Soft, syrs, take vs with you; the company shalbe the more! 330

As proude coms behinde, they say, as any goes before!

[To the audience.]

But now, my good masters, since we must be gone

And leaue you behinde vs here, all alone, — Since at our last ending thus mery we
bee,

For Gammer Gurtons nedle sake let vs
haue a plaudytie! 335

INNS OF COURT PLAYS

THE TRAGIDIE OF [GORBODUC; OR OF] FERREX AND PORREX ¹

SET FORTH WITHOUT ADDITION OR ALTERATION BUT ALTOGETHER AS THE SAME WAS SHEWED ON STAGE BEFORE THE QUEENES MAIESTIE, ABOUT NINE YEARES PAST, VZ., THE XVIIJ DAY OF IANUARIE 1561.

BY THE GENTLEMEN OF THE INNER TEMPLE.

Seen and allowed, &c.

Printed at London by Iohn Daye, dwelling ouer Aldersgate.

THE P[RINTER] TO THE READER

Where this tragedie was for furniture of part of the grand Christmasse in the Inner Temple first written about nine yeares agoe by the Right Honourable Thomas, now Lorde Buckherst, and by T. Norton, and after shewed before her Maiestie, and neuer intended by the authors therof to be published; yet one W. G.² getting a copie therof at some yongmans hand that lacked a litle money and much discretion, in the last great plage, an[no] 1565, about v yeares past, while the said lord was out of England, and T. Norton farre out of London, and neither of them both made priuie, put it forth exceedingly corrupted, — euen as if by meanes of a broker, for hire, he should haue entised into his house a faire maide and done her villanie, and after all-to-bescratched her face, torne her apparell, berayed and disfigured her, and then thrust her out of dores dishonested. In such plight, after long wandring, she came at length home to the sight of her frendes, who scant knew her but by a few tokens and markes remaying. They — the authors, I meane — though they were very much displeased that she so ranne abroad without leaue, whereby she caught her shame, as many wantons do, yet seing the case, as it is, remediesse, haue, for common honestie and shamesfastnesse, new apparelled, trimmed, and attired her in such forme as she was before. In which better forme since she hath come ¹ The Inns of Court Plays, following the models of the classical drama, are closely akin to the School Plays; but they were performed by gallants of fashion (many of them young noblemen), in the highest circles of London society, and as products of fashionable society, they show the marked influence of the contemporary Italian drama. Gorboduc, famous as the first regular English tragedy, was composed by Thomas Sackville (later Earl of Dorset and Lord High Treasurer) and Thomas Norton (whose brilliant career as a lawyer and courtier was cut short by his early death). It was acted by the young gentlemen of the Inner Temple in 1561-62 on the occasion of their annual Christmas festival, and was repeated by them before Queen Elizabeth on January 18, 1561-62, at Whitehall Palace. Though the play was ultimately modeled on Seneca, the authors drew much of their inspiration from contemporary Italian tragedy (itself an adaptation of Seneca); for instance, blank verse, now first used in the English drama, they took over from the Italians; and the dumb shows they derived from the Italian intermedii. But Sackville and Norton were not slavish imitators either of Seneca or of the Italian writers of tragedy.

A surreptitious and very corrupt edition (A.) was published by William Griffith in 1565, with the title: The Tragedie of Gorboduc, wherof three Actes were wrytten by Thomas Nortone, and the two laste by Thomas Sackuyle. The authors, apparently, were offended at the corrupt text of this edition, and gave an authorized text to John Day, who published it about 1570 (B.). A third edition (C.) was issued by Edward Alde in 1590; but this was merely a reprint of the first, and corrupt, edition, and has no special value. I have based the present text on a copy of the second and authorized edition (B.) in the British Museum. In a few cases I have adopted readings from the other editions; these are properly recorded in the footnotes. I have, of course, modernized the punctuation; and I have abbreviated the catch-names, and supplied stage-directions in place of the bare list of speakers with which each scene is headed.

to me, I haue harbored her for her frendes sake, and her owne; and I do not dout her parentes, the authors, will not now be discontent that she goe abroad among you, good readers, so it be in honest companie. For she is by my encouragement, and others, somewhat lesse ashamed of the dishonestie done to her, because it was by fraude and force. If she be welcome among you, and gently entertained, in fauor of the house from whence she is descended and of her owne nature courteously disposed to offend no man, her frendes will thanke you for it. If not, but that she shall be still reproched with her former missehap, or quarelled at by eniuous persons, she, poore gentlewoman, will surely play Lucreces part, and of her-self die for shame; and I shall wishe that she had taried still at home with me, where she was welcome, for she did neuer put me to more charge but this one poore blacke gowne lined with white that I haue now geuen her to goe abroad among you withall.

THE ARGUMENT OF THE TRAGEDIE ¹

Gorboduc, king of Brittain, diuided his realme in his lifetime to his sonnes, Ferrex and Porrex; the sonnes fell to discention; the yonger killed the elder; the mother, that more dearly loued the elder, for reuenge killed the yonger; the people, moued with the crueltie of the fact, rose in rebellion and slew both father and mother; the nobilitie assembled and most terribly destroyed the rebels; and afterwardes, for want of issue of the prince, whereby the succession of the crowne became vncertaine, they fell to ciuill warre, in which both they and many of their issues were slaine, and the land for a long time almost desolate and miserably wasted.

THE NAMES OF THE SPEAKERS

GORBODUC, king of Great Brittain.

VIDENA, queene, and wife to king Gorboduc.

FERREX, elder sonne to king Gorboduc.

PORREX, yonger sonne to king Gorboduc.

CLOTYN,² duke of Cornwall.

FERGUS, duke of Albany.

MANDUD, duke of Loegril.

GWENARD, duke of Cumberland.

EUBULUS, secretarie to the king.

AROSTUS, a counsellor to the king.

DORDAN, a counsellor assigned by the king to his eldest sonne, Ferrex.

PHILANDER, a counsellor assigned by the king to his yongest sonne, Porrex.

Both being of the olde kinges counsell before.

HERMON, a parasite remaining with Ferrex.

TYNDAR, a parasite remaining with Porrex.

NUNTIUS, a messenger of the elder brothers death.

NUNTIUS, a messenger of Duke Fergus rising in arms.

MARCELLA, a lady of the queenes priuie-chamber.

CHORUS, foure auncient and sage men of Brittain.

[THE SCENE: Britain.]

[GORBODUC; OR, FERREX AND PORREX.]

THE ORDER OF THE DOMME SHEW BEFORE THE FIRST ACT, AND THE SIGNIFICA-TION THEREOF.

First the musicke of violenze began to play, during which came in vpon the stage sixe wilde men clothed in leaues; of whom the first bare in his necke a fagot of small stickes, which they all, both seuerally and together, assayed with all their strengthes to breake; but it could not be broken by them. At the length, one of them plucked out one of the stickes and brake it; and the rest plucking out all the other stickes one after an-other did easely breake them, the same being seuered, which, being conioyned, they had before attempted in vaine. After they had this done, they departed the stage, and the musicke ceased. Hereby was signified that a state knit in ynitie doth continue strong against all force, but being diuided is easely destroyed; as befell vpon Duke Gorboduc diuiding his land to his two sonnes, which he before held in monarchie, and vpon the discention of the brethren to whom it was diuided.

ACTUS PRIMUS

SCENA PRIMA.

[The palace of King Gorboduc. Enter Queen Videna and her eldest son Ferrex.] ¹

VID. The silent night, that bringes the quiet pawse

From painefull trauailes of the wearie day,
Prolonges my carefull thoughtes, and makes me blame

The slowe Aurore, that so for loue or shame
Doth long delay to shewe her blushing face;

And now the day renewes my griefull plaint. ⁵

FERR. My gracious lady and my mother deare,

Pardon my grieffe for your so grieved minde

To aske what cause tormenteth so your hart.

VID. So great a wrong, and so vnjust des-spite, ¹⁰

Without all cause, against all course of kinde!

FERR. Such causelesse wrong, and so vniust desquite,

May haue redresse, or, at the least, re-
uenge.

VID. Neither, my sonne; such is the froward will,

The person such, such my mischappe and thine. ¹⁵

FERR. Mine know I none but grief for your distresse.

VID. Yes, mine for thine, my sonne. A father? No;

In kinde ¹ a father, not in kindlines.

FERR. My father? Why, I know nothing at all ¹⁹

Wherein I haue misdona vnto his Grace.

VID. Therefore the more vnkinde to thee and mee!

For, knowing well, my sonne, the tender loue
That I haue euer borne and beare to thee,
He, greued thereat, is not content alone
To spoile thee of my sight,² my chiefest
ioye; ²⁵

But thee of thy birthright and heritage,
Causelesse, vnkindly, and in wrongfull wise
Against all lawe and right, he will bereaue.
Halfe of his kingdome he will geue away.

FERR. To whom?

VID. Euen to Porrex, his yonger sonne; ³⁰
Whose growing pride I do so sore suspect
That, being raised to equall rule with thee,
Mee thinks I see his enuious hart to swell, Filled with disdain, and with ambitious hope.

The end the goddes do know, whose altars I ³⁵

Full oft haue made in vaine of cattell slaine
To send the sacred smoke to Heaueus throne

For thee, my sonne, if things do so suc-
cede ³

As now my ielous mind misdemeeth sore.

FERR. Madam, leaue care and carefull plaint for me. ⁴⁰

Just hath my father bene to euery wight;
His first vnjustice he will not extend
To me, I trust, that geue no cause therof.

¹ Nature.

² Manly suggests To spoile me of thy sight.

³ Come to pass.

¹ In the old editions each scene is headed with a list of all the speakers without indication as to when they entered.

My brothers pride shall hurt him-selfe, not
me.

VID. So graunt the goddes! But yet thy father so 45

Hath firmly fixed his vnmoued minde
That plaintes and prayers can no whit auaile, —

For those haue I assaied, — but euen this day
He will endeouour to procure assent

Of all his counsell to his fonde¹ deuise. 50

FERR. Their ancestors from race to race haue borne

True fayth to my forefathers and their
seede;

I trust they eke will beare the like to me.

VID. There resteth all. But if they faile thereof,

And if the end bring forth an ill successe. 55

On them and theirs the mischiefe shall befall:

And so I pray the goddes requite it them, —

And so they will, for so is wont to be.

When lordes, and trusted rulers vnder
kinges, 59

To please the present fancie of the prince,

With wrong transpose the course of gou-ernance,

Murders, mischiefe, or ciuill sword at length,

Or mutuall treason. or a iust reuenge

When right-succeeding line returnes againe,

By Ioues iust iudgement and deserued
wrath 65

Bringes them to cruell and reprochfull
death,

And rootes their names and kindredes from the earth.

FERR. Mother, content you; you shall see the end.

VID. The end? Thy end, I feare! Ioue end me first! [Exeunt.]

ACTUS PRIMUS

SCENA SECUNDA

[*The Court of King Gorboduc. Enter King
Gorboduc, with his Counsellors Arostus and Philander, and his Secretary,
Eubulus.*]

GORB. My lords, whose graue aduise and faithful aide

¹ Foolish

Haue long vpheld my honour and my
realme,

And brought me to this age from tender
yeres,

Guidyng so great estate with great re-
nowme,

Nowe more importeth mee than erst to vse 5

Your fayth and wisdome, — whereby yet
I reigne, —

That when by death my life and rule shall cease

The kingdome yet may with vnbroken
course

Haue certayne prince, by whose vndoubted
right

Your wealth and peace may stand in quiet stay; ¹ 10

And eke that they, whome nature hath preparde

In time to take my place in princely seate, While in their fathers tyme their pliant

youth

Yeldes to the frame of skilfull gouernance, Maye so be taught and trayned in noble

artes 15
As, what their fathers which haue reigned
before

Haue with great fame deriued downe to
them,

With honour they may leaue vnto their
seede;

And not be thought, for their vnworthy life
And for their lawlesse swaruyng out of

kinde, 20
Worthy to lose what lawe and kind them
gaue;

But that they may preserue the common peace —

The cause that first began and still mainteines

The lynceall course of kinges inheritance —
For me, for myne, for you, and for the state, 25

Whereof both I and you haue charge and
care.

Thus do I meane to vse youre wonted fayth
To me and myne, and to your natieue

lande.

My lordes, be playne, without all wrie respect

¹ Condition.

Or poysonous craft to speake in pleasyng
wise; 30
Lest, as the blame of yll-succedyng thinges Shall light on you, so light the harmes
also.
Aros. Your good acceptance so, most noble king,
Of suche our faithfulnessse as heretofore
We haue employed in dueties to your
Grace 35
And to this realme, whose worthy head you
are,
Well proues that neyther you mistrust at
all,
Nor we shall neede in boasting wise to shewe
Our trueth to you, nor yet our wakefull
care
For you, for yours, and for our natiue
lande. 40
Wherefore, O kyng, — I speake as one for
all,
Sithe all as one do beare you egall faith, — Doubt not to vse our counsellis and our aides,
Whose honours, goods, and lyues are whole auowed
To serue, to ayde and to defende your
Grace. 45
GORB. My lordes, I thanke you all! This is the case:
Ye know, the gods — who haue the soueraigne care
For kings, for kingdomes, and for commonweales —
Gauē me two sonnes in my more lusty age,
Who nowe in my decayeng yeres are growen 50
Well towards ryper state of minde and strength
To take in hande some greater princely
charge.
As yet they lyue and spende [their] ¹ hope-full daies
With me and with their mother here in courte.
Their age nowe asketh other place and trade, 55
And myne also doth aske an-other change:
Theirs to more trauaile,² myne to greater ease.

Whan fatal death shall ende my mortall
life,
My purpose is to leaue vnto them twaine
The realme diuided in two¹ sondry
partes: 60
The one Ferrex, myne elder sonne, shall
haue;
The other shall the yonger, Porrex, rule.
That both my purpose may more firmly
stande,
And eke that they may better rule their
charge,
I meane forthwith to place them in the
same, 65
That in my life they may both learne to rule,
And I may ioy to see their ruling well.
This is, in summe, what I woulde haue ye wey:
First, whether ye allowe my whole deuse
And thinke it good for me, for them, for
you, 70
And for our countrey, mother of vs all;
And, if ye lyke it and allowe it well,
Then, for their guydinge and their gouernaunce,
Shew forth such meanes of circumstance
As ye thinke meete to be both knowne and kept. 75
Loe, this is all. Now tell me your aduise.
Aros. And this is much! and asketh great aduise.
But, for my part, my soueraigne lord and
kyng,
This do I thinke: your Maiestie doth know
How, vnder you, in iustice and in peace 80
Great wealth and honour long we haue en-
ioyed,
So as we can not seeme with gredie mindes
To wisse for change of prince or gouernaunce;
But, if we lyke your purpose and deuse,
Our lyking must be deemed to proceede 85
Of rightfull reason, and of heedfull care
Not for ourselues but for the common
state,
Sithe our owne state doth neede no better change.
I thinke in all as erst your Grace hath saide.
Firste, when you shall vnlode your aged
mynde 90

¹ A. B. into two; corr. by Manly.

Of heuye care and troubles manifolde,
 And laye the same vpon my lordes your
 sonnes,
 Whose growing yeres may beare the burden
 long, —
 And long I pray the goddes to graunt it
 so! —
 And in your life while you shall so be-holde 95
 Their rule, their vertues, and their noble
 deedes,
 Suche as their kinde behighteth ¹ to vs all,
 Great be the profites that shall growe
 therof:
 Your age in quiet shall the longer last;
 Your lasting age shalbe their longer stay;
 For cares of kynges that rule — as you haue ruled — 101
 For publique wealth and not for priuate
 ioye
 Do wast mannes lyfe, and hasten crooked
 age
 With furrowed face and with enfeebled lymmes
 To draw on creepyng death a swifter pace. 105
 They two yet yong shall beare the parted
 reigne
 With greater ease than one, nowe olde,
 alone
 Can welde the whole, for whom muche harder is
 With lessened strength the double weight to beare.
 Your eye, your counsell, and the graue re-garde 110
 Of fathers ² — yea, of such a fathers —
 name,
 Nowe at beginning of their sondred reigne,
 When is the hazarde of their whole suc-
 cesse,
 Shall bridle so their force of youthfull
 heates,
 And so restraine the rage of insolence, 115
 Whiche most assailes the yonge and noble minds,
 And so shall guide and traine in tempred
 stay
 Their yet greene, bending wittes with reuerent awe,

² B. father; I follow the reading of A.

As — now inured with vertues at the first, — Custome, O king, shall bring delightful-
 nesse; 120
 By vse of vertue, vice shall growe in hate.
 But if you so dispose it that the daye Which endes your life shall first begin their
 reigne,
 Great is the perill what will be the ende,
 When such beginning of such liberties, 125
 Voide of suche stayes as in your life do
 lye,
 Shall leaue them free to randon of their
 will,
 An open prairie to traiterous flatterie, —
 The greatest pestilence of noble youthe;
 Whiche perill shalbe past, if in your life 130
 Their tempred youthe with aged fathers awe
 Be brought in vre ¹ of skilfull stayednesse;
 And in your life their liues disposed so,
 Shall length your noble life in ioyfulnessse.
 Thus thinke I that your Grace hath wisely
 thought, 135
 And that your tender care of common weale
 Hath bred this thought, so to diuide your
 lande
 And plant your sonnes to beare the present
 rule
 While you yet liue to see their rulinge well,
 That you may longer lyue by ioye therein.
 What furder meanes behouefull are and
 meete, 141
 At greater leisure may your Grace deuise,
 When all haue said, and when we be agreed
 If this be best to part the realme in twaine
 And place your sonnes in present gouerne-
 ment. 145
 Whereof, as I haue plainely said my mynde,
 So woulde I here the rest of all my lordes.
 PHIL. In part I thinke as hath bene said
 before,
 In parte, agayne, my minde is otherwise.
 As for diuiding of this realme in twaine, 150
 And lotting out the same in egall partes
 To either of my lordes your Graces sonnes, That thinke I best for this your realmes
 behofe,
 For profite and aduaancement of your
 sonnes,

¹ Practice.

And for your comferte and your honour
eke. 155

But so to place them while your life do last
To yelde to them your royall gouernaunce,
To be about them onely in the name
Of father not in kingly state also,

I thinke not good for you, for them, nor
vs. 160

This kingdome, since the bloudie ciuill
fielde

Where Morgan slaine did yeld his conquered parte

Unto his cosins sworde in Camberland,
Conteineth all that whilome did suffice
Three noble sonnes of your forefather
Brute. 165

So your two sonnes it maye suffice also.
The moe¹ the stronger, if they gree in one.
The smaller compasse that the realme doth
holde

The easier is the swey thereof to welde,
The nearer iustice to the wronged poore,
The smaller charge, — and yet ynoughe for one. 171

And, when the region is diuided so
That brethren be the lordes of either parte,
Such strength doth Nature knit betwene them both

In sondrie bodies by conioyned loue 175
That, not as two, but one of doubled force,
Eche is to other as a sure defence;
The noblesse and glory of the one Doth sharpe the courage of the others
mynde

With vertuous enuie to contende for praise. 180

And suche an egalnesse² hath Nature made

Betwene the brethren of one fathers seede
As an vnkindly wrong it seemes to bee
To throwe the brother subiect vnder feete Of him whose peere he is by course of
kinde. 185

And Nature, that did make this egalnesse,
Ofte so repineth at so great a wrong
That ofte she rayseth vp a grudginge grieue
In yonger brethren at the elders state, Wherby both townes and kingdomes haue
ben rased, 190

And famous stockes of royall bloud destroied:

¹ More.

² Equalness.

The brother, that shoulde be the brothers
aide

And haue a wakefull care for his defence, Gapes for his death, and blames the lynging yeres

That draw not forth his ende with faster
course; 195

And oft, impacient of so longe delays,
With hatefull slaughter he preuentes the Fates,

And heapes a iust rewarde for brothers
bloode,

With endlesse vengeance on his stocke for aye.

Suche mischiefes here are wisely mette
withall, 200

If egall state maye nourishe egall loue,
Where none hath cause to grudge at others
good.

But nowe the head to stoupe beneth them
bothe,

Ne kind, ne reason, ne good ordre beares.
And oft it hath ben seene, where Natures
course 205

Hath ben peruerted in disordered wise, When fathers cease to know that they should rule,

The children cease to know they should obey;

And often ouerkindly tendernesse
Is mother of vnkindly stubbornnesse. 210
I speake not this in enuie or reproche,
As if I grudged the glorie of your sonnes, — Whose honour I besech the goddes en-crease! —

Nor yet as if I thought there did remaine
So filthie cankers in their noble brestes, 215 Whom I esteeme — which is their greatest praise —

Undoubted children of so good a kyng;
Onelie I meane to shewe, by certeine rules Whiche Kinde hath graft within the mind of man,

That Nature hath her ordre and her
course, 220

Which being broken doth corrupt the state Of myndes and thinges, euen in the best of
all.

My lordes your sonnes may learne to rule
of you;

Your owne example in your noble courte
Is fittest gyuder of their youthfull yeares.

If you desire to see some present ioye 226
 By sight of their well rulyng in your lyfe,
 See them obey, so shall you see them rule:
 Who-so obeyeth not with humblenesse
 Will rule with outrage and with insol-lence. 230
 Longe maye they rule, I do besече the goddes!
 But longe may they learne, ere they begyn to rule!
 If Kinde and Fates woulde suffre, I would wissehe
 Them aged princes, and immortall kinges.
 Wherefore, most noble kynge, I well assent 235
 Betwene your sonnes that you diuide your
 realme,
 And, as in kinde, so match them in degree.
 But, while the goddes prolong your royall
 life,
 Prolong your reigne! For therto lyue you
 here,
 And therefore haue the goddes so long for-borne 240
 To ioyne you to them-selues, that still you might
 Be prince and father of our common-weale.
 They, when they see your children ripe to
 rule,
 Will make them rounge, and will remoue
 you hence,
 That yours, in right ensuyng of your
 life, 245
 Maye rightly honour your immortall name.
 EUB. Your wonted true regarde of faith-full hartes
 Makes me, O kinge, the bolder to presume
 To speake what I conceiue within my brest,
 Although the same do not agree at all 250
 With that which other here my lordes haue said,
 Nor which yourselfe haue seemed best to lyke.
 Pardon I craue, and that my wordes be demed
 To floue from hartie zeale vnto your Gracc,
 And to the safetie of your common-
 weale. 255
 To parte your realme vnto my lordes your
 sonnes
 I thinke not good for you, ne yet for them,
 But worste of all for this our natie lande.

Within one land one single rule is best:
 Diuided reignes do make diuided hartes,
 But peace preserues the country and the
 prince. 261
 Suche is in man the greedy minde to reigne,
 So great is his desire to climbe alofte,
 In worldly stage the stateliest partes to
 beare,
 That faith and iustice and all kindly
 loue 265
 Do yelde vnto desire of soueraignitie
 Where egall state doth raise an egall hope To winne the thing that either wold attaine.
 Your Grace remembreth how in passed
 yeres
 The mightie Brute, first prince of all this
 lande, 270
 Possessed the same and ruled it well in one;
 He, thinking that the compasse did suffice
 For his three sonnes three kingdoms eke to
 make,
 Cut it in three, as you would now in twaine;
 But how much Britthis bloud hath since bene spilt 275
 To ioyne againe the sondred vnitie,
 What princes slaine before their timely
 houre,
 What wast of townes and people in the
 lande,
 What treasons heaped on murders and on spoiles Whose iust reuenge even yet is scarcely ceased, 280
 Ruthefull remembraunce is yet rawe in
 minde!
 The gods forbyd the like to chaunce againe!
 And you, O king, geue not the cause therof!
 My lord Ferrex, your elder sonne, perhappes,
 Whome kinde and custome geues a right-full hope 285
 To be your heire and to succede your
 reigne,
 Shall thinke that he doth suffre greater wrong
 Than he perchaunce will beare, if power serue.
 Porrex, the younger, so vpraised in state, Perhappes in courage will be rayسد
 also. 290
 If flatterie, then, which fayles not to assaile

The tendre mindes of yet vnskillfull youth,
 In one shall kindle and encrease disdaine,
 And enuie in the others harte enflame,
 This fire shall waste their loue, their liues, their land, 295
 And ruthefull ruine shall destroy them
 both.

I wishe not this, O kyng, so to befall,
 But feare the thing that I do most abhorre.
 Geue no beginning to so dreadfull ende!
 Kepe them in order and obedience, 300
 And let them both, by now obeying you, Learne such behauiour as besemes their
 state, —

The elder, myldenesse in his gouernaunce,
 The yonger, a yelding contentednesse.
 And kepe them neare vnto your presence
 still, 305
 That they, restreyned by the awe of you,
 May liue in compasse of well tempred
 staye,
 And passe the perilles of their youthfull
 yeares.

Your aged life drawes on to febler tyme,
 Wherin you shall lesse able be to beare 310
 The trauailes that in youth you haue sus-teyned
 Both in your persones and your realmes defence.

If planting now your sonnes in furder
 partes
 You sende them furder from your present reach,
 Lesse shall you know how they them-selues
 demeane; 315
 Traiterous corrupters of their plyant youth Shall haue, vnspied, a muche more free ac-
 cesse;

And if ambition and inflamed disdaine Shall arme the one, the other, or them
 both,
 To ciuill warre or to vsurping pride, 320 Late shall you rue that you ne recked before.

Good is, I graunt, of all to hope the best,
 But not to liue still dreadlesse of the worst;
 So truste the one that the other be forsene.
 Arme not vnskillfulnesse with princely
 power; 325
 But you, that long haue wisely ruled the reignes
 Of royaltie within your noble realme,

So holde them, while the gods for our auayles
 Shall stretch the thred of your prolonged daies.

To soone he clambe into the flaming carrè 330
 Whose want of skill did set the earth on fire.

Time, and example of your noble Grace, Shall teach your sonnes both to obey and
 rule.

When time hath taught them, time shall make them place, —

The place that now is full: and so, I
 pray, 335
 Long it remaine, to comforte of vs all!
 GORB. I take your faithful harts in thank-full part.

But sithe I see no cause to draw my minde
 To feare the nature of my louing sonnes,
 Or to misdeme that enuie or disdaine 340
 Can there worke hate where nature plant-eth loue,

In one selfe purpose do I still abide.
 My loue extendeth egally to both;
 My lande suffiseth for them both also.
 Humber shall parte the marches ¹ of theyr
 realmes: 345
 The sotherne part the elder shall possesse;
 The nor[therne shall Porrex, the yonger,
 rule.

In quiet I will passe mine aged dayes,
 Free from the trauaile and the painefull
 cares
 That hasten age vpon the worthiest
 kinges. 350
 But, lest the fraude that ye do seeme to feare
 Of flattering tongues corrupt their tender
 youth
 And wrythe them to the wayes of youthfull lust,
 To climyng pride, or to reuenging hate,
 Or to neglecting of their carefull charge,
 Lewdely to lyue in wanton recklesnesse,
 Or to oppressing of the rightfull cause,
 Or not to wreke the wronges done to the
 poore, 358
 To treade downe truth, or fauour false de-
 ceite,

I meane to ioyne to eyther of my sonnes

¹ Boundaries.

Some one of those whose long approued
 faith 361
 And wisdome tryed may well assure my harte
 That mynyng fraude shall finde no way to crepe
 Into their fensed cares with graue aduise.
 This is the ende. And so I pray you all
 To beare my sonnes the loue and loyaltie
 That I haue founde within your faithfull brestes. 367
 AROS. You, nor your sonnes, our soueraign lord, shal want Our faith and seruice while our liues do last! [Exeunt.]

CHORUS.

When settled stay doth holde the royall
 throne
 In stedfast place by knowen and doubt-les right,
 And chiefly when discent on one alone Makes single and vnparted reigne to
 light,
 Eche change of course vniouynts the whole estate
 And yeldes it thrall to ruyne by debate.¹ 6

The strength that, knit by faste accorde in
 one,
 Against all forrein power of mightie foes
 Could of it-selfe defende it-selfe alone, Disioyned once, the former force doth
 lose.

The stickes that, sondred, brake so soone in
 twaine,
 In faggot bounde attempted were in vain. 12

Oft tender minde, that leades the parciall eye
 Of erring parentes in their childrens loue, Destroyes the wrongly loued childe thereby.

This doth the proude sonne of Apollo
 proue,
 Who, rasshely set in chariot of his sire,
 Inflamed the parched earth with heauens
 fire. 18

And this great king, that doth deuide his land,

¹ Strife.

And chaunge the course of his discending
 crowne,
 And yeldes the reigne into his childrens
 hande,
 From blisfull state of ioye and great renowne
 A myrrour shall become to princes all To learne to shunne the cause of suche a fall. 24

THE ORDER AND SIGNIFICATION OF THE DOMME SHEW BEFORE THE SECOND ACTE.

First, the musicke of cornettes began to playe, during which came in vpon the stage a king accompanied with a nombre of his nobilitie and gentlemen. And, after he had placed him-self in a chaire of estate prepared for him, there came and kneeled before him a graue and aged gentelman, and offred vp a cuppe vnto him of wyne in a glasse, which the king refused;
 after him commes a braue¹ and lustie yong gentelman and presents the king with a cup of golde filled with poyson, which the king accepted, and, drinking the same, immediatly fell downe dead vpon the stage, and so was carried thence away by his lordes and gentelman. And then the musicke ceased. Hereby was signified, that, as glasse by nature holdeth no poyson, but is clere and may easely be seen through, ne boweth² by any arte, so a faythfull counsellour holdeth no treason, but is playne and open, ne yeld-eth to any vndiscrete affection, but geueth holsome counsell, which the yll-aduised prince refuseth. The delightfull golde filled with poyson betokeneth flattery, which vnder faire seeming of pleasaunt wordes beareth deadly poyson, which destroyeth³ the prince that receyuethe it; as befell in the two brethren, Ferrex and Porrex, who, refusing the holsome aduise of graue counsellours, credited these yong paracites, and brought to them-selues death and destruction therby.

ACTUS SECUNDUS

SCENA PRIMA.

[The court of Ferrex. Enter Ferrex attended by the parasite Hermon and the wise Counsellor Dordan.]

FERR. I meruaile much what reason ledde
 the king,

My father, thus without all my desert,
 To reue⁴ me halfe the kingdome, which by
 course

Of law and nature should remayne to me.

HER. If you with stubborne and vntamed pryde 5

Had stood against him in rebelling wise,
 Or if with grudging minde you had enuid

So slow a slidying of his aged yeres,
 Or sought before your time to haste the
 course
 Of fatal death vpon his royall head, 10 Or stained your stocke with murder of your kyn,
 Some face of reason might perhaps haue seemed
 To yelde some likely cause to spoyl ye thus.
 FERR. The wrekeful¹ gods powre on my cursed head
 Eternall plagues and neuer-dying woes, 15
 The hellish prince adiudge my dampned ghost
 To Tantaes thirste, or proude Ixions
 wheele,
 Or cruell gripe to gnaw my growing harte,
 To during tormentes and vnquenched flames,
 If euer I conceyued so foule a thought 20
 To wisse his ende of life, or yet of reigne!
 DOR. Ne yet your father, O most noble
 prince,
 Did euer thinke so fowle a thing of you;
 For he, with more than fathers tendre
 loue,
 While yet the Fates do lende him life to
 rule, — 25
 Who long might lyue to see your ruling
 well, —
 To you, my lorde, and to his other sonne,
 Lo, he resignes his realme and royaltie:
 Which neuer would so wise a prince haue
 done,
 If he had once misdemed that in your
 harte 30
 There euer lodged so vnkinde a thought.
 But tendre loue, my lorde, and settled truste
 Of your good nature and your noble minde
 Made him to place you thus in royall
 throne,
 And now to gue you half his realme to guide, — 35
 Yea, and that halfe which in abounding
 store
 Of things that serue to make a welthy
 realme,
 In stately cities, and in frutefull soyle,
 In temperate breathing of the milder
 heauen,

¹ Avenging.

In thinges of nedefull vse which frendly
 sea 40
 Transportes by traffike from the forreine
 partes,
 In flowing wealth, in honour, and in force,
 Doth passe the double value of the parte
 That Porrex hath allotted to his reigne.
 Such is your case; such is your fathers
 loue. 45
 FERR. Ah loue, my frendes? loue wrongs not whom he loues!
 DOR. Ne yet he wrongeth you, that geueth you
 So large a reigne ere that the course of time
 Bring you to kingdome by discended right;
 Which time, perhaps, might end your time
 before. 50
 FERR. Is this no wrong, say you, to reau-
 from me
 My natiue right of halfe so great a realme,
 And thus to matche his yonger sonne with
 me
 In egall power and in as great degree?
 Yea, and what sonne? The sonne whose swelling pride 55
 Woulde neuer yelde one point of reuerence
 Whan I, the elder and apparant heire, Stoode in the likelihode to possesse the whole;
 Yea, and that sonne which from his childish age
 Enuieth myne honour and doth hate my
 life. 60
 What will he now do, when his pride, his
 rage,
 The mindefull malice of his grudging harte,
 Is armed with force, with wealth, and kingly state?
 HER. Was this not wrong, — yea, ylladuised wrong,
 To giue so mad a man so sharpe a
 sworde? 65
 To so great perill of so great missechape Wide open thus to set so large a waye?
 DOR. Alas, my lord, what griefull thing is
 this,
 That of your brother you can thinke so ill?
 I neuer saw him vtter likelie signe 70
 Whereby a man might see or once misdeme
 Such hate of you ne such unyielding pride.
 Ill is their counsell, shamefull be their ende,

That, raising such mistrustfull feare in
you,
Sowing the seede of such vnkindly hate, 75
Trauaile¹ by treason to destroy you both.
Wise is your brother, and of noble hope,
Worthie to welde a large and mightie
realme:
So much a stronger frende haue you therby,
Whose strength is your strength, if you
gree in one. 80
HER. If Nature and the goddes had pinched so Their flowing bountie and their noble giftes
Of princelie qualities from you, my lorde,
And powrde them all at ones in wastfull
wise
Upon your fathers yonger sonne alone, 85
Perhappes there be that in your preiudice
Would say that birth should yeld to worth-
nesse.
But sithe in eche good gift and princelie
arte
Ye are his matche, and, in the chiefe of
all, —
In mildnesse and in sobre gouernaunce, — 90
Ye farre surmount; and sith there is in you
Sufficing skill and hopefull towardnesse
To weld the whole and match your elders
prayse,
I see no cause why ye should loose the halfe.
Ne would I wisse you yelde to such a losse, 95
Lest your milde sufferance of so great a wronge
Be deemed cowardishe and simple dreade,
Which shall geue courage to the fierie head
Of your yonge brother to inuade the whole.
While yet, therefore, stickes in the peoples
minde 100
The lothed wrong of your disheritaunce;
And ere your brother haue, by settled
power,
By guilefull cloke of an alluring showe, Got him some force and fauour in the
realme;
And while the noble queene, your mother,
lyues 105
To worke and practise all for your auaile,—

¹ Labor.

Attempt redresse by armes, and wreake your-self
Upon his life that gayneth by your losse,
Who nowe, to shame of you, and griefe of
vs,
In your owne kingdome triumphes ouer
you. 110
Shew now your courage meete for kingly
state,
That they which haue auowed to spend
theyr goods,
Their landes, their liues and honours in your cause,
May be the bolder to mainteyne your
parte,
When they do see that cowarde feare in
you 115
Shall not betray ne faile their faithfull
hartes.
If once the death of Porrex ende the strife,
And pay the price of his vsurped reigne,
Your mother shall perswade the angry
kyng.
The lords, your frends, eke shall appease his rage; 120
For they be wise, and well they can forsee
That ere longe time your aged fathers
death
Will bring a time when you shall well re-quite
Their frendlie fauour, or their hatefull spite,
Yea, or their slacknesse to auance your cause. 125
“Wise men do not so hang on passing state
“Of present princes, chiefly in their age, “But they will further cast their reaching eye
“To viewe and weye the times and reignes to come.”¹
Ne is it likely, though the kyng be wrothe,
That he yet will or that the realme will
beare 131
Extreme reuenge vpon his onely sonne;
Or, if he woulde, what one is he that dare
Be minister to such an enterprise?
And here you be now placed in your owne, 135
Amyd your frendes, your vassalles, and your strength.

¹ Quotation marks were used in the sixteenth century to emphasize sententious passages.

We shall defende and kepe your person safe,
Till either counsell turne his tender minde,
Or age or sorrow end his werie dayes.
But, if the feare of goddes and secrete grudge 140
Of Natures law, repining at the fact, Withholde your courage from so great attempt,
Know ye that lust of kingdomes hath no
law:
The goddes do beare and well allow in kinges
The thinges [that] they abhorre in rascall routes. 145
"When kinges on slender quarrells runne to warres,
"And then, in cruell and vnkindely wise,
"Commaund theftes, rapes, murders of innocentes,
"The spoile of townes, ruines of mighty
realmes, —
"Thinke you such princes do suppose them-selues 150
"Subiect to lawes of Kinde and feare of gods?"
Murders and violent theftes in priuate men
Are hainous crimes, and full of foule reproch;
Yet none offence, but deckt with glorious
name
Of noble conquestes, in the handes of
kinges. 155
But, if you like not yet so hote deuise,
Ne list to take such vantage of the time,
But, though with perill of your owne estate,
You will not be the first that shall inuade, Assemble yet your force for your defence, 160
And, for your safetie, stand vpon your garde.
DOR. O Heauen! was there euer heard or known
So wicked counsell to a noble prince?
Let me, my lorde, disclose vnto your Grace
This hainous tale, what mischief it con-taines: — 165
Your fathers death, your brothers, and your owne,
Your present murder and eternall shame.
Heare me, O king, and suffer not to sinke

So high a treason in your princely brest!
FERR. The mightie goddes forbid that euer I 170
Should once conceaue such mischief in my hart!
Although my brother hath bereft my
realme,
And beare, perhaps, to me an hatefull
minde,
Shall I reuenge it with his death, therefore?
Or shall I so destroy my fathers life 175
That gaue me life? The gods forbid, I
say!
Cease you to speake so any more to me.
Ne you, my frend, with answere once repeate
So foule a tale, — in silence let it die!
What lord or subiect shall haue hope at
all 180
That vnder me they safely shall enioye
Their goods, their honours, landes, and liberties,
With whom neither one onely brother
deare,
Ne father dearer, could enioye their liues?
But, sith I feare my yonger brothers
rage, 185
And sith perhaps some other man may geue
Some like aduise to moue his grudging head
At mine estate, — which counsell may perchance
Take greater force with him than this with
me, —
I will in secrete so prepare my selfe 190
As, if his malice or his lust to reigne
Breake forth in armes or sodeine violence,
I may withstand his rage and keepe mine
owne.
[Exeunt Ferrex with the parasite Hermon.]
DOR. I feare the fatall time now draweth
on
When ciuil hate shall end the noble line 195
Of famous Brute and of his royall seede.
Great Ioue, defend the mischiefes now at
hand!
O that the Secretaries wise aduise Had erst bene heard, when he besought the
king
Not to diuide his land, nor send his
sonnes 200

Or shall I to the king, my father, send?
Yea, and send now while such a mother
liues, 50

That loues my brother and that hateth me?
Shall I geue leasure, by my fonde delayes,
To Ferrex to oppresse me all vnware?
I will not. But I will inuade his realme,
And seeke the traitour prince within his court! 55

Mischiefe for mischiefe is a due reward.
His wretched head shall pay the worthy
price

Of this his treason and his hate to me.
Shall I abide, and treat, and send, and
pray,

And holde my yelden throate to traitours
knife, 60

While I, with valiant minde and conquering force, Might rid myselfe of foes and winne a
realme?

Yet rather, when I haue the wretches head,
Then to the king, my father, will I send!
The bootelesse case may yet appease his wrath; 65

If not, I will defend me as I may.

[Exeunt Porrex with the parasite Tyndar.]

PHIL. Lo, here the end of these two youthful kings,
The fathers death, the ruine of their realmes!

“O most vnhappy state of counsellors “That light on so vnhappy lordes and times 70

“That neither can their good aduise be heard,

“Yet must they beare the blames of ill suc-
cesse.”

But I will to the king, their father, haste,
Ere this mischiefe come to the likely end,
That, — if the mindfull wrath of wrekefull
gods, 75

Since mightie Ilions fall not yet appeased
With these poore remnantes of the Troian name,¹

Haue not determined by vnmoued fate
Out of this realme to rase the Brittishe
line, —

By good aduise, by awe of fathers name, 80

By force of wiser lordes, this kindled hate
May yet be quentched ere it consume us
all. [Exit.]

CHORUS.

When youth, not bridled with a guiding
stay,

Is left to randon of their owne delight
And welds whole realmes by force of soueraign sway,

Great is the daunger of vnmaistred
might,

Lest skillesse rage throwe downe with headlong fall

Their lands, their states, their liues, themselues, and al. 6

When growing pride doth fill the swelling
brest,

And gredy lust doth rayse the climbing
minde,

Oh hardlie maye the perill be repress:
Ne feare of angrie goddes, ne lawes
kinde,

Ne countries care can fiered hartes restrayne,

Whan force hath armed enuie and dis-
daine. 12

When kinges of foresette¹ will neglect the rede²

Of best aduise, and yelde to pleasing tales
That do their fansies noysome humour
feede,

Ne reason nor regarde of right auails:
Succeeding heapes of plagues shall teach, to late,

To learne the mischiefes of misguided
state. 18

Fowle fall the traitour false that vnder-mines

The loue of brethren to destroye them
both!

Wo to the prince that pliant care enclynes,
And yeldes his mind to poysonous tale that floweth

From flattering mouth! And woe to wretched land

That wastes it-selfe with ciuil sworde in hand! 24

¹ The royal family of Britain traced its pedigree back to Brutus, a grandson of Æneas of Troy.

² Advice.

Loc, thus it is, poyson in golde to take,
And holsome drinke in homely cuppe forsake.

THE ORDER AND SIGNIFICATION OF THE DOMME SHEWE BEFORE THE THIRDE ACT.

Firste the musicke of flutes began to playe, during which came in vpon the stage a company of mourners all clad in blacke, betokening death and sorowe to ensue vpon the ill-aduised misgouernement and discention of bretherne: as befell vpon the murder¹ of Ferrex by his yonger brother. After the mourners had passed thryse about the stage, they departed;
and than the musicke ceased.

ACTUS TERTIUS

SCENA PRIMA.

[The court of King Gorboduc. Enter King Gorboduc with his Secretary, Eubulus, and his Counsellor, Arostus.]

GORB. O cruell Fates! O mindful wrath of goddes!

Whose vengeance neither Simois stayned
streames

Flowing with bloud of Troian princes
slaine,

Nor Phrygian fieldes made ranek with corpses dead

Of Asian kynges and lordes, can yet appease! 5

Ne slaughter of vnhappie Pryams race,
Nor Ilions fall made leuell with the soile,

Can yet suffice! but still-continued rage
Pursues our lynes, and from the farthest seas 9

Doth chase the issues of destroyed Troye.
"Oh, no man happie till his ende be scene."

If any flowing wealth and seemyng ioye
In present yeres might make a happy

wight,

Happie was Heeuba, the wofullest wretch
That euer lyued to make a myrroure of; 15

And happie Pryam with his noble sonnes;
And happie I, till nowe, alas, I see

And feele my most vnhappye wretched-
nesse!

Beholde, my lordes! read ye this letter
here!

Loc, it contains the ruine of our realme, 20
If timelie speede prouide not hastie helpe.

Yet, O ye goddes, if euer wofull kyng

Might moue ye, kings of kinges, wreke it on
me

And on my sonnes, not on this giltlesse
realme!

Send down your wasting flames from wrathful skies 25

Te reue me and my sonnes the hateful breath!

Read, read, my lordes! This is the matter
why

I called ye nowe to haue your good aduise.

The letter from Dordan, the Counsellour of the elder prince.

Eubulus readeth the letter:

"My Soueraigne Lord: what I am loth to write,

But lothest am to see, that I am forced 30
By letters nowe to make you vnderstande.

My lord Ferrex, your eldest sonne, mis-
ledde

By traitorous fraude of yong vntempered
wittes,

Assembleth force agaynst your yonger
sonne;

Ne can my counsell yet withdrawe the
heate 35

And furyous panges of hys enflamed head.
Disdaine, sayth he, of his disheritance

Armes him to wreke the great pretended wrong

With ciuill sword vpon his brothers life.
If present helpe do not restraine this

rage, 40

This flame will wast your sonnes, your land, and you.

Your Maiesties faithfull and most humble subiect,

DORDAN."

AROS. O king, appease your grieffe and stay your plaint!

Great is the matter, and a wofull ease;
But timely knowledge may bring timely helpe.

Sende for them both vnto your presence
here: 45

The reuerence of your honour, age and state,
Your graue aduice, the awe of fathers

name,

Shall quicklie knit agayne this broken
peace.

And if in either of my lordes your sonnes
 Be suche vntamed and vnyelding pride 50
 As will not bende vnto your noble hestes, —
 If Ferrex, the elder sonne, can beare no peere,

Or Porrex, not content, aspires to more Than you him gauē aboute his natiue
 right, —

Ioyne with the iuster side. So shall you force 55

Them to agree, and holde the lande in stay.
 EUB. What meaneth this? Lo, yonder comes in hast

Philander from my lord your yonger sonne.

[Enter Philander, the Counsellor of the younger prince.]

GORB. The goddess sende ioyfull newes!

PHIL. The mightie Ioue
 Preserue your Maiestie, O noble king! 60

GORB. Philander, welcome! But how doth my sonne?

PHIL. Your sonne, sir, lyues, and healthie
 I him left.

But yet, O king, the want of lustfull health Could not be halfe so grieffull to your
 Grace

As these most wretched tidynge that I
 bryng. 65

GORB. O heauens, yet more? no¹ ende of woes to me?

PHIL. Tyndar, O king, came lately from the court

Of Ferrex to my lord your yonger sonne,
 And made reporte of great prepared store
 For warre, and sayth that it is wholly
 ment 70

Agaynst Porrex, for high disdayne that he Lyues now a king, and egall in degree With him that claimeth to succede the whole

As by due title of discending right.
 Porrex is now so set on flaming fire, 75
 Partely with kindled rage of cruell wrath, Partely with hope to gaine a realme
 thereby,

That he in hast prepareth to inuade
 His brothers land, and with vnkindely
 warre

Threatens the murder of your elder
 sonne; 80

¹ The reading of A.; B. has not.

Ne could I him perswade that first he should

Send to his brother to demaunde the cause,
 Nor yet to you to staie this hatefull strife.

Wherefore, sithe there no more I can be hearde,

I come my-selfe now to enforme your
 Grace, 85

And to beseeche you, as you loue the life And safetie of your children and your
 realme,

Now to employ your wisdome and your force

To stay this mischiefe ere it be to late.

GORB. Are they in armes? Would he not sende to me? 90

Is this the honour of a fathers name?

In vaine we trauaile to assuage their mindes,

As if their hartes, whome neither brothers
 loue,

Nor fathers awe, nor kingdomes cares, can
 moue,

Our counsels could withdraw from raging heat. 95

Ioue slay them both and end the cursed
 line!

For, though perhappes feare of such mightie force

As I, my lordes, ioyned with your noble
 aides,

Maye yet raise shall repress their present
 heate,

The secret grudge and malice will re-
 mayne. 100

The fire, not quenched, but kept in close restraint,

Fedde still within, breakes forth with double flame.

Their death and myne must peaze¹ the angrie gods.

PHIL. Yelde not, O king, so much to weake dispeire!

Your sonnes yet lyue, and long, I trust,
 they shall. 105

If Fates had taken you from earthly life
 Before beginning of this ciuyl strife, Perhaps your sonnes in their vnmaistered
 youth,

Loose from regarde of any luyng wight,

¹ Appease.

Would runne on headlong with vnbridled race 110
 To their owne death and ruine of this
 realme;
 But, sith the gods — that haue the care for
 kinges,
 Of thinges, and times — dispose the order
 so
 That in your life this kindled flame breakes forth,
 While yet your lyfe, your wisdome, and your power 115
 May stay the growing mischiefe and re-presse
 The fierie blaze of their inkindled heate,
 It seemes — and so ye ought to deeme
 thereof —
 That louyng Ioue hath tempred so the
 time
 Of this debate to happen in your dayes 120
 That you yet lyuing may the same appeaze
 And adde it to the glory of your latter age,
 And they, your ¹sonnes, may learne to liue
 in peace.
 Beware, O king, the greatest harme of
 all — Lest by your waylefull plaints your hastened death 125
 Yelde larger roume vnto their growing
 rage.
 Preserue your life, the onely hope of stay.
 And, if your Highnes herein list to vse Wisdome, or force, counsell, or knightly
 aide,
 Loe, we, our persons, powers, and lyues, are yours. 130
 Use us tyll death, O king! We are your owne.
 EUB. Loe, here the perill that was erst foresene,
 When you, O king, did first deuide your
 lande
 And yelde your present reigne vnto your
 sonnes!
 But now, O noble prince, now is no
 time 135
 To waile and plaine, and wast your wofull
 life.
 Now is the time for present good aduise.
 Sorow doth darke the iudgement of the wytte.

“The hart vnbroken, and the courage free “From feble faintnesse of bootelesse despeire, 140
 “Doth either ryse to safetie or renowne
 “By noble valure of vnuanquisht minde,
 “Or yet doth perishe in more happy sort.”
 Your Grace may send to either of your
 sonnes
 Some one both wise and noble personage, 145
 Which with good counsell and with weightie name
 Of father shall present before their eyes Your hest, your life, your safetie, and their
 owne,
 The present mischiefe of their deadly
 strife.
 And, in the while, assemble you the
 force 150
 Which your commaundement and the speddy hast
 Of all my lordes here present can prepare.
 The terrouer of your mightie power shall stay
 The rage of both, or yet of one at lest.

[Enter Nuntius.]

NUNT. O king, the greatest grieft that euer prince dyd heare, 155
 That euer wofull messenger did tell,
 That euer wretched lande hath sene before,
 I bryng to you! Porrex, your yonger
 sonne,
 With soden force inuaded hath the lande
 That you to Ferrex did allotte to rule,
 And with his owne most bloody hand he hath 161
 His brother slaine, and doth possesse his
 realme.
 GORB. O Heauens, send down the flames of your reuenge!
 Destroy, I say, with flash of wrekefull fier
 The traitour sonne, and then the wretched
 sire! 165
 But let vs go, that yet perhappes I may Die with reuenge, and peaze the hateful gods. [Exeunt.]

CHORUS.

The lust of kingdome knowes no sacred
 faith,
 No rule of reason, no regarde of right,

No kindly louc, no feare of heauens
wrath;

But with contempt of goddes, and mans
despite, 4

Through blodie slaughter doth prepare the waies

To fatall scepter and accursed reigne!

The sonne so lothes the fathers lingering
daies,

Ne dreads his hand in brothers blode to staine. 8

O wretched prince, ne doest thou yet re-
corde

The yet fresh murthers done within the
lande

Of thy forefathers, when the cruell sworde Bereft Morgan his life with cosyns
hand? 12

Thus fatall plagues pursue the giltie race Whose murderous hand, imbrued with giltlesse blood,

Askes vengeance still before the heauens
face,

With endlesse mischiefes on the cursed broode! 16

The wicked childe thus bringes to wofull
sire

The mournfull plaintes, to wast his very life.

Thus do the cruell flames of ciuyll fier Destroy the parted reigne with hatefull
strife;

And hence doth spring the well from which doth flow

The dead black streames of mourning, plaints, and woe! 22

THE ORDER AND SIGNIFICATION OF
THE DOMME SHEW BEFORE THE FOURTH ACT.

First the musick of howboies¹ began to plaie, during which there came from vnder the stage, as though out of hell, three Furies, Alecto, Megera and Ctesiphone, clad in black garmentes sprinkled with blood and flames, their bodies girt with snakes, their heds spred with serpentes in stead of heare; the one bearing in her hand a snake, the other a whip, and the third a burning firebrand; ech driuing before them a king and a queene, which, moued by furies, vn-naturally had slaine their owne children: the names of the kings and queenes were these: Tantalus, Medea, Athamas, Ino, Cambises, Althea. After that the Furies and these had passed about the stage thrise, they departed; and than the musicke ceased. Hereby was signified the vnnatural murders to follow, that is to say, Porrex slaine by his owne mother, and of King Gorboduc and Queene Viden, killed by their owne subiectes.

ACTUS QUARTUS

SCENA PRIMA.

[King Gorboduc's palace. Enter Queen Videna.]

VID. Why should I lyue, and linger forth my time

In longer life to double my distresse?

O me, most wofull wight, whom no mis-happe

Long ere this day could haue bereued hence!

Mought not these handes by fortune or by fate 5

Haue perst this brest, and life with iron reft?

Or in this palace here, where I so long

Haue spent my daies, could not that happie
houre

Once, once haue hapt in which these hugie frames

With death by fall might haue oppressed
me? 10

Or should not this most hard and cruell
soile,

So oft where I haue prest my wretched steps,

Sometime had ruthe of myne accursed life
To rende in twayne [and]¹ swallow me therin? 14

So had my bones possessed now in peace
Their happie graue within the closed
grounde,

And greadie wormes had gnawen this
pyned² hart

Without my feeling payne; so should not
now

This lyuing brest remaine the ruthefull tombe

Wherin my hart yelden to death is graued, 20

Nor driery thoughts, with panges of pining
griefe,

My dolefull minde had not afflicted thus.

² Wasted by suffering.

O my beloued sonne! O my swete childe!
 My deare Ferrex, my ioye, my lyues de-
 lyght! 24
 Is my beloued sonne, is my sweete childe,
 My deare Ferrex, my ioye, my lyues de-
 light, Murdered with cruell death? O hatefull wretch!
 O heynous traitour both to heauen and earth!
 Thou, Porrex, thou this damned dede hast
 wrought!
 Thou, Porrex, thou shalt dearely bye the
 same! 30
 Traitour to kinne and kinde, to sire and me,
 To thine owne fleshe, and traitour to thy-
 selfe,
 The gods on thee in hell shall wreke their
 wrath,
 And here in earth this hand shall take re-
 uenge
 On thee, Porrex, thou false and caitife
 wight! 35
 If after bloud so eigre¹ were thy thirst,
 And murderous minde had so possessed
 thee,
 If such hard hart of rocke and stonie flint Liued in thy brest that nothing els could like²
 Thy cruell tyrantes thought but death and bloud, 40
 Wilde sauage beasts, mought not their slaughter serue
 To fede thy greedie will, and in the middest
 Of their entrailes to staine thy deadly
 handes
 With bloud deserued, and drinke thereof thy fill?
 Or, if nought els but death and bloud of
 man 45
 Mought please thy lust, could none in Brittain land,
 Whose hart betorne out of his panting
 brest
 With thine owne hand, or worke what death thou wouldest,
 Suffice to make a sacrifice to peaze³
 That deadly minde and murderous thought in thee, 50
 But he who in the selfesame wombe was wrapped

Where thou in dismall hower receiuedst
 life?
 Or, if nedes, nedes, thy hand must slaughter make,
 Moughtest thou not haue reached a mortall wound,
 And with thy sword haue pearsed this cursed wombe 55
 That the accursed Porrex brought to
 light,
 And geuen me a iust reward therefore?
 So Ferrex yet sweete life mought haue en-
 ioyed,
 And to his aged father comfort brought With some yong sonne, in whom they both might liue. 60
 But whereunto waste I this ruthfull speche
 To thee that hast thy brothers bloud thus shed?
 Shall I still thinke that from this wombe thou sprong?
 That I thee bare? Or take thee for my
 sonne?
 No, traitour, no! I thee refuse for mine! 65
 Murderer, I thee renounce; thou art not mine.
 Neuer, O wretch, this wombe conceiued
 thee,
 Nor neuer bode I painfull throwes for
 thee!
 Changeling to me thou art, and not my
 childe,
 Nor to no wight that sparke of pitie
 knew. 70
 Ruthlesse, vnkinde, monster of natures
 worke,
 Thou neuer suckt the milke of womans
 brest,
 But from thy birth the cruell tigers teates Haue nursed thee! Nor yet of fleshe and bloud Formde is thy hart, but of hard iron wrought; 75
 And wilde and desert woods bredde thee to
 life!
 But canst thou hope to scape my iust re-
 uenge?
 Or that these handes will not be wrooke on
 thee?
 Doest thou not know that Ferrex mother
 liues,

That loued him more dearly than her-
 selfe? 80
 And doth she liue, and is not venged on thee? [Exit.]

ACTUS QUARTUS

SCENA SECUNDA.

[The court of King Gorboduc. Enter King
 Gorboduc attended by his Counsellor
 Arostus.]

GORB. We maruell much wherto this lingering stay
 Falles out so long. Porrex vnto our court
 By order of our letters is returned,
 And Eubulus receaued from vs by hest
 At his arriuell here to geue him charge 5
 Before our presence straight to make repaire, —
 And yet we haue no worde whereof he stayes.

AROS. Lo, where he commes and Eubulus with him.

[Enter the King's Secretary, Eubulus, leading in Porrex.]

EUB. According to your Highnesse hest to
 me,
 Here haue I Porrex brought, euen in such sort 10
 As from his weried horse he did alight,
 For that your Grace did will such hast therein.

GORB. We like and praise this spedy will in you
 To worke the thing that to your charge we gaue.

Porrex, if we so farre should swarue from
 kinde 15
 And from those boundes which lawe of nature sets
 As thou hast done by vile and wretched
 deede

In cruell murder of thy brothers life,
 Our present hand could stay no longer
 time,

But straight should bathe this blade in bloud of thee 20

As iust reuenge of thy detested crime.
 No, we should not offend the lawe of
 kinde

If now this sworde of ours did slay thee
 here;

For thou hast murdered him whose heinous
 death

Euen natures force doth moue vs to re-
 uenge 25

By bloud againe, and iustice forceth vs
 To measure death for death, thy due desert.

Yet, sithens thou art our childe, and sith as yet

In this hard case what worde thou canst alledge

For thy defence by vs hath not bene
 heard, 30

We are content to stayer our will for that
 Which iustice biddes vs presently to worke, And geue thee leaue to vse thy speche at full,

If ought thou haue to lay for thine excuse.
 PORR. Neither, O king, I can or will denie 35

But that this hand from Ferrex life hath reft, —

Which fact how much my dolefull hart
 doth waile,

Oh would it mought as full appeare to sight
 As inward grieffe doth poure it forth to me!
 So yet, perhappes, if euer ruthfull hart 40
 Melting in teares within a manly brest Through depe repentance of his bloody fact,

If euer grieffe, if euer wofull man Might moue regreite with sorrowe of his fault,

I thinke the torment of my mournefull
 case, 45

Knownen to your Grace as I do feele the
 same,

Would force euen Wrath her-selfe to pitie
 me.

But, as the water troubled with the mudde Shewes not the face which els the eye should see,

Euen so your irefull minde with stirred
 thought 50

Cannot so perfectly discernen my cause.
 But this vnhappy, amongst so many happes,¹

I must content me with — most wretched
 man —

That to my-selfe I must reserue my woe
 In pining thoughtes of mine accursed
 fact, 55
 Since I may not shewe here my smallest
 griefe
 Such as it is, and as my brest endures.
 Which I esteeme the greatest miserie
 Of all mischappes that fortune now can send:
 Not that I rest in hope with plaint and teares 60
 To purchase life; for to the goddes I clepe¹
 For true recorde of this my faithfull
 speche:—
 Neuer this hart shall haue the thoughtfull dread
 To die the death that by your Graces dome,
 By iust desert, shall be pronounced to
 me, 65
 Nor neuer shall this tongue once spend the speche
 Pardon to craue, or seeke by sute to liue.
 I meane not this as though I were not touchde
 With care of dreadfull death, or that I helde Life in contempt, but that I know the
 minde 70
 Stoupes to no dread, although the fleshe be fraile.
 And, for my gilt, I yelde the same so great
 As in my-selfe I finde a feare to sue
 For graunt of life.
 GORB. In vaine, O wretch, thou shewest
 A wofull hart! Ferrex now lies in graue, 75
 Slaine by thy hand.
 PORR. Yet this, O father, heare;
 And then I end. Your Maiestie well knowes
 That when my brother Ferrex and my-selfe
 By your owne hest were ioyned in gouer-
 nance
 Of this your Graces realme of Brittainne
 land, 80
 I neuer sought nor trauailed for the same,
 Nor by my-selfe, nor by no frend I wrought,
 But from your Highnesse will alone it
 sprong,
 Of your most gracious goodnesse bent to
 me.
 But how my brothers hart euen then re-pinned 85

With swollen disdaine against mine egall
 rule,
 Seing that realme, which by discent should grow
 Wholly to him, allotted halfe to me, Euen in your Highnesse court he now re-
 maines,
 (And with my brother then in nearest
 place), 90
 Who can recorde what prooffe thereof was shewde,
 And how my brothers eniuous hart appearde.
 Yet I, that iudged it my part to seeke
 His fauour and good will, and loth to make Your Highnesse know the thing which should haue brought 95 Grief to your Grace, and your offence to
 him,
 Hoping my earnest sute should soone haue wonne
 A louing hart within a brothers brest, Wrought in that sort that for a pledge of
 loue
 And faithfull hart he gawe to me his hand.
 This made me thinke that he had banisht
 quite 101
 All rancour from his thought, and bare to
 me
 Such hartie loue as I did owe to him.
 But, after once we left your Graces court,
 And from your Highness presence liued apart, 105
 This egall rule still, still, did grudge him so,
 That now those eniuous sparkes which erst lay raked
 In liuing cinders of dissembling brest
 Kindled so farre within his hart disdaine That longer could he not refraine from
 prooffe 110
 Of secrete practise to depriue me life
 By poysons force; and had bereft me so,
 If mine owne seruant, hired to this fact,
 And moued by trouth with hate to worke
 the same,
 In time had not bewrayed it vnto me. 115
 Whan thus I sawe the knot of loue vnknitte,
 All honest league and faithfull promise broke,
 The law of kinde and trouth thus rent in
 twaine,

His hart on mischiefe set, and in his brest Blacke treason hid, then, then did I despeire 120

That euer time could winne him frend to
me!

Then saw I how he smiled with slaying
knife

Wrapped vnder cloke! Then saw I depe deceite

Lurke in his face and death prepared for
me!

Euen nature moued me than to holde my
life 125

More deare to me than his, and bad this
hand, —

Since by his life my death must nedes ensue,

And by his death my life to be preserued, —

To shed his bloud, and seeke my safetic so;
And wisedome willed me without protract 130

In spedie wise to put the same in vre.

Thus haue I tolde the cause that moued me To worke my brothers death. And so I yeld

My life, my death, to iudgement of your
Grace.

GORB. Oh cruell wight! should any cause preuaile 135

To make thee staine thy hands with brothers bloud?

But what of thee we will resolute doe Shall yet remaine vnknown. Thou in the meane

Shalt from our royall presence banisht be Untill our princely pleasure furder shall To thee be shewed. Depart therefore our sight, 141

Accursed childe!

[Exit Porrex.]

What cruell destenie,

What froward fate hath sorted vs this chance,

That euen in those where we should comfort find,

Where our delight now in our aged dayes 145

S[h]ould rest and be, euen there our onely
griefe

And depest sorrowes to abridge our life,

Most pyning cares and deadly thoughts do grow?

AROS. Your Grace should now in these graue yeres of yours

Haue found ere this the price of mortal
ioyes, 150

How short they be, how fading here in
earth,

How full of change, how brittle our estate,
Of nothing sure saue onely of the death,
To whom both man and all the world doth owe

Their end at last. Neither should natures
power 155

In other sort against your hart preuaile Than as the naked hand whose stroke as-sayes

The armed brest, where force doth light in vaine.

GORB. Many can yelde right sage and graue aduise

Of pacient sprite to others wrapped in woe, 160

And can in speche both rule and conquere
kinde,

Who, if by prooffe they might feele natures
force,

Would shew them-selues men, as they are
in-dede,

Which now wii nedes be gods. But what doth meane

The sory chere of her that here doth
come? 165

[Enter Marcella, a lady of the Queen's privy-chamber.]

MARC. Oh where is ruth? or where is pitie
now?

Whether is gentle hart and mercy fled?
Are they exiled out of our stony brestes

Neuer to make returne? Is all the world Drowned in bloud and soncke in cru-
eltie? 170

If not in women mercy may be found,
If not, alas! within the mothers brest

To her owne childe, to her owne fleshe and
bloud,

If ruthe be banished thence, if pitie there May haue no place, if there no gentle
hart 175

Do liue and dwell, where should we seeke it then?

GORB. Madame, alas, what meanes your wofull tale?

MARC. O sillie woman I, why to this houre Hauē Kinde and Fortune thus deferred my breath

That I should liue to see this dolefull day? 180

Will euer wight beleue that such hard hart Could rest within the cruell mothers brest With her owne hand to slay her onely sonne?

But out! alas! these eyes behelde the same! They saw the driery sight, and are become 185

Most ruthfull recordes of the bloody fact! Porrex, alas, is by his mother slaine, And with her hand — a wofull thing to tell! —

While slumbring on his carefull bed he restes,

His hart, stabde in with knife, is reft of life! 190

GORB. O Eubulus! oh draw this sword of ours

And pearce this hart with speed! O hatefull light!

O lothsome life! O sweete and welcome death!

Deare Eubulus, worke this, we thee besech.

EUB. Patient your Grace. Perhappes he liueth yet, 195

With wound receaued, but not of certaine death.

GORB. O let us then repayre vnto the place,

And see if Porrex liue, or thus be slaine.

[Exeunt Gorboduc and Eubulus.]

MARC. Alas, he liueth not! It is to true That, with these eyes, of him, a perelasse prince, 200

Sonne to a king, and in the flower of youth, Euen with a twinke a senselesse stocke I saw.

AROS. O damned deede!

MARC. But heare hys ruthfull end! The noble prince, pearst with the sodeine wound,

Out of his wretched slumber hastely start, 205

Whose strength now fayling, straight he ouerthrew, —

When in the fall his eyes, euen new vn-closed,

Behelde the queene, and cryed to her for helpe.

We then, alas! the ladies which that time Did there attend, seing that heynous deede, 210

And hearing him oft call the wretched name

Of mother, and to crye to her for aide Whose direfull hand gauē him the mortall wound,

Pitying, alas! — for nought els could we do, —

His ruthfull end, ranne to the wofull bedde, 215

Dispoyled straight his brest, and, all we might,

Wiped in vaine with napkins next at hand The sodeine streames of blood that flushed fast

Out of the gaping wound. O what a looke, O what a ruthfull stedfast eye, me thought, 220

He fixt vpon my face, which to my death Will neuer part fro me, when with a braide A deepe-fet sigh he gauē, and therewithall Clasping his handes, to heauen he cast his sight!

And straight — pale death pressing within his face — 225

The flying ghost his mortall corpes for-sooke.

AROS. Neuer did age bring forth so vile a fact!

MARC. O hard and cruell happe, that thus assigned

Unto so worthy a wight so wretched end! But most hard, cruell hart, that could consent 230

To lend the hatefull destenies that hand By which, alas, so heynous crime was wrought!

O queene of adamant, O marble brest, If not the fauour of his comely face, If not his princely chere and countenance, 235

His valiant actiue armes, his manly brest, If not his faire and seemely personage, His noble limmes in such proportion cast As would have wrapt a sillie womans thought, —

If this mought not haue moued thy bloody
 hart 240
 And that most cruell hand the wretched weapon
 Euen to let fall, and kiste him in the face,
 With teares for ruthe to reauce such one by
 death, —
 Should nature yet consent to slay her
 sonne?
 O mother, thou to murder thus thy
 childe! 245
 Euen Ioue with iustice must with lightning
 flames
 From heauen send downe some strange reuenge on thee.
 Ah, noble prince, how oft haue I behelde Thee mounted on thy fierce and traumpling stede, 249
 Shining in armour bright before the tilt,
 And with thy mistresse sleue tied on thy helme,
 And charge thy staffe to please thy ladies
 eye,
 That bowed the head-peece of thy frendly
 foe!
 How oft in armes on horse to bend the mace!
 How oft in armes on foote to breake the
 sworde! 255
 Which neuer now these eyes may see againe.
 AROS. Madame, alas, in vaine these plaints are shed!
 Rather with me depart, and helpe to swage
 The thoughtfull griefes that in the aged
 king
 Must needs by nature growe, by death of
 this 260
 His onely sonne, whom he did holde so
 deare.
 MARC. What wight is that which saw that I did see,
 And could refraine to waile with plaint and teares?
 Not I, alas! That hart is not in me.
 But let vs goe, for I am greued anew 265
 To call to minde the wretched fathers woe.

[Exeunt.]

CHORUS.

Whan greedy lust in royall seate to reigne Hath reft all care of goddes and eke of
 men,

And cruell hart, wrath, treason, and dis-
 daine

Within ambicious brest are lodged, then Beholde how mischiefe wide her-selfe dis-playes,
 And with the brothers hand the brother
 slayes. 6

When blood thus shed doth staine the heauens face,
 Crying to Ioue for vengeance of the
 deede,

The mightie God euen moueth from his
 place,

With wrath to wreke. Then sendes he forth with spede

The dreadfull Furies, daughters of the night,

With serpentes girt, carying the whip of
 ire,

With heare of stinging snakes, and shining bright

With flames and blood, and with a brand of fire.

These, for reuenge of wretched murder done,
 Do make the mother kill her onely sonne. 16

Blood asketh blood, and death must death
 requite:

Ioue by his iust and euerlasting dome
 Iustly hath cuer so requited it.

The times before recorde, and times to
 come

Shall finde it true, and so doth present
 prooffe

Present before our eyes for our behoofe. 22

O happy wight that suffres not the snare
 Of murderous minde to tangle him in blood!

And happy he that can in time beware
 By others harmes, and turne it to his good!

But wo to him that, fearing not to offend, Doth serue his lust, and will not see the
 end. 28

THE ORDER AND SIGNIFICATION OF THE DOMME SHEW BEFORE THE FIFTH ACT.

First the drommes and flutes began to sound, during which there came forth vpon the stage a company of hargabusiers and of armed men all in order of battaile. These, after their peeces discharged, and that the armed men had three times marched about the stage, departed; and then the drommes and fluits did cease. Hereby was signified tumults, rebellions, armes and ciuill warres to follow: as fell in the realme of Great Brittain, which by the space of fiftie yeares and more continued in ciuill warre betwene the nobilitie after the death of King Gorboduc and of his issues, for want of certayne limitation in succession of the crowne, till the time of Dunwallo Molmutius, who reduced the land to monarchie.

ACTUS QUINTUS

SCENA PRIMA.

[The court of King Gorboduc. Enter Clotyn, Duke of Cornwall, Mandud, Duke of Loegriss, Gwenard, Duke of Cumberland, Fergus, Duke of Albany, and Eubulus, the King's Secretary.]

CLO. Did euer age bring forth such tirants harts?

The brother hath bereft the brothers life;
The mother she hath died her cruell handes
In bloud of her owne sonne; and now at last

The people, loe! forgetting trowth and
loue, 5

Contemning quite both law and loyall
hart,

Euen they haue slaine their soueraigne lord and queene.

MAND. Shall this their traitorous crime vnpunished rest?

Euen yet they cease not, caryed on with
rage, 9

In their rebellious routes to threaten still
A new bloud-shed vnto the princes kinne,
To slay them all, and to vproote the race Both of the king and queene: so are they moued

With Porrex death, wherin they falsely charge

The giltlesse king, without desert at all, 15
And traitorously haue murdered him therefore,

And eke the queene.

GWEN. Shall subiectes dare with force To worke reuenge vpon their princes
fact? 1

Admit the worst that may (as sure in this
The deede was fowle, the queene to slay her sonne), 20

¹ Deed.

Shall yet the subiect seeke to take the
sworde,

Arise agaynst his lord, and slay his king?
O wretched state, where those rebellious
hartes

Are not rent out euen from their liuing
breastes,

And with the body throwen vnto the foules 25

As carrion foode, for terrour of the rest!

FERG. There can no punishment be thought to great

For this so greuouse cryme. Let spede therefore

Be vsed therin, for it behoueth so.

EUB. Ye all, my lordes, I see, consent in one, 30

And I as one consent with ye in all.

I holde it more than neede with sharpest
law

To punish this tumultuous bloody rage;
For nothing more may shake the common
state

Than sufferance of vproares without redresse, 35

Wherby how some kingdomes of mightie
power,

After great conquestes made, and flourishing
In fame and wealth, haue ben to ruine brought,

I pray to Ioue that we may rather wayle Such happe in them than wisse in ourselues. 40

Eke fully with the duke my minde agrees, [That no cause serues wherby the subiect
maye

Call to accompt the doynge of his prince, Muche lesse in bloode by sworde to worke
reuenge,

No more then maye the hande cut of the heade. 45

In acte nor speache, no, not in secrete thoughte,

The subiect maye rebell against his lorde,
Or iudge of him that sittes in Ceasars
seate,

With grudging minde to ¹ damne those he mislikes.] ²

Though kinges forget to gouerne as they ought, 50

² B. omits lines 42-49.

Yet subiectes must obey as they are bounde.

But now, my lordes, before ye farder wade,
Or spend your speach what sharpe reuenge shall fall

By iustice plague on these rebellious
wightes,

Me thinkes ye rather should first search
the way 55

By which in time the rage of this vproare Mought be repressed and these great tumults ceased.

Euen yet the life of Brittainye land doth hang

In traitours balauce of vnegall weight.

Thinke not, my lordes, the death of Gorboduc, 60

Nor yet Videnaes bloud will cease their
rage.

Euen our owne lyues, our wiues and children deare,

Our country, dearest of all, in daunger
standes

Now to be spoiled, now, now, made desolate,

And by our-selues a conquest to ensue. 65

For geue once swey vnto the peoples lustes
To rush forth on, and stay them not in
time,

And, as the streame that rowleth downe
the hyll,

So will they headlong ronne with raging thoughtes

From bloud to bloud, from mischiefe vnto moe, 70

To ruine of the realme, them-selues, and all,
So giddy are the common peoples mindes,
So glad of change, more wauering than the sea.

Ye see, my lordes, what strength these rebelles haue,

What hugie nombre is assembled still; 75

For though the traiterous fact for which they rose

Be wrought and done, yet lodge they still in field;

So that how farre their furies yet will stretch

Great cause we haue to dreade. That we may seeke

By present battaile to repress their
power, 80

Speede must we vse to leuie force therfore;
For either they forthwith will mischiefe
worke

Or their rebellious roares forthwith will cease:

These violent thinges may haue no lasting
long. 84

Let vs therfore vse this for present helpe:—

Perswade by gentle speach, and offre grace
With gift of pardon, saue vnto the chiefe,

And that vpon condicion that forthwith
They yelde the captaines of their enterprise,

To beare such guerdon of their traiterous
fact 90

As may be both due vengeance to themselues

And holsome terrour to posteritie.

This shall, I thinke, scatter the greatest part

That now are holden with desire of home, Weried in field with cold of winters nights, 95

And some, no doubt, striken with dread of law.

Whan this is once proclaimed, it shall make
The captaines to mistrust the multitude, Whose safetie biddes them to betray their heads,—

And so much more bycause the rascall
routes 100

In thinges of great and perillous attemptes
Are neuer trustie to the noble race.

And, while we treat and stand on termes of
grace,

We shall both stay their furies rage the while
And eke gaine time, whose onely helpe sufficeth 105

Withouten warre to vanquish rebelles
power.

In the meane while make you in redynes
Such band of horsemen as ye may prepare.

Horsemen, you know, are not the commons
strength,

But are the force and store of noble
men, 110

Wherby the vnchosen and vnarmed sort
Of skillesse rebelles, whome none other
power

But nombre makes to be of dreadfull force,
With sodeyne brunt may quickly be op-
prest.

And if this gentle meane of proffered
 grace 115
 With stubborne hartes cannot so farre auayle
 As to assuage their desperate courages,
 Then do I wish such slaughter to be made
 As present age and eke posteritie
 May be adrad with horrour of reuenge 120
 That iustly then shall on these rebelles fall.
 This is, my lord[s], the sum of mine aduise.
 CLO. Neither this case admittes debate at large,
 And, though it did, this speach that hath ben sayd Hath well abridged the tale I would haue
 tolde. 125
 Fully with Eubulus do I consent
 In all that he hath sayd. And, if the same To you, my lordes, may seeme for best ad-uise,
 I wish that it should streight be put in vre.
 MAND. My lordes, than let vs presently depart 130
 And follow this that liketh vs so well.

[Exeunt all but Fergus, Duke of Albany.]

FERG. If euer time to gaine a kingdome
 here
 Were offred man, now it is offred mee.
 The realme is reft both of their king and
 queene;
 The ofspring of the prince is slaine and
 dead; 135
 No issue now remaines, the heire vn-
 knowne;
 The people are in armes and mutynies;
 The nobles they are busied how to cease
 These great rebellious tumultes and vproares;
 And Brittainne land, now desert left
 alone 140
 Amyd these broyles, vncertayne where to
 rest,
 Offers her-selfe vnto that noble hart
 That will, or dare, pursue to beare her crowne.
 Shall I, that am the Duke of Albany,
 Discended from that line of noble bloud 145
 Which hath so long florished in worthy fame
 Of valiaunt hartes, such as in noble brestes
 Of right should rest about the baser sort,

Refuse to venture life to winne a crowne?
 Whom shall I finde enmies that will withstand 150
 My fact herein, if I attempt by armes
 To seeke the same now in these times of broyle?
 These dukes power can hardly well appease
 The people that already are in armes.
 But, if perhappes my force be once in field, 155
 Is not my strength in power about the best Of all these lordes now left in Brittainne
 land?
 And though they should match me with power of men,
 Yet doubtfull is the chauce of battailles
 ioyned.
 If victors of the field we may depart, 160
 Ours is the scepter then of Great Brittainne;
 If slayne amid the playne this body lye,
 Mine enemies yet shall not deny me this,
 But that I dyed geuing the noble charge
 To hazarde life for conquest of a crowne.
 Forthwith therefore will I in post depart
 To Albany, and raise in armour there
 All power I can; and here my secret friendes
 By secret practise shall sollicite still To seeke to wynde to me the peoples hartes. [Exit.] 170

ACTUS QUINTUS

SCENA SECUNDA.

[The court. Enter Eubulus.]

EVV. O Ioue! how are these peoples harts abusde!
 What blind fury thus headlong carries them,
 That, though so many bookes, so many rolles
 Of auncient time recorde what greuous plagues
 Light on these rebelles aye, and though so
 oft 5
 Their eares haue heard their aged fathers
 tell
 What iuste reward these traitours still receuyue,
 Yea, though them-selues haue sene depe death and bloud
 By strangling cord and slaughter of the sword

To such assigned, yet can they not beware, 10

Yet can not stay their lewde rebellious
handes,

But, suffering, loe, fowle treason to distaine
Their wretched myndes, forget their loyall
hart,

Reiect all truth, and rise against their
prince

A ruthfull ease, that those, whom duties bond, 15

Whom grafted law by nature, truth, and faith

Bound to preserue their cuntry and their
king,

Borne to defend their common-wealth and
prince,

Euen they should geue consent thus to subuert

Thee, Brittain land, and from thy wombe should spring, 20

O native soile, those that will needs destroy And ruyne thee, and eke them-selues in fine!

For lo, when once the dukes had offred grace
Of pardon sweete the multitude missledde
By traitorous fraude of their vngracious heades, 25

One sort, that saw the dangerous successe
Of stubborne standing in rebellious warre
And knew the difference of princes power
From headlesse nombre of tumultuous
routes,

Whom common countreies care and priuate
feare 30

Taught to repent the error of their rage, Layde handes vpon the captaines of their band

And brought them bound vnto the mightie dukes;

And other sort, not trusting yet so well
The truth of pardon, or mistrusting more Their owne offence than that, they could conceiue 36

Such hope of pardon for so foule misdede,
Or for that they their captaines could not
yeld,

Who, fearing to be yelded, fled before,
Stale home by silence of the secret night; 40
The thirde, vnhappy and enraged sort Of desperate hartes, who, stained in princes blood,

From trayterous furour could not be with-drawen

By loue, by law, by grace, ne yet by feare,
By proffered life, ne yet by threatned
death, 45

With mindes hopelesse of life, dreadlesse of
death,

Carelesse of cuntry, and awelesse of God,
Stoode bent to fight as Furies did them
moue,

With violent death to close their traitorous
life.

These all by power of horsemen were op-
prest, 50

And with reuenging sworde slayne in the field,

Or with the strangling cord hangd on the tree,

Where yet their carryen carcasses do preach
The fruites that rebelles reape of their vp-
roares

And of the murder of their sacred prince. 55
But loe, where do approche the noble dukes
By whom these tumults haue ben thus appeasde.

[*Enter Clotyn, Duke of Cornwall, Mandud, Duke of Loegris, Gwenard, Duke of Cumberland, and the Counsellor,
Arostus.*]

CLO. I thinke the world will now at length
beware,
And feare to put on armes agaynst their
prince!

MAND. If not, those trayterous hartes that dare rebell, 60
Let them beholde the wide and hugie
fieldes

With bloud and bodies spread of rebelles
slayne,

The lofty trees clothed with the corpses dead
That strangled with the corde do hang theron!

AROS. A iust rewarde! such as all times
before 65
Haue euer lotted to those wretched folkes.

GWEN. But what meanes he that commeth here so fast?

[Enter Nuntius.]

NUNT. My lordes, as dutie and my truth
doth moue,

And of my countrey worke a care in mee,
 That, if the spending of my breath auailed
 To do the seruice that my hart desires, 71
 I would not shunne to inbrace a present
 death,
 So haue I now, in that wherein I thought
 My trauayle mought performe some good effect,
 Ventred my life to bring these tydinges
 here. 75
 Fergus, the mightie Duke of Albanye,
 Is now in armes, and lodgeth in the felde With twentie thousand men. Hether he bendes
 His spedy marche, and mindes to inuade
 the crowne.
 Dayly he gathereth strength, and spreads abroad 80
 That to this realme no certeine heire re-
 maines,
 That Brittain land is left without a guide,
 That he the scepter seekes for nothing els
 But to preserue the people and the land,
 Which now remaine as ship without a sterne. 85
 Loe, this is that which I haue here to say.
 CLO. Is this his fayth? And shall he falsely thus Abuse the vantage of vnhappie times?
 O wretched land, if his outrageous pride,
 His cruell and vntempred wilfulness, 90
 His deepe dissembling shewes of false pretence,
 Should once attaine the crowne of Brittain
 land!
 Let vs, my lordes, with timely force resist
 The new attempt of this our common foe,
 As we would quench the flames of common
 fire. 95
 MAND. Though we remaine without a certain prince
 To weld the realme or guide the wandring
 rule,
 Yet now the common mother of vs all,
 Our natie land, our countrey, that con-
 teines
 Our wiues, children, kindred, our-selues, and all 100
 That euer is or may be deare to man,
 Cries vnto vs to helpe our-selues and her.
 Let vs aduance our powers to repress
 This growing foe of all our liberties.

GWEN. Yea, let vs so, my lordes, with hasty speede. 105
 And ye, O goddes, send vs the welcome
 death,
 To shed our bloud in field, and leaue us not
 In lothesome life to lenger out our dayes
 To see the huge heapes of these vnhappes That now roll downe vpon the wretched
 land, 110
 Where emptie place of princely gouer-
 nance,
 No certaine stay now left of doubtlesse
 heire,
 Thus leaue this guidelesse realme an open
 pray
 To endlesse stormes and waste of ciuill
 warre.
 AROS. That ye, my lordes, do so agree in
 one 115
 To saue your countrey from the violent reigne
 And wrongfully vsurped tyrannie
 Of him that threatens conquest of you all,
 To saue your realme, and in this realme
 your-selues,
 From forreine thraldome of so proud a
 prince, 120
 Much do I prayse; and I besech the goddes
 With happy honour to requite it you.
 But, O my lordes, sith now the heauens
 wrath
 Hath reft this land the issue of their prince, Sith of the body of our late soueraigne
 lorde 125
 Remaines no moe since the yong kinges be
 slaine,
 And of the title of discended crowne
 Uncertainly the diuerse mindes do thinke Euen of the learned sort, and more vncer-tainly 129
 Will parciall fancie and affection deerne, —
 But most vncertainly will climbing pride
 And hope of reigne withdraw to sundry
 partes
 The doubtfull right and hopefull lust to reigne, —
 When once this noble seruice is atchieued
 For Brittain land, the mother of ye all,
 When once ye haue with armed force re-
 prest 136
 The proude attemptes of this Albanian
 prince

That threatens thraldome to your natiue
land,

When ye shall vanquishers returne from
field 139

And finde the princely state an open pray
To gredie lust and to vsurping power,

Then, then, my lordes, if euer kindly care
Of auncient honour of your auncesters,

Of present wealth and noblesse of your stockes, 144

Yea, of the liues and safetie yet to come
Of your deare wiues, your children, and
your-selues,

Might moue your noble hartes with gentle ruth,

Then, then haue pitie on the torne estate,
Then helpe to salue the welneare hopelesse
sore!

Which ye shall do, if ye your-selues withholde 150

The slaying knife from your owne mothers throate.

Her shall you saue, and you and yours in
her,

If ye shall all with one assent forbear
Once to lay hand or take vnto your-selues

The crowne by colour¹ of pretended right
Or by what other meanes so-euer it be, 156

Till first by common counsell of you all
In Parliament the regall diademe

Be set in certaine place of gouernaunce.
In which your Parliament, and in your choise, 160

Preferre the right, my lordes, with[out] respect

Of strength, or frendes, or what-soeuer
cause

That may set forward any others part;
For right will last, and wrong cannot endure.

Right meane I his or hers vpon whose
name 165

The people rest by meane of natiue line
Or by the vertue of some former lawe,
Already made their title to aduaunce.

Such one, my lordes, let be your chosen
king,

Such one, so borne within your natiue
land, 170

Such one preferre. And in no wise admitte

1 Excuse, pretence.

The heauie yoke of forreine gouernaunce!
Let forreine titles yelde to publike wealth;

And with that hart wherewith ye now prepare

Thus to withstand the proude inuading
foe, 175

With that same hart, my lordes, keepe out
also

Unnaturall thraldome of strangers reigne,
Ne suffer you against the rules of kinde

Your mother land to serue a forreine prince.
EUB. Loe here the end of Brutus royall
line! 180

And loe the entry to the wofull wracke
And vtter ruine of this noble realme!

The royall king and eke his sonnes are
slaine,

No ruler restes within the regall seate,
The heire, to whom the scepter longes, vnknownen; 185

That to eche force of forreine princes power Whom vauntage of our wretched state may moue

By sodeine armes to gaine so riche a
realme,

And to the proud and gredie minde at home

Whom blinded lust to reigne leades to aspire, 190

Loe, Brittain realme is left an open pray,
A present spoyle by conquest to ensue!

Who seeth not now how many rising miudes

Do feede their thoughts with hope to reach a realme?

And who will not by force attempt to winne 195

So great a gaine, that hope perswades to
haue?

A simple colour shall for title serue.
Who winnes the royall crowne will want no
right,

Nor such as shall display by long discent
A lineall race to proue him lawfull king.

In the meane-while these ciuil armes shall
rage; 201

And thus a thousand mischiefes shall vn-folde,

And farre and neare spread thee, O Brit-taine Land!

All right and lawe shall cease; and he that had

Nothing to-day, to-morrow shall en-
ioye 205
Great heapes of golde, and he that flowed
in wealthe,
Loe, he shall be bereft of life and all;
And happiest he that then possesseth least.
The wiues shall suffer rape, the maides defloured;
And children fatherlesse shall weepe and waile; 210
With fire and sworde thy natiue folke shall perishe;
One kinsman shall bereaue an-others life;
The father shall vnwitting slay the sonne;
The sonne shall slay the sire, and know it
not;
Women and maides the cruell souldiers
sword 215
Shall perse to death; and sillie children,
loe,
That playing¹ in the streetes and fieldes are found,
By violent hand shall close their latter
day!
Whom shall the fierce and bloody souldier Reserue to life? Whom shall he spare from death? 220
Euen thou, O wretched mother, halfe aliuie, Thou shalt beholde thy deare and onely
childe
Slaine with the sworde while he yet suckes thy brest.
Loe, giltlesse bloud shall thus eche-where be shed!
Thus shall the wasted soile yelde forth no
fruite, 225
But dearth and famine shall possesse the
land!
The townes shall be consumed and burnt with fire,
The peopled cities shall waxe desolate;
And thou, O Brittainie, whilome in re-
nowme,
Whilome in wealthe and fame, shalt thus be torne, 230
Dismembred thus, and thus be rent in
twaine,
Thus wasted and defaced, spoyled and destroyed!
These be the fruites your ciuil warres will bring.

Hereto it commes when kinges will not consent
To graue aduise, but followe wilfull
will. 235
This is the end when in fonde princes
hartes
Flattery preuailes, and sage rede hath no
place.
These are the plagges when murder is the meane
To make new heires vnto the royall crowne.
Thus wreke the gods when that the mothers wrath 240
Nought but the bloud of her owne childe may swage.
These mischiefes spring when rebells will arise
To worke reuenge and iudge their princes
fact.
This, this ensues when noble-men do faile
In loyall trouth, and subiectes will be
kinges. 245
And this doth growe when, loe, vnto the
prince Whom death or sodeine happe of life bereaues
No certaine heire remaines — such certaine
heire
As not all-onely is the rightfull heire
But to the realme is so made knowen to
be, 250
And trouth therby vested in subiectes
hartes
To owe fayth there where right is knowen to rest.
Alas! in Parliament what hope can be,
When is of Parliament no hope at all,
Which, though it be assembled by consent, 255
Yet is not likely with consent to end?
While eche one for him-selfe, or for his frend,
Against his foe shall trauaile what he may,
While now the state, left open to the man That shall with greatest force inuade the same, 260
Shall fill ambitious mindes with gaping
hope,
When will they once with yelding hartes
agree?
Or, in the while, how shall the realme be vsed?

No, no; then Parliament should haue bene
 holden,
 And certeine heires appointed to the
 crowne, 265
 To stay the title of established right,
 And in the people plant obedience While yet the prince did liue, whose name and power
 By lawfull sommons and authoritie 269
 Might make a Parliament to be of force,
 And might haue set the state in quiet stay.

But now, O happie man whom spedie death
 Depriuies of life, ne is enforced to see
 These hugie mischiefs, and these miseries, These ciuil warres, these murders, and these wronges 275
 Of iustice. Yet must God in fine restore
 This noble crowne vnto the lawfull heire;
 For right will alwayes liue and rise at length,
 But wrong can neuer take deepe roote, to
 last.

NEUOLA, and two other his seruants.

PSYTERIA, an olde hag in his house.

PHYLOGANO, a Seycilian gentleman, father to Erostrato.

LYTIO, his seruant.

FERRARESE, an inkeper of Ferrara.

The comedie presented as it were in Ferrara.

¹ As the author states, this play is mainly a translation from the Italian of Ariosto's I Suppositi, and was presented by the young gentlemen of Grays Inn, 1566. I have based the text on R. W. Bond's exact reprint (in Early Plays from the Italian, 1911) of the second quarto, 1575, "corrected, perfected, and augmented by the Authour." I have modernized the punctuation and capitals, have added in brackets stage-directions, and have slightly expanded the abbreviated forms of the speakers' names from the usual two letters (as Da. for Datio, expanded to Dal., Da. for Damon, expanded to Dam.). I have also omitted the marginal glosses in which the author called attention to the "supposes"; these usually take the form "Another suppose," sometimes varied as "A stout suppose," "A pleasant suppose." They are of little importance, and could not conveniently be reproduced in the present edition.

² One skilled in law; here, a barrister.

THE PROLOGUE OR ARGUMENT

I suppose you are assembled here supposing to reape the fruite of my traauayles;¹ and, to be playne, I meane presently to presente you with a comedie called Supposes, the verve name wherof may peradventure driue into euery of your heades a sundry suppose to suppose the meaning of our Supposes. Some, percase,² will suppose we meane to oecupie your eares with sophisticall handling of subtile suppositions; some other wil [5 suppose we go about to discipher vnto you some queint conceiptes, which hitherto haue bene onely supposed, as it were, in shadowes;³ and some I see smyling as though they supposed we would trouble you with the vaine suppose of some wanton suppose.⁴ But, vnderstand, this our Suppose is nothing else but a mystaking, or imagination of one thing for another. For you shall see the master supposed for the seruant, the seruant for [10 the master; the freeman for a slaue, and the bondslaue for a freeman; the stranger for a well known friend, and the familiar for a stranger. But what? I suppose that euen already you suppose me very fonde that haue so simply disclosed vnto you the subtillties of these our Supposes; where, otherwise, in-deede, I suppose you shoulde haue heard almoste the laste of our Supposes before you could haue supposed anye of them [15 arighte. Let this then suffice.

ACTUS PRIMUS

SCENA I

[On one side, the house of Damon; on the other side, the house of the fayned Erostrato; between, a street painted in perspective, and leading into the town.]

[Enter] Balia, the Nurse, [calling in] Polynesta, the yong woman.

[BALIA.] Here is nobody. Come foorth, Polynesta. [Enter Polynesta.] Let vs looke about, to be sure least any man heare our talke; for I thinke within the house the tables, the plankes, the beds, the por- [5 tals,¹ yea and the cupbords them-selues haue eares.

POLY. You might as well haue sayde, the windowes and the doores: do you not see howe they harken? 10

BAL. Well, you iest faire; but I would aduise you take heede! I haue bidden you a thousande times beware. You will be spied one day talking with Dulippo.

POLY. And why should I not talke [15 with Dulippo as well as with any other, I pray you?

BAL. I haue giuen you a wherfore for this why many times. But go too! followe your owne aduise till you ouerwhelme [20 vs all with soden mishappe.

POLY. A great mishappe, I promise you! Marie, Gods blessing on their heart that sette such a brouche on my cappe.

BAL. Well, looke well about you! [25 A man would thinke it were inough for you secretly to reioyce that by my helpe you haue passed so many pleasant nightes together. And yet, by my trowth, I do it more than halfe agaynst my will, for I [30 would rather you had setled your fansie in some noble familie; yea, and it is no small grieffe vnto me that (reiecting the suites of so many nobles and gentlemen) you have chosen for your darling a poore seru- [35 aunt of your fathers, by whome shame and infamie is the best dower you can looke for to attayne.

POLY. And, I pray you, whome may I thanke but gentle Nourse? that contin- [40 ually praying him, what for his personage, his curtesie, and, aboue all, the extreme passions of his minde, — in fine, you would neuer cease till I accepted him, delighted in him, and, at length, desired him with [45 no lesse affection than he earst desired me.

BAL. I can not denie but at the beginning I did recommede him vnto you (as, in-deede, I may say that for my selfe I haue a pitiful heart) seeing the depth of his [50 vnbridled affection, and that continually he neuer ceased to fill mine eares with lamentable complaynts.

POLY. Nay, rather that he filled your purse with bribes and rewards, [55 Nourse!

BAL. Well, you may iudge of Nourse as you liste. In-deede, I haue thought it alwayes a deede of charitie to helpe the miserable yong men whose tender youth [60 consumeth with the furious flames of loue. But, be you sure, if I had thought you would haue passed to the termes you nowe stand in, pitie nor pencion, peny nor pater-noster,¹ shoulde euer haue made Nurse [65 once to open hir mouth in the cause.

POLY. No? Of honestie, I pray you, who first brought him into my chamber? Who first taught him the way to my bed, but you? Fie, Nourse, fie! Neuer [70 speake of it for shame! You will make me tell a wise tale anone.

BAL. And haue I these thanks for my good wil? Why then, I see wel I shall be counted the cause of all mishappe. [75

POLY. Nay, rather the author of my good happe, gentle Nourse. For I would thou knewest I loue not Dulipo, nor any of so meane estate, but haue bestowed my loue more worthily than thou deemest. [80 But I will say no more at this time.

BAL. Then I am glad you haue changed your minde yet.

POLY. Nay, I neither haue changed, nor wil change it. 85

BAL. Then I vnderstande you not. How sayde you?

POLY. Mary, I say that I loue not Dulipo, nor any suche as he; and yet I neither haue changed, nor wil change, my minde. 91

BAL. I can not tell. You loue to lye with Dulipo very well. This geare is Greeke to me: either it hangs not well together, or I am very dull of vnderstanding. Speake plaine, I pray you. 96

POLY. I can speake no plainer; I haue sworne to the contrary.

BAL. Howe! Make you so deintie to tell it Nourse, least she shoulde reueale [100

it? You haue trusted me as farre as may be (I may shewe to you) in things that touche your honor if they were knowne, and make you strange to tell me this? I am sure it is but a trifle in comparison of those things wherof heretofore you haue made me priuie. 107

POLY. Well, it is of greater importance than you thinke, Nourse; yet would I tell it you — vnder condition and promise [110 that you shall not tell it agayne, nor giue any signe or token to be suspected that you know it.

BAL. I promise you, of my honestie. Say on. 115

POLY. Well, heare you me then. This yong man whome you haue always taken for Dulipo is a noble-borne Sicilian, his right name Erostrato, sonne to Philogano, one of the worthiest men in that [120 countrey.

BAL. How! Erostrato? Is it not our neighbour, whiche —?

POLY. Holde thy talking nourse, and harken to me that I may explaine the [125 whole case vnto thee. The man whome to this day you haue supposed to be Dulipo is, as I say, Erostrato, a gentleman that came from Sicilia to studie in this citie; and euen at his first arriuell met me in [130 the street, fel enamored of me; and of suche vehement force were the passions he suffered, that immediatly he cast aside both long gowne and bookes, and determined on me only to apply his study. And to [135 the end he might the more commodiously bothe see me and talke with me, he exchanged both name, habite, clothes, and credite with his seruant Dulipo (whom only he brought with him out of [140 Sicilia); and so, with the turning of a hand, of Erostrato, a gentleman, he became Dulipo, a seruing man; and soone after sought seruice of my father, and obeynted it. 145

BAL. Are you sure of this?

POLY. Yea, out of doubt. On the other side Dulippo tooke vpon him the name of Erostrato his maister, the habite, the credite, bookes, and all things needefull to [150 a studente; and in shorte space profited very muche, and is nowe esteemed as you see.

BAL. Are there no other Sicilylians heere, nor none that passe this way, which may discover them? 155

POLY. Very fewe that passe this way, and fewe or none that tarrie heere any time.

BAL. This hath been a straunge [159 aduventure! But, I pray you, howe hang these things together — that the studente, whom you say to be the seruant and not the maister, is become an earnest suter to you, and requireth you of your father [164 in mariage?

POLY. That is a pollicie deuised betwene them to put Doctor Dotipole¹ out of conceite — the olde dotarde! — he that so instantly dothe lye vpon² my [169 father for me. But looke where he comes — as God helpe me it is he. Out vpon him! What a luskie³ yonker⁴ is this! Yet I had rather be a noonne a thousande times than be combred with suche a coy- [174 strell.⁵

BAL. Daughter, you haue reason. But let vs go in before he come any neerer.

Polynesta goeth in, and Balya stayeth a little while after, speaking a worde or two to the Doctor, and then departeth.

[ACTUS I]

SCENA II

[Enter Cleander, [the] Doctor, [attended by] Pasiphilo, [a] Parasite. Balya, [the,] Nourse, [stands apart overhearing].

[CLEANDER.] Were these dames heere, or did mine eyes dazil?

PASIPH. Nay, syr, heere were Polynesta and hir nourse.

CLEAN. Was my Polynesta heere? [5 Alas, I knewe hir not!

BAL. He muste haue better eyesight that shoulde marry your Polynesta — or else he may chaunce to ouerseer the best poynt in his tables⁶ sometimes. 10

[Exit Balia.]

PASIPH. Syr, it is no maruell; the ayre is very mistie too-day. I my selfe knew hir better by hir apparell than by hir face.

CLEAN. In good fayth, and I thanke God, I haue mine eye sighte goode and [15 perfit, — little worse than when I was but twentie yeres olde.

PASIPH. How can it be otherwise? you are but yong.

CLEAN. I am fiftie yeres olde. 20

PASIPH. [aside]. He telles¹ ten lesse than he is.

CLEAN. What sayst thou of ten lesse?

PASIPH. I say I woulde haue thoughte you tenne lesse; you looke like one of [25 sixe and thirtie, or seuen and thirtie at the moste.

CLEAN. I am no lesse than I tell.

PASIPH. You are like inough too liue fiftie more. Shewe me your hande. 30

CLEAN. Why, is Pasiphilo a chiro-mancer?²

PASIPH. What is not Pasiphilo? I pray you, shewe mee it a little.

CLEAN. Here it is. 35

[Holds out his palm.]

PASIPH. O how straight and infracte³ is this line of life! You will liue to the yeres of Melchisedech.

CLEAN. Thou wouldest say Methusalem. 40

PASIPH. Why, is it not all one?

CLEAN. I perceiue you are no very good Bibler, Pasiphilo.

PASIPH. Yes sir, an excellent good bib-beler, specially in a bottle. Oh what a [45 mounthe of Venus here is! But this lighte serueth not very well. I will beholde it an other day, when the ayre is clearer, and tell you somewhat, peradventure to your contentation. 50

CLEAN. You shal do me great pleasure. But tell me, I pray thee, Pasiphilo, whome doste thou thinke Polynesta liketh better, Erostrato or me?

PASIPH. Why you, out of doubt! [55 She is a gentlewoman of a noble minde, and maketh greater accompte of the reputation she shall haue in marrying your worship, than that poore scholer, whose birthe and parentage God knoweth, and very fewe [60 else.

CLEAN. Yet he taketh it vpon him brauely ¹ in this country.

PASIPH. Yea, where no man knoweth the contrarie. But let him braue it, bost [65 his birth, and do what he can, the vertue and knowledge that is within this body of yours is worth more than all the country he came from. 69

CLEAN. It becommeth not a man to praise him selfe; but, indeede, I may say, and say truely, that my knowledge hath stode me in better steade at a pinche than coulde all the goodes in the worlde. I came out of Otranto when the Turkes [75 wonne it, and first I came to Padua, after hither, where by reading,² counsailing, and pleading, within twentie yeares I haue gathered and gayned as good as ten thousande ducats. 80

PASIPH. Yea, mary, this is the righte knowledge! Philosophie, Poetrie, Logike, and all the rest, are but pickling ³ sciences in comparison to this.

CLEAN. But pyckling in-deede; [85 whereof we haue a verse:

*The trade of lawe doth fill the boystrous ⁴ bagges;
They swimme in silke, when others royst ⁵ in ragges.*

PASIPH. O excellent verse! Who made it? Virgil? 90

CLEAN. Virgil? Tushe, it is written in one of our gloses.⁶

PASIPH. Sure, who-soeuer wrote it, the morall is excellent, and worthy to be written in letters of golde. But too the [95 purpose: I thinke you shall neuer recouer the wealth that you loste at Otranto.

CLEAN. I thinke I haue duded it, or rather made it foure times as muche! But, in-deed, I lost mine only sonne there, a [100 childe of fiewe yeres old.

PASIPH. O great pitie!

CLEAN. Yea, I had rather haue lost al the goods in the world.

PASIPH. Alas! alas! by God! And [105

grafts of suche a stocke are very gayson ¹ in these dayes.

CLEAN. I know not whether he were slayne, or the Turkes toke him and kept him as a bond slaue. 110

PASIPH. Alas, I could weepe for compassion! But there is no remedy but patience. You shall get many by this yong damsell, with the grace of God.

CLEAN. Yea, if I get hir. 115

PASIPH. Get hir? Why doubt you of that?

CLEAN. Why? Hir father holds me off with delayes, so that I must needes doubt.

PASIPH. Content your selfe, sir: he [121 is a wise man, and desirous to place his daughter well; he will not be too rashe in hys determination; he will thinke well of the matter. And lette him thinke! for the longer he thinketh, the more good of [126 you shall he thinke. Whose welth? whose vertue? whose skill? or whose estimation can he compare to yours in this citie?

CLEAN. And hast thou not tolde him that I would make his daughter a dower of two thousand ducates? 132

PASIPH. Why, euen now I came but from thence since.

CLEAN. What said he?

PASIPH. Nothing, but that Eros- [136 trato had profered the like.

CLEAN. Erotrato? How can he make any dowcr, and his father yet aliué?

PASIPH. Thinke you I did not tell him so? Yes, I warrant you, I forgot [141 nothing that may funder your cause. And doubtte you not, Erotrato shal neuer haue hir — vnlesse it be in a dreame.

CLEAN. Well, gentle Pasiphilo, go thy wayes and tell Damon I require noth- [146 ing but his daughter; I wil none of his goods; I shal enrich hir of mine owne; and if this dower of two thousand ducates seem not sufficient, I wil make it fiewe hundredreth more, yea a thousand, or what [151 so euer he will demaund, rather then faile. Go to Pasiphilo! Shew thy selfe frendly in working this feate for me; spare for no cost! Since I haue gone thus farre, I wilbe loth to be out bidden. Go. 156

[ACTUS I]

SCENA III

Pasiphilo [remains]. Dulipo [enters later].

[PASIPH.] O miserable, couetous wretche! He findeth an excuse by S. Nicola's fast, because I should not dine with him — as though I should dine at his owne dishe! He maketh goodly feasts, I [5 promise you! It is no wonder though hee thinke me bounde vnto him for my fare; for, ouer and besides that his prouision is as skant as may be, yet there is great difference betweene his diet and mine: I [10 neuer so much as sippe of the wine that he tasteth; I feede at the bordes ende with browne bread — marie, I reach always to his owne dishe, for there are no more but that only on the table. Yet he thinks [15 that for one such dinner I am bound to do him al the seruice that I can, and thinks me sufficiently rewarded for all my trauell with one suche festiuall promotion! And yet, peradventure, some men thinke I [20 haue great gaines vnder him; but I may say, and sweare, that this dosen yeere I haue not gayned so muche in value as the points¹ at my hose (whiche are but three, with codpeece poynt and al). He [25 thinks that I may feede vpon his fauour and faire wordes; but if I could not otherwise prouide for one, Pasiphilo were in a wyse case. Pasiphilo hath mo pastures to passe in than one, I warrant you! I [30 am of housholde with this scholer Eros-trato (his riuale), as well as with Domine Cleander: nowe with the one, and then with the other, according as I see their caters² prouide good cheere at the [35 market; and I finde the meanes so to handle the matter that I am welcome too bothe. If the one see me talke with the other, I make him beleue it is to harken newes in the furtherance of his cause; [40 and thus I become a broker on bothe sides. Well, lette them bothe apply the matter as well as they can; for, in-deede, I will trauell³ for none of them bothe, yet will I seeme to worke wonders on eche hande. [45 But is not this one of Damons seruants that commeth foorth? It is. Of him I shall vnderstand where his master is. Whither goeth this ioily gallant?

¹ Which is absolute and eternal.

² Deficient (probably with a pun).

[Enter Dulipo from Damon's house.]

DUL. I come to seeke some body [50 that may accompany my master at dinner; he is alone, and woulde fayne haue good company.

PASIPH. Seeke no further! You coulde neuer haue found one better than me. 55

³ Labor.

DUL. I haue no commission to bring so many.

PASIPH. How, many? I will come alone.

DUL. How canst thou come alone [60 that hast continually a legion of rauening volues within thee?

PASIPH. Thou doest (as seruants commonly doe) hate al that loue to visite their maisters. 65

DUL. And why?

PASIPH. Because they haue too many teeth, as you thinke.

DUL. Nay, bicause they haue to many tongues. 70

PASIPH. Tongues? I pray you, what did my tongue euer hurt you?

DUL. I speake but merily with you, Pasiphilo. Goe in; my maister is ready to dine. 75

PASIPH. What! dineth he so earely?

DUL. He that riseth early. dineth early.

PASIPH. I would I were his man. Maister Doctor neuer dineth till noone, and how delicately then, God knoweth! I [80 wil be bolde to goe in, for I count my selfe bidden.

DUL. You were best so.

[Pasiphilo enters Damon's house.] ¹

[DUL.] Hard hap had I when I first began this vnfortunate enterprise! For [85 I supposed the readiest medicine to my mirable affects ² had bene to change name, clothes, and credite with my seruant, and to place my selfe in Damons seruice; thinking that, as sheuering colde [90 by glowing fire, thirst by drinke, hunger by pleasant repasts, and a thousande suche like passions finde remedie by their contraries, so my restlesse desire might haue founde quiet by continuall contempla- [95 tion. But, alas! I find that only loue is vnsaciabile: for, as the flie playeth with the flame till at last she is cause of hir owne decay, so the louer that thinketh with kissing and colling ³ to content his vnbrideled [100 appetite, is commonly seene the only cause of his owne consumption. Two yeeres are nowe past since (vnder the colour ⁴ of Damons seruice) I haue bene a sworne seruant to Cupid — of whom I haue [105 receiued as much fauour and grace as euer man founde in his seruice. I haue free libertie at al times to behold my desired, to talke with hir, to embrace hir, yea (be it spoken in secrete) to lie with hir. I [110 reape the fruites of my desire; yet, as my ioyes abounde, euen so my paines encrease. I fare like the couetous man, that hauing all the world at will is neuer yet content: the more I haue, the more I desire. [115 Alas! what wretched estate haue I brought my selfe vnto, if in the ende of all my farre fetches she be giuen by hir father to this olde doting doctor, this buzard, this bribing villaine, that by so many meanes seek- [120 eth to obtain hir at hir fathers hands! I know she loueth me best of all others. But what may that preuaile when perforce she shalbe constrained to marie another? Alas! the pleasant tast of my sugred ioyes [125 doth yet remaine so perfect in my remembrance, that the least soppe of sorow seemeth more soure than gal in my mouth. If I had neuer knowen delight, with better contentation might I haue passed these [130 dreadful dolours. And if this olde mumpsimus ¹ (whom the poekes consume!) should win hir, then may I say, "Farewell the pleasant talke, the kind embracings, yea, farewell the sight of my Poly- [135 nesta!" For he, like a ielouse wretch, will pen hir vp, that I thinke the birdes of the aire shall not winne the sighte of hir. I hoped to haue caste a blocke in his waie by the meanes that my seruant (who is [140 supposed to be Erostrato, and with my habite and credite is wel estecmed) should proffer himself a suter — at the least to counteruaile the doctors proffers. But my maister, knowing the wealth of the [145 one and doubting the state ² of the other, is determined to be fed no longer with faire wordes, but to accept the doctor (whom he right well knoweth) for his sonne-in-law. Wel, my seruant promised me yester- [150 day to deuise yet againe some newe conspiracie to driue Maister Doctor out of conceite, and to laye a snare that the foxe himselfe might be caughte in! What it is, I knowe not, nor I saw him not since he [155

maye yet prolong my life for this once.
But here commeth his lackie. Ho, Iack pack! where is Erostrato? 160

Here must Crapine be comming in with a basket, and a sticke in his hand.

[ACTUS I]

SCENA IIIJ

[Enter] Crapino, the Lackie, [to] Dulipo.

[CRAPINO.] Erostrato? mary, he is in his skinne.

DUL. Ah, hoerson boy! I say, howe shall I finde Erostrato?

CRA. Finde him? howe meane you — by the weeke ¹ or by the yeere? 6

DUL. You cracke-halter! ² if I catche you by the eares I shall make you answere me directly.

CRA. In-deede? 10

DUL. Tarry me a little.

CRA. In faith, sir, I haue no leisure.

DUL. Shall we trie who can runne fastest?

CRA. Your legges be longer than [15 mine; you should haue giuen me the aduantage.

DUL. Go to! Tell me where is Eros-trato?

CRA. I left him in the streete, [20 where he gaue me this casket (this basket I would haue sayde), and bad me beare it to Dalio, and returne to him at the Dukes Palace.

DUL. If thou see him, tell him I [25 must needes speake with him immediatly; or, abide awhyle; I will go seeke him my selfe, rather than be suspected by going to his house.

ACTUS IJ

SCENA J

[Enter] Dulipo [seeking] Erostrato.

[DULIPO.] I thinke if I had as many eyes as Argus I coulde not haue sought a man more narrowly in euery streete and euery by-lane! There are not many gentlemen, scholers, nor marchauntes in the [5
citie of Ferara but I haue mette with them, excepte him. Peraduenture hee is come home an other way. But looke where he commeth at the last.

[Enter Erostrato.]

EROST. In good time haue I spied [10
my good maister!

DUL. For the loue of God call me
"Dulipo," not "master." Maintayne the credite that thou haste hitherto kepte, and let me alone. 15

EROST. Yet, sir, let me sometimes do my duetie vnto you, especially where no body heareth.

DUL. Yea, but so long the parat vseth to crie knappe ¹ in sporte, that at the last [20 she calleth hir maister knaue in earnest; so long you will vse to call me master, that at the last we shall be heard. What newes?

EROST. Good!

DUL. In-deede? 25

EROST. Yea, excellent. We haue as good as won the wager!

DUL. Oh, how happie were I if this were true! 29

EROST. Heare you me. Yesternight in the euening I walked out, and founde Pasi-philus, and with small entreating I had him home to supper; where by suche meanes as I vsed he became my great friend, and [34
tolde me the whole order of our aduersaries determination; yea, and what Damon doth intende to do also; and hath promised me that from time to time, what he can espie he will bring me word of it. 39

DUL. I can not tel whether you know him or no. He is not to trust vnto — a very flattering and a lying knaue.

EROST. I know him very well; he can not deceiue me. And this that he hath [44 told me I know must needes be true.

¹ Rascal.

DUL. And what was it in effect?

EROST. That Damon had purposed to giue his daughter in mariage to this doctor vpon the dower that he hath profered. 49

DUL. Are these your good newes? your excellent newes?

EROST. Stay a while; you will vnderstande me before you heare me.

DUL. Well, say on. 54

EROST. I answered to that, I was ready to make hir the lyke dower.

DUL. Well sayde.

EROST. Abide; you heare not the worst yet. 59

DUL. O God, is there any worsse behinde?

EROST. Worsse? why what assurance coulde you suppose that I might make without some speciall consent from Philogano, my father? 65

DUL. Nay, you can tell; you are better scholer than I.

EROST. In-deede, you haue lost your time; for the books that you tosse now a dayes treat of smal science! 70

DUL. Leaua thy iesting, and proceede.

EROST. I sayd further, that I receyued letters lately from my father, whereby I vnderstode that he would be heere [74 very shortly to performe all that I had profered; therefore I required him to request Damon, on my behalf, that he would stay his promise to the doctor for a fourtnight or more. 79

DUL. This is somewhat yet; for by this meanes I shal be sure to linger and liue in hope one fourtnight longer. But, at the fourtnights ende when Philogano cometh not, how shall I then do? Yea, [84 and though he came, howe may I any way hope of his consent, when he shall see that to follow this amorous enterprise I haue set aside all studie, all remembrance of my duetie, and all dread of shame. Alas, alas, I may go hang my selfe! 90

EROST. Comforte your selfe, man; and trust in me. There is a salue for euery sore, and doubt you not, to this mischeefe we shall finde a remedie. 94

DUL. O, friend, reuiue me, that hitherto, since I first attempted this matter, haue bene continually dying.

EROST. Well, harken a while then. This morning I tooke my horse and [99 rode into the fieldes to solace my self; and, as I passed the foorde beyonde S. Anthonies gate, I met at the foote of the hill a gentleman riding with two or three men; and, as me thought by his habite and his [104 lookes, he should be none of the wisest. He saluted me, and I him. I asked him from whence he came, and whither he would. He answered that he had come from Venice, then from Padua, nowe [109 was going to Ferrara, and so to his countrey, whiche is Scienna. As soone as I knewe him to be a Scenese,¹ sodenly lifting vp mine eyes (as it were with an admiration), I sayd vnto him, "Are you a [114 Scenese, and come to Ferrara?" "Why not?" sayde he. Quoth I (halfe and more with a trembling voyce), "Know you the daunger that should ensue if you be knowne in Ferrara to be a Scenese?" [119 He, more than halfe amased, desired me earnestly to tell him what I ment.

DUL. I vnderstande not wherto this tendeth.

EROST. I beleuee you. But harken to me. 125

DUL. Go too, then.

EROST. I answered him in this sorte: "Gentleman, bycause I haue heretofore founde very curteous entertaynement [129 in your countrey, beeing a student there, I accompt my self, as it were, bounde to a Scenese; and therefore if I knewe of any mishappe towards any of that countrey, God forbid but I should disclose it. [134 And I maruell that you knewe not of the iniurie that your countreyemen offered this other day to the Embassadors of Counte Hercules."

DUL. What tales he telleth me! What appertayne these to me? 140

EROST. If you will harken a while, you shall finde them no tales, but that they appertayne to you more than you thinke for. 144

DUL. Foorth.

EROST. I tolde him further, these Ambassadors of Counte Hercules had dyuers mules, waggens, and charettes,² laden with ¹ Sienese.

² Carts.

diuers costly iewels, gorgeous furni- [149 ture, and other things, which they caried as presents (passing that way) to the king of Naples; the which were not only stayd in Sciene by the officers whom you cal customers, but serched, ransacked, [154 tossed, and turned, and, in the end, exacted for tribute, as if they had bene the goods of a meane marchaunt.

DUL. Whither the diuell wil he! Is it possible that this geare appertaine any [159 thing to my cause? I finde neither head nor foote in it.

EROST. O how impacient you are! I pray you, stay a while.

DUL. Go to yet a while, then. 164

EROST. I proceeded, that vpon these causes the Duke sent his Chauncelor to declare the case vnto the Senate there, of whome he had the moste vncurteous an-swere that euer was heard; whervpon [169
he was so enraged with all of that countrey, that for reuenge he had sworne to spoyle as many of them as euer should come to Ferara, and to sende them home in their dublet and their hose. 174

DUL. And, I pray thee, how couldest thou vpon the sudden deuise or imagine suche a lye? and to what purpose?

EROST. You shall heare by and by a thing as fitte for our purpose as any could haue happened. 180

DUL. I would fayne heare you conclude.

EROST. You would fayne leape ouer the stile before you come at the hedge. I woulde you had heard me, and scene the gestures that I enforced to make him [185 beleuee this!

DUL. I beleuee you; for I knowe you can counterfet wel. 188

EROST. Further, I sayde, the Duke had charged vpon great penalties that the in-holders and vitlers shoulde bring worde dayly of as many Sceneses as came to their houses. The gentleman, beeing (as I [193 gessed at the first) a man of smal sapientia, when he heard these newes, would haue turned his horse an other way.

DUL. By likelyhoode he was not very wise when hee would beleuee that of [198 his countrey, which, if it had bene true, euery man must needs haue knowen it.

EROST. Why not — when he had not bene in his countrey for a moneth paste, and I tolde him this had hapned within these seuen dayes? 204

DUL. Belike he was of small experience.

EROST. I thinke of as litle as may be.
But beste of all for our purpose, and good aduenture it was, that I mette with such an
one. Now harken, I pray you. 209

DUL. Make an ende, I pray thee.

EROST. He, as I say, when he had these words, would haue turned the bridle;
and I, fayning a countenance as [213
though I were somewhat pensieue and care-full for him, paused a while, and after,
with a great sighe, saide to him: "Gentleman, for the curtesie that (as I said) I haue found in your countrey, and bicause your [218 affaires shall be the better dispatched, I will finde the meanes to lodge you in my house, and you shal say to euery man that you are a Sicilian of Cathanea, your name Philogano, father to me — that am in- [223 deede of that countrey and citie — called here Erostrato. And I, to pleasure you, will, during your abode here, do you reuerence as you were my father." 227

DUL. Out vpon me! what a grosse hed-ded foole am I! Now I perceiue wherto this tale tendeth.

EROST. Well, and how like you of it?

DUL. Indifferently.¹ But one thing I doubt. 233

EROST. What is that?

DUL. Marie, that when he hath bene here two or three dayes, he shal heare of euery man that there is no such thing betwene the Duke and the towne of Sciene.

EROST. As for that let me alone. [240
I doe entertaine and will entertaine him so well, that within these two or three daies I will disclose vnto him all the whole matter, and doubte not but to bring him in for [244 performance of as muche as I haue promised to Damon. For what hurte can it be to him, when he shall binde a strange name and not his owne? 248

DUL. What! thinke you he will be entreated to stande bounde for a dower of two thousand ducates by the yeere?

EROST. Yea, why not — if it were ten thousande — as long as he is not in-deede the man that is bound? 254

DUL. Well, if it be so, what shall we be the neerer to our purpose?

EROST. Why, when we haue done as muche as we can, how can we doe any more? 259

DUL. And where haue you left him?

EROST. At the inne, bicause of his horses. He and his men shall lie in my house.

DUL. Why brought you him not with you? 265

EROST. I thought better to vse your aduise first.

DUL. Well, goe take him home; make him all the cheere you can; spare for no cost; I will alowe it. 270

EROST. Content. Looke where he commeth.

DUL. Is this he? Goe meete him. By my trouthe, he lookes euen lyke a [274 good soule! He that fisheth for him mighte bee sure to catche a cods heade! I will rest here a while to discipher him.

Erostrato espieth the Scenese and goeth towards him: Dulipo standeth aside.

[ACTUS II]

SCENA IJ

[Enter] The Scenese [attended by] Paquetto and Petrocio, his seruants. Erostrato [and Dulipo stand aside].

[SCENESE.] He that trauaileth in this worlde passeth by many perilles.

PAQ. You saye true, sir. If the boate had bene a little more laden this morning at the ferrie wee had bene all drowned; [5 for, I thinke, there are none of vs that could haue swomme.

SCEN. I speake not of that.

PAQ. O, you meane the foule waye that we had since wee came from this Padua. [10 I promise you, I was afraide twice or thrice that your mule would haue lien fast in the mire.

SCEN. Jesu, what a blockehead thou art! I speake of the perill we are in presently since we came into this citie. 16

PAQ. A great peril, I promise you! — that we were no sooner ariued but you founde a frende that brought you from the inne and lodged you in his owne house. 20

SCEN. Yea, marie, God rewarde the gentle yong man that we mette; for else we had bene in a wise case by this time. But haue done with these tales. And take you heede, and you also, sirra, take [25 heede that none of you saie we be Scenese; and remember that you call me Philogano of Cathanea.

PAQ. Sure, I shal neuer remember these outlandish words! I could well remember Haecanea.¹ 31

SCEN. I say, Cathanea, and not Haecanea, with a vengeance!

PAQ. Let another name it, then, when neede is, for I shall neuer remember it. 35

SCEN. Then holde thy peace; and take heede thou name not Scene.²

PAQ. Howe say you if I faine my selfe dum, as I did once in the house of Crisobolus? 40

SCEN. Doe, as thou thinkest best. [Erostrato advances.] But looke where commeth the gentleman whom we are so much bounde vnto.

EROST. Welcome, my deare father Philogano. 46

SCEN. Gramercie, my good sonne Erostrato.

EROST. That is well saide. Be mindefull of your tounge, for these Ferareses be as craftie as the deuill of hell. 51

SCEN. No, no; be you sure we will doe as you haue bidden vs!

EROST. For if you should name Scene they would spoile you immediatly, and [55 turne you out of the towne with more shame than I woulde shoulde befall you for a thousande crownes.

SCEN. I warrant you, I was giuing them warning as I came to you; and I doubt not but they will take good heede. 61

EROST. Yea, and trust not the seruantes of my housholde to far, for they are Ferareses all, and neuer knew my father, nor came neuer in Sicilia. This is my [65 house. Will it please you to goe in? I will fellow.

They goe in. Dulippo tarieth, and espieth the Doctor comming in with his man.

[ACTUS II]

SCENA III

Dulippo alone.

[DULIPPO.] This geare hath had no euill beginning, if it continue so and fall to hap- pie ende. But is not this the silly Doctor with the side bonet — the doting foole — that dare presume to become a suter to [5 such a peerlesse paragone? O how coue- tousnesse doth blind the common sort of men! Damon, more desirous of the dower than mindfull of his gentle and gallant daughter, hath determined to make [10 him his sonne-in-law, who for his age may be his father-in-law; and hath greater respect to the abundance of goods than to his owne naturall childe. He beareth well in minde to fill his owne purse, but he litle [15 remembreth that his daughters purse shalbe continually emptie — vnlesse Maister Doctour fill it with double ducke egges.¹ Alas, I iest, and haue no ioy! I will stand here aside and laugh a litle at this lob- cocke. 21

Dulippo espieth the Doctor and his man comming.

[ACTUS II]

SCENA IIII

[Enter Carion, the doctors man, [attending his master] Cleander. Dulippo [stands aside].

[CARION.] Maister, what the diuel meane you to go seeke guesstes at this time of the day? The maiors officers haue dined ere this time, which are alway the last in the market. 5

CLEAN. I come to seeke Pasiphilo, to the ende he may dine with mee.

CAR. As though sixe mouthes, and the cat for the seuenth, bee not sufficient to eate an harlotrie shotterell,¹ a pennie- [10 worth of cheese, and halfe a score spurl- ings!² This is all the dainties you haue dressed for you and your familie.

CLEAN. Ah, greedie gut, art thou afearde thou shalt want? 15

CAR. I am afearde in-deede! It is not the first time I haue founde it so.

DUL. [aside]. Shall I make some sporte with this gallant? What shall I say to him? 20

CLEAN. Thou arte afearde, belike, that he will eate thee and the rest.

CAR. Nay, rather that he will eate your mule, both heare and hyde.

CLEAN. Heare and hyde? and why not flesh and all? 26

CAR. Bicause she hath none. If she had any flesh, I thinke you had eaten hir your selfe by this time.

CLEAN. She may thanke you then, for your good attendance. 31

CAR. Nay she may thanke you for your small allowance.

DUL. [aside]. In faith, now, let me alone. 35

CLEAN. Holde thy peace, drunken knaue; and espie me Pasiphilo.

DUL. [aside]. Since I can doe no better, I will set such a stance³ betweene him and Pasiphilo that all this towne shall not make them friendes. 41

CAR. Could you not haue sent to seeke him, but you must come your selfe? Surely you come for some other purpose; for if you would haue had Pasiphilo to [45 dinner, I warant you he would haue taried here an houre since.

CLEAN. Holde thy peace. Here is one of DAMONS seruauents; of him I shall vnderstand where he is. Good fellow, art not thou one of Damons seruauents? 51

DUL. Yes sir, at your knamandement.⁴

CLEAN. Gramercie. Tell me, then, hath Pasiphilo bene there this day or no?

DUL. Yes sir, and I thinke he be there still. Ah, ah, ah! 57

CLEAN. What laughest thou?

¹ Pun on "duckets," and also with a further and coarse meaning.

² Smelts.

³ Distance.

⁴ So all the editions; command.

DUL. At a thing — that euery man may not laugh at.

CLEAN. What? 61

DUL. Talke that Pasiphilo had with my master this day.

CLEAN. What talke, I pray thee?

DUL. I may not tell it.

CLEAN. Doth it concerne me? 66

DUL. Nay, I will say nothing.

CLEAN. Tell me.

DUL. I can say no more.

CLEAN. I woulde but knowe if it concerne mee. I pray thee tell mee. 71

DUL. I would tell you, if I were sure you would not tell it againe.

CLEAN. Beleue me, I will kepe it close. Carion, giue vs leaue a litle; goe aside.

[Carion stands aside.]

DUL. If my maister shoulde know [76 that it came by me, I were better die a thousand deaths!

CLEAN. He shall neuer know it. Say on.

DUL. Yea, but what assurance shall I haue? 82

CLEAN. I lay thee my faith and honestie in paune.

DUL. A pretie paune! The fulkers¹ will not lend you a farthing on it. 86

CLEAN. Yea, but amongst honest men it is more worth than golde.

DUL. Yea, marie sir, but where be they? But will you needes haue me tell it vnto you? 91

CLEAN. Yea, I pray thee, if it any thing appertaine to me.

DUL. Yes, it is of you. And I would gladly tell it you, bicause I would not haue suche a man of worship so scorned by a villaine ribaulde. 97

CLEAN. I pray thee tell me then.

DUL. I will tell you, so that you will swear neuer to tell it to Pasiphilo, to my maister, nor to any other bodie. 101

CAR. [aside]. Surely it is some toy^e 2 deuided to get some money of him.

CLEAN. I thinke I haue a booke here.

CAR. [aside]. If he knew him as well as I, he woulde neuer goe aboute it, for he [106 may as soone get one of his teeth from his iawes with a paire of pinchers as a pennie out of his purse with such a conceite.

CLEAN. Here is a letter wil serue the turne. I swear to thee by the contents hereof neuer to disclose it to any man. 112

DUL. I will tell you, I am sorie to see how Pasiphilo doth abuse you, perswading you that alwayes he laboureth for you, where, in-deede, he lieth on¹ my [116 maister continually, as it were with tooth and naile, for a straunger, a scholer, borne in Sicilia; they call him Roscus, or Arskisse — he hathe a madde name, I can neuer hit vpon it. 121

CLEAN. And thou recknest it as madly; is it not Erostrato?

DUL. That same. I should neuer haue remembered it! And the villaine speaketh al the euill of you that can be deuised. 126

CLEAN. To whom?

DUL. To my maister; yea, and to Poly-nesta hirselse sometimes.

CLEAN. Is it possible? Ah slaue! And what saith he? 131

DUL. More euill than I can imagine. That you are the miserablest and most nigardly man that euer was —

CLEAN. Sayeth Pasiphilo so by me? 135

DUL. And that as often as he commeth to your house he is like to die for hunger, you fare so well.

CLEAN. That the deuill take him else!

DUL. And that you are the testiest man, and moste diuers to please, in [141 the whole worlde, so that he cannot please you vnlesse he should euen kill himselfe with continuall paine.

CLEAN. O deuilish tong!

DUL. Furthermore, that you [146 cough continually and spit, so that a dogge cannot abide it.

CLEAN. I neuer spitte nor coughe more than thus, vho, vho; and that but since I caughte this murre.² But who is free from it? 152

DUL. You saye true, sir. Yet further he sayth, your arme holes stincke, your feete worse than they, and your breathe worst of all. 156

CLEAN. If I quite him not for this geare!

¹ Usurers.

² Trick.

² Catarrh.

DUL. And that you are bursten in the cods.

CLEAN. O villaine! He lieth! [161 And if I were not in the streete thou shouldest see them.

DUL. And he saith that you desire this yong gentlewoman as much for other mens pleasure as for your owne. 166

CLEAN. What meaneth he by that?

DUL. Peradventure that by hir beautie you woulde entice many yong men to your house.

CLEAN. Yong men? To what purpose? 172

DUL. Nay, gesse you that.

CLEAN. Is it possible that Pasiphilo speaketh thus of me?

DUL. Yea, and much more. 176

CLEAN. And doth Damon beleuee him?

DUL. Yea, more than you would thinke; in such sort, that long ere this he woulde haue giuen you a flat repulse, but Pasiphilo intreated him to continue you a suter, for his aduantage. 183

CLEAN. How for his aduantage?

DUL. Marie, that during your sute he might still haue some rewarde for his great paines. 187

CLEAN. He shall haue a rope! and yet that is more than he deserueth. I had thought to haue giuen him these hose¹ when I had worne them a little nearer, but he shall haue a &c.² 192

DUL. In good faith, sir, they were but loste on him. Will you any thing else with me sir?

CLEAN. Nay, I haue heard to much of thee already. 197

DUL. Then I will take my leaue of you.

CLEAN. Farewell! But tell me, may I not know thy name?

DUL. Sir, they call me Foule-fall-you.

CLEAN. An ill faouered name, by my trouthe! Arte thou this countreyman? 203

DUL. No sir, I was borne by a castle men cal Scabbe-catch-you. Fare you well sir! [Exit Dulipo.]

CLEAN. Farewell! Oh, God, how [207

haue I bene abused! What a spokesman! what a messenger had I prouided!

CAR. Why, sir, will you tarie for Pasiphilo till we die for hunger?

CLEAN. Trouble me not, that the deuill take you both! 213

CAR. [aside]. These newes, what so euer they be, like him not.

CLEAN. Art thou so hungrie yet? I pray to God thou be neuer satisfied! 217

CAR. By the masse, no more I shal, as long as I am your seruant.

CLEAN. Goe, with mischaunce!

CAR. Yea, and a mischiefe to you, and to al such couetous wretches! [Exeunt.]

FINIS ACTUS 2.

ACTUS III

SCENA J

[Enter] Dalio, the cooke, [and] Crapine the lackie. [Later enter] Erostrato [and] Dulipo.

[DALIO, to Crapine]. By that time we come to the house I truste that of these xx. egges in the basket we shall find but very few whole. But it is a folly to talke to him. What the deuill! wilt thou neuer lay [5 that sticke out of thy hande? He fighteth with the dogges, beateth the beares; at euery thing in the streate he findeth occasion to tarie. If he spie a slipstrin¹ by the waye, such another as himself, a [10 page, a lackie, or a dwarfe, the deuill of hell cannot holde him in chaynes but he will be doing with him. I cannot goe two stepes but I muste looke backe for my yonker. Goe to, halter-sicke!² if you breake one egge I may chance breake &c. 16

CRA. What will you breake? your nose in mine &c?

DAL. Ah, beast!

CRA. If I be a beast, yet I am no horned³ beast. 21

DAL. Is it euen so? Is the winde in that doore? If I were vncloden I would tel you whether I be a horned beast or no.

¹ Breeches.

² Possibly the actor was supposed to fill out the sentence (with something unprintable?).

² Ready for the gallows.

³ Alluding to the horns of the cuckold.

CRA. You are alway laden either with wine or with ale. 26

DAL. Ah, spitefull boy! Shall I suffer him? [Strikes him.]

CRA. Ah, cowardely beast! darest thou strike and say neuer a woorde? 30

DAL. Well, my maister shall know of this geere. Either he shall redresse it, or he shall lose one of vs.

CRA. Tel him the worst thou canst by me. 35

[Enter Erostrato unexpectedly.] ¹

EROST. What noise! what a rule is this!

CRA. Marie sir, he striketh mee because I tell him of his swearing.

DAL. The villaine lieth deadly! He reuiles me because I bid him make hast. 40

EROST. Holla! no more of this. Dalio, doe you make in a readinesse those pigeons, stock doues, and also the breast of veale; and let your vessell be as cleare as glasse against I returne, that I may tell you [45 which I will haue roasted, and which boyled. [Exit Dalio.] Crapine, lay downe that basket, and followe me. Oh that I coulde tell where to finde Pasiphilo! 50

Dulipo is espied by Erostrato.

But looke where he commeth that can tell me of him. 51

DUL. What haue you done with Philogano your father?

EROST. I haue left him within. I would faine speake with Pasiphilo; can you tell me where he is? 56

DUL. He dined this day with my maister, but whether he went from thence I know not. What would you with him?

EROST. I woulde haue him goe tell [61 Damon that Philogano, my father, is come, and ready to make assurance of as much as he wil require. Now shall I teach Maister Doctor a schole point; he trauaileth to none other end but to catche Cornua,² and [66 he shall haue them, for, as old as he is, and as many subtilties as he hath learned in the law, he can not goe beyond me one ace.

¹ The original edition has in the margin: Erostrato & Du. ex improviso. But Dulipo enters later.

² An allusion to the horns of the cuckold.

DUL. O, deere friend, goe thy wayes; seeke Pasiphilo; finde him out; and concludeth somewhat to our contentation. 72

EROST. But where shall I finde him?

DUL. At the feasts, if there be any; or else in the market with the poulters or the fishmongers. 76

EROST. What should he doe with them?

DUL. Mary, he watcheth whose caters bie the best meat. If any bie a fat capon, a good breast of veale, fresh samon, or any suche good dishe, he followeth to the [81 house, and either with some newes, or some stale iest, he will be sure to make himselfe a guest.

EROST. In faith, and I will seeke there for him. 86

DUL. Then muste you needes finde him; and when you haue done I will make you laughe.

EROST. Whereat?

DUL. At certaine sport I made to day with Master Doctor. 92

EROST. And why not now?

DUL. No, it asketh further leysure. I pray thee dispatche, and finde out Pasiphilo that honest man. 96

Dulipo tarieth. Erostrato [followed by Crapino] goeth out.

Dulipo, alone.

[DULIPO.] This amorous cause that hangeth in controuersie betwene Domine Doctor and me may be compared to them that play at primero:¹ of whom some one, peradventure, shall leese a great sum of [5 money before he win one stake, and at last, halfe in anger, shal set vp his rest,² win it, and after that another, another, and another, till at last he draw the most part of the money to his heape, the other, by [10 litle and litle, stil diminishing his rest, til at last he be come as neere the brinke as earst the other was; yet again, peradventure, fortune smiling on him, he shal, as it were by pecece-meale, pull out the guts of his [15 fellows bags, and bring him barer than he himselfe was tofore; and so in play continue stil (fortune fauoring now this way, now that way) til at last the one of them is left with as many crosses ¹ as God hath [20 brethren. O, howe often haue I thoughte my selfe sure of the vpper hande herein! — but I triumphed before the victorie. And then, how ofte againe haue I thoughte the selde loste! Thus haue I beene tossed, [25 nowe ouer, nowe vnder, euen as fortune list to whirle the wheele, neither sure to winne, nor certayne to loose the wager. And this practise that nowe my seruante hath deuised, although hitherto it hath not [30 succeeded amisse, yet can I not count my selfe assured of it; for I feare still that one mischance or other wyll come and turne it topsie turuie. But looke where my mayster commeth. 35

[ACTUS III]

SCENA IIJ

[Enter] Damon [to] Dvliipo. [Later enter] Nevola, and two mo seruants.

[DAMON.] Dvliipo.

DUL. Here sir.

DAM. Go in and bid Neuola and his fellows come hither, that I may tell them what they shall goe about. And go you [5 into my studie; there vpon the shelve you shall find a roule of writings which Iohn of the Deane made to my Father when he solde him the Grange ferme, endored with bothe their names. Bring it hither to me.

DUL. It shall be done, sir. [Exit.] 11

DAM. Go. I wil prepare other maner of writings for you than you are aware of! O fooles, that trust any man but themselves now adaies! Oh spiteful fortune! thou doest me wrong, I thinke, that from the depth of hell pitte thou haste sente mee this seruante to be the subuersion of me and all mine! 19

The seruants come in.

Come hither sirs, and heare what I shall say vnto you. Go into my studie, where you shall finde Dulipo. Step to him all at once, take him, and, with a corde that I haue laide on the table for the nonce, bind him hande and foote, carie him into the [25 dungeon vnder the stayres, make faste the dore, and bring me the key — it hangeth by vpon a pin on the wall. Dispatche, and doe this geare as priuily as you can. And thou, Neuola, come hither to me againe with speede. 31

NEV. Well I shall.

[Exit Nevola and the other servants.]

DAM. Alas, how shall I be reuenged of this extreme despite? If I punishe my seruant according to his diuelishe de- [35 serts, I shall heape further cares vpon mine owne head. For to suche detestable offences no punishment can seeme sufficient but onely death; and in such cases it is not lawful for a man to be his owne caruer. [40 The lawes are ordeyned, and officers appointed to minister iustice for the redresse of wrongs; and if to the potestates ¹ I complayne me, I shall publish mine owne reproche to the worlde. Yea, what [45 should it preuayle me to vse all the punishments that can be deuised? The thing, once done, can not be vndone. My daughter is defloured, and I vtterly dishonested. How can I then wpe that blot off my [50 browe? And on whome shall I seeke reuenge? Alas, alas, I my-selfe haue bene the cause of all these cares, and haue deserved to beare the punishment of all these mishappes! Alas, I should not haue [55 committed my dearest darling in custodie to so carelesse a creature as this olde Nurse! for we see by common prooffe that these olde women be either peeuish, or pitifull; either easily enclined to euill, or [60 quickly corrupted with bribes and rewards. O wife, my good wife (that nowe lyst colde in the graue), now may I well bewayle the wante of thee! and mourning nowe may I bemone that I misse thee! [65 If thou hadst liued, suche was thy gouernement of the least things that thou wouldest prudently haue prouided for the preservation of this pearle. A costly iewell may I well accoempte hir, that hath been my [70 cheefe comforte in youth, and is nowe become the corosue of mine age! O Polynesta, full euill hast thou requited the clemencie of thy carefull father! And yet to excuse thee giltlesse before God, and to [75 condemne thee giltie before the worlde, I can count none other but my wretched selfe the caytife and car'ser of all my cares.

 For of al the dueties that are requisite in humane lyfe, onely obedience is by the [80 parents to be required of the childe: where,
 on the other side, the parents are bound,
 first to beget them, then to bring them fourth, after to nourish them, to preserve them from bodily perils in the cradle, [85 from daunger of soule by godly education, to matche them in consort¹ enclined to vertue, too banish them all ydle and wanton companie, to allow them sufficiente for their sustentation, to cut off exesse — [90 the open gate of sinne, — seldome or neuer to smile on them vnlesse it be to their encouragement in vertue, and, finally, to pro-uide them mariages in time conuenient, lest (neglected of vs) they learne to [95 sette either to much or to litle by themselues. Fiuie years are past since I might haue married hir, when by continuall excuses I haue prolonged it to my owne perdition. Alas, I shoulde haue considered [100
 she is a collop² of my owne flesh. What! shold
 I think to make hir a princesse? Alas, alas, a poore kingdome haue I now caught to en-dowe hir with! It is too true, that of all sorowes this is the head source and [105 chiefe fountaine of all furies: the goods of the world are incertain, the gaines [litle]³ to be reioyced at, and the losse not greatly to be lamented; only the children, cast away, cutteth the parents throate with the [110 knife of inward care. Which knife will kill me surely, I make none other accompte.

Damons seruants come to him againe.

Pasiphilo.

[NEVOLA.] Sir, we haue done as you badde vs; and here is the key.

¹ Society.

² Slice.

³ Added by Bond.

DAM. Well, go then, Neuola, and seeke master Casteling, the iayler; he dwelleth by S. Antonies Gate. Desire him too lend [5 me a paire of the fetters he vseth for his prisoners; and come againe quickly.

NEV. Well, sir.

DAM. Heare you; if he aske what I would do with them, say you can not [10 tell. And tell neither him nor any other what is become of Dulipo.

Damon goeth out.

[NEV.] I warant you, sir. Fye vpon the deuil! it is a thing almost vnpossible for a man nowe a dayes to handle [15 money but the mettal will sticke on his fingers. I maruelled alway at this fellowe of mine, Dulipo, that of the wages he re-ceiued he could maintaine himselfe so brauely apparelled; but nowe I per- [20 ceiuie the cause. He had the disbursing and receipt of all my masters affaires; the keys of the granarie; Dulippo here, Dulippo
 there; in fauoure with my maister, in fau-oure with his daughter — what woulde [25 you more, he was magister factotum. He was as fine as the crusadoe,¹ and wee silly wretches as course as canuas. Wel, behold what it is come to in the ende! He had bin better to haue done lesse. 30

[Pasiphilo suddenly and unexpectedly enters from Damon's house.]²

PASIPH. Thou saist true, Neuola! He hath done to much, in-deed.

NEV. From whence comdest thou, in the deuils name? 34

PASIPH. Out of the same house thou camest from, but not out of the same dore.

NEV. We had thought thou hadst bene gone long since.

PASIPH. When I arose from the table I feste a rumbling in my belly, whiche [40 made me runne to the stable; and there I fell on sleepe vpon the strawe, and haue line there euer since. And thou — whether goest thou?

NEV. My master hath sent me on an errand in great hast. 46

² Original edition has in the margin: Pasi. subito
 & improuiso venit.

PASIPH. Whether, I pray thee?
NEV. Nay, I may not tell. Farewell.

[Exit Nevola down the street.]

PASIPH. As though I neede any further instructions! O God, what newes I [50 heard euen now, as I lay in the stable! O good Erostrato, and pore Cleander, that haue so earnestly strouen for this damsel! Happie is he that can get hir, I promise you! He shall be sure of mo than one [55 at a clap that catcheth hir — eyther Adam or Eue within hir belie. Oh God, how men may be deceiued in a woman! Who wold haue beleued the contrary but that she had bin a virgin? Aske the neigh- [60 bours, and you shall heare very good report of hir; marke hir behaiours, and you would haue iudged hir very maydenly; seldome scene abroade but in place of prayer, and there very deuout; and no gaser at out- [65 warde sightes, no blaser of hir beautie aboue in the windowes, no stale¹ at the doore for the bypassers: you would haue thought hir a holy yong woman. But muche good doe it Domine Doctor! Hee shall be sure [70 to lacke no CORNE² in a deare yere, what-socuer he haue with hir else. I beshrewe me if I let³ the mariage any way. But is not this the old scabbed queane that I heard disclosing all this geere to hir [75 master as I stode in the stable ere nowe? It is shee. Whither goeth, Psiteria?

Pasiphilo espieth Psiteria comming.

[Enter] Psiteria [to] Pasiphilo.

[PSIT.] To a gossip of myne heereby.

PASIPH. What? to tattle of the goodly stirre that thou keptst concerning Polynesta.

PSIT. No, no. But how knew you of that geere? 5

PASIPH. You tolde me.

PSIT. I? When did I tell you?

PASIPH. Euen now when you tolde it to Damon. I both sawe you and heard [9 you, though you saw not me. A good parte, I promise you, to accuse the poore wenche, kill the olde man with care, ouer and besides the daunger you haue brought Dulipo and the Nursse vnto, and many moe! Fie! fie! 15

PSIT. In-deed, I was to blame; but not so much as you think.

PASIPH. And how not so muche? Did I not heare you tell? 19

PSIT. Yes. But I will tell you how it came to passe: I haue knowen for a great while that this Dulipo and Polynesta haue lye together, and all by the meanes of the Nurse; yet I held my peace, and neuer [24 tolde it. Now this other day the Nursse fell on scolding with me, and twyce or thryce called me drunken olde whore, and suche names that it was too badde; and I called hir baude, and tolde hir that I [29 knew well enoughe howe often she had brought Dulipo to Polynestas bed. Yet all this while I thought not that anye body had heard me; but it befell cleane contrarye, for my maister was on the other [34 side of the wall, and heard all our talke. Wherevpon he sent for me, and forced me to confesse all that you heard.

PASIPH. And why wouldest thou tell him? I woulde not for &c. 39

PSIT. Well, if I had thought my maister would haue taken it so, he should rather haue killed me.

PASIPH. Why, how could he take it? 43

PSIT. Alas, it pitieth me to see the poore yong woman, how she weepes, wailes, and teares hir heare, not esteming hir owne life halfe so deare as she doth poore Dulipos; and hir father, he weepes on the other side, that it would pearce an hart of stone with pitie. But I must be gone. 50

PASIPH. Go, that the gunne powder consume thee, olde trotte! 1 estate? What escape or what excuse may I now devise to shifte ouer our subtil supposes? For though to this day I haue [5 vsurped the name of my maister, and that without checke or controll of any man, now shal I be openly discyphred, and that in the sight of euery man; now shal it openly be knownen, whether I be Erostrato the [10 gentleman, or Dulipo the seruaunt. We haue hitherto played our parts in abusing others; but nowe commeth the man that wil not be abused — the right Philogano, the right father of the right Erostrato. [15 Going to seke Pasiphilo, and hearing that he was at the water gate, beholde I espied my fellowe Litio, and by and by my olde maister Philogano setting forth his first step on land. I to fuge,¹ and away [20 hither as fast as I could to bring word to the right Erostrato, of his right father Philogano, that to so sodaine mishap some subtil shift might be vpon the sodaine deuised. But what can be imag- [25 ined to serue the turne, although we had monethes respite to beate oure braines about it, since we are commonly known — at the least supposed — in this towne, he for Dulipo, a slaue and seruaunt to [30 Damon, and I for Erostrato, a gentleman and a student? But beholde, runne, Crapine, to yonder olde woman before she get within the doores, and desire hir to call out Dulipo. But heare you — if she [35 aske who would speake with him, saye thy selfe and none other.

Erostrato espieth Psiteria comming, and sendeth his lackey to hir.

Crapine [goes to] Psiteria. Erostrato, fained, [stands waiting].

[CRAPINE.] Honest woman! you gossip! thou rotten whore! hearest thou not, olde witche?

PSIT. A rope stretche your yong bones! Either you muste liue to be as old as I, or be hanged while you are yong. 6

CRA. I pray thee, loke if Dulipo be within.

¹ Flee.

PSIT. Yes, that he is, I warrant him!
CRA. Desire him, then, to come [10 hither and speake a word with me. He shall not tarie.

PSIT. Content your selfe; he is otherwise occupied.

CRA. Yet tell him so, gentle girl. 15

PSIT. I tell you, he is busie.

CRA. Why, is it such a matter to tell him so, thou crooked crone?

PSIT. A rope stretche you, marie!

CRA. A pockes eate you, marie! 20

PSIT. Thou wilt be hanged, I warrant thee, if thou liue to it.

CRA. And thou wilt be burnt, I warrant thee, if the canker consume thee not.

PSIT. If I come neere you, hempstring, I will teache you to sing sol fa! ¹ 26

CRA. Come on! and if I get a stone I will scare crowes with you.

PSIT. Goe, with a mischief! I thinke thou be some deuill that woulde tempte me. [Exit Psiteria.] 31

EROST. Crapine! Heare you? Come away. Let hir goe, with a vengeance! Why come you not? Alas! loke where my maister Philogano commeth. What [35 shall I doe? Where shall I hide me? He shall not see me in these clothes, nor before I haue spoken with the right Erostrato.

Erostrato espyeth Phylogano comming, and runneth about to hide him.

[ACTUS IV]

SCENA IJ

[Enter] Philogano, Ferrarese the Inne keeper, [and] Litio, a seruaunt [to Philogano].

[PHILO.] Honest man, it is euen so: be you sure there is no loue to be compared like the loue of the parents towards their children. It is not long since I thought that a very waightie matter shoulde not [5 haue made me come out of Sicilia; and yet now I haue taken this tedious toyle and trauaile vpon me, only to see my sonne, and to haue him home with me. 9

FER. By my faith, sir, it hath ben a great trauaile in-dede, and to much for one of your age.

PHILO. Yea, be you sure. I came in companie with certaine gentlemen of my country, who had affaires to dispatche [15 as far as to Ancona, from thence by water too Rauenna, and from Rauenna hither, continually against the tide.

FER. Yea, and I think that you had but homly ¹ lodging by the way. 20

PHILO. The worst that euer man had. But that was nothing to the stirre that the serchers ² kept with me when I came aborde the ship. Jesus, how often they vntrussed my male,³ and ransaked a [25 litle capease ⁴ that I had, tossed and turned al that was within it, serched my bosome, yea my breeches, that I assure you I thought they would haue flayed me to searche betwene the fell ⁵ and the fleshe for fardings.⁶ 31

FER. Sure, I haue heard no lesse, and that the marchants bobbe⁷ them sometimes; but they play the knaues still.

PHILO. Yea, be you well assured; [35 suche an office is the inheritancee of a knaue, and an honest man will not meddle with it.

FER. Wel, this passage shal seme pleasant vnto you when you shall finde your [40 childe in health and well. But, I praye you, sir, why did you not rather send for him into Sicilia than to come your selfe, specially since you had none other businesse? Peradventure you had rather [45 endanger your selfe by this noysome⁸ journey than hazard to drawe him from his studie.

PHILO. Nay, that was not the matter, for I had rather haue him giue ouer his studie altogether and come home. 51

FER. Why, if you minded not to make him learned, to what ende did you send him hither at the first? 54

PHILO. I will tell you. When he was at home he did as most yong men doe — he played many mad pranks, and did many things that liked me not very well; and I, thinking that by that time he had sene the worlde he would learne to know him- [60 selfe better, exhorted him to studie, and put in his election what place he would go to. At the last he came hither. And I thinke he was scarce here so sone as I felt the want of him, in suche sorte as from [65 that day to this I haue passed fewe nightes without teares. I haue written to him very often that he shoulde come home, but continually he refused stil, beseching me to continue his studie, wherein he doubted not (as he said) but to profite greatly. 71

FER. In-dede, he is very much commended of al men, and specially of the best reputed studentes. 74

PHILO. I am glad he hath not lost his time; but I care not greatly for so muche knowledge. I would not be without the sighte of hym againe so long for all the learning in the worlde! I am olde nowe, and if God shoulde call me in his absence, I promise you I thinke it would driue me into disperation. 82

FER. It is commendable in a man to loue his children, but to be so tender ouer them is more womanlike. 85

PHILO. Well, I confesse it is my faulte. And yet I will tell you another cause of my comming hither, more waightie than this. Diuers of my countrey haue bene here since hee came hither, by whome I haue [90 sente vnto him, and some of them haue bene thrice, some foure or fiue times at his house, and yet could neuer speake with him. I feare he applies his studie so that he will not leese the minute of an houre [95 from his booke. What, alas! he might yet talke with his countrymen for a while! He is a yong man, tenderly brought vp, and if he fare thus continually night and day at his booke, it may be enough to driue him into a frenesie. 101

FER. In-dede, enough were as good as a feast. Loe you, sir, here is your sonne Erostratoes house. I will knocke.

PHILO. Yea, I pray you knocke. 105

[He knocks on the door.]

FER. They heare not.

PHILO. Knocke againe.

FER. I thinke they be on slepe.

LIT. If this gate were your grandefathers soule, you coulde not knocke [110

[DALIO.] What deuill of hell is there? I thinke hee will breake the gates in peeces!

LIT. Marie, sir, we had thoughte you had beene on sleepe within, and therefore we thought best to wake you. What doth Erostrato? 6

DAL. He is not within.

PHILO. Open the dore, good fellow, I pray thee.

DAL. If you thinke to lodge here, [10 you are deceiued, I tell you; for here are guesstes enowe already.

PHILO. A good fellow, and much for thy maisters honesty, by our Ladie! And what guesstes, I pray thee? 15

DAL. Here is Philogano, my maisters father, lately come out of Sicilia.

PHILO. Thou speakest truer than thou arte aware of. He will be, by that time thou hast opened the dore. Open, I pray thee hartily. 21

DAL. It is a small matter for me to open the dore; but here is no lodging for you, I tell you plaine; the house is full.

PHILO. Of whome? 25

DAL. I tolde you: here is Philogano, my maisters father, come from Cathanea.

PHILO. And when came he?

DAL. He came three houres since, or more. He alighted at the Aungell, and [30 left his horses there; afterwarde my maister brought him hither.

PHILO. Good fellow, I thinke thou hast good sport to mocke mee. 34

DAL. Nay, I thinke you haue good sporte to make me tary here, as though I haue nothing else to doe. I am matched with an vnruyle mate in the kitchin. I will goe looke to him another while.

PHILO. I thinke he be drunken. 40
FER. Sure he semes so; see you not how redde he is about the gilles?

PHILO. Abide, fellow. What Philogano is it whome thou talkest of?

DAL. An honest gentleman, father to Erostrato, my maister. 46

PHILO. And where is he?

DAL. Here within.

PHILO. May we see him?

DAL. I thinke you may, if you be not blind. 51

PHILO. Go to! Go tel him here is one wold speake with him.

DAL. Mary, that I will willingly doe.

Dalio draweth his hed in at the wyndowe. 1

PHILO. I can not tell what I shoulde say to this geere. Litio, what thinkest thou of it? 57

LIT. I cannot tell you what I shoulde say, sir. The worlde is large and long; there maye be moe Philoganos and moe [60 Erostratos than one, yea and moe Ferraras, moe Sicilias, and moe Cathaneas; peradventure this is not that Ferrara whiche you sent your sonne vnto. 64

PHILO. Peradventure thou arte a foole, and he was another that answered vs euen now. [To the innholder.] But be you sure, honest man, that you mistake not the house? 69

FER. Nay, then God helpe! Thinke you I knowe not Erostratos house? Yes, and himselfe also. I sawe him here no longer since than yesterday. But here commes one that wil tell vs tydings of him. I like his countenance better than the others that answered at the window ere-while. 77

The Scenese [led by Dalio] commeth out.

[Enter the] Scenese [to] Philogano, [Ferarese, and Litio.] Dalio [accompanies the Scenese].

[SCENESE.] Would you speake with me, sir?

1 This is printed at the end of the scene.

PHILO. Yea, sir; I would faine knowe whence you are.

SCEN. Sir, I am a Sicilian, at your commaundement. 6

PHILO. What part of Sicilia?

SCEN. Of Cathanea.

PHILO. What shall I call your name?

SCEN. My name is Philogano. 10

PHILO. What trade doe you occupie?

SCEN. Marchandise.

PHILO. What marchandise brought you hither?

SCEN. None. I came onely to see a [15 sonne that I haue here whom I sawe not these two yeares.

PHILO. What call they your sonne?

SCEN. Erostrato.

PHILO. Is Erostrato your sonne? 20

SCEN. Yea verily.

PHILO. And are you Philogano?

SCEN. The same.

PHILO. And a marchant of Cathanea?

SCEN. What neede I tell you so often?

I will not tell you a lye. 26

PHILO. Yes, you haue told me a false lie! and thou arte a vilaine, and no better!

SCEN. Sir, you offer me great wrong with these iniurious wordes. 31

PHILO. Nay, I will doe more than I haue yet proffered to doe, for I will proue thee a lyer and a knaue to take vpon thee that thou art not. 35

SCEN. Sir, I am Philogano of Cathanea, out of all doubt. If I were not, I would be loth to tell you so.

PHILO. Oh, see the boldnesse of this brute beast! What a brasen face he setteth on it! 41

SCEN. Well, you may beleue me if you liste. What wonder you?

PHILO. I wonder at thy impudencie; for thou, nor nature that framed thee, can euer counterfaite thee to be me, ribauld villaine and lying wretch that thou arte! 47

DAL. Shall I suffer a knaue to abuse my maisters father thus? [Draws his sword.] Hence villaine! Hence, or I will sheath this good fawehion in your [51 paunch! If my maister Erostrato find you prating here on this fashion to his father, I wold not be in your coate for mo conney skins¹ than I gat these twelue monethes. Come you in againe, sir, and let this curre barke here till he burst! 57

Dalio pulleth the Scenese in at the dores.

Philogano, Litio, [and] Ferarese [remain].

[PHILO.] Litio, how likest thou this geere?

LIT. Sir, I like it as euill as may be. But haue you not often heard tell of the falsehood of Ferara? and now may you see, it falleth out accordingly. 6

FER. Friend, you doe not well to slaunder the citie. These man are no Ferrareses, you may know by their tong. 9

LIT. Well, there is neuer a barrell better herring beetweene you both.² But, indeed, your officers are most to blame, that suffer such faultes to escape vnpunished.

FER. What knowe the officers of this? Thinke you they know of euery fault? 15

LIT. Nay, I thinke they will knowe as little as may bee, specially when they haue no gaines by it; but they ought to haue their eares as open to heare of such offences, as the ingates be to receiue guests.

PHILO. Holde thy peace, foole! 21

LIT. By the masse, I am afearde that we shall be proued fooles, both two.

PHILO. Well, what shall we doe?

LIT. I would thinke best we should go seeke Erostrato him selfe. 26

FER. I will waite vpon you willingly; and either at the schooles, or at the conuocations, we shall find him. 29

PHILO. By our Lady, I am wery. I will run no longer about to seeke him. I am sure hither he will come at the last.

LIT. Sure, my mind giues me that we shall find a new Erostrato ere it be long. 34

Fained Erostrato [is approached by] Ferarese. Philogano, Litio, [and] Dalio [remain].

[EROST.] Nowe can I hide me no longer. Alas! what shall I doe? I will set a good face on, to beare out the matter.

FERRA. O Erostrato! Philogano, your father, is come out of Sicilia. 5

EROST. Tell me that I knowe not. I haue bene with him, and seene him alreedy.

FERRA. Is it possible? And it seemeth by him that you know not of his comming.

EROST. Why, haue you spoken with him? When saw you him, I pray you? 11

FERRA. Loke you where he standes. Why go you not too him? Looke you, Philogano; beholde your deare son Erostrato. 14

PHILO. Erostrato? This is not Erostrato. Thys seemeth rather to be Dulipo — and it is Dulipo, in-deede.

LIT. Why, doubtte you of that?

EROST. What saith this honest man? 19

PHILO. Mary, sir, in-deede you are so honorably cladde it is no maruell if you loke bigge.

EROST. To whome speaketh he?

PHILO. What! God helpe! do you not know me? 25

EROST. As farre as I remember, sir, I neuer sawe you before.

PHILO. Harke Litio, here is good geere! this honest man will not know me! 29

EROST. Gentleman, you take your markes amisse.

LIT. Did I not tell you of the falsehood of Ferrara, master? Dulipo hath learned to play the knaue indifferently well since he came hither. 35

PHILO. Peace, I say.

EROST. Friend, my name is not Dulipo. Aske you thoroughout this towne of great and small; they know me. Aske this [39 honest man that is with you, if you wyl not belecue me.

FERRA. In-deede, I neuer knewe him otherwise called than Erostrato; and so they call him, as many as knowe him. 44

LIT. Master, nowe you may see the falsehood of these fellows: this honest man, your hoste, is of counsaile with him, and would face vs down that it is Erostrato. Beware of these mates! 49

FERRA. Friende, thou doest me wrong to suspect me; for sure I neuer hearde hym otherwise called than Erostrato.

EROST. What name could you heare me called by but by my right name? But [54 I am wise enough to stand prating here with this old man! I thinke he be mad.

PHILO. Ah, runnagate! ah, villaine traitour! doest thou vse thy master thus? What hast thou done with my son, [59 villain?

[Enter Dalio and other servants.]

DAL. Doth this dogge barke here still? And will you suffer him, master, thus to reuile you?

EROST. Come in, come in. What wilt thou do with thys pestil? 65

DAL. I will rap the olde cackabed ¹ on the costerd.²

EROST. Away with it. And you, sirra, lay downe these stones. Come in at [69 dore, euery one of you. Beare with him, for his age. I passe not of his euill wordes.

Philogano, Ferarese, [and] Litio [remain].

[PHILO.] Alas, who shall relieue my miserable estate? To whome shall I complaine? since he whome I brought vp of a childe, yea and cherished him as if he had bene mine owne, doth nowe vtterly de- [5 nie to knowe me! And you, whome I toke for an honest man and he that should haue brought me to the sighte of my sonne, are compacte with this false wretch, and woulde face me downe that he is Eros- [10 trato. passion of mine age, to the miserie I am now in, and that I am a stranger desolate of all comforte in this country; or, at the least, you shoulde haue feared the [15 vengeaunce of God, the supreme iudge, whiche knoweth the secrets of all harts, in bearing this false witness with him, whome heauen and earth doe knowe to be Dulipo and not Erostrato. 20

LIT. If there be many such witnesses in this country, men may go about to proue what they wil in controuersies here.

FER. Well, sir, you may iudge of me as it pleaseth you; and how the matter [25 commeth to passe I know not; but, truly, euer since he came first hither I haue known him by the name of Erostrato, the sonne of Philogano a Cathanese. Nowe, whether he be so in-deede, or whether [30 he be Dulipo, as you alledge, let that be proued by them that knewe him before he came hether. But I protest before God that whiche I haue said is neither a matter compact with him, nor any other, but [35 euen as I haue hard him called and reputed of al men.

PHILO. Out and alas! he whom I sent hither with my son to be his seruauant and to giue attendance on him, hath eyther [40 cut his throate, or by some euill meanes made him away, and hath not onely taken his garmentes, his bookes, his money, and that whiche he brought out of Sicilia with him, but vsurpeth his name also, and [45 turneth to his owne commoditie the bills of exchange that I haue alwayes allowed for my sonnes expences. Oh miserabl Philogano! Oh vnhappie old man! Oh eternall God! Is there no iudge, no officer, no [50 higher powers whom I may complaine vnto for redresse of these wrongs?

FER. Yes sir, we haue potestates,¹ we haue iudges, and, aboue al, we haue a most iuste prince. Doubt you not but you shall haue iustice, if your cause be iust. 56

PHILO. Bring me then to the iudges, to the potestates, or to whome you thinke best; for I will disclose a packe of the greatest knauerie, a fardell of the fowlest false-hoode, that euer was heard of! 61

LIT. Sir, he that wil goe to the lawe must be sure of foure things: first, a right and a iust cause; then, a righteous aduocate to pleade; nexte, fauour coram iudice;¹ and, aboue all, a good purse to procure it. 66

FER. I haue not heard that the law hath any respect to fauour; what you meane by it I cannot tell.

PHILO. Haue you no regard to his wordes; he is but a foole. 71

FER. I pray you, sir, let him tell me what is fauour.

LIT. Fauour cal I to haue a friend neere about the iudge, who may so sollicite [75 thy cause, as, if it be right, speedie sentence may ensue without any delayes; if it be not good, then to prolong it, till at the last thine aduersarie, being wearie, shal be glad to compound with thee. 80

FER. Of thus much (although I neuer heard thus muche in this country before) doubt you not, Philogano, I will bring you to an aduocate that shall speede you accordingly. 85

PHILO. Then shall I giue my selfe, as it were, a pray to the lawyers, whose insatiable iawes I am not able to feede although I had here all the goods and landes which I possesse in mine own country; much [90 lesse, being a straunger in this miserie. I know their cautels² of old. At the first time I come they wil so extoll my cause as though it were already won; but within a seuennight or ten daies, if I do not [95 continually feede them, as the crow doth hir brattes, twentie times in an houre, they will begin to waxe colde, and to finde cauils in my cause, saying that at the firste I did not well instructe them; till, at the [100 last, they will not onely drawe the stuffing out of my purse but the marrow out of my bones.

FER. Yea, sir; but this man that I tell you of is halfe a saincte. 105

LIT. And the other halfe a deuill, I hold³ a pennie!

PHILO. Well sayd, Lito. In-deede I haue but smal confidence in their smothe lookes. 110

FER. Well, sir, I thinke this whom I meane is no suche manner of man. But if he were, there is such hatred and euil-wil betwene him and this gentleman (whether he be Erostrato or Dulipo, what-so- [115 euer he be) that I warrant you he will doe whatsoeuer he can do for you, were it but to spite him.

PHILO. Why, what hatred is betwixt them? 120

FER. They are both in loue and suters to one gentlewoman, the daughter of a welthie man in this citie.

PHILO. Why, is the villeine become of such estimation that he dare presume to be a suter to any gentlewoman of a good familie? 127

FER. Yea, sir, out of all doubt.

PHILO. How call you his aduersarie?

FER. Cleander, one of the excellentest doctors in our citie. 131

PHILO. For Gods loue let vs goe to him!

FER. Goe we, then. [Exeunt.]

FINIS ACTUS 4.

ACTUS V

SCENA I

[Enter] Fayned Erostrato.

[EROST.] What a mishappe was this! that before I could meete with Erostrato I haue light euen ful in the lap of Philogano! where I was constrained to denie my name, to denie my master, and to faine that I [5 knew him not, to contend with him, and to reuile him in such sort that hap what hap can, I can neuer hap well in fauour with him againe. Therefore, if I could come to speake with the right Erostrato, I will [10 renounce vnto him both habite and credite, and away as fast as I can trudge into some strange cuntry where I may neuer see Philogano againe. Alas, he that of a litle childe hath brought me vp vnto this [15 day, and nourished me as if I had bene his owne: and, in-deede (to confesse the trouth) I haue no father to trust vnto but him. But looke where Pasiphilo commeth, the fittest man in the world to goe on my message to Erostrato. 21

Erostrato espieth Pasiphilo comming towards him.

[ACTUS V]

SCENA IJ

[Enter] Pasiphilo [to Fayned] Erostrato.

[PASIPH.] Two good newes haue I heard to day alreadie: one, that Erostrato prepared a great feast this night; the other, that he seeketh for me. And I, to ease him of his trauaile, least he shoulde [5 runne vp and downe seeking me, and because no man loueth better than I to haue an erand where good cheere is, come in post-hast euen home to his owne house. And loke where he is. 10

EROST. Pasiphilo, thou muste doe one thing for me, if thou loue me.

PASIPH. If I loue you not, who loues you? Commaunde me.

EROST. Go then a litle there, to Damons house; aske for Dulipo, and tell him — 16

PASIPH. Wot you what? I cannot speake with him. He is in prison.

EROST. In prison! How commeth that to passe? Where is he in prison? 20

PASIPH. In a vile dungeon, there, within his masters house.

EROST. Canst thou tell wherefore?

PASIPH. Be you content to know he is in prison. I haue told you to muche. 25

EROST. If euer you will doe any thing for me, tell me.

PASIPH. I pray you, desire me not. What were you the better if you knew?

EROST. More than thou thinkest, Pasiphilo, by God. 31

PASIPH. Well, and yet it standes me vpon, more than you thinke, to keepe it secrete. 34

EROST. Why, Pasiphilo, is this the trust I haue had in you? Are these the faire promises you haue alwayes made me?

PASIPH. By the masse, I would I had fasted this night with Maister Doctor, rather than haue come hither. 40

EROST. Wel, Pasiphilo, eyther tel me, or at few woordes neuer thinke to be welcome to this house from hence forthe!

PASIPH. Nay, yet I had rather leese all the gentlemen in this towne. But if I [45 tel you any thing that displease you, blame no body but your selfe now.

EROST. There is nothing can greue me more than Dulipoes mishappe — no, not mine owne; and therefore I am sure thou canst tell me no worse tidings. 51

PASIPH. Well, since you would needes haue it, I wil tell you. He was taken a bed with your beloued Polynesta.

EROST. Alas! and doth Damon knowe it? 56

PASIPH. An olde trotte in the house disclosed it to him; wherypon he tooke bothe Dulipo and the Nurse, which hath bene the broker of all this bargayne, and clapte [60 them bothe in a cage — where, I thinke they shall haue sowre soppes too their sweete meates.

EROST. Pasiphilo, go thy wayes into the kitchin, commaund the cooke to boyle [65 and roast what liketh thee best. I make thee supra visour of this supper.

PASIPH. By the masse, if you should haue studied this seuennight you could not haue appointed me an office to please [70 me better! You shall see what dishes I will deuise.

Pasiphilo goeth in, Erostrato tarieth.

[ACTUS V]

SCENA IIJ

Fayned Erostrato alone.

[EROST.] I was glad to rid him out of the way, least he shoulde see me burst out of these swelling teares, which hitherto with great payne I haue prisoned in my brest, and least he shoulde heare the [5 echo of my doubled sighes, whiche bounce¹ from the botome of my heuy heart. O cursed I! O cruell fortune! that so many dispersed griefes, as were sufficient to subuert a legion of louers, hast sod- [10 enly assembled within my careful carkase to treat this fearfull heart in sunder with desperation! Thou that hast kepte my master all his youthe within the realme of Sicilia, reseruing the wind and waues in [15 a temperate calme — as it were at his commaunde — nowe to conuey his aged limmes hither, neither sooner nor later, but euen in the worst time that may be! If at any time before thou haddest conducted [20 him, this enterprise had bene cut off without care in the beginning; and if neuer so little longer thou hadst lingred¹ his iorney, this happie day might then haue fully finished our drifts and deuises. But, [25 alas, thou hast brought him euen in the very worst time, to plunge vs al in the pit of perdition! Neither art thou content to entangle me alone in thy ruinous ropes, but thou must also catch the right Eros- [30 trato in thy crooked clawes, to reward vs both with open shame and rebuke. Two yeeres hast thou kept secrete our subtile supposes, euen this day to discipher them with a sorowfull successe.² What shall [35 I do? Alas, what shift shall I make? It is too late now to imagine any further deceite, for euerly minute seemeth an houre til I find some succour for the miserable captiue Erostrato. Wel, since there is [40 no other remedie, I wil go to my master Philogano, and to him wil I tell the whole truth of the matter, that at the least he may prouide in time before his sonne feele the smart of some sharpe reuenge and [45 punishment. This is the best; and thus wil I do. Yet I know that for mine owne parte I shal do bitter penance for my faults forepassed! But suche is the good will and ductie that I beare to Erostrato, as [50 euen with the losse of my life I must not sticke to adventure any thing which may turne to his commoditie. But what shall I do? Shal I go seeke my master about the towne, or shall I tarrie his returne [55 hither? If I meete him in the streetes, he wil crie out vpon me; neither will he harken to any thing that I shall say till he haue gathered all the people wondring about me, as it were at an owle. Therefore I [60 were better to abide here. And yet, if he tarrie long, I will goe seeke him rather than prolong the time to Erostratos perill.

Pasiphilo returneth to Erostrato.

till they will be ready to sit downe. [To Erostrato.] This geere goeth in order; but if I had not gone in, there had fallen a foule faulte. 6

EROST. And what fault, I pray thee?

PASIPH. Marie, Dalio would haue layd the shoulder of mutton and the capon bothe to the fire at once, like a foole! [10 He did not consider that the one would haue more roasting than the other.

EROST. [aside]. Alas, I would this were the greatest fault. 14

PASIPH. Why, and either the one should haue bene burned before the other had bene roasted; or else he muste haue drawne them off the spitte, and they would haue bene serued to the boorde either colde or rawe. 20

EROST. Thou hast reason, Pasiphilo.

PASIPH. Now, sir, if it please you I will goe into the towne and buye oranges, oliues, and caphers; for without suche sauce the supper were more than halfe lost. 26

EROST. There are within already. Doubt you not there shal lacke nothing that is necessarie. 29

Erostrato exit.

PASIPH. Since I told him these newes of Dulipo, he is cleane beside himself. He hath so many hammers in his head that his braynes are ready to burst. And let them breake. So I may suppe with him to night, what care I? But is not this Dom- [35 inus noster Cleandrus that commeth before? Well sayde. By my truth, we will teache Maister Doctor to weare a cornerd cappe ¹ of a new fashion. By God, Polynesta shal be his! He shall haue hir, out of [40 doubt; for I haue tolde Erostrato such newes of hir that he will none of hir.

Cleander and Philogano come in, talking of the matter in controuersie.

that he is not Erostrato, hauing such pre-sumptions to the contrarie? Or how shall it be thought that you are Philogano, when an other taketh vpon him this same [5 name, and for prooffe bringeth him for a witness which hath bene euer reputed here for Erostrato?

PHILO. I will tel you, sir. Let me be kept here fast in prison, and at my [10 charges let there be some man sent into Sicilia that may bring hither with him two or three of the honestest men in Cathanea, and by them let it be proued if I, or this other, be Philogano, and whether he be [15 Erostrato, or Dulipo my seruant; and if you finde me contrarie, let me suffer death for it.

PASIPH. I will go salute Master
Doctour. 20

CLEAN. It will aske great labour and great expences to proue it this way; but it is the best remedie that I can see.

PASIPH. God saue you, sir!

CLEAN. And reward you as you haue deserued. 26

PASIPH. Then shall he giue me your faueur continually.

CLEAN. He shall giue you a halter, knaue and vellein that thou arte! 30

PASIPH. I knowe I am a knaue, but no villein. I am your seruaunt.

CLEAN. I neither take thee for my seruant, nor for my friend.

PASIPH. Why, wherein haue I offended you sir? 36

CLEAN. Hence to the gallowes, knaue!

PASIPH. What! softe and faire, sir, I pray you; I præ, sequar; ¹ you are mine elder. 40

CLEAN. I will be euen with you, be you sure. Honest man —

PASIPH. Why, sir? I neuer offended
you.

CLEAN. Well, I will teach you. Out of my sight, knaue! 46

PASIPH. What! I am no dogge, I would you wist.

CLEAN. Pratest thou yet, vellein? I will make thee — 50

PASIPH. What will you make me? I see wel the more a man doth suffer you, the worse you are.

CLEAN. Ah, villain, if it were not for this gentleman, I wold tell you what I — 55

PASIPH. Villcin? Nay, I am as honest a man as you.

CLEAN. Thou liest in thy throate, knaue! 59

PHILO. O, sir, stay your wisedome.

PASIPH. What! will you fight? Marie, come on!

CLEAN. Well, knaue, I will meete with you ¹ another time. Goe your way. 64

PASIPH. Euen when you list sir, I will be your man.

CLEAN. And if I be not euen with thee, call me cut! ² 68

PASIPH. Nay, by the masse, all is one. I care not, for I haue nothing. If I had either landes or goods, peradventure you would pull me into the lawe.

[Exit Pasiphilo.]

PHILO. Sir, I perceiue your pacience is moued. 74

CLEAN. This villaine! But let him goe. I will see him punished as he hath deserved. Now to the matter. How said you?

PHILO. This fellow hath disquieted you, sir. Peradventure you would be loth to be troubled any further. 80

CLEAN. Not a whit.³ Say on, and let him go — with a vengeance!

PHILO. I say, let them send at my charge to Cathanea. 84

CLEAN. Yea, I remember that wel; and it is the surest way as this case requireth. But tel me, how is he your seruaut? and how come you by him? Enforme me fully in the matter. 89

PHILO. I will tell you sir. When the Turkes won Otranto —

CLEAN. Oh, you put me in remembrance of my mishappes!

PHILO. How, sir? 94

CLEAN. For I was driuen among the rest out of the towne (it is my natiue country), and there I lost more than euer I shall recouer againe while I liue.

¹ Get even with you.

² Horse (a term of disparagement).

³ In the margin: "Lawyers are neuer weary to get money."

PHILO. Alas, a pitifull case, by S. Anne!

CLEAN. Well, proceede. 100

PHILO. At that time, as I saide, there were certaine of our country that scoured those costes vpon the seas with a good barke, well appointed for the purpose, [104 and had espiall of a Turkey vessell that came laden from thence with great abundance of riches.

CLEAN. And peradventure most of mine. 109

PHILO. So they boarded them, and in the end ouercame them; and brought the goods to Palermo, from whence they came; and amongst other things that they had was this villeine, my seruaut, a boy [114 at that time, I thinke not past fife yeeres olde.

CLEAN. Alas, I lost one of that same age there. 118

PHILO. And I beyng there, and liking the childe fauour well, proffered them foure and twentie ducates for him, and had him.

CLEAN. What! was the childe a Turke? or had the Turkes brought him from Otranto? 125

PHILO. They saide he was a childe of Otranto. But what is that to the matter? Once xxiiij Ducattes he cost me — that I wot well. 129

CLEAN. Alas, I speake it not for that, sir. I woulde it were he whome I meane.

PHILO. Why, whom meane you sir?

LITI. Beware sir; be not to lauish!

CLEAN. Was his name Dulipo then? or had he not another name? 135

LITI. Beware what you say, sir!

PHILO. What the deuill hast thou to doe! — Dulipo? No, sir; his name was Carino. 139

LITI. Yea, well said! Tell all, and more to; doe!

CLEAN. O Lord, if it be as I thinke how happie were I! And why did you change his name then? 144

PHILO. We called him Dulipo bycause when he cryed, as Children doe sometimes, he woulde alwayes cry on that name Dulipo. 148

CLEAN. Well, then I see well it is my owne onely childe, whome I loste when I loste my countrie! He was named Carino after his grandfather; and this Dulipo, whome he alwayes remembred in his lamenting, was his foster father that nourished him and brought him vp. 155

LITI. Sir, haue I not told you enough of the falshood of Ferara? This gentleman will not only picke your purse, but beguile you of your seruaut also, and make you beleue he is his son. 160

CLEAN. Well, goodfellow, I haue not vsed to lie.

LITI. Sir, no; but every thing hath a beginning. 164

CLEAN. Fie! Philogano, haue you not the least suspecte that may be of me?

LITI. No, marie; but it were good he had the most suspecte that may be. 168

CLEAN. Well, hold thou thy peace a litle, good fellow. I pray you tell me, Philogano, had the child any remembrance of his fathers name, his mothers name, or the name of his familie? 173

PHILO. He did remember them, and could name his mother also; but sure I haue forgotten the name.

LITI. I remember it well enough!

PHILO. Tell it then.

LITI. Nay, that I will not, marie! You haue tolde him too much al ready. 180

PHILO. Tell it, I say, if thou can.

LITI. Can? yes, by the masse, I can wel enough! But I wil haue my tong pulled out rather than tell it, vnlesse he tell [184 it first. Doe you not perceiue, sir, what he goeth about?

CLEAN. Well, I will tell you then. My name you know alreedy; my wife, his mothers name, name was Sophronia; the house that I came of they call Spiagia. 190

LITI. I neuer heard him speake of Spiagia; but, in-deede, I haue heard him say his mothers name was Sophronia. But what of that? A great matter, I promise you! [194 It is like enoughe that you two haue compact together to deceiue my maister.

CLEAN. What nedeth me more euident tokens? This is my sonne out of doubt, [198 whom I lost eighteen yeares since; and a thousand thousand times haue I lamented for him. He shuld haue also a mould on his left shoulder. 202

LITI. He hath a moule there, in-deede; and an hole in an other place, to — I would your nose were in it.

CLEAN. Faire wordes, fellow Litio. Oh, I pray you, let vs goe talke with him! O fortune, howe much am I bounde to thee if I finde my sonne! 209

PHILO. Yea, how little am I beholden to fortune, that know not where my sonne is become, and you, whome I chose to be mine aduocate, will nowe (by the meanes of this Dulipo) become mine aduersarie! 214

CLEAN. Sir, let vs first goe find mine; and, I warrant you, yours will be founde also ere it be long.

PHILO. God graunt! Goe we, then.

CLEAN. Since the dore is open I will neuer knocke nor cal, but we will be bolde to goe in. 221

LITI. [to Philogano]. Sir, take you heede, least he leade you to some mischief.

PHILO. Alas, Litio, if my sonne be loste what care I what become of me? 225

LITI. Well, I haue tolde you my minde. Sir. Doe you as you please.

Exeunt [into Erostrato's house]; Damon and Psiteria come in.

[ACTUS V]

SCENA VJ¹

[Enter Damon [and] Psiteria [in the street].

[DAMON.] Come hither, you olde kallet! ² you tatling huswife! — that the deuill cut oute your tong! Tell me, howe could Pasiphilo know of this geere but by you?

PSIT. Sir, he neuer knewe it of me; he was the firste that tolde me of it. 6

DAM. Thou liest, old drabbe! But I would aduise you tel me the truth, or I wil make those old bones rattle in your skin.

PSIT. Sir, if you finde me contrarie, kill me. 11

DAM. Why, where should he talke with thee?

PSIT. He talked with me of it here in the streete. 15

DAM. What did you here?

PSIT. I was going to the weauers for a webbe of clothe you haue there.

¹ Edition of 1575 has sexta.

² Whore.

DAM. And what cause coulde Pasiphilo haue to talke of it, vnlesse thou began the mater first? 21

PSIT. Nay, he began with me sir, reuiling me because I had tolde you of it. I asked him how he knewe of it, and he said he was in the stable when you examined me erewhile. 26

DAM. Alas, alas! what shall I doe then? In at dores, olde whore! I wil plucke that tong of thine out by the rootes one day. [Exit Psiteria.] Alas, it greeueth me [30 more that Pasiphilo knoweth it than all the rest. He that will haue a thing kept secrete, let him tell it to Pasiphilo! the people shall knowe it, and as many as haue eares, and no mo. By this time he hath tolde [35 it in a hundreth places! Cleander was the firste, Erostrato the seconde; and so, from one to another, throughout the citie. Alas, what dower, what mariage shall I nowe prepare for my daughter? O poore [40 dolorous Damon, more miserable than miserie it selfe! Would God it were true that Polynesta tolde me ere while — that he who hathe defloured hir is of no seruile estate (as hitherto he hath bene sup- [45 vosed in my seruice), but that he is a gentleman, borne of a good parentage in sicilia. Alas, small riches shoulde content me if he be but of an honest familie. But I feare that he hathe deuised these [50 toyes to allure my daughtres loue. Well, I wil goe examine hir againe. My minde giueth me that I shall perceiue by hir tale whether it be true or not. But is not this Pasiphilo that commeth out of my [55 neighbours house? What the deuill ayleth him to leape and laughe so like a foole in the high way?

Pasiphilo commeth out of the house¹ laughing.

SCENA VIJ²

[Enter Pasiphilo [to] Damon.]

[PASIPH.] O God, that I might finde Damon at home!

² Ed. 1575, septima.

DAM. What the diuill would he with me?

PASIPH. That I may be the firste that shall bring him these newes! 6

DAM. What will he tell me, in the name of God?

PASIPH. O Lord, how happie am I! loke where he is. 10

DAM. What newes, Pasiphilo, that thou arte so merie?

PASIPH. Sir, I am mery to make you glad. I bring you ioyfull newes!

DAM. And that I haue nede of, Pasiphilo. 16

PASIPH. I knowe, sir, that you are a sorowfull man for this mishap that hath chaunced in your house. Peradventure you thoughte I had not knowen of it. [20 But let it passe! Plucke vp your sprits, and reioyce! for he that hath done you this iniurie is so well borne, and hath so riche parents, that you may be glad to make him your sonne in law. 25

DAM. How knowest thou?

PASIPH. His father, Philogano, one of the worthiest men in all Cathanea, is nowe come to the citie, and is here in your neighbours house. 30

DAM. What, in Erostratos house?

PASIPH. Nay, in Dulipos house. For where you haue alwayes supposed this gentleman to be Erostrato, it is not so; but your seruauant, whom you haue impris- [35 oned, hitherto supposed to be Dulipo, he is in-dede Erostrato, and that other is Dulipo. And thus they haue alwayes, euen since their first ariual in this citie, exchanged names, to the ende that Erostrato, the [40 maister, vnder the name of Dulipo, a seru- ant, might be entertained in your house, and so winne the loue of your daughter.

DAM. Wel, then I perceiue it is euen as Polinesta told me. 45

PASIPH. Why, did she tell you so?

DAM. Yea; but I thought it but a tale.

PASIPH. Well, it is a true tale. And here they will be with you by and by — both Philogano, this worthwhile man, and Maister Doctor, Cleander. 51

DAM. Cleander? What to doe?

PASIPH. Cleander? Why therby lies another tale — the moste fortunate aduenture that euer you heard! Wot you [55 what? This other Dulipo, whome all this while we supposed to be Erostrato, is founde to be the sonne of Cleander, whome he lost at the losse of Otranto, and was after solde in Sicilia too this Philogano. [60 The strangest case that euer you heard! A man might make a comedie of it. They will come euen straight, and tell you the whole circumstance of it themselues. 64

DAM. Nay, I will first goe heare the storie of this Dulipo, be it Dulipo or Erostrato, that I haue here within, before I speake with Philogano.

PASIPH. So shall you doe well, sir. I will goe tell them that they may stay a while. But loke where they come. 71

Damon goeth in; Scenese, Cleander and Philogano come vpon the stage.

[ACTUS V]

SCENA VIIII

[Enter] Scenese, Cleander, [Carino, and] Philogano. [Pasiphilo remains.]

[SCENESL.] Sir, you shal not nede to excuse the matter any further. Since I haue received no greater iniurie than by words, let them passe like wind; I take them well in worthe, and am rather well [5 pleased than offended. For it shall bothe be a good warning to me another time howe to trust euery man at the firste sighte, yea, and I shall haue good game hereafter to tel this pleasant story another day in mine owne countrey. 11

CLEAN. Gentleman, you haue reason; and be you sure that as many as heare it will take great pleasure in it. And you, Philogano, may thinke that God in heauen [15 about hath ordained your comming hither at this present to the ende I might recover my lost sonne, whom by no other meanes I coulde euer haue founde oute. 19

PHILO. Surely, sir, I thinke no lesse; for I think that not so much as a leafe falleth from the tree without the ordinance of God. But let vs goe seke Damon, for me thinketh euery day a yeare, euery [24 houre a daye, and euery minute to much, till I see my Erostrato.

CLEAN. I cannot blame you. Goe we, then. Carino, take you that gentleman home in the meane time. The fewer the better to be present at such affaires. 30

Pasiphilo stayeth their going in.

[ACTUS V]

SCENA IX

Pasiphilo [advances to] Cleander.

[PASIPH.] Maister Doctor, will you not shew me this fauour, to tell me the cause of your displeasure?

CLEAN. Gentle Pasiphilo, I muste needes confesse I haue done thee wrong, and that I beleued tales of thee, whiche, indeede, I finde now contrary. 7

PASIPH. I am glad, then, that it proceeded rather of ignorance than of malice.

CLEAN. Yea, belcue me, Pasiphilo. 10

PASIPH. O, sir, but yet you shoulde not haue giuen me suche foule wordes.

CLEAN. Well, content thy selfe, Pasiphilo. I am thy frende, as I haue alwayes bene; for prooffe whereof, come suppe [15 with me to night, and from day to day this seuen night be thou my guest. But beholde, here commeth Damon out of his house.

Here they come all together.

[ACTUS V]

SCENA X¹

[In the street gather] Cleander, Philogano, Damon, Erostrato, Pasiphilo, [and] Polinesta. [Later enter] Nevola. And other seruaunts.

[CLEAN. addressing Damon.] We are come vnto you, sir, to turne your sorowe into ioy and gladnesse: the sorow, we meane, that of force you haue sustained since this mishappe of late fallen in your [5 house. But be you of good comforte, sir, and assure your selfe that this yong man, which youthfully and not maliciously hath committed this amorous offence, is verie well able (with consent of this worthie [10 man, his father) to make you sufficient amendes, being borne in Cathanea of Sicilia, of a noble house, no way inferiour vnto you, and of wealth (by the reporte of suche as knowe it) farre exceeding that of yours. 16

PHILO. And I here, in proper person, doe presente vnto you, sir, not onely my assured frendship and brotherhoode, but do earnestly desire you to accepte my [20] poore childe (though vnworthy) as your sonne-in-lawe. And for recompence of the iniurie he hath done you, I profer my whole lands in dower to your daughter; yea, and more would, if more I might. 25

CLEAN. And I, sir, who haue hitherto so earnestly desired your daughter in mariage, doe now willingly yelde vp and quite claime to this yong man, who, both for his yeares and for the loue he beareth hir, is most [30] meetest to be hir husband. For wher I was desirous of a wife by whom I might haue yssue, to leaue that litle which God hath sent me, now haue I litle neede, that (thankes be to God) haue founde my [35] deerey beloued sonne, whom I loste of a childe at the siege of Otranto.

DAM. Worthy gentleman, your friendship, your alliaunce, and the nobilitie of your birthe are suche as I haue muche [40] more cause to desire them of you than you to request of me that which is already granted. Therefore I gladly and willingly receiue the same, and thinke my selfe moste happie now of all my life past [45] that I haue gotten so toward a sonne-in-lawe to my selfe, and so worthye a father-in-lawe to my daughter. Yea, and muche the greater is my contentation, since this worthie gentleman, Maister Cleander, [50] doth holde himselfe satisfied. And now, behold your sonne.

[Enter Erostrato.]

EROST. O father!

PASIPH. Beholde the naturall loue of the childe to the father. For inwarde [55] ioye he cannot pronounce one worde, in steade wherof he sendeth sobbes and teares to tell the effect of his inward intention. But why doe you abide here abroad? Will it please you to goe into the house sir? 60

DAM. Pasiphilo' hath saide well. Will it please you to goe in sir?

[Enter Nevola with fetters.]

NEV. Here I haue brought you, sir, bothe fetters and boltes.

DAM. Away with them, now! 65

NEV. Yea, but what shal I doe with them?

DAM. Marie, I will tell thee, Neuola: to make a righte ende of our supposes, lay one of those boltes in the fire, and make [70] thee a suppositorie¹ as long as mine arme. God saue the sample!

[Turning to the audience.]

Nobles and gentlemen, if you suppose that our Supposes haue giuen you sufficient cause of delighte, shewe some token, wherby we may suppose you are content. 77

Et plausurunt.

¹ Richard Edwards, musician and poet, was appointed Master of the Children of the Chapel Royal in 1561, and thenceforth devoted his energies to writing plays to be acted by the boys before Elizabeth. Although he is known to have composed numerous plays for the Court, only Damon and Pithias was published under his name. It was probably performed during the Christmas season of 1564-65. Notable as the first tragi-comedy in England, it well illustrates the refined drama with which the child-actors were accustomed to entertain courtly audiences. Professor Wallace (The Evolution of the English Drama up to Shakespeare, 1912, p. 110) writes: "This fine old tale out of Syracusan history, with its tragic and comic elements happily mingled in a rising tide of suspense to the climax, as presented by Edwards, formed the high-water mark of English drama up to that time."

The earliest extant edition (A) bears the date 1571, but the title-page describes the text as "newly imprinted." Another edition appeared in 1582. I have based the present reprint on Farmer's photographic facsimile reproduction of the copy of the 1571 edition in the British Museum. All changes are recorded in footnotes, and additions set in brackets. The spelling of the original edition is so atrocious that I deemed it wise to modernize, in so far as possible, the spelling as well as the punctuation. John S. Farmer, in Early English Dramatists, 1906, professed to reprint the play "from the edition of 1571," but he merely reproduced the Hazlitt-Dodsley (H.) text. It has not seemed worth while to note all the errors in the exceedingly inaccurate Hazlitt-Dodsley edition: I have observed more than twenty words carelessly dropped, eight words inserted without authority, and over forty serious corruptions of the text, besides innumerable minor mistakes.

² In A. this is printed after the prologue.

THE PROLOGUE

ON every side whereas I glance my roving eye,
 Silence in all ears bent I plainly do espy.
 But if your eager looks do long such toys to see
 As heretofore in comical wise were wont abroad to be,
 Your lust is lost, and all the pleasures that you sought 5
 Is frustrate quite of toying ¹ plays. A sudden change is wrought.
 For lo, our author's muse, that masked in delight,
 Hath forc'd his pen against his kind ² no more such sports to write.
 Muse he that lust, right worshipful, for chance hath made this change,
 For that to some he seemed too much in young desires ³ to range; 10
 In which, right glad to please, seeing that he did offend,
 Of all he humbly pardon craves: his pen that shall amend.
 And yet, worshipful audience, thus much I dare avouch:
 In comedies the greatest skill is this: rightly to touch
 All things to the quick, and eke to frame each person so 15
 That by his common talk you may his nature rightly know.
 A roister ⁴ ought not preach — that were too strange to hear, —
 But, as from virtue he doth swerve, so ought his words appear.
 The old man is sober; the young man rash; the lover triumphing in joys;
 The matron grave; the harlot wild, and full of wanton toys: 20
 Which all in one course they no wise do agree,
 So correspondent to their kind their speeches ought to be.
 Which speeches, well-pronounc'd, with action lively framed —
 If this offend the lookers on, let Horace then be blamed,
 Which hath our author taught at school, from whom he doth not swerve, 25
 In all such kind of exercise decorum to observe.
 Thus much for his defence (he saith), as poets earst have done,
 Which heretofore in comedies the self-same race did run.
 But now, for to be brief, the matter to express
 Which here we shall present is this: Damon and Pithias, 30
 A rare ensample of friendship true. It is no legend-lie,
 But a thing once done, indeed, as histories do descry;
 Which, done of yore in long time past, yet present shall be here
 Even as it were in doing now, so lively it shall appear.
 Lo, here is ⁵ Syracuse, th' ancient town which once the Romans won, 35
 Here Dionysius palace, within whose court this thing most strange was done.
 Which matter, mix'd with mirth and care, a just name to apply
 As seems most fit, we have it termed a "tragical comedy." ⁶
 Wherein, talking of courtly toys, we do protest this flat: —
 We talk of Dionysius court; we mean no court but that! 40
 And that we do so mean, who wisely calleth to mind
 The time, the place, the author,⁷ here most plainly shall it find.
 Lo, this I speak for our defence, lest of others we should be shent.⁸
 But, worthy audience, we you pray, take things as they be meant.
 Whose upright judgment we do crave with heedful ear and eye 45
 To hear the cause and see th' effect of this new tragical comedy. Exit.

² Its nature.

³ I.e., in love.

⁴ Cf. Roister Doister.

⁵ A. in. Since the play was staged by the Office of the Revels with "players' houses," probably the speaker pointed to the "city" on one side, and to Dionysius' palace on the other side. The personages enter from Damon's lodgings in the "city," from the palace, or from the rear of the stage.

⁶ Apparently the earliest occurrence of the word, earlier than any noted in N.E.D.

⁷ A. Authours.

⁸ Blamed.

[DAMON AND PITHIAS]

[On one side, the city of Syracuse, with the lodging of Damon and Pithias in the foreground; on the other side, the palace of King Dionysius.]

Here entereth Aristippus.

[ARISTIPPUS.] Too ¹ strange, perhaps, it seems to some

That I, Aristippus, a courtier am become;
A philosopher of late, not of the meanest name,

But now to the courtly behaviour my life I frame.

Muse he that list. To you of good skill 5
I say that I am a philosopher still.

Loving of wisdom is termed philosophy;²
Then who is a philosopher so rightly as I?
For in loving of wisdom proof doth this try,

That frustra sapit, qui non sapit sibi.³ 10
I am wise for myself: then tell me, of troth,
Is not that great wisdom, as the world go'th?

Some philosophers in the street go ragged and torn,

And feed ⁴ on vile roots, whom boys laugh
to scorn;

But I in fine silks haunt Dionysius'
palace, 15

Wherein with dainty fare myself I do solace.

I can talk of philosophy as well as the best,
But the strait ⁵ kind of life I leave to the
rest.

And I profess now the courtly philosophy;
To crouch, to speak fair, myself I apply, 20
To feed the king's humour with pleasant devices;

For which I am called Regius canis.⁶
But wot ye who named me first the king's dog?

It was the rogue Diogenes, that vile grunting hog!

² A. Lovers of wisdom, are termed philosophie.
Emend. by Collier.

³ "He is wise to no purpose who is not wise for himself."

⁴ A. feedes.

⁵ Abstemious.

⁶ King's dog.

Let him roll in his tub to win a vain
praise; 25

In the court pleasantly I will spend all my days.

Wherein what to do I am not to learn;
What will serve mine own turn I can quickly discern.

All my time at school I have not spent vainly;

I can help one! Is not that a good point of philosophy? 30

Here entereth Carisophus.

[CARISOPHUS.] I beshrew your fine ears,
since you came from school

In the court you have made many a wise man a fool!

And though you paint out your feigned
philosophy,

So God help me, it is but a plain kind of flattery!

Which you use so finely in so pleasant a sort 35

That none but Aristippus now makes the king sport.

Ere you came hither poor I was somebody;
The king delighted in me. Now I am but a noddy.¹

ARISTIPPUS. In faith, Carisophus, you know yourself best!

But I will not call you noddy but only in jest. 40

And thus I assure you: though I came from school

To serve in this court, I came not yet to be the king's fool,

Or to fill his ears with servile squirrility.²
That office is yours! You know it right perfectly!

Of parasites and sycophants you are a grave bencher;³ 45

The king feeds you often from his own trencher.⁴

I envy not your state, nor yet your great
favour;

Then grudge not at all if in my behaviour

¹ Fool.

² Magistrate.

³ Scurrility.

⁴ Plate, dish.

I make the king merry with pleasant urbanity,

Whom I never abused to any man's injury. 50

CARISOPHUS. By Cock,¹ sir, yet in the court you do best thrive —

For you get more in one day than I do in five.

ARISTIPPUS. Why, man, in the court do you not see

Rewards given for virtue to every degree? To reward the unworthy — that world is done. 55

The court is changed. A good thread hath been spun

Of dog's wool heretofore; and why? because it was liked,

And not for that it was best trimmed and picked.

But now men's ears are finer, such gross toys are not set by;

Therefore to a trimmer kind of mirth myself I apply: 60

Wherein, though I please, it cometh not of my desert

But of the king's favour.

CARISOPHUS. It may so be. Yet in your prosperity

Despise not an old courtier. Carisophus is he

Which hath long time fed Dionysius' humour. 65

Diligently to please, still at hand, there was never rumour

Spread in this town of any small thing but I brought it to the king in post by and by.²

Yet now I crave your friendship; which if I may attain,

Most sure and unfeigned friendship I promise you again. 70

So we two, link'd in friendship, brother and brother,

Full well in the court may help one another.

ARISTIPPUS. By'r Lady, Carisophus, though you know not philosophy,

Yet surely you are a better courtier than I! And yet I not so evil a courtier that will seem to despise 75

Such an old courtier as you, so expert, and so wise.

² At once, immediately.

But where-as you crave mine, and offer your friendship so willingly,

With heart I give you thanks for this your great courtesy,

Assuring of friendship both with tooth and nail,

Whiles life lasteth, never to fail. 80

CARISOPHUS. A thousand thanks I give you. O friend Aristippus!

ARISTIPPUS. O friend Carisophus!

CARISOPHUS. How joyful am I, sith I have to friend Aristippus now!

ARISTIPPUS. None so glad of Carisophus' friendship as I, I make God a vow!

I speak as I think, believe me. 85

CARISOPHUS. Sith we are now so friendly joined, it seemeth to me

That one of us help each other in every degree.

Prefer you my cause when you are in presence;

To further your matters to the king let me alone in your absence.

ARISTIPPUS. Friend Carisophus, this shall be done as you would wish. 90

But, I pray you, tell me thus much by the way —

Whither now from this place will you take your journey?

CARISOPHUS. I will not dissemble — that were against friendship:

I go into the city some knaves to nip¹

For talk, with their goods to increase the king's treasure. 95

In such kind of service I set my chief pleasure.

Farewell, friend Aristippus, now, for a time. Exit.

ARISTIPPUS. Adieu, friend Carisophus. In good faith now,

Of force I must laugh at this solemn vow! Is Aristippus link'd in friendship with Carisophus? 100

*Quid cum tanto asino talis philosophus?*² They say *Morum similitudo consuit*³ amicitias;⁴

Then how can this friendship between us two come to pass?

² "What has such a philosopher in common with such an ass."

⁴ "Likeness of character cements friendships."

We are as like in condition as Jack Fletcher¹ and his bolt:

I brought up in learning, but he is a very dolt 105

As touching good letters; but otherwise such a crafty knave

If you seek a whole region his like you cannot have;

A villain for his life; a varlet dyed in grain;
You lose money by him if you sell him for one knave, for he serves for twain;

A flattering parasite; a sycophant also; 110
A common accuser of men; to the good an open foe.

Of half a word he can make a legend of lies,
Which he will avouch with such tragical cries

As though all were true that comes out of his mouth,

Where, indeed, to be hanged by and by, 115
He cannot tell one tale but twice he must lie.

He spareth no man's life to get the king's favour;

In which kind of service he hath got such a savour

That he will never leave. Methink then that I

Have done very wisely to join in friendship with him, lest perhaps I 120

Coming in his way might be nipp'd; for such knaves in presence

We see oft times put honest men to silence.
Yet I have played with his beard² in knitting this knot;

I promis'd friendship; but you love few words — I spake it, but I meant it
not.

Who marks this friendship between us
two 125

Shall judge of the worldly friendship without any more ado;

It may be a right pattern³ thereof. But true friendship, indeed,

Of nought but of virtue doth truly proceed.
But why do I now enter into philosophy
Which do profess the fine kind of courtesy? 130

² Deluded him. ³ A. patron. Cf. l. 1566.

I will hence to the court with all haste I
may.

I think the king be stirring, it is now bright
day.

To wait at a pinch still in sight I mean;
For, wot ye what? a new broom sweeps clean.¹

As to high honour I mind not to climb, 135
So I mean in the court to lose no time.

Wherein, happy man be his dole,² I trust
that I

Shall not speed worst, and that very quickly. Exit.

Here entereth Damon and Pithias like mariners.

[DAMON.] O Neptune, immortal be thy
praise,

For that so safe from Greece we have pass'd the seas 140

To this noble city Syracuse, where we
The ancient reign of the Romans may
see,

Whose force Greece also heretofore hath known,

Whose virtue the shrill trump of fame so far hath blown.

PITHIAS. My Damon, of right high praise
we ought to give 145

To Neptune, and all the gods, that we safely did arrive.

The seas, I think, with contrary winds never raged so!

I am even yet so seasick that I faint as I go.
Therefore let us get some lodging quickly.

But where is Stephano? 150

Here entereth Stephano [laden with baggage].

[STEPHANO.] Not far hence! A pox take these mariner-knaves!

Not one would help me to carry this stuff.
Such drunken slaves

I think be accursed of the gods' own mouths!

DAMON. Stephano, leave thy raging, and let us enter Syracuse.

We will provide lodging, and thou shalt be eased of thy burden by and by. 155

² Lot in life (a proverbial exclamation equivalent to "Good luck!").

STEPHANO. Good master, make haste! for
I tell you plain,
This heavy burden puts poor Stephano to much pain.

PITHIAS. Come on thy ways. Thou shalt be eased, and that anon.

Exit [Pithias, followed by Damon and Stephano].

Here entereth Carisophus.

[CARISOPHUS]. It is a true saying, that oft hath been spoken:

"The pitcher goeth so long to the water, that it ¹ cometh home broken." 160
My own proof this hath taught me; for truly, sith I

In the city have used to walk very slyly,

Not with one can I meet that will in talk join with me.

And to creep into men's bosoms ² some talk for to snatch,

By ³ which into one trip ⁴ or other I might trimly them catch, 165

And so accuse them — now not with one can I meet

That will join in talk with me. I am shunn'd like a devil in the street!

My credit is crack'd where I am known.
But yet ⁵ I hear say

Certain strangers are arrived. They were a good prey.

If happily I might meet with them, I fear
not, I, 170

But in talk I should trip them, and that very finely.

Which thing, I assure you, I do for mine own gain, —

Or else I would not plod thus up and down,
I tell you plain.

Well, I will for a while to the court to see

What Aristippus doth. I would be loth in favour he should overrun me. 175

He is a subtle child! He flattereth so finely that I fear me

He will lick all ⁶ the fat from my lips, and so outwear ⁷ me.

¹ A. he; modernized by Dodsley.

² Confidence.

³ H. But.

⁴ Mistake.

⁵ H. omits.

⁶ H. omits.

⁷ Consume. A. outwery.

Therefore I will not be long absent, but at
hand,

That all his fine drifts I may understand.
Exit.

Here entereth Will and Jack.

[WILL.] I wonder what my master Aristip-pus means now-a-days 180

That he leaveth philosophy and seeks to please

King Dionysius with such merry toys.

In Dionysius' court now he only joys,

As trim a courtier as the best,

Ready to answer, quick in taunts, pleasant to jest, 185

A lusty companion to devise with fine
dames,

Whose humour to feed his wily wit he frames.

JACK. By Cock, as you say, your master is a minion! ¹

A foul coil he keeps in this court! Aristippus alone

Now rules the roast ² with his pleasant devices, 190

That I fear he will put out of conceit my master Carisophus.

WILL. Fear not that, Jack; for, like brother and brother,

They are knit in true friendship the one with the other.

They are fellows, you know, and honest men both;

Therefore the one to hinder the other they will be loth. 195

JACK. Yea, but I have heard say there is falsehood in fellowship.

In the court sometimes one gives another finely the slip;

Which when it is spied, it is laugh'd out with a scoff,

And with sporting and playing quickly ³ shaken off.

In which kind of toying thy master hath such a grace 200

That he will never blush; he hath a wooden
face.

But, Will, my master hath bees in his head;
If he find me here prating, I am but dead.

² Has the mastery.

³ A. quietly.

He is still trotting in the city; there is somewhat in the wind;

His looks bewrays his inward troubled mind. 205

Therefore I will be packing to the court by and by.

If he be once angry, Jack shall cry, "woe the pie!"

WILL. By'r Lady, if I tarry long here, of the same sauce shall I taste!

For my master sent me on an errand, and bad me make haste.

Therefore we will depart together. 210
Exeunt.

Here entereth Stephano.

[STEPHANO.] Ofttimes I have heard, before I came hither,

That "no man can serve two masters together";

A sentence so true, as most men do take it, At any time false that no man can make it.

And yet, by their leave that first have it spoken, 215

How that may prove false, even here I will open:

For I, Stephano, lo, so named by my father,

At this time serve two masters together, And love them alike; the one and the other I duly obey — I can do no other. 220

A bondman I am, so nature hath wrought me;

One Damon of Greece, a gentleman, bought me;

To him I stand bound; yet serve I another, Whom Damon, my master, loves as his own brother,

A gentleman, too, and Pithias he is named, 225

Fraught with virtue, whom vice never defamed.

These two, since at school they fell acquainted,

In mutual friendship at no time have fainted,

But loved so kindly and friendly each other As though they were brothers by father and mother. 230

Pythagoras' learning these two have embraced,

Which both are in virtue so narrowly laced That all their whole doings do fall to this issue —

To have no respect but only to virtue.

All one in effect, all one in their going, 235

All one in their study, all one in their doing, These gentlemen both, being of one condition,

Both alike of my service have all the fruition.

Pithias is joyful if Damon be pleased; If Pithias be¹ served, then Damon is eased. 240

Serve one, serve both (so near²), who would win them.

I think they have but one heart between them!

In travelling countries we three have contrived³

Full many a year; and this day arrived At Syracuse in Sicilia, that ancient town,

Where my masters are lodged; and I up and down 246

Go seeking to learn what news here are walking,

To hark of what things the people are talking.

I like not this soil; for as I go plodding I mark there two, there three, their heads always nodding, 250

In close secret wise still whispering together.

If I ask any question, no man doth answer, But shaking their heads they go their ways speaking.

I mark how with tears their wet eyes are leaking.

Some strangeness there is that breedeth this musing! 255

Well, I will to my masters and tell of their using,

That they may learn, and walk wisely together.

I fear we shall curse the time we came hither. Exit.

Here entereth Aristippus and Will.

[ARISTIPPUS.] Will, didst thou hear the ladies so talk of me?

³ Spent the time.

What aileth them? From their nips¹ shall I never be free? 260

WILL. Good faith, sir, all the ladies in the court do plainly report

That without mention of them you can make no sport.

They are your plain-song to sing descant upon;²

If they were not, your mirth were gone.
Therefore, master, jest no more with women in any wise. 265

If you do, by Cock, you are like to know the price!

ARISTIPPUS. By'r Lady, Will, this is good counsel! Plainly to jest

Of women, proof hath taught me, it is not best.³

I will change my copy; howbeit I care not a quinch;

I know the gall'd horse will soonest winch.
But learn thou secretly what⁴ privily they talk 271

Of me in the court; among them slyly walk,
And bring me true news thereof.

WILL. I will, sir master, thereof have no doubt; for I,

Where they talk of you, will inform you perfectly. 275

ARISTIPPUS. Do so, my boy. If thou bring it finely to pass,

For thy good service thou shalt go in thine old coat at Christmas. Exeunt.

Enter Damon, Pithias, Stephano.

[DAMON.] Stephano, is all this true that thou hast told me?

STEPHANO. Sir, for lies hitherto ye never controll'd me.⁵

O, that we had never set foot on this
land, 280

Where Dionysius reigns with so bloody a
hand!

Every day he showeth some token of cruelty;

With blood he hath filled all the streets in the city;

I tremble to hear the people's murmuring;
I lament to see his most cruel dealing; 285
I think there is no such tyrant under the sun.
O, my dear masters, this morning what hath he done!

DAMON. What is that? tell us quickly.

STEPHANO. As I this morning pass'd in the street,

With a woful man (going to his death) did I meet. 290

Many people followed; and I of one secretly

Asked the cause why he was condemned to
die;

[Who]¹ whispered in mine ear: "Nought hath he done but thus:

In his sleep he dreamed he had killed Di-
onysius;

Which dream told abroad, was brought to the king in post; 295

By whom, condemned for suspicion, his life he hath lost."

Marcia was his name, as the people said.

PITHIAS. My dear friend Damon, I blame not Stephano

For wishing we had not come hither, seeing it is so

That for so small cause such cruel death doth ensue. 300

DAMON. My Pithias, where tyrants reign such cases are not new,

Which fearing their own state for great cruelty,

To sit fast, as they think, do execute speedily

All such as any light suspicion have tainted.

STEPHANO (aside). With such quick carvers I list not be acquainted! 305

DAMON. So are they never in quiet, but in suspicion still;

When one is made away, they take occasion another to kill;

Ever in fear, having no trusty friend, void
of all peoples' love,

And in their own conscience a continual hell they prove.

PITHIAS. As things by their contraries are always best proved, 310

How happy then are merciful princes, of their people beloved!

¹ Sarcasms.

² They are your simple musical theme to which you extemporise an accompaniment (of wit, or censorious criticism).

³ H. proof hath taught me is not the best.

⁴ H. how. ⁵ Took me to task.

Having sure friends everywhere, no fear
doth touch them;

They may safely spend the day pleasantly, at night *securè dormiunt in utranque aurem.*¹

O, my Damon, if choice were offered me I would choose to be Pithias

As I am — Damon's friend — rather than to be King Dionysius. 315

STEPHANO. And good cause why: for you are entirely beloved of one,

And, as far as I hear, Dionysius is beloved of none.

DAMON. That state is most miserable!
Thrice happy are we,

Whom true love hath joined in perfect
amity;

Which amity first sprung — without vaunting be it spoken, that is true — 320

Of likeness of manners, took root by company, and now is conserved by virtue;

Which virtue always, though² worldly things do not frame,

Yet doth she achieve to her followers immortal fame.

Whereof if men were careful, for virtue's sake only

They would honour friendship, and not for commodity. 325

But such as for profit in friendship do link,
When storms come they slide away sooner than a man will think.

My Pithias, the sum of my talk falls to this issue —

To prove no friendship is sure but that which is grounded on virtue.

PITHIAS. My Damon, of this thing there needs no proof to me. 330

The gods forbid but that Pithias with Damon in all things should agree.

For why is it said, *Amicus alter ipse,*³

But that true friends should be two in body, but one in mind,

As it were, one⁴ transformed into another?
Which, against kind

Though it seem, yet, in good faith, when I am alone 335

I forget I am Pithias, methink I am
Damon.

STEPHANO. That could I never do, to forget myself! Full well I know, Wheresoever I go, that I am *pauper*¹
Stephano!

But I pray you, sir, for all your philosophy,

See that in this court you walk very wisely. 340

You are but newly come hither; being strangers, ye know,

Many eyes are bent on you in the streets as ye go.

Many spies are abroad; you can not be too circumspect.

DAMON. Stephano, because thou art careful of me, thy master, I do thee
praise.

Yet think this for a surety: no state to dis-
please 345

By talk or otherwise my friend and I intend; we will here

As men that come to see the soil and manners of all men of every degree.

Pythagoras said that this world was like a stage,

Whereon many play their parts; the lookers-on, the sage

Philosophers are, saith he, whose part is to learn 350

The manners of all nations, and the good from the bad to discern.

STEPHANO. Good faith, sir, concerning the people — they are not gay;

And, as far as I see, they be mummers,² for nought they say

For the most part, whatsoever you ask
them.

The soil is such that to live here I cannot
like. 355

DAMON. Thou speakest according to thy learning; but I say,

*Omne solum forti*³ patria, a wise man may live everywhere.

Therefore, my dear friend Pithias,
Let us view this town in every place,

And then consider the people's manners
also. 360

³ A. Omnia solum fortis. "Every soil is a fatherland to a brave man."

PITHIAS. As you will, my Damon. But how say you, Stephano?

Is it not best, ere we go further, to take some repast?

STEPHANO. In faith, I like well ¹ this question, sir! For all your haste,
To eat somewhat I pray you think it no folly.
It is high dinner time, I know by my belly. 365

DAMON. Then let us to our lodging depart. When dinner is done

We will view this city as we have begun.
Exeant.

Here entereth Carisophus.

[CARISOPHUS.] Once again in hope of good wind I hoise up my sail;

I go into the city to find some prey for mine avail.

I hunger while I may see these strangers that lately 370

Arrived. I were safe if once I might meet them happily.

Let them bark that lust at this kind of gain,
He is a fool that for his profit will not take pain!

Though it be joined with other men's hurt,
I care not at all.

For profit I will accuse any man, hap what
shall. 375

But soft, sirs; I pray you hush! What are they that comes here?

By their apparel and countenance some strangers they appear.

I will shroud myself secretly even here for a while,

To hear all their talk, that I may them
beguile. [He stands aside.]

Here entereth Damon and Stephano.

[STEPHANO.] A short horse soon curried!
My belly waxeth thinner; 380

I am as hungry now as when I went to dinner.

Your philosophical diet is so fine and small
That you may eat your dinner and supper at once, and not surfeit at all.

DAMON. Stephano, much meat breeds heaviness; thin diet makes thee
light.

STEPHANO. I may be lighter thereby, but I shall never run the faster. 385

DAMON. I have had sufficiently; discourse of amity,

Which I had at dinner with Pithias, and his pleasant company

Hath fully satisfied me. It doth me good to feed mine eyes on him.

STEPHANO. Course or discourse, your course is very coarse. For all your talk,

You had but one bare course, and that was pick, rise, and walk. 390

And surely, for all your talk of philosophy,
I never heard that a man with words could fill his belly.

Feed your eyes, quoth you? the reason
from my wisdom swerveth;

I stared on you both — and yet my belly starveth!

DAMON. Ah, Stephano, small diet maketh
a fine memory. 395

STEPHANO. I care not for your crafty sophistry.

You two are fine; let me be fed like a gross knave still.

I pray you licence me for a while to have my will

At home to tarry whiles you take view of this city.

To find some odd victuals in a corner I am very witty. 400

DAMON. At your pleasure, sir; I will wait on myself this day.

Yet attend upon Pithias, which for a purpose tarristieth at home;

So doing, you wait upon me also.

STEPHANO. With wings on my feet I go!
[Exit.]

DAMON. Not in vain the poet saith, *Nat-uram furcâ expellas, tamen usque recurret;*¹ 405

For train up a bondman never to so good a behaviour,

Yet in some point of servility he will savour:

As this Stephano, trusty to me his master,
loving and kind,

Yet touching his belly a very bondman I him find.

¹ "Drive nature out with a pitchfork, still ever will she return." Horace, Epistles, I. 10. 24.

He is to be borne withal,¹ being so just and truc. 410

I assure you, I would not change him for no new.

But methinks this is a pleasant city.
The seat is good,² and yet not strong; and that is great pity.

CARISOPHUS (aside). I am safe; he is mine own!

DAMON. The air subtle and fine; the people should be witty 415
That dwell under this climate in so pure a region.

A trimmer plat I have not seen in my peregrination.

Nothing misliketh me in this country
But that I hear such muttering of cruelty.
Fame reporteth strange things of Dionysius. 420

But kings' matters, passing our reach, pertain not to us.

CARISOPHUS [advancing]. Dionysius, quoth you? Since the world began,

In Sicilia never reigned so cruel a man!
A despiteful tyrant to all men! I marvel, I,

That none makes him away, and that suddenly. 425

DAMON. My friend, the gods forbid so cruel a thing

That any man should lift up his sword against the king,

Or seek other means by death him to prevent,

Whom to rule on earth the mighty gods have sent.

But, my friend, leave off this talk of King
Dionysius. 430

CARISOPHUS. Why, sir? He cannot hear us.

DAMON. What, then? *An nescis longas regibus esse manus?*³

It is no safe talking of them that strikes afar off.

But, leaving kings' matters, I pray you show me this courtesy,

To describe in few words the state of this city. 435

A traveller I am, desirous to know

The state of each country wherever I go —
Not to the hurt of any state, but to get experience thereby.

It is not for nought that the poet doth cry,
*Dic mihi musa virum, captæ post tempore
Trojæ,* 440

*Qui mores hominum multorum vidit et urbes.*¹

In which verses, as some writers do scan,
The poet describeth a perfect wise man;²
Even so I, being a stranger addicted to philosophy,

To see the state of countries myself I apply. 445

CARISOPHUS. Sir, I like this intent. But may I ask your name without scorn?

DAMON. My name is Damon, well known in my country, a gentleman born.

CARISOPHUS. You do wisely to search the state of each country

To bear intelligence thereof whither you lust. [Aside.] He is a spy.

Sir, I pray you have patience awhile, for I have to do hereby. 450

View this weak part of this city as you stand, and I very quickly

Will return to you again; and then will I show

The state of all this country, and of the court also. Exit.

DAMON. I thank you for your courtesy.
This chanceth well, that I

Met with this gentleman so happily; 455
Which, as it seemeth, misliketh something,

Else he would not talk so boldly of the
king,

And that to a stranger. But lo, where he comes in haste.

Here entereth Carisophus and Snap.

[CARISOPHUS.] This is he, fellow Snap.
Snap him up! Away with him!

SNAP. Good fellow, thou must go with me to the court. 460

DAMON. To the court, sir! and why?

CARISOPHUS. Well, we will dispute that

² Scholars thought that in Odysseus Homer was attempting to portray the virtues of the ideal man in private life.

³ "Know you not that kings have long hands?" Ovid, Heroides, xvi [xviii], 166.

before the king. Away with him quickly!

DAMON. Is this the courtesy you promised me, and that very lately?

CARISOPHUS. Away with him, I say!

DAMON. Use no violence; I will go with you quietly. 465

Exeunt omnes

Here entereth Aristippus.

[ARISTIPPUS.] Ah, sirrah, by'r Lady, Aristippus likes Dionysius' court very well,

Which in passing joys and pleasures doth excel,

Where he hath dapsiles cœnas, geniales lectos, et auro

*Fulgentem tyranni zonam.*¹

I have plied the harvest, and stroke when the iron was hot. 470

When I spied my time, I was not squeamish to crave, God wot!

But with some pleasant toy² I crept into the king's bosom,

For which Dionysius gave me *Auri talentum magnum*³ —

A large reward for so simple services.

What, then? the king's praise standeth chiefly in bountifulness; 475

Which thing, though I told the king very pleasantly,

Yet can I prove it by good writers of great antiquity.

But that shall not need at this time, since that I have abundantly;

When I lack hereafter I will use this point of philosophy.

But now, whereas I have felt the king's liberality, 480

As princely as it came I will spend it as regally.

Money is current, men say, and current comes of currendo;

Then will I make money run, as his nature requireth, I trow.

For what becomes a philosopher best

But to despise money above the rest? 485

³ "A great talent of gold." A. aure.

And yet not so despise it but to have in store

Enough to serve his own turn, and somewhat more.

With sundry sports and taunts yesternight I delighted the king,

That with his loud laughter the whole court did ring —

And I thought he laugh'd not merrier than I when I got this money! 490

But, mumbudget!¹ for Carisophus I espy In haste to come hither. I must handle the knave finely.

O Carisophus! my dearest friend! my trusty companion!

What news with you? Where have you been so long?

Here entereth Carisophus.

[CARISOPHUS.] My best beloved friend Aristippus, I am come at last. 495

I have not spent all my time in waste;

I have got a prey, and that a good one, I trow.

ARISTIPPUS. What prey is that? faint would I know.

CARISOPHUS. Such a crafty spy I have caught, I dare say,

As never was in Sicilia before this day! 500

Such a one as viewed every weak place in the city,

Survived the haven, and each bulwark; in talk very witty —

And yet by some words himself he did bewray.

ARISTIPPUS. I think so in good faith — as you did handle him.

CARISOPHUS. I handled him clerkly.² I joined in talk with him courteously;

But when we were entered, I let him speak his will; and I 506

Suck'd out thus much of his words, that I made him say plainly

He was come hither to know the state of the city;

And not only this, but that he would understand

The state of Dionysius' court and of the whole land. 510

Which words when I heard, I desired him to stay

² Artfully.

Till I had done a little business of the way, Promising him to return again quickly; and so did convey Myself to the court for Snap the tipstaff;¹
 which came and upsnatched him, Brought him to the court, and in the porter's lodge dispatched him. 515
 After I ran to Dionysius as fast as I could,
 And bewrayed this matter to him which I have you told.
 Which thing when he heard, being very merry before,
 He suddenly fell in dump, and, foaming
 like a boar,
 At last he swore in great rage that he should die 520
 By the sword or the wheel, and that very shortly.
 I am too shamefast; for my travail² and toil
 I crave nothing of Dionysius but only his spoil.
 Little hath he about him but a few moth-eaten crowns of gold.
 Cha pouch'd³ them up already — they are sure in hold. 525
 And now I go into the city, to say sooth,
 To see what he hath at his lodging to make up my mouth.⁴
 ARISTIPPUS. My Carisophus, you have done good service. But what is the spy's name?
 CARISOPHUS. He is called Damon, born in Greece, from whence lately he came.
 ARISTIPPUS. By my troth, I will go see him, and speak with him too, if I
 may. 530
 CARISOPHUS. Do so, I pray you. But yet,
 by the way,
 As occasion serveth, commend my service
 to the king.
 ARISTIPPUS. *Dictum sapienti sat est.*⁵ friend Carisophus, shall I forget that thing?
 No, I warrant you! Though I say little to your face,
 I will lay on with my mouth⁶ for you to Dionysius, when I am in place. 535

[Aside.] If I speak one word for such a knave, hang me! Exit.
 CARISOPHUS. Our fine philosopher, our trim learned elf,
 Is gone to see as false a spy as himself!
 Damon smatters¹ as well as he of crafty
 philosophy,
 And can turn cat in the pan² very prettily;
 But Carisophus hath given him such a mighty check 541
 As, I think, in the end will break his neck.
 What care I for that! Why would he then pry,
 And learn the secret estate of our country
 and city?
 He is but a stranger! By his fall let others be wise. 545
 I care not who fall, so that I may rise!
 As for fine Aristippus, I will keep in with
 him;
 He is a shrewd fool to deal withal; he can swim.
 And yet, by my troth, to speak my conscience plainly,
 I will use his friendship to mine own commodity.³ 550
 While Dionysius favoureth him, Aristippus shall be mine;
 But if the king once frown on him, then good night, Tomalin!⁴
 He shall be as strange⁵ as though I never saw him before.
 But I tarry too long; I will prate no more.
 Jack, come away! 555
 JACK. At hand, sir.
 CARISOPHUS. At Damon's lodging if that you see Any stir to arise, be still at hand by
 me;
 Rather than I will lose the spoil I will blade⁶ it out.
 [Exeunt Carisophus and Jack.]

² A proverbial expression meaning "to reverse the order of things so dexterously as to make them appear the very opposite of what they really are." (N.E.D.)

³ Profit, advantage.

⁴ Hazlitt cites this phrase in his Proverbs.

⁵ As a stranger to me.

⁶ Fight the matter out with my sword.

² Labor. ³ Pursued.

⁴ Provision (especially court-provision).

⁵ "A word to the wise is sufficient."

⁶ A. I will lay one month. Emend. by Collier.

Here entereth Pithias and Stephano.

[PITHIAS.] What strange news are these!

Ah, my Stephano, 560

Is my Damon in prison, as the voice doth go?

STEPHANO. It is true. O cruel hap! He is taken for a spy,

And, as they say, by Dionysius' own mouth condemned to die.

PITHIAS. To die! Alas! for what cause?

STEPHANO. A sycophant falsely accused him; other cause there is none. 565

But,¹ O Jupiter, of all wrongs the revenger,

Seest thou this injustice, and wilt thou stay any longer

From heaven to send down thy hot consuming fire

To destroy the workers of wrong, which provoke thy just ire?

Alas, Master Pithias, what shall we do, 570

Being in a strange country, void of friends and acquaintance too?

Ah, poor Stephano, hast thou lived to see this day,

To see thy true master unjustly made away?

PITHIAS. Stephano, seeing the matter is come to this extremity,

Let us make virtue our friend of mere necessity. 575

Run thou to the court, and understand secretly

As much as thou canst of Damon's cause; and I

Will make some means to entreat Aristippus.

He can do much, as I hear, with King Dionysius.

STEPHANO. I am gone, sir. Ah, I would to God my travail and pain 580 Might restore my master to his liberty again!

PITHIAS. Ah, woful Pithias, sith now I am alone

What way shall I first begin to make my moan?

What words shall I find apt for my complaint?

Damon, my friend, my joy, my life, is in peril! Of force I must now faint.

¹ A. That. Silently emended in Hazlitt.

But, O music, as in joyful times¹ thy merry notes I did borrow, 586
So now lend me thy yearful tunes to utter my sorrow.

Here Pithias sings, and the regals² play.

Awake, ye woful wights

That long have wept in woe!

Resign to me your plaints and tears,

My hapless hap to show.

My woe no tongue can tell,

Ne³ pen can well descry.

O, what a death is this to hear,

Damon my friend must die! 595

The loss of worldly wealth

Man's wisdom may restore;

And physic hath provided too

A salve for every sore:

But my true friend once lost,

No art can well supply.

Then, what a death is this to hear,

Damon my friend must die! 603

My mouth, refuse the food

That should my limbs sustain.

Let sorrow sink into my breast

And ransack every vein.

You⁴ Furies, all at once

On me your torments try.

Why should I live, since that I hear

Damon my friend must⁵ die? 611

Gripe me, you greedy grief,

And present pangs of death!

You sisters three with cruel hands,

With speed now⁶ stop my breath!

Shrine me in clay alive.

Some good man stop mine eye.

O death, come now, seeing I hear

Damon my friend must die. 619

He speaketh this after the song.

In vain I call for death, which heareth not my complaint.

But what wisdom is this, in such extremity to faint?

² Small portable organs.

³ H. No.

⁴ H. Ye.

⁵ A. should.

⁶ H. alters to come. At this point I cease to note the errors in Hazlitt's text, although these errors become more numerous and serious.

*Multum juva[t] in re malâ animus bonus.*¹
 I will to the court myself to make friends, and that presently.
 I will never forsake my friend in time of misery.
 But do I see Stephano amazed hither to run? 625

Here entereth Stephano.

[STEPHANO.] O Pithias! Pithias! we are all undone!

Mine own ears have sucked in mine own sorrow!

I heard Dionysius swear that Damon should die to-morrow.

PITHIAS. How camest thou so near the presence of the king
 That thou mightest hear Dionysius speak
 this thing? 630

STEPHANO. By friendship I gat into the court, where in great audience

I heard Dionysius with his own mouth give this cruel sentence

By these express words: that Damon, the Greek, that crafty spy,

Without further judgment to-morrow
 should die.

Believe me, Pithias, with these ears I heard it myself. 635

PITHIAS. Then how near is my death also!
 Ah, woe is me!

Ah my Damon, another myself, shall I forego thee?

STEPHANO. Sir, there is no time of lamenting now. It behoveth us

To make means to them which can do much with Dionysius,

That he be not made away ere his cause be fully heard; for we see 640

By evil report things be made to princes far worse than they be.

But lo, yonder cometh Aristippus, in great favour with king Dionysius.

Entreat him to speak a good word to the king for us,

And in the mean season I will to your lodging to see all things safe there. Exit.

PITHIAS. To that I agree. But let us slip aside his talk to hear. 645

[He stands aside.]

Here entereth Aristippus.

[ARISTIPPUS.] Here is a sudden change, indeed! a strange metamorphosis!

This court is clean altered. Who would have thought this?

Dionysius, of late so pleasant and merry,
 Is quite changed now into such melancholy That nothing can please him. He walketh up and down 650

Fretting and chaffing; on every man he doth frown.

In so much that when I in pleasant words began to play,

So sternly he frowned on me, and knit me up so short,

I perceive it is no safe playing with lions
 but when it please them;

If you claw where it itch not, you shall disease¹ them — 655

And so perhaps get a clap. Mine own proof taught me this —

That it is very good to be merry and wise.
 The only cause of this hurly-burly is Carisophus, that wicked man,

 Which lately took Damon for a spy, a poor gentleman,

And hath incensed the king against him so despitefully 660

That Dionysius hath judged him tomorrow to die.

I have talk'd with Damon, whom though in words I found very witty,

Yet was he more curious² than wise in viewing this city.

But truly, for aught I can learn, there is no
 cause why

So suddenly and cruelly he should be condemned to die. 665

Howsoever it be, this is the short and
 long —

I dare not gainsay the king, be it right or wrong.

I am sorry; and that is all I may or can do
 in this case.

Nought availeth persuasion where froward opinion taketh place.

[Pithias advances.]

PITHIAS. Sir, if humble suits you would not despise, 670

¹ Discomfort.

² Desirous of knowledge.

Then bow on me your pitiful eyes.
 My name is Pithias, in Greece well known,
 A perfect friend to that woful Damon,
 Which now a poor captive in this court
 doth lie,
 By the king's own mouth, as I hear, condemned to die; 675
 For whom I crave your mastership's goodness,
 To stand his friend in this his great distress.
 Nought hath he done worthy of death; but very fondly,¹
 Being a stranger, he viewed this city,
 For no evil practices, but to feed his eyes. 680
 But seeing Dionysius is informed otherwise,
 My suit is to you, when you see time and
 place,
 To assuage the king's anger, and to purchase his grace.
 In which doing you shall not do good to one only,
 But you shall further two, and that fully. 685
 ARISTIPPUS. My friend, in this case I can do you no pleasure.
 PITHIAS. Sir, you serve in the court, as fame doth tell.
 ARISTIPPUS. I am of the court, indeed,
 but none of the Council.
 PITHIAS. As I hear, none is in greater favour with the king than you at this day.
 ARISTIPPUS. The more in favour, the less
 I dare say. 690
 PITHIAS. It is a courtier's praise to help strangers in misery.
 ARISTIPPUS. To help another, and hurt myself, it is an evil point of courtesy.
 PITHIAS. You shall not hurt yourself to speak for the innocent.
 ARISTIPPUS. He is not innocent whom the king judgeth nocent.
 PITHIAS. Why, sir, do you think this matter past all remedy? 695 ARISTIPPUS. So far past that Dionysius hath sworn Damon to-morrow shall die.

¹ Foolishly.

PITHIAS. This word my trembling heart cutteth in two.
 Ah, sir, in this woful case what wist [ye] I best to do?
 ARISTIPPUS. Best to content yourself
 when there is no remedy.
 He is well relieved that foreknoweth his misery. 700
 Yet, if any comfort be, it resteth in Eubulus,
 The chiefest councillor about King Diony-
 sius,
 Which pitieth Damon's case in this great extremity,
 Persuading the king from all kind of cruelty.
 PITHIAS. The mighty gods preserve you for this word of comfort! 705 Taking my leave of your goodness, I will now resort
 To Eubulus, that good councillor.
 But hark! methink I hear a trumpet blow.
 ARISTIPPUS. The king is at hand. Stand close in the prease.¹ Beware! If he know
 You are friend to Damon, he will take you for a spy also. 710
 Farewell; I dare not be seen with you.
Here entereth King Dionysius, Eubulus the Councillor, and Gronno the Hangman.
 DIONYSIUS. Gronno, do my commandment; strike off Damon's irons by
 and by,
 Then bring him forth. I myself will see him executed presently.² GRONNO. O mighty king, your commandment will I do speedily.
 DIONYSIUS. Eubulus, thou hast talked in vain, for sure he shall die. 715 Shall I suffer my life to stand in peril of every spy?
 EUBULUS. That he conspired against your person, his accuser cannot say.
 He only viewed your city; and will you for that make him away?
 DIONYSIUS. What he would have done, the guess is great. He minded me to hurt
 That came so slyly to search out the secret estate of my court. 720

Shall I still live in fear? No, no; I will cut off such imps betime, Lest that to my farther danger too high they climb.

EUBULUS. Yet have the mighty gods immortal fame assigned

To all worldly princes which in mercy be inclined.

DIONYSIUS. Let fame talk what she list, so I may live in safety. 725

EUBULUS. The only mean to that is to use
mercy.

DIONYSIUS. A mild prince the people despiseeth.

EUBULUS. A cruel king the people hateth.

DIONYSIUS. Let them hate me, so they fear me.

EUBULUS. That is not the way to live in safety. 730

DIONYSIUS. My sword and power shall purchase my quietness.

EUBULUS. That is sooner procured by mercy and gentleness.

DIONYSIUS. Dionysius ought to be feared.

EUBULUS. Better for him to be well beloved.

DIONYSIUS. Fortune maketh all things subject to my power. 735

EUBULUS. Believe her not, she is a light goddess; she can laugh and low'r.

DIONYSIUS. A king's praise standeth in the revenging of his enemy.

EUBULUS. A greater praise to win him by clemency.

DIONYSIUS. To suffer the wicked live, it is no mercy.

EUBULUS. To kill the innocent, it is great cruelty. 740

DIONYSIUS. Is Damon innocent which so craftily undermined ¹ Carisophus

To understand what he could of king
Dionysius?

Which survived the haven, and each bulwark in the city,

Where battery might be laid, what way best to approach? Shall I

Suffer such a one to live, that worketh me such despite? 745

No, he shall die! Then I am safe: a dead dog cannot bite.

EUBULUS. But yet, O mighty [king,] ¹ my duty bindeth me

To give such counsel as with your honour may best agree.

The strongest pillars of princely dignity
I find this — justice with mercy, and prudent liberality: 750

The one judgeth all things by upright equity,

The other rewardeth the worthy, flying each extremity.

As to spare those which offend maliciously,
It may be called no justice, but extreme injury;

So, upon suspicion of each thing not well-proved, 755

To put to death presently whom envious flattery accused,

It seemeth of tyranny. And upon what fickle ground all tyrants do stand,

Athens and Lacedemon can teach you, if it be rightly scann'd;

And not only these citizens, but who curiously seeks

The whole histories of all the world — not only of Romans and Greeks — 760

Shall well perceive of all tyrants the ruinous fall;

Their state uncertain, beloved of none, but hated of all.

Of merciful princes to set out the passing ²
felicity

I need not; enough of that even these days do testify.

They live devoid of fear, their sleeps are sound, they dread no enemy, 765

They are feared and loved. And why?
they rule with justice and mercy —

Extending justice to such as wickedly from justice have swerved,

Mercy unto those who in opinion of simpleness ³ have mercy deserved.

Of liberty nought I say, but only this thing:

Liberty upholdeth the state of a king, 770

Whose large bountifulness ought to fall to this issue —

² Surpassing.

³ A. where opinion simpleness; emend. by Hazlitt, who explains: "Simpleness, ignorance — i.e., who have deserved mercy, having offended from not knowing better."

To reward none but such as deserve it for virtue.

Which merciful justice, if you would follow, and provident liberality, wither the caterpillars of all courts, et fruges consumere nati,¹ parasites with wealth puff'd up, should not look so high; 775 yet for this simple fact poor Damon should die.

DIONYSIUS. With pain mine ears have heard this vain talk of mercy.

I tell thee, fear and terror defendeth kings only.

Till he be gone, whom I suspect, how shall I live quietly,

Whose memory with chilling horror fills my breast day and night violently? 780

My dreadful dreams of him bereaves my rest; on bed I lie

Shaking and trembling, as one ready to yield his throat to Damon's sword.

This quaking dread nothing but Damon's blood can stay.

Better he die, than I to be tormented with fear alway.

He shall die, though Eubulus consent not thereto. 785

It is lawful for kings, as they list, all things to do.

Here Gronno [assisted by Snap] bringeth in Damon; and Pithias meeteth him by the way.

PITHIAS. O my Damon!

DAMON. O my Pithias! Seeing death must part us, farewell for ever!

PITHIAS. O Damon! O my sweet friend!

SNAP. Away from the prisoner! What a prease have we here! 790

GRONNO. As you commanded, O mighty king, we have brought Damon.

DIONYSIUS. Then, go to; make ready. I will not stir out of this place

Till I see his head stroken off before my face.

GRONNO. It shall be done, sir. [To Damon.] Because your eyes have made such a-do

I will knock down this your lantern, and shut up your shop-window too. 795

DAMON. O mighty king, where-as no truth my innocent life can save,

But that so greedily you thirst¹ my guiltless blood to have,

Albeit (even in thought) I had not ought against your person.²

Yet now I plead not for life, ne will I crave your pardon.

But seeing in Greece, my country, where well I am known, 800

I have worldly things fit for mine alliance³ when I am gone,

To dispose them ere I die, if I might obtain leisure,

I would account it (O king) for a passing great pleasure —

Not to prolong my life thereby (for which I reckon not this),

But to set my things in a stay.⁴ And surely I will not miss, 805

Upon the faith which all gentlemen ought to embrace,

To return again, at your time to appoint, to yield my body here in this place.

Grant me (O king) such time to despatch this inquiry,⁵

And I will not fail, when you appoint, even here my life to pay.⁶

DIONYSIUS. A pleasant request! as though I could trust him absent 810

Whom in no wise I cannot trust being present!

And yet, though I swear the contrary, do that I require —

Give me a pledge for thy return — and have thine own desire.

He is as near now as he was before!

DAMON. There is no surer nor greater pledge than the faith of a gentleman. 815

DIONYSIUS. It was wont to be; but otherwise now the world doth stand.

Therefore do as I say, else presently yield thy neck to the sword.

If I might with my honour, I would recall my word.

² A. Albeit (even for thought) for ought against your person. Silently emended in Hazlitt as above.

³ Kindred

⁴ Put in order.

⁵ A. injurie, which may be correct. Changed by Hazlitt.

⁶ The 1582 ed. has to yeelde speedily, which rhymes with the preceding line.

¹ "And born to consume the fruits of the earth." Horace Epist., 1. 2. 27.

PITHIAS [advancing]. Stand to your word,
O king! for kings ought nothing say
But that they would perform in perfect deeds alway. 820

A pledge you did require when Damon his suit did meve;

For which with heart and stretched hands
most humble thanks I give.

And that you may not say but Damon hath a friend

That loves him better than his own life,
and will do, to his end,

Take me, O mighty king! My life I pawn for his. 825

Strike off my head, if Damon hap at his day to miss.

DIONYSIUS. What art thou that chargest me with my word so boldly here?

PITHIAS. I am Pithias, a Greek born, which hold Damon my friend full dear.

DIONYSIUS. Too dear, perhaps, to hazard thy life for him! What fondness¹ moveth thee?

PITHIAS. No fondness at all, but perfect
amity. 830

DIONYSIUS. A mad kind of amity! Advise thyself well: if Damon fail at his day,

Which shall be justly appointed, wilt thou die for him, to me his life to pay?

PITHIAS. Most willingly, O mighty king.
If Damon fail, let Pithias die.

DIONYSIUS. Thou seemest to trust his words that pawnest thy life so frankly.

PITHIAS. What Damon saith, Pithias believeth assuredly. 835

DIONYSIUS. Take heed! For life wordly men break promise in many things.

PITHIAS. Though wordly men do so, it never haps amongst friends.

DIONYSIUS. What callest thou friends?
Are they not men? is not this true?

PITHIAS. Men they be, but such men as love one another only for virtue.

DIONYSIUS. For what virtue dost thou love this spy, this Damon? 840

PITHIAS. For that virtue which yet to you is unknown.

DIONYSIUS. Eubulus, what shall I do? I would despatch this Damon fain;

¹ Folly.

But this foolish fellow so chargeth me that I may not call back my word again.

EUBULUS. The reverent majesty of a king stands chiefly in keeping his promise.

What you have said this whole court beareth witness. 845

Save your honour, whatsoever you do.

DIONYSIUS. For saving mine honour, I must forbear my will. Go to.

Pithias, seeing thou tookest me at my word, take Damon to thee;

For two months he is thine. [To Gronno.]
Unbind him; I set him free.

Which time once expired, if he appear not the next day by noon, 850

Without further delay thou shalt lose thy life, and that full soon!

Whether he die by the way, or lie sick in his bed,

If he return not then, thou shalt either hang or lose thy head!

PITHIAS. For this, O mighty king, I yield immortal thanks! O joyful day!

DIONYSIUS. Gronno, take him to thee.
Bind him; see him kept in safety:

If he escape, assure thyself for him thou shalt die. 856

Eubulus, let us depart to talk of this strange thing within.

EUBULUS. I follow.

Exit [Eubulus following Dionysius and his train. Gronno, Snap, Damon and Pithias remain].

GRONNO. Damon, thou servest the gods well to-day; be thou of comfort.

As for you, sir, I think you will be hanged in sport. 860

You heard what the king said; I must keep you safely.

By Cock, so I will! You shall rather hang than I!

Come on your way.

PITHIAS. My Damon, farewell! The gods have thee in keeping.

DAMON. O, my Pithias, my pledge, farewell! I part from thee weeping. 865

But joyful at my day appointed I will return again,

When I will deliver thee from all trouble and pain.

Stephano will I leave behind me to wait upon thee in prison alone;
 And I, whom fortune hath reserved to this misery, will walk home.
 Ah, my Pithias, my pledge, my life, my friend, farewell! 870
 PITHIAS. Farewell, my Damon!
 DAMON. Loth I am to depart. Sith sobs my trembling tongue doth stay,
 O music, sound my doleful plaints when I am gone my way. [Exit Damon.]
 GRONNO. I am glad he is gone; I had almost wept too. Come, Pithias.
 So God help me, I am sorry for thy foolish case. 875
 Wilt thou venter thy life for a man so fondly?
 PITHIAS. It is no venter; my friend is just, for whom I desire to die.
 GRONNO. Here is a madman! I tell thee, I have a wife whom I love well,
 And if ich would die for her, chould ich were in hell!
 Wilt thou do more for a man than I would for a woman? 880 PITHIAS. Yea, that I will.
 GRONNO. Then, come on your ways; you must to prison in haste.
 I fear you will repent this folly at last.
 PITHIAS. That shalt thou never see. But, O music, as my Damon requested thee, Sound out thy doleful tunes in this time of calamity. 885
Exit [Pithias, led away by Gronno].

Here the regals play a mourning song, and Damon cometh in in mariner's apparel and Stephano with him.

[DAMON.] Weep no more, Stephano; this is but destiny.
 Had not this happ'd, yet I know I am born to die;
 Where or in what place, the gods know alone
 To whose judgment myself I commit.
 Therefore leave off thy moan,
 And wait upon Pithias in prison till I return again, 890
 In whom my joy, my care, and life doth only remain.
 STEPHANO. O my dear master, let me go with you; for my poor company

Shall be some small comfort in this time of misery.
 DAMON. O Stephano, hast thou been so long with me,
 And yet dost not know the force of true amity? 895
 I tell thee once again, my friend and I are but one.
 Wait upon Pithias, and think thou art with Damon.
 Whereof I may not now discourse, the time passeth away;
 The sooner I am gone, the shorter shall be my journey.
 Therefore farewell, Stephano! Commend me to my friend Pithias, 900
 Whom I trust to deliver in time out of this woful case.
 STEPHANO. Farewell, my dear master, since your pleasure is so.
 [Exit Damon.]
 O cruel hap! O poor Stephano!
 O cursed Carisophus, that first moved this tragedy!
 [He hears a noise in Damon's lodging.]
 But what a noise is this? Is all well within, trow ye? 905
 I fear all be not well within; I will go see. — [He goes in.]
 Come out, you weasel! Are you seeking eggs in Damon's chest?
 Come out, I say! Wilt thou be packing?
 By Cock, you were best!

[Re-enter Stephano, pulling out Carisophus, Jack following.]

CARISOPHUS. How durst thou, villain, to lay hands on me?
 STEPHANO. Out, sir knave, or I will send ye! 910
 Art thou not content to accuse Damon wrongfully,
 But wilt thou rob him also, and that openly?
 CARISOPHUS. The king gave me the spoil; to take mine own wilt thou let me?
 STEPHANO. Thine own, villain! Where is thine authority?
 CARISOPHUS. I am authority of myself; dost thou not know? 915

STEPHANO. By'r Lady, that is somewhat!
But have you no more to show?

CARISOPHUS. What if I have not?

STEPHANO. Then for an earnest penny take this blow. [Strikes him.]

I shall bombast you, you mocking knave!
Chill put pro¹ in my purse for this
time!

CARISOPHUS. Jack, give me my sword and target. 920

JACK. I cannot come to you, master; this knave doth me let. Hold, master.
[Extending the sword.]

STEPHANO [to Jack]. Away, Jaekanapes, else I will colpheg² you by and by!

Ye slave, I will have my pennyworths of thee therefore, if I die!

About, villain! [He beats Carisophus.]

CARISOPHUS. O citizens, help to defend
me! 925

STEPHANO. Nay, they will rather help to hang thee.

CARISOPHUS. Good fellow, let us reason this matter quietly; beat me no
more.

STEPHANO. Of this condition I will stay — if thou swear, as thou art an honest
man,

Thou wilt say nothing to the king of this when I am gone.

CARISOPHUS. I will say nothing — here is my hand — as I am an honest
man. 930

STEPHANO. Then say on thy mind. I have taken a wise oath on him, have I not, trow ye,

To trust such a false knave upon his honesty?

As he is an honest man (quoth you!) he may bewray all to the king,

And break his oath for this never a whit — but, my franion,³ I tell you this one
thing:

If you disclose this I will devise such a way 935

That whilst thou livest thou shalt remember this day.

CARISOPHUS. You need not devise for that, for this day is printed in my memory!

I warrant you I shall remember this beating till I die.

But seeing of courtesy you have granted that we should talk quietly, Methinks in calling me knave you do me much injury. 940

STEPHANO. Why so, I pray thee heartily?

CARISOPHUS. Because I am the king's man. Keeps the king any knaves?

STEPHANO. He should not; but what he doth, it is evident by thee.

And, as far as I can learn or understand,
There is none better able to keep knives in all the land. 945

CARISOPHUS. O sir, I am a courtier; when courtiers shall hear tell

How you have used me, they will not take it well.

STEPHANO. Nay, all right courtiers will ken¹ me thank. And wot you
why?

Because I handled a counterfeit courtier in his kind so finely.

What, sir! all are not courtiers that have a counterfeit show; 950

In a troop of honest men some knaves may stand, ye know —

Such as by stealth creep in under the colour of honesty,

Which sort under that cloak do all kinds of villainy.

A right courtier is virtuous, gentle, and full of urbanity,

Hurting no man, good to all, devoid of all
villainy; 955

But such as thou art, fountains of squir-rility and vain delights;

Though you hang by the courts, you are but flatt'ring parasites,

As well deserving the right name of courtesy

As the coward knight the true praise of chivalry.

I could say more, but I will not, for that I am your well-willer. 960

In faith, Carisophus, you are no courtier,
but a caterpillar,

A sycophant, a parasite, a flatterer, and a
knave!

Whether I will or no, these names you must have;

2 Cuff.

3 Gay fellow.

1 Give.

How well you deserve this by your deeds it is known,

For that so unjustly thou hast accused poor Damon, 965

Whose woful case the gods help alone.

CARISOPHUS. Sir, are you his servant that you pity his case so?

STEPHANO. No, bum troth, goodman
Grumb; his name is Stephano.

I am called Onaphets,¹ if needs you will know.

[Aside.] The knave beginneth to sift me;
but I turn my name in and out, 970

Cretiso cum Cretense,² to make him a lout.³

CARISOPHUS. What mumble you with yourself, Master Onaphets?

STEPHANO. I am reckoning with myself
how I may pay my debts.

CARISOPHUS. You have paid me more than you did owe me!

STEPHANO. Nay, upon a farther reckoning, I will pay you more, if I know

Either you talk of that is done, or by your sycophantical envy 976

You prick forth Dionysius the sooner that Damon may die.

I will so pay thee that thy bones shall rattle in thy skin.

Remember what I have said; Onaphets is my name. Exit.

CARISOPHUS. The sturdy knave is gone;
the devil him take! 980

He hath made my head, shoulders, arms, sides, and all to ache.

Thou whoreson villain boy, why didst thou wait no better?

As he paid me, so will I not die thy debtor.
[Strikes him.]

JACK. Master, why do you fight with me?
I am not your match, you see.

You durst not fight with him that is gone;
and will you wreak your anger on
me? 985

CARISOPHUS. Thou villain, by thee I have lost mine honour, —

Beaten with a cudgel like a slave, a vacabone,⁴ or a lazy lubber,

And not given one blow again! Hast thou handled me well?

² "I lie with the Cretan." The Cretans were famous as liars.

³ Fool.

⁴ Vagabond.

JACK. Master, I handled you not, but who did handle you very handsomely, you can tell.

CARISOPHUS. Handsomely, thou crack-rope? ¹ 990

JACK. Yea, sir, very handsomely! I hold ² you a groat,

He handled you so handsomely that he left not one mote in your coat.

CARISOPHUS. O, I had firk'd him trimly, thou villain, if thou hadst given me my sword.

JACK. It is better as it is, master, believe me, at a word.

If he had seen your weapon he would have been fiercer, 995

And so perhaps beat you worse. I speak it with my heart,

You were never yet at the dealing of fence-blows ³ but you had four away for your part.

It is but your luck. You are man good enough;

But the Welsh Onaphets was a vengeance-knave, and rough!

Master, you were best go home and rest in your bed; 1000

Methinks your cap waxeth too little for
your head.

CARISOPHUS. What! doth my head swell?

JACK. Yea, as big as a codshead, and bleeds too.

CARISOPHUS. I am ashamed to show my face with this hue.

JACK. No shame at all; men have been beaten far better than you. 1005

CARISOPHUS. I must go to the chirurgeon's. What shall I say when I am a-dressing?

JACK. You may say truly you met with a knave's blessing.⁴ Exeunt.

Here entereth Aristippus.

[ARISTIPPUS.] By mine own experience I prove true that many men tell:

To live in court not beloved, better be in hell.

What crying out, what cursing is there within of Carisophus, 1010

³ Fencing. ⁴ A cant term for a beating.

Because he accused Damon to King Di-
 onysius!
 Even now he came whining and crying into the court for the nonce, Showing that one Onaphets had broke his knave's sconce.
 Which strange name, when they heard,
 every man laugh'd heartily,
 And I by myself scann'd his name secretly; 1015
 For well I knew it was some mad-headed child
 That invented this name that the log-headed knave might be beguil'd.
 In tossing it often with myself to and fro,
 I found out that Onaphets backward spelled Stephano.
 I smiled in my sleeve to see ¹ how by turning his name he dress'd ² him, 1020 And how for Damon his master's sake with a wooden cudgel he bless'd him.
 None pitied the knave, no man nor woman;
 but all laugh'd him to scorn.
 To be thus hated of all, better unborn!
 Far better Aristippus hath provided, I
 trow;
 For in all the court I am beloved both of high and low. 1025
 I offend none; insomuch that women sing
 this to my great praise,
*Omnis Aristippum decuit color, et locus et res.*³
 But in all this jollity one thing 'mazeth me:
 The strangest thing that ever was heard or known
 Is now happened in this court by that Damon 1030
 Whom Carisophus accused: Damon is now
 at liberty,
 For whose return Pithias his friend lieth in prison, alas, in great jeopardy!
 To-morrow is the day; which day by noon,
 if Damon return not, earnestly
 The king hath sworn that Pithias should die;
 Whereof Pithias hath intelligence very secretly, 1035
 Wishing that Damon may not return till he hath paid
 His life for his friend. Hath it been heretofore ever said

That any man for his friend would die so willingly?
 O noble friendship! O perfect amity!
 Thy force is here seen, and that very perfectly. 1040
 The king himself museth hereat; yet is he far out of square,
 That he trusteth none to come near him.
 Not his own daughters will he have Unsearch'd to enter his chamber; which he hath made barbers his beard to shave,
 Not with knife or razor — for all edge-tools
 he fears —
 But with hot burning nutshells they singe off his hairs. 1045
 Was there ever man that lived in such misery?
 Well, I will go in — with a heavy and pensive heart, too,
 To think how Pithias, this poor gentleman, to-morrow shall die. Exit.

Here entereth Jack and Will.

[JACK.] Will, by my honesty, I will mar your monkey's face if you so fondly prate!
 WILL. Jack, by my troth, seeing you are without the court-gate, 1050
 If you play Jack-napes in mocking my master and despising my face, Even here with a pantacle ¹ I will you dis-
 grace.
 And though you have a far better face
 than I,
 Yet who is better man of us two these fists shall try,
 Unless you leave your taunting. 1055
 JACK. Thou began'st first. Didst thou not say even now
 That Carisophus, my master, was no man,
 but a cow,
 In taking so many blows, and gave never a blow again?
 WILL. I said so, indeed. He is but a tame ruffian
 That can give by his flask and twich-box,² and God's precious lady, 1060

² Deceived.

³ A. decuit colore. "Every color, place, and thing suited Aristippus."

² Touch-box, filled with priming-powder for the musket.

And yet will be beaten with a faggot-stick!
These barking whelps were never good biters,

Ne yet great crakers¹ were ever great fighters.

But seeing you egg me so much, I will somewhat more recite:

I say Carisophus, thy master, is a flatt'ring parasite, 1065

Gleaning away the sweet from the worthy in all the court.

What tragedy hath he moved of late! The devil take him! he doth much hurt.

JACK. I pray you, what is Aristippus, thy master? Is not he a parasite too,

That with scoffing and jesting in the court makes so much a-do?

WILL. He is no parasite, but a pleasant gentleman full of courtesy. 1070

Thy master is a churlish lout, the heir of a dungfork; as void of honesty

As thou art of honour.

JACK. Nay, if you will needs be prating of my master still,

In faith I must cool you, my friend dapper
Will.

Take this at the beginning! 1075
[Strikes him.]

WILL. Praise well your winning. My pantaefe is as ready as yours.

JACK. By the mass, I will box you!

WILL. By Coek, I will fox you!

JACK. Will, was I with you?

WILL. Jack, did I fly? 1080

JACK. Alas, pretty cockerel, you are too weak!

WILL. In faith, dutting duttell, you will cry creak!

Here entereth Snap.

[SNAP.] Away, you crack-ropes!² Are you fighting at the court-gate?

And I take you here again I will swinge you both; what! Exit.

JACK. I beshrew Snap the tipstaff, that great knave's heart, that hither did
come! 1085

Had he not been, you had cried ere this
*Victus, victa, victum.*¹

But seeing we have breathed ourselves, if ye list,

Let us agree like friends, and shake each other by the fist.

WILL. Content am I, for I am not malicious; — but on this condition,

That you talk no more so broad of my master as here you have done. 1090

But who have we here? 'Tis Coals, I spy,² coming yonder.

JACK. Will, let us slip aside and view him well. [They stand aside.]

Here entereth Grim the Collier, whistling.

[GRIM.] What devil! ich ween the porters are drunk. Will they not dup³ the gate to-day?

Take in coals for the king's own mouth!⁴
Will nobody stir, I say?

Ich might have lain tway hours longer in my bed; 1095

Cha tarried so long here that my teeth chatter in my head.

JACK. Will, after our falling out wilt thou laugh merrily?

WILL. Ay, marry, Jack, I pray thee heartily.

JACK. Then follow me, and hem in a word now and then. [They advance.]

What brawling knave is there at the court-gate so early? 1100

WILL. It is some brainsick villain, I durst lay a penny.

JACK. It was you, sir, that cried so loud, I
trow,

And bid us take in coals for the king's mouth even now.

GRIM. 'Twas I, indeed.

JACK. Why, sir, how dare you speak such petty treason? 1105

Doth the king eat coals at any season?

GRIM. Here is a gay world! Boys now sets old men to school.

I said well enough. What, Jack-sauce!

think'st cham a fool?

¹ Conquered (mas.), conquered (fem.), conquered (neut.).

² A. Cobex epi. Emended by Hazlitt.

³ Open.

⁴ Provision. A technical phrase in court records;
cf. Bouche de la cour.

¹ Boasters.

² A term of opprobrium, usually applied to boys;
the allusion is to the hangman's rope.

At bakehouse, butt'ry-hatch, kitchen, and cellar,

Do they not say "for the king's mouth"?

WILL. What, then, Goodman Collier? 1111

GRIM. What, then! seeing without coals they cannot finely dress the king's meat,

May I not say "take in coals for the king's mouth," though coals he do not eat?

JACK. James Christe! came ever from a collier an answer so trim?

You are learned, are you not, father Grim? 1115

GRIM. Grim is my name, indeed. Cham not learned, and yet the king's collier;

This vorty winter cha been to the king a servitor.

Though I be not learned, yet cha mother-wit enough, whole and some.

WILL. So it seems; you have so much mother-wit that you lack your father's wisdom.

GRIM. Mass, cham well-beset! Here's a trim east of murlons! 1120

What be you, my pretty cockerels, that ask me these questions?

JACK. Good faith, Master Grim, if such merlins on your pouch² may light,

They are so quick of wing that quickly they can carry it out of your sight;

And though we are cockerels now, we shall have spurs one day,

And shall be able perhaps to make you a capon [to your pay.] 1125

But to tell you the truth, we are the porter's men, which early and late

Wait on such gentlemen as you, to open the court-gate.

GRIM. Are ye servants then?

WILL. Yea, sir; are we not pretty men?

GRIM. Pretty men, quoth you? nay, you are strong men, else you could not bear these breeches.⁴ 1130

WILL. Are these great hose?

In faith, Goodman Collier, you see with your nose.

By mine honesty, I have but for one lining in one hose but seven ells of rug.¹

GRIM. This is but a little, yet it makes thee seem a great bug.²

JACK. How say you, Goodman Collier, can you find any fault here? 1135

GRIM. Nay, you should find fault. Marry, here's trim gear!

Alas, little knave, dost not sweat? Thou goest with great pain.

These are no hose, but water-bougets,³ I tell thee plain;

Good for none but such as have no buttocks.

Did you ever see two such little Robin ruddocks 1140

So laden with breeches? Chill say no more, lest I offend.

Who invented these monsters first, did it to a ghostly⁴ end,

To have a mail⁵ ready to put in other folks' stuff;

We see this evident by daily proof.

One preached of late not far hence, in no pulpit but in a wain-cart, 1145

That spake enough of this. But for my part,

Chill say no more; your own necessity

In the end will force you to find some remedy.

JACK. Will, hold this railing knave with a talk when I am gone;

I will fetch him his filling ale for his good sermon. 1150

WILL. Go thy way. [Exit Jack.] Father Grim, gaily well you do say.

It is but young men's folly that list to play

And mask awhile in the net of their own device;

When they come to your age they will be wise.

GRIM. Bum troth, but few such roisters come to my years at this day; 1155

They be cut off betimes ere they have gone half their journey —

I will not tell why; let them guess that can; I mean somewhat thereby.⁶

² Hobgoblin, bugbear.

³ Leather bags used, in pairs, to carry water.

⁴ Spiritual, religious (used sarcastically).

⁵ Bag.

⁶ He means, of course, the gallows.

² Purse.

³ Added by Hazlitt.

⁴ Grim is sneering at the big stuffed breeches (called "slops") then worn by men of fashion.

Enter Jack with a pot of wine, and a cup to drink on.

[JACK.] Father Grim, because you are stirring so early I have brought you a bowl of wine to make you merry.

GRIM. Wine! marry, that is welcome to colliers! Chill swap't off by and by.¹ 1160

Chwas stirring so early that my very soul is dry.

JACK. This is stoutly done. Will you have it warmed, Father Grim?

GRIM. No, it is warm enough; it is very lousious² and trim.

'Tis musselden,³ ich ween! Of fellowship let me have another spurt.

Ich can drink as easily now as if I sat in my shirt. 1165

JACK. By Cock, and you shall have it! But I will begin, and that anon:

*Je bois a vous, mon compagnon!*⁴

GRIM. *J'ai vous pleigé, petit Zawne!*⁵

JACK. Can you speak French? Here is a trim collier, by this day!

GRIM. What, man! ich learned this when ich was a soldier; 1170

When ich was a lusty fellow, and could yerk a whip trimly —

Better than these boy-colliers that come to the court daily;

When there were not so many captious fellows as now,

That would torup⁶ men for every trifle — I wot not how:

As there was one, Damon, not long since taken for a spy — 1175

How justly I know not, but he was condemned to die.

WILL [aside]. This wine hath warmed him. This comes well to pass;

We shall know all now, for in vino veritas.⁷

Father Grim, who accused this Damon to King Dionysius?

³ Muscatel wine.

⁴ A. Jebit arow, mon companion.

⁵ A. Ihar row pleadge, pety Zawne. "Zawne" seems to be used for "Zany," clown.

⁶ Not in N.E.D. Possibly Grim means interrupt, or take up.

⁷ "In wine the truth."

GRIM. A vengeance take him! 'twas a gentleman, one Master Crowsphus.

WILL. Crowsphus! You clip the king's language; you would have said Carisophus. 1181

But I perceive now either the wind is at the south,

Or else your tongue cleaveth to the roof of your mouth.

GRIM. A murrain take thi[l]k wine! It so intoxicate my brain

That, to be hanged by and by, I cannot speak plain. 1185

JACK [aside]. You speak knavishly plain, seeing my master you do mock.

In faith, ere you go, I will make you a lob-cock.

Father Grim, what say they of this Damon abroad?

GRIM. All men are sorry for him, so help me God!

They say a false knave 'cused him to the king wrongfully; 1190

And he is gone, and should be here tomorrow to die,

Or else his fellow, which is in prison, his room shall supply.

Chill not be his half for vorty shillings, I tell you plain!

I think Damon be too wise to return again.

WILL. Will no man speak for them in this woful case? 1195

GRIM. No, chill warrant you. One Master Stippus is in place

Where he may do good; but he frames himself so,

Whatsoever Dionysius willeth, to that he will not say no.

'Tis a subtle vox! He will not tread on thorns for none!

A merry harecop¹ 'tis, and a pleasant companion, 1200

A right courtier, and can provide for one.

JACK [aside to Will]. Will, how like you this gear? Your master Aristippus also

At this collier's hand hath had a blow! But, in faith, Father Grim, cannot ye colliers

Provide for yourselves far better than courtiers? 1205

GRIM. Yes, I trow! Black colliers go in threadbare coats,
Yet so provide they that they have the fair
white groats.

Ich may say in counsel, though all day I moil in dirt

Chill not change lives with any in Dionysius' court;

For though their apparel be never so
fine, 1210

Yet sure their credit is far worse than mine.

And, by Cock, I may say, for all their high looks,

I know some sticks full deep in merchants' books;¹

And deeper will fall in, as fame me tells,

As long as instead of money they take up hauks' hoods and bells. 1215

Whereby they fall into a swelling disease, which colliers do not know;

'T'ath a mad name! it is called, ich ween,
*Centum pro cento.*²

Some other in courts make others laugh
merrily,

When they wail and lament their own estate secretly.

Friendship is dead in court; hypocrisy doth reign; 1220

Who is in favour now, to-morrow is out
again:

The state is so uncertain that I, by my will,
Will never be courtier but a collier still.

WILL. It seemeth that colliers have a very trim life.

GRIM. Colliers get money still; tell me, of troth, 1225

Is not that a trim life now, as the world
go'th?

All day though I toil with main and might,
With money in my pouch I come home
merry at night,

And sit down in my chair by my wife, fair
Alison,

And turn a crab in the fire³ as merry as Pope John. 1230

JACK. That pope was a merry fellow of whom folk talk so much.

GRIM. H'ad to be merry withal — h'ad gold enough in his hutch.

JACK. Can gold make men merry? They say, "Who can sing so merry a note
As he that is not able to change a groat?"

GRIM. Who sings in that case sings never in tune. I know, for my part, 1235 That a heavy pouch with gold makes a light heart;

Of which I have provided for a dear year good store; [He shows his purse.]

And these benters,¹ I trow, shall anon get me more.

WILL. By serving the court with coals you gain'd all this money?

GRIM. By the court only, I assure ye. 1240

JACK. After what sort, I pray thee tell
me?

GRIM. Nay, there bate an ace, quod Bolton!² I can wear a horn and blow it not.

JACK. By'r Lady, the wiser man!

GRIM. Shall I tell you by what sleight I got all this money?

Then ich were a nobby indeed! No, no, I warrant ye! 1245

Yet in few words I tell you this one thing —
He is a very fool that cannot gain by the king.

WILL. Well said, Father Grim! you are a wily collier, and a brave.

I see now there is no knave to the old
knave.

GRIM. Such knaves have money when courtiers have none. 1250

But tell me, is it true that abroad is blown?

JACK. What is that?

GRIM. Hath the king made those fair
damsels, his daughters,

To become now fine and trim barbers?

JACK. Yea, truly, — to his own person.

GRIM. Good fellows, believe me, as the case now stands 1256

I would give one sack of coals to be wash'd at their hands!

If ich came so near them, for my wit chould not give three chips

If ich could not steal one swap at their lips!

JACK [aside]. Will, this knave is drunk.
Let us dress³ him; 1260

hold for sums of money due.

² An old proverb.

³ Play a prank upon him.

² "Hundred per cent."

³ A crab-apple roasted in the fire and dropped into a mug of ale to warm and flavor the drink.

Let us rifle him so, that he have not one penny to bless him,

And steal away his debenters¹ too.

WILL [aside]. Content; invent the way, and I am ready.

JACK [aside]. Faith, and I will make him a noddy.

Father Grim, if you pray me well, I will wash you and shave you too, 1265

Even after the same fashion as the king's daughters do;

In all points as they handle Dionysius, I will dress you trim and fine.

GRIM. Chuld vain learn that! Come on, then; chill give thee a whole pint of wine

At tavern for thy labour, when 'cha money for my benters here.

Here Will fetcheth a barber's bason, a pot with water, a razor, and cloths, and a pair of spectacles.

JACK. Come, mine own Father Grim; sit down. 1270

GRIM. Mass, to begin withal, here is a trim chair!

JACK. What, man, I will use you like a prince. Sir boy, fetch me my gear.

WILL. Here, sir.

JACK. Hold up, Father Grim.

GRIM. Me-seem my head doth swim. 1275

JACK. My costly perfumes make that. Away with this, sir boy; be quick!

[Hands Will the collier's purse.]

Aloyse, aloyse,² how how pretty it is! Is not here a good face?

A fine owl's eyes! a mouth like an oven!

Father, you have good butter-teeth full seen.

[Aside] You were weaned, else you would have been a great calf. 1280

Ah, trim lips to sweep a manger!³ Here is a chin,

As soft as the hoof of an horse.

GRIM. Doth the king's daughters rub so hard?

JACK. Hold your head straight, man, else all will be marr'd.

By'r Lady, you are of a good complexion, 1285

A right Croyden sanguine,¹ beshrew me.

Hold up, Father Grim. Will, can you bestir ye?

GRIM. Methinks, after a marvellous fashion you do besmear me.

JACK. It is with unguentum of Daucus Maucus, that is very costly;

I give not this washing-ball² to everybody. 1290

After you have been dress'd so finely at my hand,

You may kiss any lady's lips within this land. Ah, you are trimly wash'd! How say you, is not this trim water?

GRIM. It may be wholesome, but it is vengeance sour!

JACK. It scours the better. Sir boy, give me my razor. 1295

WILL. Here at hand, sir.

GRIM. God's arms! 'tis a chopping knife! 'tis no razor.

JACK. It is a razor, and that a very good one!

It came lately from Palermo;³ it cost me twenty crowns alone.

Your eyes dazzle after your washing; these spectacles put on. 1300

[He places spectacles, with dark lenses, on him.]

Now view this razor; tell me, is it not a good one?

GRIM. They be gay barnacles, yet I see never the better.

JACK. Indeed they be a young sight, and that is the matter.

But I warrant you this razor is very easy.

GRIM. Go to, then; since you begun, do as please ye. 1305

JACK. Hold up, Father Grim.

GRIM. O, your razor doth hurt my lip.

JACK. No, it scrapeth off a pimple to ease you of the pip.

I have done now. How say you? are you not well?

GRIM. Cham lighter than ich was, the truth to tell. 1310

¹ Debentures.

³ As an ass'.

² Perfumed soap.

JACK. Will you sing after your shaving?
 GRIM. Mass, content! But chill be poll'd¹ first, ere I sing.
 JACK. Nay, that shall not need; you are poll'd² near enough for this
 time.
 GRIM. Go to, then, lustily. I will sing in my man's voice;
 Chave a troubling base buss.³
 JACK. You are like to bear the bob,⁴ for we will give it. 1315 Set out your bussing base, and we will quiddle⁵ upon it.

Grim singeth Buss.

JACK (sings). *Too nidden and too nidden!*⁶
 WILL (sings). Too nidden and toodle toodle doo nidden!
*Is not Grim the collier most finely shaven?*⁷ GRIM. Why, my fellows, think ich am a cow, that you make such toying?
 JACK. Nay, by'r Lady, you are no cow, by your singing — 1321
 Yet your wife told me you were an ox.⁸
 GRIM. Did she so? 'tis a pestens⁹ quean!
 she is full of such mocks.
 But go to, let us sing out our song merrily

THE SONG AT THE SHAVING OF THE COLLIER

JACK. Such barbers God send you at all times of need — 1325 WILL. That can dress you [so] finely, and make such quick speed.
 JACK. Your face like an inkhorn now shineth so gay —
 WILL. *That I with your nostrils of force must needs play,
 With too nidden and too nidden!*
 JACK. *With too nidden and todle todle doo
 nidden!* 1330
Is not Grim the collier most finely shaven?
 WILL. *With shaving you shine like a pestle of pork.*¹⁰

JACK. Here is the trimmest hog's flesh from London to York.
 WILL. It would be trim bacon to hang up awhile.
 JACK. To play with this hoglin of course I must smile, 1335
With too nidden and too nidden!
 WILL. With too nidden and todle, &c.
 GRIM. Your shaving doth please me; I am now your debtor.
 WILL. Your wife now will buss¹ you, because you are sweeter.
 GRIM. Near would I be polled, as near as cham shaven. 1340
 WILL. Then out of your jerkin² needs must you be shaken.
With too nidden and too nidden, &c.

GRIM. It is a trim thing to be wash'd in the court.
 WILL. Their hands are so fine, that they never do hurt.
 GRIM. *Me-think ich am lighter than ever ich
 was.* 1345
 WILL. Our shaving in the court hath brought this to pass.
With two nidden and two nidden!
 JACK. *With too nidden and todle todle doo
 nidden!*
Is not Grim the collier most finely shaven?

Finis

GRIM. This is trimly done! Now chill pitch my coals not far hence, 1350
 And then at the tavern chill bestow whole tway pence. [Exit Grim.] JACK. Farewell, [by] Cock. Before the collier again do us seek,
 Let us into the court to part the spoil, share and share [a]like. Exit.
 WILL. Away then. [Exit.]

Here entereth Grim.

[GRIM.] Out, alas! where shall I make my moan? 1355
 My pouch, my benters, and all is gone!
 Where is that villain that did me shave?
 H'ath robbed me, alas, of all that I have.

¹ Kiss.

² The outer jacket worn by men, often made of leather.

¹ Trimmed.

² With a pun on the sense "cheated," "fleeced."

³ Buzz, hum.

⁴ Refrain, with a pun on the meaning "bitter jest."

⁵ Sing in a trifling way.

⁶ A nonsense refrain.

⁷ With a pun on shaven, cheated.

⁸ The cuckold joke.

⁹ Pestilent.

¹⁰ Ham of a pig.

Here entereth Snap.

- [SNAP.] Who crieth so at the court-gate?
 GRIM. I, the poor collier, that was robbed of late. 1360
 SNAP. Who robbed thee?
 GRIM. Two of the porter's men that did shave me.
 SNAP. Why, the porter's men are no barbers.
 GRIM. A vengeance take them, they are quick carvers.¹
 SNAP. What stature were they of? 1365 GRIM. As little dapper knaves as they trimly could scoff.
 SNAP. They were lackeys, as near as I can guess them.
 GRIM. Such lackeys make me lack. An halter beswinge them!
 Cham undone; they have my benders too.
 SNAP. Dost thou know them if thou seest
 them? 1370
 GRIM. Yea, that I do!
 SNAP. Then come with me; we will find them out, and that quickly.
 GRIM. I follow, Mast Tipstaff. They be in the court, it is likely.
 SNAP. Then cry no more; come away.
Exeunt.

Here entereth Carisophus and Aristippus.

- [CARISOPHUS.] If ever you will show your friendship, now is the time. 1375 Seeing the king is displeas'd with me of my part without any crime.
 ARISTIPPUS. It should appear it comes of some evil behaviour
 That you so suddenly are cast out of favour.
 CARISOPHUS. Nothing have I done but this: in talk I overthwarted Eubulus
 When he lamented Pithias' case to King
 Dionysius, 1380
 Which to-morrow shall die, but for that false knave Damon,
 He hath left his friend in the briars, and now is gone.
 We grew so hot in talk that Eubulus protested plainly,

- Which¹ held his ears open to parasitical
 flattery.
 And now in the king's ear like a bell he rings, 1385
 Crying that flatterers have been the destroyers of kings.
 Which talk in Dionysius' heart hath made so deep impression
 That he trusteth me not, as heretofore, in no condition;
 And some words brake from him, as though that he Began to suspect my truth and honesty.
 Which you of friendship I know will defend,
 how so ever the world goeth. 1391
 My friend, for my honesty will you not take an oath?² ARISTIPPUS. To swear for your honesty I should lose mine own.
 CARISOPHUS. Should you so, indeed? I would that were known Is your void friendship come thus to pass? 1395
 ARISTIPPUS. I follow the proverb: *Amicus usque ad aras.*³ CARISOPHUS. Where can you say I ever lost mine honesty?
 ARISTIPPUS. You never lost it — for you never had it, as far as I know.
 CARISOPHUS. Say you so, friend Aristip-pus, whom I trust so well?
 ARISTIPPUS. Because you trust me, to you the truth I tell. 1400 CARISOPHUS. Will you not stretch one point to bring me in favour again?
 ARISTIPPUS. I love no stretching; so, may
 I breed mine own pain.
 CARISOPHUS. A friend ought to shun no pain to stand his friend in stead.
 ARISTIPPUS. Where true friendship is, it is so in very deed.
 CARISOPHUS. Why, sir, hath not the chain of true friendship linked us two together? 1405
 ARISTIPPUS. The chiefest link lacked thereof; it must needs dis sever.
 CARISOPHUS. What link is that? fain would I know.
 ARISTIPPUS. Honesty.

¹ "I.e. Dionysius, to which Dodsley changed it"
 — Hazlitt.

² Will you not swear to my honesty?

³ A. auras. "A friend even to the altar."

CARISOPHUS. Doth honesty knit the perfect knot in true friendship?

ARISTIPPUS. Yea, truly; and that knot so knit will never slip. 1410

CARISOPHUS. Belike, then, there is no friendship but between honest men.

ARISTIPPUS. Between the honest only; for Amicitia inter bonos,¹ saith a learned man.

CARISOPHUS. Yet evil men use friendship in things dishonest, where fancy doth serve.

ARISTIPPUS. That is no friendship, but a lewd liking; it lasts but a while.

CARISOPHUS. What is the perfectest friendship among men that ever grew? 1415

ARISTIPPUS. Where men love one another not for profit but for virtue.

CARISOPHUS. Are such friends both alike in joy and also in smart?

ARISTIPPUS. They must needs; for in two bodies they have but one heart.

CARISOPHUS. Friend Aristippus, deceive me not with sophistry:

Is there no perfect friendship but where is virtue and honesty? 1420

ARISTIPPUS. What a devil then meant Carisophus

To join in friendship with fine Aristippus?

In whom is as much virtue, truth, and honesty

As there are true feathers in the Three Cranes of the Vintree.²

Yet these feathers have the shadow³ of lively feathers, the truth to scan,

But Carisophus hath not the shadow of an honest man. 1426

To be plain, because I know thy villainy

In abusing Dionysius to many men's injury,

Under the cloak of friendship I play'd with his head,

And sought means how thou with thine own fancy might be led. 1430

My friendship thou soughtest for thine own commodity,

As worldly men do, by profit measuring amity;

Which I perceiving, to the like myself I framed,

Wherein I know of the wise I shall not be blamed.

If you ask me, Quare? I answer, Quia prudentis est multum dissimulare.¹

To speak more plainer, as the proverb doth go, 1436

In faith, Carisophus, cum Cretense cretiso.²

Yet a perfect friend I show myself to thee in one thing —

I do not dissemble now I say I will not speak for thee to the king.

Therefore sink in thy sorrow! I do not deceive thee; 1440

A false knave I found thee, a false knave I leave thee! Exit.

CARISOPHUS. He is gone! Is this friendship, to leave his friend in the plain field?

Well, I see now I myself have beguiled

In matching with that false fox in amity,

Which hath me used to his own commodity, 1445

Which seeing me in distress, unfeignedly goes his ways.

Lo, this is the perfect friendship among men now-a-days!

Which kind of friendship toward him I used secretly;

And he with me the like hath requited me craftily.

It is the gods' judgment, I see it plainly;

For all the world may know, Incidit in foveam quam feci.³ 1451

Well, I must content myself. None other help I know,

Until a merrier gale of wind may hap to blow. Exit.

[Enter Eubulus.]

EUBULUS. Who deals with kings in matters of great weight,

When froward will doth bear the chiefest sway, 1455

Must yield of force. There need no subtle sleight,

² A. Cretence. "With the Cretan I lie." Cf. line 971.

³ "I have fallen into a pit which I myself digged"

² The sign of a well-known tavern.

³ Likeness.

Ne painted ¹ speech the matter to convey.
No prayer can move when kindled is the
ire;

The more ye quench, the more increased is the fire.

This thing I prove in Pithias' woful
case, 1460

Whose heavy hap with tears I do lament.
The day is come when he, in Damon's
place,

Must lose his life; the time is fully spent.
Nought can my words now with the king prevail;

Against the wind and striving stream I sail — 1465

For die thou must, alas! thou seely ² Greek.
Ah, Pithias, now come is thy doleful hour!
A perfect friend; none such, a world to seek!

Though bitter death shall give thee sauce
full sour,

Yet for thy faith enroll'd shall be thy
name 1470

Among the gods within the book of fame.
Who knoweth his case and will not melt in tears?

His guiltless blood shall trickle down anon.

Then the Muses sing.

[MUSES.] *Alas, what hap hast thou, poor
Pithias, now to die!*

Woe worth the man which ³ for his death hath given us cause to cry! 1475

EUBULUS. Methink I hear, with yellow rented hairs,

The Muses frame their notes my state to moan.

Among which sort, as one that mourneth with heart,

In doleful tunes myself will bear a part.

MUSES. Woe worth the man which for his death, &c. 1480

EUBULUS. With yellow rented hairs, come on, you Muses nine!

*Fill now my breast with heavy tunes; to me
your plaint resign;*

For Pithias I bewail, which presently must die.

¹ Feigned.

² Poor.

³ A. which man.

Woe worth the man which for his death hath given us cause, &c.

MUSES. *Woe worth the man which for his,
&c.* 1485

EUBULUS. Was ever such a man, that would die for his friend?

I think even from the heavens above the gods did him down send

To show true friendship's power, which forc'd thee now to die.

Woe worth the man which for thy death, &c.
MUSES. Woe worth the man, &c. 1490

EUBULUS. What tiger's whelp was he that Damon did accuse!

What faith hast thou, which for thy friend thy death doth not refuse!

O heavy hap hadst thou to play this tragedy!
Woe worth the man which for thy death, &c.

MUSES. Woe worth the man, &c. 1495

EUBULUS. *Thou young and worthy Greek, that showeth such perfect love,
The gods receive thy simple ghost into the heavens above!*

Thy death we shall lament with many a weeping eye.

Woe worth the man, which for his death, &c.
MUSES. Woe worth the man, which for thy death hath given us cause to cry. 1500

Finis

EUBULUS. Eternal be your fame, ye Muses, for that in misery

Ye did vouchsafe to strain your notes to walk.¹

My heart is rent in two with this miserable
case;

Yet am I charged by Dionysius' mouth to see this place

At all points ready for the execution of Pithias. 1505

Need hath no law; will I or nil I,² it must be done.

But lo, the bloody minister is even here at hand.

[Enter Gronno.]

Gronno, I came hither now to understand

¹ To be in motion (or wake, to become animated).

² Whether I will or not.

If all things are well appointed for the execution of Pithias.

The king himself will see it done here in this place. 1510

GRONNO. Sir, all things are ready. Here is the place, here is the hand, here is the sword!

Here lacketh none but Pithias, whose head at a word,

If he were present, I could finely strike off! You may report that all things are ready.

EUBULUS. I go with an heavy heart to report it. Ah, woful Pithias! 1515

Full near now is thy misery. [Exit.]

GRONNO. I marvel very much under what constellation

All hangmen are born; for they are hated of all, beloved of none.

Which hatred is showed by this point evidently —

The hangman always dwells in the vilest place of the city. 1520

That such spite should be, I know no cause why,

Unless it be for their office's sake, which is cruel and bloody.

Yet some men must do it to execute laws.

Me-think they hate me without any just cause.

But I must look to my toil. Pithias must lose his head at one blow, 1525

Else the boys will stone me to death in the street as I go.

But hark, the prisoner cometh, and the king also.

I see there is no help, Pithias his life must forego.

Here entereth Dionysius and Eubulus [with courtiers and others].

[DIONYSIUS.] Bring forth Pithias, that pleasant companion,

Which took me at my word, and became pledge for Damon. 1530

It pricketh fast upon ¹ noon. I do him no injury

If now he lose his head, for so he requested me,

If Damon return not, — which now in Greece is full merry.

Therefore shall Pithias pay his death, and that by and by.

He thought, belike, if Damon were out of the city 1535

I would not put him to death for some foolish pity:

But seeing it was his request; I will not be mock'd. He shall die!

Bring him forth.

Here entereth Snap [leading in Pithias, Stephano accompanying him].

[SNAP.] Give place! Let the prisoner come by! give place!

DIONYSIUS. How say you, sir? where is Damon, your trusty friend? 1540

You have play'd a wise part, I make God a vow!

You know what time a day it is; make you ready.

PITHIAS. Most ready I am, mighty king, and most ready also

For my true friend Damon this life to forego,

Even at your pleasure. 1545

DIONYSIUS. A true friend! A false traitor that so breaketh his oath!

Thou shalt lose thy life, though thou be never so loth.

PITHIAS. I am not loth to do whatsoever I said,

Ne at this present pinch of death am I dismay'd.

The gods now I know have heard my fervent prayer, 1550

That they have reserved me to this passing great honour

To die for my friend, whose faith even now I do not mistrust.

My friend Damon is no false traitor; he is true and just.

But sith he is no god, but a man, he must do as he may;

The wind may be contrary, sickness may let him,¹ or some misadventure by the way — 1555

Which the eternal gods turn all to my glory, That fame may resound how Pithias for Damon did die.

He breaketh no oath which doth as much as he can.

His mind is here; he hath some let; he is but
a man.

That he might not return, of all the gods I did require, 1560

Which now to my joy do ¹ grant my desire.
But why do I stay any longer, seeing that one man's death

May suffice, O king, to pacify thy wrath?
[Turning to Gronno.]

O thou minister of justice, do thine office
by and by.

Let not thy hand tremble, for I tremble not to die. 1565

Stephano, the right pattern ² of true fidelity, Commend me to thy master, my sweet
Damon! and of him crave liberty

When I am dead, in my name; for thy trusty services

Hath well deserved a gift far better than
this.

O my Damon, farewell now for ever! a true friend, to me most dear! 1570

Whiles life doth last, my mouth shall still talk of thee;

And when I am dead, my simple ghost,
true witness of amity,

Shall hover about the place, wheresoever thou be.

DIONYSIUS. Eubulus, this gear is strange!
And yet, because

Damon hath fals'd his faith, Pithias shall have the law. 1575

Gronno, despoil ³ him, and eke dispatch him quickly.

GRONNO. It shall be done. Since you came into this place

I might have stroken off seven heads in this space.

[Gronno takes off Pithias' outer garments.]

By'r Lady, here are good garments! These are mine, by the rood!

It is an evil wind that bloweth no man
good. 1580

Now, Pithias, kneel down, ask me blessing
like a pretty boy,

And with a trice thy head from thy shoulders I will convey.

[Pithias kneels, and Gronno lifts his sword to strike.]

Here entereth Damon running, and stays the sword.

[DAMON.] Stay! stay! stay! for the king's advantage, stay!

O mighty king, mine appointed time is not yet fully pass'd;

Within the compass of mine hour, lo, here I come at last. 1585

A life I owe, a life I will you pay.

O my Pithias, my noble pledge, my constant friend!

Ah! woe is me! for Damon's sake how near were thou to thy end!

Give place to me; this room is mine; on this stage must I play.

Damon is the man, none ought but he to Dionysius his blood to pay. 1590

GRONNO. Are you come, sir? You might have tarried, if you had been wise.

For your hasty coming you are like to know the price.

PITHIAS. O thou cruel minister, why didst not thou thine office?

Did not I bid thee make haste in any wise?
Hast thou spared to kill me once, that I may die twice? 1595

Not to die for my friend is present death to me; and, alas!

Shall I see my sweet Damon slain before my face?

What double death is this! But, O mighty
Dionysius,

Do true justice now; weigh this aright,
thou noble Eubulus;

Let me have no wrong. As now stands the
case 1600

Damon ought not to die, but Pithias;
By misadventure — not by his will — his hour is past; therefore I,

Because he came not at his just time, ought justly to die.

So was my promise, so was thy promise, O
king.

All this court can bear witness of this thing. 1605

DAMON. Not so, O mighty king! To justice it is contrary

That for another man's fault the innocent
should die:

Ne yet is my time plainly expired; it is not fully noon

³ Strip off his outer garments.

Of this my day appointed, by all the clocks
in the town.

PITHIAS. Believe no clock; the hour is past by the sun. 1610

DAMON. Ah, my Pithias, shall we now break the bonds of amity?

Will you now overthwart me, which heretofore so well did agree?

PITHIAS. My Damon, the gods forbid but we should agree!

Therefore agree to this — let me perform the promise I made for thee.

Let me die for thee; do me not that injury 1615

Both to break my promise and to suffer me
to see thee die,

Whom so dearly I love. This small request grant me;

I shall never ask thee more; my desire is but friendly.

Do me this honour, that fame may report triumphantly

That Pithias for his friend Damon was contented to die. 1620

DAMON. That you were contented for me to die, fame cannot deny;

Yet fame shall never touch me with such a
villainy

To report that Damon did suffer his friend
Pithias for him guiltless to die.

Therefore content thyself; the gods requite thy constant faith.

None but Damon's blood can appease Di-onysius' wrath. 1625

And now, O mighty king, to you my talk I convey.

Because you gave me leave my worldly things to stay,

To requite that good turn, ere I die, for your behalf this I say:

Although your regal state dame Fortune decketh so

That like a king in worldly wealth abundantly ye flow, 1630

Yet fickle is the ground whereon all tyrants tread!

A thousand sundry cares and fears do haunt their restless head!

No trusty band, no faithful friends do guard thy hateful state.

And why? Whom men obey for deadly fear, sure them they deadly hate.

That you may safely reign, by love get friends, whose constant faith 1635
Will never fail. This counsel gives poor
Damon at his death.

Friends are the surest guard for kings.
Gold in time do[es] wear away,

And other precious things do fade; friendship will never decay.

Have friends in store, therefore; so shall you safely sleep;

Have friends at home, of foreign foes so need you take no keep. 1640

Abandon flatt'ring tongues, whose clacks truth never tells;

Abase the ill, advance the good, in whom dame virtue dwells;

Let them your playfellows be. But, O you earthly kings,

Your sure defence and strongest guard stands chiefly in faithful friends!

Then get you friends by liberal deeds.
And here I make an end. 1645

Accept this counsel, mighty king, of Damon, Pithias' friend.

O my Pithias! now farewell for ever! Let me kiss thee, ere I die.

My soul shall honour thee; thy constant faith above the heavens shall fly.

[He divests himself, and kneels on the place of execution.]

Come, Gronno, do thine office now. Why is thy colour so dead?

My neck is so ¹ short that thou wilt never have honesty in striking off this head? 1650

DIONYSIUS. Eubulus, my spirits are suddenly appalled; my limbs wax weak!
This strange friendship amazeth me so that I can scarce speak.

PITHIAS. O mighty king, let some pity your noble heart move.

You require but one man's death; take Pithias, let Damon live.

EUBULUS. O unspeakable friendship! 1655
DAMON. Not so. He hath not offended.

There is no cause why
My constant friend, my Pithias, for Damon's sake should die.

Alas, he is but young; he may do good to many.

Thou coward minister, why dost thou not let me die?

GRONNO. My hand with sudden fear quivereth. 1660

PITHIAS. O noble king, show mercy upon Damon; let Pithias die.

DIONYSIUS. Stay, Gronno! My flesh trembleth. Eubulus, what shall I do?

Were there ever such friends on earth as were these two?

What heart is so cruel that would divide them asunder?

O noble friendship, I must yield! At thy force I wonder. 1665

My heart this rare friendship hath pierc'd to the root,
And quenched all my fury. This sight hath brought this about,
Which thy grave counsel, Eubulus, and learned persuasion could never do.

[To Damon and Pithias] O noble gentlemen, the immortal gods above
Hath made you play this tragedy, I think, for my behoof. 1670

Before this day I never knew what perfect friendship meant;

My cruel mind to bloody deeds was full and wholly bent;

My fearful life I thought with terror to defend.

But now I see there is no guard unto a faithful friend,
Which will not spare his life at time of present need. 1675

O happy kings, who in ¹ your courts have two such friends indeed!

I honour friendship now; which that you may plainly see,
Damon, have thou thy life; from death I pardon thee.

For which good turn, I crave, this honour
do me lend:

O friendly heart, let me link with you! to you make me the third friend! 1680

My court is yours; dwell here with me. By my commission large Myself, my realm, my wealth, my health, I commit to your charge.

Make me a third friend. More shall I joy in that thing,

Than to be called, as I am, Dionysius the mighty king.

DAMON. O mighty king, first for my life
most humble thanks I give; 1685
And next, I praise the immortal gods that did your heart so meve
That you would have respect to friend-ship's heavenly lore, Foreseeing well he need not fear which hath true friends in store.

For my part, most noble king, as a third friend welcome to our friendly society!

But you must forget you are a king, for friendship stands in true equality.

DIONYSIUS. Unequal though I be in great possessions, 1691
Yet full equal shall you find me in my changed conditions.

Tyranny, flattery, oppression, lo, here I cast away;

Justice, truth, love, friendship, shall be my joy.

True friendship will I honour unto my life's
end; 1695
My greatest glory shall be to be counted a perfect friend.

PITHIAS. For this your deed, most noble king, the gods advance your name.
And since to friendship's lore you list your princely heart to frame,
With joyful heart, O king, most welcome
now to me!

With you will I knit the perfect knot of
amity; 1700
Wherein I shall instruct you so, and Damon here your friend,
That you may know of amity the mighty force, and eke the joyful end,
And how that kings do stand upon a fickle ground
Within whose realm at time of need no faithful friends are found.

DIONYSIUS. Your instruction will I follow; to you myself I do commit. 1705
Eubulus, make haste to fet new apparel, fit
For my new friends.

EUBULUS. I go with joyful heart. O happy day! Exit.

GRONNO. I am glad to hear this word.
Though their lives they do not lese,

It is no reason the hangman should lose his fees. 1710

These are mine, I am gone with a trice.
Exit [Gronno with the discarded garments of Damon and Pithias].

Here entereth Eubulus with new garments.

DIONYSIUS. Put on these garments now.
Go in with me, the jewels of my court.

DAMON and PITHIAS. We go with joyful hearts.

STEPHANO. O Damon, my dear master, in all this joy remember me.

DIONYSIUS. My friend Damon, he asketh reason.¹ 1715

DAMON. Stephano, for thy good service be thou free.

Exeunt Dion. [and the rest. Stephano remains].

STEPHANO. O most happy, pleasant, joyful, and triumphant day!

Poor Stephano now shall live in continual play.²

Vive le roy, with Damon and Pithias, in perfect amity!

Vive tu, Stephano, in thy pleasant liberality! 1720

Wherein I joy as much as he that hath a conquest won.

I am a free man! None so merry as I now under the sun.

Farewell, my lords! Now the gods grant you all the sum of perfect amity,

And me long to enjoy my long-desired liberty. Exit.

Here entereth Eubulus beating Carisophus.

[EUBULUS.] Away, villain! Away, you flatt'ring parasite! 1725

Away, the plague of this court! Thy filed³ tongue that forged lies

No more here shall do hurt. Away, false sycophant! wilt thou not?

CARISOPHUS. I am gone, sir, seeing it is the king's pleasure.

Why whip ye me alone? A plague take

Damon and Pithias! Since they came hither

I am driven to seek relief abroad, alas! I know not whither. 1730

Yet, Eubulus, though I be gone, hereafter time shall try,

There shall be found, even in this court, as great flatterers as I.

Well, for a while I will forego the court, though to my great pain.

I doubt not but to spy a time when I may creep in again. Exit.

EUBULUS. The serpent that eats men alive — flattery — with all her brood, 1735

Is whipp'd away in princes' courts, which yet did never good.

What force, what mighty power true friendship may possess,

To all the world Dionysius' court now plainly doth express;

Who, since to faithful friends he gave his willing ear,

Most safely sitteth in his seat, and sleeps devoid of fear. 1740

Purged is the court of vice since friendship ent'red in.

Tyranny quails; he studieth now with love each heart to win;

Virtue is had in price, and hath his just reward;

And painted speech, that gloseth for gain, from gifts is quite debarr'd.

One loveth another now for virtue, not for gain. 1745

Where virtue doth not knit the knot, there friendship cannot reign;

Without the which no house, no land, no kingdom can endure;

As necessary for man's life as water, air, and fire;

Which frameth the mind of man all honest things to do.

Unhonest things friendship ne craveth, ne yet consents thereto. 1750

In wealth a double joy, in woe a present stay, A sweet companion in each state true friendship is alway;

A sure defence for kings; a perfect trusty band;

A force to assail, a shield to defend the enemies' cruel hand;

² A. joy: emend. by Hazlitt.

³ Defiled.

A rare and yet the greatest gift that God can give to man; — 1755
 So rare, that scarce four couple of faithful friends have been since the world began.
 A gift so strange, and of such price, I wish all kings to have.
 But chiefly yet, as duty bindeth, I humbly
 crave
 True friendship and true friends, full fraught with constant faith,
 The giver of friends, the Lord, grant her, most noble Queen Elizabeth! 1760

FINIS †

THE LAST SONG ¹

*The strongest guard that kings can have
 Are constant friends their state to save.*

 sung by all the actors.

*True friends are constant both in word and deed;
 True friends are present, and help at each need;
 True friends talk truly, they glose for no gain;
 When treasure consumeth, true friends will
 remain;
 True friends for their true prince refuseth not their death.
 The Lord grant her such friends, most noble
 Queen Elizabeth! 1768*

*Long may she govern in honour and wealth,
 Void of all sickness, in most perfect health!
 Which health to prolong, as true friends require,
 God grant she may have her own heart's desire,
 Which friends will defend with most steadfast faith.
 The Lord grant her such friends, most noble
 Queen Elizabeth! 1774*

THE SCENE: Athens.]

¹ John Lyly, who had attained great fame by his two novels, Euphues the Anatomy of Wyt, 1578, and Euphues and his England, 1580, was presented by the Earl of Oxford in the summer of 1583 with the lease of Blackfriars hall where the royal boy-choristers and the singing children of St. Paul's Cathedral were accustomed to present their plays — mainly designed for Court performance — before the general public. At once Lyly set himself to the task of writing plays, and within a few weeks had Campaspe ready for the stage. The comedy, after being shown to the public at Blackfriars (the performances served for dress-rehearsals), was acted at Court before Elizabeth on Newyear's Day at night.

The play was outfitted by the Office of the Revels, which supplied the customary "players' houses" of canvas painted and stretched on wooden frames. From the text it appears that on one side of the stage was placed the palace of Alexander, and on the opposite side the studio of Apelles (with a curtain that could be drawn open to reveal the interior); and between these two "houses" was an open street, or "market-place" in which was set Diogenes' tub. An entrance at the rear enabled persons to come in from the "city." The action moved freely from the palace-gate to the market-place (with its tub) and to Apelles' studio.

For the text I have used the second quarto of 1584 as reproduced by R. W. Bond in The Complete Works of John Lyly, 1902; but I have altered the original punctuation, and modernized the use of capital letters and italics. In brackets I have added stage-directions to enable the reader to visualize the movements of the actors on the stage peculiar to Court plays.

THE PROLOGUE AT THE BLACK-FRYERS¹

They that feare the stinging of waspes make fannes of peacockes tailles, whose spots are like eies; and Lepidus, which coulde not sleepe for the chatting of birdes, set vp a beaste whose head was like a dragon: and we, which stande in awe of reporte, are compelled to sette beefore our owle Pallas shield,² thinking by her vertue to couer the others deformitie. It was a signe of famine to Aegypte when Nilus flowed lesse then twelue cubites, or more then eighteene: and it may threaten dispaire vnto vs if we be lesse curious³ then you looke for, or more combersome. But, as Theseus, being promised to be brought to an eagles nest, and trauiailing al the day, found but a wrenne in a hedg, yet said, "This is a bird": so, we hope, if the shower of our swelling mountaine seeme to bring fourth some eliphant, perfourme but a mouse, you will gently say, "This is a beast." Basill softly touched yeeldeth a sweete sent, but chafed in the hand, a ranke sauour; wee feare, euen so, that our labours slylye⁴ glaunced on will breede some content, but examined to the prooff, small commendation. The haste in performing⁵ shall bee our excuse. There went two nightes to the begetting of Hercules; feathers appeare not on the Phœnix vnder seauen monethes; and the mulbery is twelue in budding: but our trauailes⁶ are like the hares, who at one time bringeth fourth, nourisheth, and engendreth againe; or like the broode of Trochilus, whose egges in the same moment that they are layd become birdes. But howsoeuer we finish our worke, we craue pardon if we offend in matter, and patience if we transgresse in manners. We haue mixed mirth with counsell, and discipline with delight, thinking it not amisse in the same garden to sowe pot-hearbes that we set flowers. But we hope, as harts that cast their hornes, snakes their skinnes eagles their bills, become more fresh for any other labour: so, our charge being shaken of we shalbe fitte for greater matters. But least, like the Mindyans, we make our gates greater then our towne, and that our play runnes out at the preface, we here conclude:—wishing that although there bee in your precise iudgements an vniuersall mislike, yet wee maye enioy by your woonted courtisies a general silence.

THE PROLOGUE AT THE COURT

Wee are ashamed that our birde, which fluttered by twilight⁷ seeming a swan, should bee proued a batte set against the sunne. But, as Iupiter placed Silenus asse among the starres, and Alcebiades couered his pictures, beeing owles and apes, with a courtaine embroidered with lions and eagles, so are we enforced vpon a rough discourse to draue on a smooth excuse; resembling lapidaries who thinke to hide the crake in a stone by setting it deepe in golde. The gods supped once with poore Baucis; the Persian kings sometimes shaued stickes: our hope is Your Heighnesse wil at this time lend an eare to an idle pastime. Appion, raising Homere from hell, demanded onely who was his father; and we, calling Alexander from his graue, seeke onely who was his loue. Whatsoeuer we present, we wish it may be thought the daunsing of Agrippa his shadowes who, in the moment they were seene, were of any shape one woulde conceiue; or lynces who hauing a quicke sight to discern, haue a short memorie to forget. With vs it is like to fare as with these torches,⁸ which, giuing light to others, consume themselues: and wee shewing delight to others, shame our selues.

¹ The small private theatre in which the children were accustomed to present their plays before the better class of Londoners.

² Alluding to the Queen.

³ Careful as to the standards of excellence.

⁴ Without full attention.

⁵ Lyly acquired Blackfriars in June or July, 1583. He wrote Campaspe in great haste in order to have it ready for the Queen at the following Christmas season.

⁶ Labors.

⁷ Alluding to the public performances at Blackfriars. As this clause indicates, the play was first acted at Blackfriars.

⁸ Wax candles. The stage was illuminated by candles set in "great branches" and "smaller branches" hung from wires overhead.

CAMPASPE

ACTUS PRIMUS

SCÆNA PRIMA

[The street, before Alexander's Palace. Enter two officers, Clitus and Parmenio.]¹

CLITUS. Parmenio, I cannot tel whether I should more commend in Alexanders victories courage or curtesie, in the one being a resolution without feare, in the other a liberality aboue custome. [5 Thebes is rased, the people not racked; towers throwne down, bodies not thrust aside; a conquest without conflict, and a cruell warre in a milde peace. 9

PAR. Clytus, it becommeth the sonne of Phillip to be none other then Alexander is; therefore, seeing in the father a ful perfection, who could haue doubted in the son an excellencie? For, as the moone can borrow nothing els of the sunne but light, [15 so, of a sire in whome nothing but vertue was, what could the childe receiue but singular?² It is for turkies to staine each other,³ not for diamondes; in the one to bee made a difference in goodnes, in the other no comparison. 21

CLITUS. You mistake mee, Parmenio, if whilst I commend Alexander you imagine I call Phillip into question; vnlesse, happily, you coniecture (which none of [25 judgment will conceiue) that because I like the fruit, therefore I heaue⁴ at the tree, or coueting to kisse the child, I therefore go about to poyson the teat. 29

PAR. I⁵ but, Clytus, I perceiue you are borne in the East, and neuer laugh but at the sunne-rising; which argueth, though a ductie where you ought, yet no great deuotion where you might. 34

CLITUS. We will make no controuersie of that which there ought to be no question.

² Excellence, pre-eminence.

³ Turquoises to surpass one another in beauty.

⁴ Vomit. ⁵ Aye (so frequently).

Onely this shal be the opinion of vs both — that none was worthy to be the father of Alexander but Phillip, nor any meete to bee the sonne of Phillip but Alexander. 40

PAR. Soft, Clytus! behold the spoiles and prisoners! A pleasaunt sight to vs, because profit is ioyned with honour; not much paineful to them, because their captiuitie is eased by mercy. 45

[Enter soldiers with spoils, leading in as captiues Timoclea, Campaspe, and other Thebans.]

TIMO. Fortune, thou didst neuer yet deceiue vertue, because vertue neuer yet did trust fortune. Sworde and fire will neuer get spoyle where wisdom and fortitude beares sway. O Thebes! thy [50 walles were rased by the sweetnesse of the harpe, but raced¹ by the shrilnes of the trumpet! Alexander had neuer come so neere the wals had Epaminondas walkt about the walles; and yet² might the [55 Thebanes haue beene mery in there streetes if he had beene to watch their towers. But destinie is seldome foreseene, neuer preuented. We are here now captiues, whose neckes are yoaked by force, but whose [60 harts can not yeelde by death! Come, Campaspe and the rest; let vs not be ashamed to cast our eyes on him, on whom wee feared not to cast our dartes. 64

PAR. Madame, you neede not doubt;³ it is Alexander that is the conquerour.

TIMO. Alex[ander] hath ouercome, not conquered.

PAR. To bring al vnder his subiection is to conquer. 70

TIMO. He cannot subdue that which is diuine.

PAR. Thebes was not.

TIMO. Vertue is. 74

CLITUS. Alexander, as he tendreth⁴ vertue, so he will you. He drinketh not bloud, but thirsteth after honor; he is

² Up to the present time.

³ Fear.

⁴ Cherisheth.

greedy of victory, but neuer satisfied with mercy. In fight terrible, as becometh a captaine; in conqweste milde, as be- [80 seemeth a king. In al things — then which nothing can be greater — he is Alexander!

CAMP. Then, if it be such a thing to be Alexander, I hope it shalbe no miser- [85 able thing¹ to be a virgin. For if he saue our honors, it is more then to restore our goods. And rather doe I wish hee preserue our fame, then our lyues; which if he do, wee will confesse there can be no greater thing then to be Alexander. 91

ALEX. Clitus, are these prisoners? Of whence these spoiles?

CLITUS. Like² your maiesty, they are prisoners, and of Thebes. 95

ALEX. Of what calling or reputation?

CLITUS. I know not; but they seeme to be ladies of honor.

ALEX. I wil know. [Turning to Timoclea.] Madam, of whence you are I know; but who, I cannot tell. 101

TIMO. Alexander, I am the sister of Theagenes, who fought a battell with thy father before the city of Chyronie, where he died, I say which none can gainsay, valiantly. 106

ALEX. Lady, there seeme in your words sparkes of your brothers deedes, but woorser fortune in your life then his death. But feare not, for you shall liue with- [110 out violence, enemies, or necessitie. [Turning to Campaspe.] But, what are you, fayre lady? Another sister to Theagines?

CAMP. No sister to Theagines, but an humble hand-maid to Alexander; borne of a meane parentage,³ but to extreme fortune. 117

ALEX. Well, ladies — for so your vertues shew you whatsoever your birthes be — you shalbe honourably en- [120 treated. Athens shall be your Thebes, and you shal not be as abiectes⁴ of warre, but as subiectes to Alexander. Permenio, con- ducte these honourable ladies into the cite. Charge the souldiers not so [125 much as in wordes to offer them any offence; and let all wants be supplied so farre forth as shalbe necessary for such persons and my prisoners. 129

Exeunt Parme[nio] et captiui.

[ALEX.] Hephestion, it resteth now that we haue as great care to gouerne in peace as conquer in war; that, whilest armes cease, artes may flourish, and, ioyning letters with launces, we endeour to be as good philosophers as soldiers, knowing it [135 no lesse praise to be wise then commendable to be valiant.

HEP. Your Maiestie therin sheweth that you haue as great desire to rule as to subdue. And needes must that [140 common-wealth be fortunate whose captaine is a philosopher, and whose philosopher is a captaine!

Exeunt.

[ACTUS PRIMUS.] SCHÆNA SECUNDA.

[The street. Enter Manes, Granichus, and Psyllus.]

MANES. I serue, in-steede of a maister, a mouse, whose house is a tub, whose dinner is a crust, and whose bed is a boord.¹

PSYLLUS. Then art thou in a state of life which philosophers commend: a [5 crumme for thy supper, an hande for thy cup, and thy clothes for thy sheetes. For *Natura paucis contenta.*²

GRAN. Manes, it is pittie so proper a man should be cast away vpon a [10 philosopher: but that Diogenes, that dogge,³ should haue Manes, that dogbolt,⁴ it grieueth nature and spiteth arte, the one hauing found thee so dissolute — absolute,⁵ I would say — in body, the other so single⁶ — singular — in minde. 16

¹ Diogenes affected the extremest austerity in living — his clothing was of the coarsest, his food of the plainest, and his bed was the ground or bare floor. At last he took up his residence in a tub.

² "Nature is content with few things."

³ Diogenes earned this epithet by his sharp rebukes to the Athenians.

⁴ Contemptible fellow.

² Please.

³ The reader should not overlook the fact that Campaspe was of middle-class birth, and hence unsuited to be the wife of Alexander.

⁴ Outcasts.

MANES. Are you mery? It is a signe, by the trip of your tongue and the toyes of your head, that you haue done that to day which I haue not done these three dayes. 20

PSYLLUS. What is that?

MANES. Dined!

GRAN. I thinke Diogenes keeps but cold cheere.

MANES. I would it were so; but hee keepeth neither hot nor cold. 26

GRAN. What, then? luke-warme? That made Manes runne from his maister last day.¹

PSYLLUS. Manes had reason, for his name foretold as much. 31

MANES. My name? How so, sir boy?

PSYLLUS. You know that it is called mons, à mouendo,² because it standes still.

MANES. Good. 35

PSYLLUS. And thou art named Manes, à manendo,³ because thou runst away.

MANES. Passing⁴ reasons! I did not runne away, but retire.

PSYLLUS. To a prison, because thou woldest haue leisure to contemplate. 41

MANES. I will proue that my body was immortall because it was in prison.

GRAN. As how?

MANES. Didde your maisters neuer teach you that the soule is immortall? 46

GRAN. Yes.

MANES. And the body is the prison of the soule.

GRAN. True. 50

MANES. Why then, thus: to make my body immortall I put it to prison.

GRAN. Oh bad!

PSYLLUS. Excellent ill! 54

MANES. You may see how dull a fasting wit is. Therefore, Psyllus, let vs go to supper with Granichus. Plato is the best fellow of al phylosophers. Giue me him that reades in the morning in the schoole, and at noone in the kitchin! 60

PSYLLUS. And me!

GRAN. Ah sirs, my maister is a king in his parlour⁵ for the body, and a god in his study for the soule. Among all his menne he commendeth one that is an excellent [65

musicion; then stand I by and clap another on the shoulder, and say, "This is a passing good cooke."

MANES. It is well doone, Granichus! For giue me pleasure that goes in at the [70 mouth, not the eare; I had rather fill my guttes then my braines.

PSYLLUS. I serue Apelles, whoe feedeth mee as Diogenes doth Manes; for at dinner the one preacheth abstinence, the other [75 commendeth counterfeiting.¹ When I would eat meat, he paintes a spit, and when I thirst, "O," saith he, "is not this a faire pot?" and points to a table² whiche conteines The Banquet of the Gods, [80 where are many dishes to feede the eie, but not to fill the gut.

GRAN. What doost thou then?

PSYLLUS. This doeth hee then — bring in many examples that some haue liued [85 by sauours; and proueth that much easier it is to fatte by colours; and telles of birdes that haue bene fatted by painted grapes in winter; and how many haue so fed their eies with their mistresse picture that [90 they neuer desired to take food, being glutted with the delight in their fauours.³ Then doth he shew me counterfeits [of] such as haue surfeited with their filthy and lothsome vomits, and with the riotous [95 Bacchanalles of the god Bacchus and his disorderly crew — which are painted al to the life in his shop. To conclude, I fare hardly thogh I go richly. Which maketh me, when I shuld begin to shadow⁴ a [100 ladies face, to draw a lambes head — and sometime to set to the body of a maide a shoulder of mutton!⁵ for semper animus meus est in patinis.⁶ 104

MANES. Thou art a god to me! for could I see but a cookes shop painted I would make mine eyes fatte as butter. For I haue nought but sentences to fil my maw: as, Plures occidit crapula quàm glad- ius; Musa iciunantibus amica;⁷ Reple- [110 tion killeth delicately; and an old saw⁸ of

GRAN. But how doest thou then liue? 116

MANES. With fine iests, sweet aire, and the dogs almes.²

GRAN. Wel, for this time I will stanch thy gut; and among pots and platters thou shalt see what it is to serue Plato. 121

PSYLLUS. For ioy of Granichus lets sing.

MANES. My voice is as cleare in the euening as in the morning.³

GRAN. Another commodity⁴ of emptines. 126

GRAN. O for a bowle of fatt canary!
Rich Palermo! sparkling sherry!
Some nectar, else, from Iuno's daiery. 129
O, these draughts would make vs merry!

PSYLLUS. O for a wench! (I deale in faces,
And in other dayntier things.)
Tickled am I with her embraces, — Fine dancing in such fairy ringes! 134

MANES. O for a plump fat leg of mutton!
Veale, lambe, eapon, pigge, and conney!
None is happy but a glutton,
None an asse but who wants money.

CHOR. Wines, indeed, and girls are good,
But braue victuals feast the bloud. 140
For wenches, wine, and lusty cheere,
Loue would leape down to surfet heere!

[ACTUS PRIMUS.] SCHÆNA TERTIA.

[The street, before Alexander's palace. Enter Melippus.]

MELIP. I had neuer such a doe to warne schollers to come before a king! First I cam to Crisippus, a tall leane old mad-man, willing him presently to appeare before Alexander. He stooed staring on [5 my face, neither mouing his eies nor his body. I vrging him to giue some answer, hee tooke vp a booke, sate downe, and saide nothing! Melissa, his maid, told me it was his manner; and that oftentimes [10 she was fain to thrust meate into his mouth. for that he wold rather starue then cease studie. Well, thought I, seeing bookish men are so blockish, and so great clarkes¹ such simple courtiers, I wil ncither be [15 partaker of their commons² nor their commendations. From thence I came to Plato and to Aristotle, and to diuerse other; none refusing to come, sauing an olde obscure fellowe, who, sitting in a tub turned [20 towards the sunne, reade Greek to a yong boy. Him when I willed to appeare before Alexander, he answered: "If Alexander wold faine see me, let him come to mee; if learne of me, lette him come to me; [25 whatsoeuer it be, let him come to me." "Why," said I, "he is a king!" He answered, "Why: I am a philosopher." "Why, but he is Alexander!" "I, but I am Diogenes." I was halfe angry to [30 see one, so crooked in his shape, to be so crabbed in his sayings. So, going my way, I said, "Thou shalt repent it if thou comest not to Alexander!" "Nay," smiling answered he, "Alexander may repent it [35 if he come not to Diogenes; vertue must be sought, not offered." And so, turning himself to his cel, he grunted I know not what, like a pig vnder a tub. But I must be gone, the philosophers are comming. 40

Exit [into the palace].

[Enter Plato, Aristotle, Cleanthes, Anaxarchus, Crates, and Chrysipus.]

PLATO. It is a difficult controuersie, Aristotle, and rather to be wondred at then beleueed, how natural causes should worke supernatural effects. 44

ARIS. I doe not so much stand vpon the apparition is seene in the moone, neither the Demonium of Socrates, as that I cannot by naturall reason giue any reason of the ebbing and flowing of the sea; which makes me in the depth of my studies to crye out,

² Provisions, rations.

*O ens entium, miserere mei!*¹ 51

PLATO. Cleanthes and you attribute so muche to nature by searching for things which are not to be found, that, whilst you studie a cause of your owne, you omitte 55 the occasion it selfe. There is no man so sauage in whom resteth not this diuine particle — that there is an omnipotent, eternal, and deuine mouer, which may be called "God." 60

CLEANT. I am of this minde: that that first mouer, which you tearme "God," is the instrument of all the mouings; which we attribute to nature. The earth, which is masse, swimmeth on the sea. Sea- 65 sons deuided in themselues, fruits growing in themselues, the maiestic of the skie, the whole firmament of the world, and whatsoeuer els appeareth miraculous — what man, almost of meane capacity, but can proue it naturall? 71

ANAXAR. These causes shalbe debated at our philosophers feast, in which con-trouersie I will take parte with Aristotle, that there is Natura naturans,² and yet not
 God. 76

CRATES. And I with Plato, that there is Deus optimus maximus,³ and not nature.

ARIS. Here commeth Alexander. 79

[Enter from the palace Alexander and Hephaestion.]

ALEX. I see, Hephestion, that these philosophers are here attending for vs.

HEP. They were not philosophers if they knew not their duties.

ALEX. But I much maruaile Diogenes
 shoulde be so dogged. 85

HEP. I doe not think but his excuse will be better then Melippus message.

ALEX. I will go see him, Hephestion, because I long to see him that would commaund Alexander to come, to whom al 90 the world is like⁴ to come. [Turning to the philosophers.] Aristotle and the rest, sithence my comming from Thebes to Athens, from a place of conquest to a pal-lace of quiet, I haue resolued with my 95

self in my court to haue as many philosophers, as I had in my camp soldiers. My court shalbe a schole, wherein I wil haue vsed as great doctrine in peace as I did in warre discipline. 100

ARIS. We are al here ready to be commaunded; and glad we are that we are commaunded, for that nothing better becommeth kings then literature, which maketh them come as neere to the gods in wisdom as they do in dignitie. 106

ALEX. It is so, Aristotle; but yet there is among you — yea and of your bringing vp! — that sought to destroy Alexander:
 — Calistenes, Aristotle, whose trea- 110 sons againste his prince shall not bee borne out with the reasons of his phylosophy.

ARIS. If euer mischiefe entred into the heart of Calistenes, let Calistenes suffer for it; but that Aristotle euer imagined any 115 such thing of Calistenes, Aristotle doth denie.

ALEX. Well, Aristotle, kindred may blind thee, and affection¹ mee. But in kinges causes I will not stande to 119 schollers arguments. This meeting shalbe for a commandement, that you all frequent my courte. Instructe the young with rules, confirme the olde with reasons, lette your liues be answerable to your learnings, leaste my proceedings be² contrary to my promises. 126

HEP. You sayde you woulde aske euery one of them a question, which yester-night none of vs coulde aunswere. 129

ALEX. I will. Plato, of all beastes which is the subtillest?

PLATO. That which man hetherto neuer
 knew.

ALEX. Aristotle, how should a man be thought a god? 135

ARIS. In doing a thing vnpossible for a
 man.

ALEX. Crisippus, which was first, the day or the night? 139

CHRYS. The day, by a day.

ALEX. Indede, straunge questions must haue straung answeres. Cleanthes, what say you, is life or death the stronger?

CLE. Life, that suffereth so many troubles. 145

¹ "Oh reality of realities, have mercy on me."

² Nature, a creative power in itself.

³ A God, best, most powerful.

⁴ Glad, pleased.

² Q₂ by; I adopt the reading of the other editions

ALEX. Crates, how long should a man live?

CRATES. Till he thinke it better to die then live. 149

ALEX. Anaxarchus, whether doth the sea or the earth bring forth most creatures?

ANAX. The earth; for the sea is but a parte of the earth. 153

ALEX. Hephestion, me thinkes they haue answered all well; and in such questions I meane often to trie them.

HEP. It is better to haue in your courte a wise man, then in your ground a golden mine. Therefore would I leaue war to studie wisdom, were I Alexander. 160

ALEX. So would I, were I Hephestion. But come; let vs go and giue release, as I promised, to our Theban thrallles.

[Exeunt Alexander and Hephestion.]

PLATO. Thou art fortunate, Aristotle, that Alexander is thy scholler. 165

ARIS. And you happy that he is your soucraigne.

CHRYS. I could like the man well if he could be contented to be but a man. 169

ARIS. He seeketh to draw nere to the gods in knowledge, not to be a god.

PLATO. Let us question a litle with Diogenes why he went not with vs to Alexander. [They approach Diogenes, [174 who is sitting in his tub.] Diogenes, thou didst forget thy dutie that thou wentst not with vs to the king.

DIOG. And you your profession, that you went to the king. 179

PLATO. Thou takest as great pride to bee peeuish as others doe glory to bee vertuous.

DIOG. And thou as great honor, being a philosopher, to bee thought courtlike, [184 as others shame, that be courtiers, to be accounted philosophers.

ARIS. These austere maners set a side, it is wel known that thou didst counterfeite monye. 189

DIOG. And thou thy maners, in that thou didst counterfeite money.

ARIS. Thou hast reason to contemn the courte, being both in body and mynde too crooked for a courtier. 194

DIOG. As good be crooked, and en-deuour to make my self straight, from the court, as to be straight, and learne to be crooked at the court. 198

CRATES. Thou thinkest it a grace to be opposite against Alexander.

DIOG. And thou to be iump with I Alexander.

ANAX. Let vs go; for in contemning him wee shall better please him than in wondering at him. [They walk away.] 205

ARIS. Plato, what dost thou thinke of Diogenes?

PLATO. To be Socrates furious.² Let vs go. 209

Exeunt Philosophi.

ACTUS SECUNDUS

SCHENA PRIMA

[Diogenes advances from his tub, holding up a lantern as if seeking an honest man. Enter Psyllus, Manes, and Granicus.]

PSYLLUS. Behold, Manes, where thy maister is, seeking either for bones for his dinner, or pinnes for his sleeues.³ I wil go salute him.

MANES. Doe so; but mum! not a woord you sawe Manes. 6

GRAN. Then stay thou behinde, and I will goe with Psyllus.

[Granicus and Psyllus approach Diogenes.]

PSYLLUS. All haile, Diogenes, to your proper person! 10

DIOG. All hate to thy peeuish conditions.

GRAN. O Dogge!

PSYLLUS. What dost thou seeke for here? 15

DIOG. For a man, and a beast.

GRAN. That is casie without thy light to be found; bee not all these men? [Pointing to the audience.]

DIOG. Called men.

GRAN. What beast is it thou lookest for? 21

DIOG. The beast my man, Manes.

PSYLLUS. He is a beast indeede that will serue thee!

³ Because so ragged.

² Mad.

DIOG. So is he that begat thee. 25 GRAN. What wouldest thou do if thou shouldest find Manes?

DIOG. Giue him leaue to doo as hee hath done before.

GRAN. Whats that? 30

DIOG. To runne away.

PSYLLUS. Why, hast thou no neede of Manes?

DIOG. It were a shame for Diogenes to haue neede of Manes, and for Manes to haue no need of Diogenes. 36

GRAN. But put the case he were gone, wouldest thou entertaine ¹ any of vs two?

DIOG. Vpon condition.

PSYLLUS. What? 40

DIOG. That you should tell me wherefore any of you both were good.

GRAN. Why, I am a scholler, and well seene ² in phylosophy.

PSYLLUS. And I a prentice, and well seene in painting. 46

DIOG. Well then, Granichus, bee thou a painter to amend thine yll face; and thou, Psyllus, a phylosopher to correct thine euil manners. But who is that? Manes? 50

MANES [advancing]. I care not who I were, so I were not Manes.

GRAN. You are taken tardie.

PSYLLUS. Let vs slip aside, Granichus, to see the salutation between Manes and his maister. [They stand aside.] 56

DIOG. Manes, thou knowest the last day ³ I threw away my dish to drink in my hand, because it was superfluous; now I am determined to put away my man and serue my selfe, *quia non ego tui vel te.*⁴ 61

MANES. Maister, you know a while a goe I ran away; so doe I meane to do againe, *quia scio tibi non esse argentum.*⁵ 64

DIOG. I know I haue no mony; neither will I haue euer a man: for I was resolued longe sithence to put away both my slaues — money and Manes.

MANES. So was I determined to shake of both my dogs — hunger and Diogenes.

PSYLLUS. O sweete consent beetweene a crowde ¹ and a Iewes harp! 72

GRAN. Come, let vs reconcile them.

PSYLLUS. It shall not neede, for this is their vse. Nowe do they dine one vpon
 another. 76

Exit Diogenes [into his tub].

GRAN. How now, Manes? art thou gone from thy maister?

MANES. Noe, I didde but nowe bynde
 my selfe to him. 80

PSYLLUS. Why, you were at mortall iars!

MANES. In faith, no; we brake a bitter iest one vpon another.

GRAN. Why, thou art as dogged as he.

PSYLLUS. My father knew them both litle whelpes. 87

MANES. Well, I will hie mee after my maister.

GRAN. Why, is it supper time with Diogenes? 91

MANES. I, with him at al times when he hath meate.

PSYLLUS. Why then, euery man to his home; and lette vs steale out againe anone.

GRAN. Where shall we meete? 96

PSYLLUS. Why, at *Ala vendibili sus-pensa hedera non est opus.*²

MANES. O Psyllus, *habeo te loco parentis,*³ thou blessed me! 100

Exeunt.

[ACTUS SECUNDUS.] SCENA SECUNDA.

[The street. Enter from the palace Alexander, Hephestion, and the Page.]

ALEX. Stand aside, sir boy, till you be called. [The Page withdraws.] Hephestion, how doe yee like the sweete face of Campaspe?

HEP. I cannot but commend the stoute couraige of Timoclea. 6

ALEX. Without doubt Campaspe had some great man to her father.

² Skilled.

³ Yesterday.

⁴ An echo of William Lyly's Latin Grammar:
 "Egeo, or indigeo, tui vel te, I have need of thee";
 that is, the verb is followed by either the genitive or the accusative.

⁵ "Because I know you have no money." Manes takes his quip likewise from Lyly's Grammar.

² "Good ale needs no bush," an old English proverb turned into Latin.

³ "I have thee in place of a parent." From Lyly's Grammar.

HEP. You know Timoclea had Theagines to her brother. 10

ALEX. Timoclea stil in thy mouth!
Art thou not in loue?

HEP. Not I!

ALEX. Not with Timoclea, you meane; wherein you resemble the lapwing, who [15 crieth most where her neast is not; and so you lead me from espying your loue with Campaspe, you cry Timoclea.

HEP. Could I aswell subdue kingdomes as I can my thoughtes, or were I as [20 farre from ambition as I am from loue, al the world wold account mee as valiant in armes as I know my self moderate in affection.

ALEX. Is loue a vice? 25

HEP. It is no vertue.

ALEX. Well, now shalt thou see what small difference I make betweene Alexander and Hephestion. And sith thou haste bene alwayes partaker of my [30 triumphes, thou shalt be partaker of my tormentes. I loue, Hephestion! I loue!
I loue Campaspe! — a thing farre vnfit for a Macedonian, for a king, for Alexander.
Why hangest thou down thy head, [35 Hephestion? Blushing to heare that which I am not ashamed to tell!

HEP. Might my wordes craue pardon, and my counsel credite, I woulde both discharge the ductie of a subiect, for so I am, and the office of a friend, for so I will. 41

ALEX. Speake Hephestion; for whatsoeuer is spoken, Hephestion speaketh to Alexander. 44

HEP. I can not tel, Alexander, whether the reporte be more shameful to be heard, or the cause sorrowfull to be beleued!
What! is the sonne of Phillip, king of Macedon, become the subiect of Campaspe, the captiue of Thebes? Is that [50 minde, whose greatnes the world could not containe, drawn within the compasse of an idle alluring eie? Wil you handle the spindle with Hercules, when you should shake the speare with Achilles? Is the [55 warlike sound of drumme and trumpe turned to the soft noyse of lire and lute? the neighing of barbed steeds, whose loudnes filled the ayre with terrour, and whose breathes dimmed the sunne with [60 smoak, conuerted to dilicate tunes and amorous glaunces? O Alexander! that soft and yeelding minde should not bee in him, whose hard and vnconquered heart hath made so many yeelde. But, you [65 loue. Ah grieffe! But whom? Campaspe! Ah shame! A maide forsooth vn-knowne, vnnoble;¹ and who can tell whether immodest? whose eies are framed by arte to inamour, and whose heart [70 was made by nature to inchaunt. I, but she is bewtiful. Yea, but not therefore chast. I, but she is comly in al parts of the body. Yea, but she may be crooked in some part of the mind. I, but she is [75 wise. Yea, but she is a woman! Bewty is like the blackberry, which seemeth red when it is not ripe; resembling pretious stones that are polished with honny, which, the smother they look, the [80 sooner they breake. It is thought wonderful among the seamen, that mugil, of all fishes the swiftest, is found in the belly of the bret, of al the slowest; and shall it not seeme monstrous to wisemen that the [85 hearte of the greatest conquerour of the weakest creature of nature? of a woman! of a captiue! Hermyns² haue faire skinnes, but fowle liuers: sepulchres fresh [90 colours, but rotten bones; women faire faces, but false heartes. Remember, Alexander, thou hast a campe to gouerne, not a chamber! Fall not from the armour of Mars to the armes of Venus, from the [95 fiery assaults of war, to the maidenly skirmishes of loue, from displaying the eagle in thine ensigne, to set downe the sparow.³ I sighe, Alexander, that where fortune could not conquer, folly shuld [100 ouercome. But behold al the perfection that may be in Campaspe: a hayre curling by nature not arte; sweete alluring eies; a faire face made in dispite of Venus, and a stately porte in disdaine of Iuno; a [105 witte apt to conceiue and quick to an-swere; a skin as soft as silk, and as smooth as iet; a longe white hand; a fine litle foote;

— to conclude, all partes answerable to the best part. What of this? Though [110

³ The symbol of Venus.

she haue heauenly giftes, vertue and bewtie, is she not of earthly mettall, flesh and bloud? · You, Alexander, that would be a god, shew your selfe in this worse then a man — so soone to be both ouer- [115 scene and ouertaken in a woman, whose false teares know their true times, whose smooth words wound deeper then sharpe swordes. There is no surfeit so dangerous as that of honney, nor anye poyson so [120 deadly as that of loue; — in the one, phisicke cannot preuaile, nor in the other counsell.

ALEX. My case were light, Hephestion, and not worthy to be called loue, if [125 reason were a remedy, or sentences could salue that sense cannot conceiue. Little do you know — and therefore slightly do you regarde — the dead embers in a priuate person, or liue coles in a great prince, [130 whose passions and thoughts do as far exceede others in extremitie, as their callings doe in maiestie.¹ An eclipse in the sunne is more then the falling of a starre; none can conceiue the torments of a king, [135 vnlesse hee be a king, whose desires are not inferior to their dignities. And then iudge, Hephestion, if the agonies of loue be dangerous in a subiect, whether they be not more then deadly vnto Alexander, [140 whose deep and not-to-be-conceiued sighes cleaue the hart in shiuers, whose wounded thoughtes can neither be expressed nor endured. Cease then, Hephestion, with arguments to seeke to refel² that [145 which, with their deitie, the gods cannot resist; and let this suffice to aunswere thee, that it is a king that loueth, and Alexander, whose affections are not to be measured by reason, being immortall — nor, I feare me, to be borne, being intollerable! 151

HEP. I must needs yeeld when neither reason nor counsell can be heard.

ALEX. Yeeld, Hephestion; for Alexander doth loue — and therefore must obtaine. 156

HEP. Suppose she loues not you? Affection commeth not by appointmente or birth; and then as good hated as enforced.

¹ Obviously intended as a compliment to Queen Elizabeth.

² Refute.

ALEX. I am a king, and will command. 161

HEP. You may, to yeelde to luste by force; but to consent to loue by feare, you cannot!

ALEX. Why, what is that which Alexander may not conquer as he list? 166

HEP. Why, that which you say the gods cannot resiste — loue.

ALEX. I am a conquerour, she a captiue; I as fortunate as, she faire; my [170 greatnes may not aunswere her wants, and the giftes of my minde the modestie of hers. Is it not likely, then, that she should loue? Is it not reasonable? 174

HEP. You say that in loue there is no reason, and therefore there can be no likelihood.

ALEX. No more, Hephestion! In this case I wil vse mine owne counsell, and in all other thine aduice. Thou maist be a [180 good soldier, but neuer good louer. Cal my Page. [Page advances.] Sirha, goe presently to Apelles, and will him to come to me without either delay or excuse.

PAGE. I goe. 185

[Exit the Page into the studio of Apelles.]

ALEX. In the meane season, to recreate my spirits, being so neare, we will goe see Diogenes. And see where his tub is. [They cross over to Diogenes' tub.] Diogenes? 190

DIOG. [from his tub.] Who calleth?

ALEX. Alexander. How happened it that you would not come out of your tub to my palace? 194

DIOG. Because it was as far from my tub to your pallace as from your palace to my tub.

ALEX. Why then, doest thou ow no reuerence to kings?

DIOG. No. 200

ALEX. Why so?

DIOG. Because they be no gods.

ALEX. They be gods of the earth.

DIOG. Yea, gods of earth.

ALEX. Plato is not of thy mind. 205

DIOG. I am glad of it.

ALEX. Why?

DIOG. Because I would haue none of Diogenes minde but Diogenes. 209

ALEX. If Alexander haue any thing that may pleasure Diogenes, let me know, and take it.

DIOG. Then take not from me that you cannot giue me — the light of the world.

[Motions him to stand aside so as not to cut off the sun-light.]

ALEX. What doest thou want? 215

DIOG. Nothing that you haue.

ALEX. I haue the world at commaund!

DIOG. And I, in contempt.

ALEX. Thou shalt liue no longer than I will. 220

DIOG. But I will die, whether you will or no.

ALEX. How should one learn to be content?

DIOG. Vnlearn to couet. 225

ALEX. Hephestion, were I not Alexander, I wolde wishe to be Diogenes.

HEP. He is dogged, but discrete; I cannot tel how — sharpe, with a kinde of sweetenes, ful of wit, yet too too wayward. 231

ALEX. Diogenes, when I come this way again, I will both see thee, and confer with thee.

DIOG. Doe. 235

[Enter Apelles from his studio.]

ALEX. But here commeth Apelles. How now, Apelles, is Venus face yet finished?

APEL. Not yet. Bewty is not so soone shadowed whose perfection commeth [240 not within the compasse either of cunning or of colour.

ALEX. Well, let it rest vnperfect; and come you with me, where I wil shewe you that finished by nature that you haue bene trifling about by art. 246

[Exeunt.]

ACTUS TERTIUS

SCHÆNA PRIMA

[The street, before the studio of Apelles. Enter Apelles and Campaspe, with Psyllus attending.]

APEL. Lady, I doubt whether there bee any colour so fresh that may shadow a countenance so faire.

CAMP. Sir, I had thought you had bene commaunded to paint with your [5 hand, not to glose¹ with your tongue. But, as I haue heard, it is the hardest thing in painting to set down a hard fauour;² which maketh you to despair of my face: and then shall you haue as great thanks [10 to spare your labour as to discredit your arte.

APEL. Mistresse, you neither differ from your selfe nor your sex; for, knowing your owne perfection, you seeme to [15 dispraise that which men most commend, drawing them by that meane into an admiration,³ where, feeding them selues, they fall into an extasie;⁴ your modestie being the cause of the one, and of the other, your affections.⁵ 21

CAMP. I am too young to vnderstand your speache, thogh old enough to withstand your deuise: you haue bin so long vsed to colours, you can do nothing but colour.⁶ 26

APEL. Indeed, the colours I see, I feare, wil alter the colour I haue! But come, madam; will you draw neere? for Alexander will be here anon. Psyllus, stay you [30 heere at the window. If anye enquire for me, aunswere, *Non lubet esse domi.*⁷

[Exeunt [into studio].]

[ACTUS TERTIUS.] SCHÆNA SECUNDA.

[The same. Psyllus remains.]

PSYLLUS. It is alwayes my maisters fashion, when any fair gentlewoman is to be drawne within, to make mee to stay without. But if he shuld paint Iupiter like a bul, like a swan, like an eagle, then [5 must Psyllus with one hand grind colours, and with the other hold the candle. But, let him alone! The better he shadowes her face, the more will he burne his owne heart. And now, if a manne cold meet with [10

PSYLLUS. Then I hope thou art very hungry.

MANES. They that know thee know that. 19

PSYLLUS. But doest thou not remember that wee haue certaine licour to conferre withall.

MANES. I, but I haue busines; I must go cry ¹ a thing.

PSYLLUS. Why, what hast thou lost? 25

MANES. That which I neuer had — my dinner.

PSYLLUS. Foule lubber, wilt thou crye for thy dinner? 29

MANES. I meane, I must "cry"; not as one would saye "cry," but "cry," — that is, make a noyse.

PSYLLUS. Why, foole, that is al one; for, if thou cry, thou must needes make a noise. 35

MANES. Boy, thou art deceiued. "Cry" hath diuerse significations, and may bee alluded to manye things; "knaue" but one, and can be applyed but to thee.

PSYLLUS. Profound Manes! 40

MANES. Wee Cynickes are madde fellows. Didste thou not finde I did quip thee?

MANES. Well then, let vs to the matter. In fayth, my maister meaneth to morrow to fly. 75

PSYLLUS. It is a iest!

MANES. Is it a iest to flye? Shouldest thou flye so, soone thou shouldest repent it in earnest.

PSYLLUS. Well, I will be the cryer. 80

[The last word is pronounced by Manes only.]

PSYLLUS. I do not think he will flye.

MANES. Tush! say "fly."

PSYLLUS. Fly! 89

MANES. Now let vs goe; for I will not see him againe til midnight. I haue a back way into his tub.

[The curtains to the studio of Apelles are drawn open, revealing Campaspe seated, and Apelles busily painting her portrait.]

APEL. I shall neuer drawe your eies well, because they blind mine.

CAMP. Why then, paint me without eies, for I am blind.

APEL. Were you euer shadowed before of any? 6

CAMP. No. And would you could so now shadow me that I might not be perceiued of any! 1 9

APEL. It were pittie but that so absolute 2 a face should furnish Venus temple amongst these pictures.

CAMP. What are these pictures?

APEL. This is Læda, whom Ioue deceiued in likenes of a swan. 15

CAMP. A fair woman, but a foule deceit.

APEL. This is Alemena, vnto whom Iupiter came in shape of Amphitriton her husband, and begat Hereules. 20

CAMP. A famous sonne, but an infamous fact.

APEL. He might do it, because he was a god.

CAMP. Nay, therefore it was euill done, because he was a god. 26

APEL. This is Danae, into whose prison Iupiter drisdled a golden shewre, and obtained his desire.

CAMP. What gold can make one yeelede to desire? 31

APEL. This is Europa, whom Iupiter rauished. This, Antiopa.

CAMP. Were al the gods like this Iupiter. 35

APEL. There were many gods in this like Iupiter.

CAMP. I thinke in those dayes loue was wel ratified among men on earth, when lust was so ful authorised by the gods in heauen. 41

APEL. Nay, you may imagine there wer women passing amiable, when there were gods exceeding amorous.

CAMP. Were women neuer so faire, men wold be false. 46

² Perfect.

APEL. Were women neuer so false, men wold be fond.

CAMP. What counterfeit is this, Apelles? 50

APEL. This is Venus, the goddesses of loue.

CAMP. What! be there also louing goddesses?

APEL. This is she that hath power to commaunde the very affections of the heart. 57

CAMP. How is she hired? by praier, by sacrifice, or bribes?

APEL. By praier, sacrifice, and bribes.

CAMP. What praier? 61

APEL. Vowes irreuocable.

CAMP. What sacrifice?

APEL. Heartes euer sighing, neuer dissembling. 65

CAMP. What bribes?

APEL. Roses and kisses. But were you neuer in loue?

CAMP. No; nor loue in me.

APEL. Then haue you iniured many. 70

CAMP. How so?

APEL. Because you haue beene loued of many.

CAMP. Flattered, parchance, of some.

APEL. It is not possible that a face [75 so faire and a wit so sharpe, both without comparison, shuld not be apt to loue!

CAMP. If you begin to tip your tongue with cunning, I pray dip your pensil in colours, and fall to that you must doe, not that you would doe. 81

[The curtains remain open.]

[ACTUS TERTIUS.] SCHLÆNA QUARTA.

[In the street before Alexander's palace.

Enter Clitus and Parmenio.]

CLITUS. Parmenio, I cannot tel how it commeth to passe that in Alexander now-a-daies there groweth an vnpatient kinde of life: in the morning he is melancholy, at noone solomne, at all times either more sower or seure then he was accustomed. 6

PAR. In kinges causes I rather loue to doubt then coniecture, and think it better to be ignoraunt then inquisitiue: they haue long eares and stretched armes, in [10 whose heades suspection is a prooffe, and to be accused is to be condemned.

CLITUS. Yet betweene vs there canne be no danger to finde out the cause, for that there is no malice to withstand it. It [15 may be an vnquenchable thirste of conquering maketh him vnquiet. It is not vlikly his long ease hath altered his humour. That he should bee in loue, it is not impossible. 20

PAR. In loue, Clytus? No, no! it is as farre from his thought as treason in ours. He whose euer-waking eye, whose neuer-tyred heart, whose body patient of labour, whose mind vnsatiabie of victory hath [25 alwayes bin noted, cannot so soone be melted into the weak conceites of loue! Aristotle told him there were many worlds; and that he hath not conquered one that gapeth for al, galleth Alexander. But here he commeth. 31

[From the palace enter Alexander and Hephestion.]

ALEX. Parmenio and Clitus, I would haue you both redy to go into Persia about an ambassage no lesse profitable to me then to your selues honourable. 35

CLITUS. We are ready at all commaundes, wishing nothing els but continually to be commaunded.

ALEX. Well then, withdraw your selues till I haue further considered of this matter. 41

Exeunt Clytus and Parmenio.

[Alexander and Hephestion cross over towards Apelles' studio.]

ALEX. Now we wil see how Apelles goeth forward. I doubt me that nature hath ouercome arte, and her countenance his cunning. 45

HEP. You loue, and therefore think any thing.

ALEX. But not so far in loue with Campaspe as with Bucephalus,¹ if occasion serue either of conflicte or of conquest. 50

HEP. Occasion cannot want if wil doe not. Behold all Persia swelling in the pride of their owne power! the Scythians carelesse what courage or fortune can do!

the Aegiptians dreaming in the south- [55 sayings of their Augures, and gaping ouer the smoak of their beasts intralles! All these, Alexander, are to bee subdued — if that world be not slipped out of your head, which you haue sworne to conquire with that hand. 61

ALEX. I confesse the labours fit for Alexander; and yet recreation necessary among so many assaults, bloudye wounds, intolerable troubles. Giue mee leaue a [65 litle, if not to sitte, yet to breath. And doubt not but Alexander can, when he wil, throw affections as farre from him as he can cowardise. [They pause to watch Diogenes.] But behold Diogenes talking [70 with one at his tub.

CRYSUS [at Diogenes' tub]. One penny, Diogenes; I am a Cynick.

DIOG. He made thee a begger that first gaue thee any thing. 75

CRYSUS. Why, if thou wilt giue nothing, no-body will giue thee.

DIOG. I want nothing, till the springs dry and the earth perish.

CRYSUS. I gather for the gods. 80

DIOG. And I care not for those gods which want money.

CRYSUS. Thou art a right Cynicke that will giue nothing.

DIOG. Thou art not, that will beg any thing. 86

[Crysus approaches Alexander.]

CRYSUS. Alexander! King Alexander! giue a poore Cynick a groat.

ALEX. It is not for a king to giue a groat.

CRYSUS. Then giue me a talent. 90

ALEX. It is not for a begger to aske a talent. A-waye! [Alexander and Hephestion proceed to Apelles' studio.] Apelles?

APEL. Here. 94

ALEX. Now, gentlewomanne, doeth not your beauty put the painter to his trump?

CAMP. Yes, my lorde; seeing so disordered a countenance he feareth he shall shadow a deformed counterfeit. 99

ALEX. Wold he could colour the life with the feature! And me thinketh, Apelles, were you as cunning as report saith you are, you may paint flowers aswell with sweete smels as fresh colours, obseruing in your mixture such things as should draw neere to their sauours. 106

APEL. Your maiestic must know it is no lesse harde to paint sauours then vertues;
colours can neither speake nor think.

ALEX. Where doe you first begin when you drawe any picture? 111

APEL. The proposition of the face, in iust compasse as I can.

ALEX. I would begin with the eie, as a light to all the rest. 115

APEL. If you will paint as you are a king, your Maiestic may beginne where you please; but, as you wold be a painter, you must begin with the face.

ALEX. Aurelius would in one houre colour four faces. 121

APEL. I meruaile in half an houre he did not foure.

ALEX. Why, is it so easie?

APEL. No, but he doth it so homely.¹ 125

ALEX. When will you finish Campaspe?

APEL. Neuer finishe! — for alwayes in absolute bewtie there is somewhat aboute
arte.

ALEX. Why should not I, by labour, bee
as cunning as Apelles? 131

APEL. God shield you should haue cause to be so cunning as Apelles!

ALEX. Me thinketh foure colours are sufficient to shadow any countenance; and so it was in the time of Phydias. 136

APEL. Then had men fewer fancies, and women not so many fauours. For now, if the haire of her eie-browes be black, yet must the haire of her head be yellowe;² [140 the attire of her head must be different from the habit of her body — els must the picture seeme like the blason of ancient armorie, not like the sweet delight of newfound amiablenes. For, as in garden [145 knottes³ diuersitie of odours make a more sweet sauor, or as in musicke diuers strings cause a more delicate consent,⁴ so in painting, the more colours the better counterfeit, obseruing blacke for a ground, and the rest for grace. 151

¹ Crudely.

² At this time, because Elizabeth had "yellow" hair, women were accustomed to dye their hair a similar color.

³ Flower beds laid out in fanciful designs.

⁴ Harmony.

ALEX. Lend me thy pensil, Apelles. I will paint, and thou shalt iudge.

APEL. Here.

[Alexander attempts to paint.]

ALEX. The coale¹ breakes. 155

APEL. You leane too hard.

ALEX. Now it blackes not.

APEL. You leane too soft.

ALEX. This is awty.

APEL. Your eie goeth not with your hand. 161

ALEX. Now it is worse.

APEL. Your hand goeth not with your mind. 164

ALEX. Nay, if al be too hard or soft, so many rules and regards that ones hand, ones eie, ones minde must all draw together, I had rather bee setting of a battell then blotting of a boord.² But how haue I done heere? 170

APEL. Like a king.

ALEX. I thinke so; but nothing more vnlike a painter. Wel, Apelles, Campaspe is finished as I wish. Dismiss her, and bring presently³ her counterfeit after me.

APEL. I will. 176

[Alexander and Hephestion withdraw from the studio, and stand without.]

ALEX. Now, Hephestion, doth not this matter cotton⁴ as I would? Campaspe looketh pleasauntly, liberty wil encrease her bewty, and my loue shall aduaunce her honour. 181

HEP. I will not contrary your Maiestic; for time must weare out that loue hath wrought, and reason weane what appetite noursed. 185

[*Campaspe leaves the studio and passes down
the street.*]

ALEX. How stately she passeth bye! yet how soberly! a sweet consent in her countenance, with a chast disdaine! desire mingled with coyresse; and — I cannot tell how to tearme it — a curst yeelding modestie! 190

HEP. Let her passe.

² The panel on which pictures were painted.

³ At once.

⁴ Thrive, succeed.

ALEX. So she shall — for the fairest on the earth!

Exeunt [into the palace].

[ACTUS TERTIUS.] SCHÆNA QUINTA.

[The street before the studio. Enter Psyllus and Manes.]

PSYLLUS. I shalbe hanged for tarying so long.

MANES. I pray God my maister be not flowne before I come! 4

PSYLLUS. Away, Manes! my maister doth come!

[Exit Manes.]

[From the studio enter Apelles with the portrait of Campaspe.]

APEL. Where haue you bin all this while?

PSYLLUS. No where but heere.

APEL. Who was here since my coming? 11

PSYLLUS. No-body.

APEL. Vngratious wag, I perceiue you haue beene a loytering! Was Alexander no-body? 15

PSYLLUS. He was a king; I meant no meane body.

APEL. I will cogell your body for it; and then will I say it was "no-bodie," because it was no honeste body. Away! in! 20

Exit Psyllus [into the studio].

[APEL.] Vnfortunate Apelles! and therefore vnfortunate beecause Apelles! Hast thou by drawing her bewty brought to passe that thou canst scarce draw thine own breath? And by so much the more [25 hast thou encreased thy care, by how much the more thou hast shewed thy cunning. Was it not sufficient to behold the fire and warme thee, but with Satyrus thou must kisse the fire and burne thee? O Campaspe! Campaspe! Arte must yeeld to nature, reason to appetite, wisdom to affection. Could Pigmalion entreate by prayer to haue his iuory turned into flesh? and cannot Apelles obtaine by plaints to [35 haue the picture of his loue changed to life? Is painting so farre inferiour to caru-

ing? or dost thou, Venus, more delight to be hewed with chizels then shadowed with colours? What Pigmalyon, or what [40 Pyrgoteles, or what Lysippus is hee that cuer made thy face so fayre, or spread thy fame so farre as I? Vnlesse, Venus, in this thou enuiest mine arte — that in colouring my sweete Campaspe I haue left no [45 place by cunning to make thee so amiable! But, alas! she is the paramour to a prince. Alexander, the monarch of the earth, hath both her body and affection. For what is it that kinges cannot obtaine by prais, [50 ers, threates, and promises? Wil not she think it better to sit vnder a cloth of estate¹ like a queene, then in a poore shop like a huswife? and esteme it sweeter to be the concubine of the lord of the world, [55 then spouse to a painter in Athens? Yes, yes, Apelles! Thou maist swimme against the streame with the crab, and feede against the winde with the deere, and peeke against the steele with the cockatrice: [60 starres are to be looked at, not reched at; princes to bee yeilded vnto, not contended with; Campaspe to bee honored, not obtained, to be painted, not possessed of thee! [He holds up the portrait and gazes at it.] 65 O fair face! O vnhappy hand! And why didst thou draw it so faire a face? O bewtifull countenance! the expresse image of Venus, but somewhat fresher; the only pattern of that eternitie which Iupiter [70 dreaming of aslepe could not conceiue again waking. Blush Venus, for I am ashamed to end thee!² Now must I paint things vnpossible for mine arte, but agreeable with my affections: — deepe and [75 hollowe sighes, sadde and melancholye thoughtes, wounds and slaughters of conceites, a life posting to death, a death galloping from life, a wauering constancie, an vnsetled resolution, — and what not, [80 Apelles? And what but Apelles? But, as they that are shaken with a feuer are to be warmed with clothes, not groanes, and as he that melteth in a consumption is to be recured by colices,³ not conceites; so [85 the feeding canker of my care, the neuer-

dying worm of my hart, is to be killed by counsel, not eries, by applying of remedies, not by replying of reasons. And sith in cases desperat there must be vsed [90 medicines that are extreme, I wil hazard that litle life that is left to restore the greater part that is lost. And this shalbe my first practise — for wit must work, where authoritie is not: as soone as [95 Alexander hath viewed this portraiture, I will, by deuise, giue it a blemish, that by that meanes she may come again to my shop. And then, as good it were to vtter my loue and die with deniall, as conceale it and liue in despaire. 101

SONG BY APELLES.

Cvpid and my Campaspe playd
At cardes for kisses. Cupid payd.
He stakes his quiuer, bow, and arrows,
His mothers doues, and teeme of sparows;
Looses them too. Then, downe he throwes
The corral of his lippe, the rose Growing on's cheek (but none knows how);
With these, the cristall of his brow;
And then the dimple of his chinne. 110
All these did my Campaspe winne!
At last, hee set her both his eyes;
Shee won, and Cupid blind did rise.
O Loue! has shee done this to thee?
What shall, alas! become of mee? 115

[Exit into the palace.]

ACTUS QUARTUS

SCHÆNA PRIMA.

[The street, or market-place, before Diogenes' tub. Enter Solinus, a citizen, and Psyllus and Granicus.]

SOLI. This is the place, the day, the time, that Diogenes hath appointed to flye.

PSYLLUS. I will not loose the flight of so faire a fowle as Diogenes is though my maister cogel my "no-bodie," as he threatened. 6

GRAN. What, Psyllus, will the beaste wag his wings to-day?

PSYLLUS. We shall heare; for here cometh Manes. Manes, will it be? 10

[Enter Manes.]

MANES. Be? He were best be as cunning as a bee, or else shortly he will not be at all.

GRAN. How is he furnished to fly? Hath he feathers? 15

MANES. Thou art an asse! Capons, geese, and owles haue feathers. He hath found Dedalus old waxen wings, and hath beene peeing them this moneth, he is so broade in the shoulders. O you shall see him cut the ayre — euen like a tortoys. 21

SOL. Me thinkes so wise a man should not be so mad. His body must needes be to heauy.

MANES. Why, hee hath eaten nothing this seuennight but corke and feathers. 26

PSYLLUS [aside]. Tutch him, Manes!

MANES. He is so light that he can scarce keepe him from flying at midnight. 29

Populus intrat.

MANES. See, they begin to flocke! And behold, my mayster bustels himselfe to flye!

[Diogenes comes out of his tub, and addresses the assembled populace.]

DIOG. Yee wicked and bewitched Atheneans, whose bodies make the earth to groane, and whose breathes infect the [35 aire with stench! Come ye to see Diogenes fly? Diogenes commeth to see you sinke! Yee call me dog: so I am, for I long to gnaw the boanes in your skins! Yee tearme me an hater of menne: no, I am a hater of [40 your maners. Your liues dissolute, not fearing death, will proue your deaths desperate, not hoping for life. What do you els in Athens but sleepe in the day and surfeite in the night? back-gods¹ in the [45 morning with pride, in the euening belly-gods with gluttonie! You flatter kings, and call them gods: speake trueth of your selues, and confesse you are diuels! From the bee you haue taken not the honney [50 but the wax to make your religion, framing it to the time, not to the trueth. Your filthy luste you colour vnder a courtly colour of loue, iniuries abroad vnder the title of pollicies at home, and secrete [55 malice creepeth vnder the name of publick iustice. You haue caused Alexander to dry vp springs and plant vines, to sow roket¹ and weede endiffe,² to sheare sheepe and shrine foxes.³ Al conscience is [60 sealed at Athens. Swearing commeth of a hot mettall; lying, of a quick wit; flattery, of a flowing tongue; vndecent talk, of a mery disposition. Al things are lawfull at Athens! Either you thinke there are [65 no gods, or I must think ye are no men.

You build as though you should liue for euer, and surfet as though you should die to morow. None teacheth true phylosophy but Aristotle — because he was the [70 kings schoolemaister! O times! O menne!
O coruption in manners! Remember that greene grasse must turne to dry hay.
When you sleep, you are not sure to wake;
and when you rise, not certeine to lye [75 downe. Looke you neuer so hie, your heads must lye leuell with your feete!
Thus haue I flowne ouer your disordered liues; and if you wil not amend your manners, I wil study to fly further from you, that I may be neerer to honesty. 81

SOL. Thou rauest, Diogenes, for thy life is different from thy words; did not I see thee come out of a brothel house? Was it not a shame? 85

DIOG. It was no shame to go out, but a shame to goe in.

GRAN. It were a good deede, Manes, to beate thy maister.

MANES. You were as good eate my
maister. 91

ONE OF THE PEOPLE. Hast thou made vs all fooles? And wilt thou not flye?

DIOG. I tell thee, vnlesse thou be honest, I will flye. 95

PEOPLE. Dog! Dog! Take a boane!

DIOG. Thy father neede feare no dogs, but dogs thy father.

PEOPLE. We wil tel Alexander that thou reprobust him behinde his back. 100

DIOG. And I will tell him that you flatter him before his face.

PEOPLE. We wil cause al the boyes in the streete to hisse at thee. 104

DIOG. Indeede, I thinke the Athenians haue their children ready for any vice, because they be Athenians.

[Exeunt the people.]

MANES. Why maister! meane you not to flye? 109

DIOG. No, Manes; not without wings.

MANES. Euery-body will account you a liar.

DIOG. No, I warrant you; for I will alwaies say the Athenians are mischieuous.

[Diogenes returns to his tub.]

PSYLLUS. I care not! It was sport ynogh for me to see these old huddles hit home. 117

GRAN. Nor I.

PSYLLUS. Come, let vs goe. And hereafter, when I meane to raile vpon any [120 body openly, it shall be giuen out I will flye.

Exeunt.

[ACTUS QUARTUS.] SCHÆNA SECUNDA.

[The street before Apelles' studio. Enter Campaspe on her way to the studio.]

CAMPASPE (sola). Campaspe, it is hard to iudge whether thy choice be more vnwise, or the chance vnfortunate. Doest thou preferre — ? but stay! viter not that in woordes which maketh thine eares to [5 glow with thoughts. Tush! better thy tongue wagge then thy heart break! Hath a painter crept further into thy mind then a prince? Apelles then Alexander? Fond wench! the basenes of thy mind be- [10 wraies the meannesse of thy birth. But, alas! affection is a fyre which kindleth as well in the bramble as in the oake, and catcheth hold where it first lighteth, not where it may best burne. Larkes that [15 mount aloof in the ayre build their neastes below in the earth; and women that cast their eies vpon kinges may place their hearts vpon vassals. A needle will become thy fingers better then a lute, and a [20 and iuniper is not blowne vp till it hath gotten an hie top. The meane estate is without care as long as it continueth [25 without pride. But here commeth Apelles, — in whom I woulde there were the like affection!

[From the studio enter Apelles.]

APEL. Gentlewoman, the misfortune I had with your picture wil put you to [30 some paines to sitte againe to be painted.

CAMP. It is smial paines for me to sit still, but infinit for you to draw still.¹

APEL. No, madame. To painte Venus was a pleasure, but to shadowe the sweete face of Campaspe — it is a heauen! 36

CAMP. If your tongue were made of the same flesh that your heart is, your wordes would bee as your thoughtes are: but such a common thing it is amongst you to [40 commend, that oftentimes for fashion sake you cal them beautifull whom you know black.²

APEL. What might men doe to be beleued? 45

CAMP. Whet their tongues on their heartes.

APEL. So they doe, and speake as they thinke.

CAMP. I would they did! 50

APEL. I would they did not!

CAMP. Why, would you haue them disseemble?

APEL. Not in loue, but their loue. But wil you giue me leaue to aske you a question without offence? 56

CAMP. So that you wil aunswere me another without excuse.

APEL. Whom do you loue best in the world? 60

CAMP. He that made me last³ in the world.

APEL. That was a god.

CAMP. I had thought it had beene a man. But whome do you honour most, Apelles? 66

APEL. The thing that is lykest you, Campaspe.

CAMP. My picture? 69

APEL. I dare not venture vpon your person! But come, let vs go in; for Alexander will thinke it long till we returne.

Exeunt [into the studio].

[ACTUS QUARTUS.] SCHÆNA TERTIA.

[The street before the palace. Enter Clytus and Parmenio.]

CLYTUS. We heare nothing of our embassage. A colour, belike, to bleare our eyes, or ticle our eares, or inflame our heartes. But what doth Alexander in the meane season but vse for tantara, [5 Sol-fa-la,¹ for his harde couch, downe beddes, for his handfull of water, his standinge-cup of wine?

PAR. Clytus, I mislike this new delicacie and pleasing peace. For what [10 els do we se now then a kind of softnes in euery mans mind; bees to make their hiues in soldiers helmets; our steedes furnished with foote-clothes² of gold in-steede of saddles of steele; more time to bee required [15 to scoure the rust of our weapons then there was woont to be in subdewing the countries of our enemies. Sithence Alexander fell from his harde armour to his softe robes, beholde the face of his [20 court: — youthes that were woont to carry deuises of victory in their shieldes engraue now posies³ of loue in their ringes; they that were accustomed on trotting horses to charge the enmy with a launce, now in [25 easie coches ride vp and downe to court ladies, in-steede of sword and target to hazard their liues, vse pen and paper to paint their loues! Yea, such a feare and faintnes is growne in courte that they [30 wish rather to heare the blowing of a horne to hunt then the sound of a trumpet to fight! O Phillip, wert thou aliuie to see this alteration — thy men turned to women, thy soldiers to louers, gloues [35 worne in veluet caps⁴ in-steede of plumes in grauen helmets — thou wouldest ether die among them for sorrow, or confound them for anger. 39

CLITUS. Cease, Permenio! least in speaking what becommeth thee not, thou feele what liketh thee not. Truth is neuer without a scratcht face; whose tongue, although it cannot be cut out, yet must it be tied vp. 45

PAR. It grieueth me not a little for Hephestion, whoe thirsteth for honour, not ease; but such is his fortune and neerensse in friendship to Alexander that he must lay a pillowe vnder his head when he [50 would put a targette in his hand. But let vs draw in, to see how well it becomes them to tread the measurs in a daunce that were wont to sette the order for a march.

Exeunt [into the palace].

[ACTUS QUARTUS.] SCHÆNA QUARTA.

[Apelles and Campaspe discovered in the studio.]

APEL. I haue now, Campaspe, almost made an ende.

CAMP. You tolde me, Apelles, you would neuer ende!

APEL. Neuer end my loue; for it shal be eternal. 6

CAMP. That is, neither to haue beginning nor ending?

APEL. You are disposed to mistake; I hope you do not mistrust. 10

CAMP. What will you saye if Alexander perceiue your loue?

APEL. I will say, it is no treason to loue.

CAMP. But how if he wil not suffer thee to see my person? 15

APEL. Then wil I gase continually on thy picture.

CAMP. That will not feede thy heart.

APEL. Yet shall it fill mine eye. Besides, the sweete thoughtes, the sure [20 hopes, thy protested faith, wil cause me to imbrace thy shadow continually in mine armes; of the which by strong imagination I will make a substaunce. 24

CAMP. Wel, I must be gon. But this assure your self, that I had rather bee in thy shop grinding colours then in Alexanders court following higher fortunes.

[She leaves the studio.]

CAMPASPE (alone). Foolish wensh, what hast thou done? That, alas! which [30 cannot be vndone! and therefore I feare me vndone. But content is such a lif I care not for aboundance. O Apelles, thy loue commeth from the heart, but Alexanders from the mouth! The loue of kinges is [35 like the blowinge of windes, whiche whistle sometimes gentlye amonge the leaues, and straight-ways turne the trees vp by the rootes; or fire, which warmeth a farre off, and burneth neere-hand; or the sea, [40 which maketh men hoise their sayles in a flattering calme, and to cut their mastes in a rough storme. They place affection by times, by pollicie, by appointment. If they frowne, who dares cal them vncon- [45 stant? if bewray secretes, who will tearme them vntrue? if fall to other loues, who trembles not if he call them vnfaithfull? In kinges there can be no loue but to queenes; for as neere must they meete in mai- [50 estie as they doe in affection. It is requisite to stande aloofe from kinges loue, loue, and lightning!

Exit.

[ACTUS QUARTUS.] SCHÆNA QUINTA.

[Apelles in the studio.]

APEL. Now, Apelles, gather thy wits together. Campaspe is no lesse wise then fayre; thy selfe must bee no lesse cunning then faithfull. It is no small matter to be riual with Alexander! 5

[Enter the Page of Alexander.]

PAGE. Apelles, you must come away quicklye with the picture; the king thinketh that now you haue painted it you play with it.

APEL. If I would play with pictures I haue ynough at home. 11

PAGE. None, parhaps, you like so well.

APEL. It may be I haue painted none so well.

PAGE. I haue knowne many fairer faces. 16

APEL. And I may better boyes.

Exeunt [severally].

ACTUS QUINTUS

SCHÆNA PRIMA

[Diogenes in his tub, Manes attending. To them enter Sylrius, bringing his sons, Perim, Milo, and Trico.]

SYLVI. I haue brought my sons, Diogenes, to be taught of thee.

DIOG. What can thy sonnes doe?

SYL. You shall see their qualities.
Daunce, sirha! 5

Then Perim daunceth.

How like you this? Doth he well?

DIOG. The better, the worsor.

SYL. The musicke very good.

DIOG. The musitions very badde, who onely study to haue their stringes in [10 tune, neuer framing their manners to order.

SYL. Now shall you see the other.
Tumble, sirha! 14

Milo tumbleth.

How like you this? Why do you laugh?

DIOG. To see a wagge that was born to break his neck by distinie, to practise it by arte.

MILO. This dogge will bite me! I will not be with him. 20

DIOG. Feare not, boy; dogges eate no thistles.

PERIM. I maruel what dog thou art, if thou be a dog.

DIOG. When I am hungry, a mastyue, and when my belly is full, a spaniell. 26

SYL. Doest thou belecue that there are any gods, that thou art so dogged?

DIOG. I must needs beleuee there are gods, for I think thee an enimie to them. 30

SYL. Why so?

DIOG. Because thou hast taught one of thy sonnes to rule his legges, and not to follow learning; the other, to bend his body euery way, and his minde no way. 35

PERIM. Thou doest nothing but snarle and barke like a dogge!

DIOG. It is the next way to driue away a theefe.

SYL. Now shall you heare the third, who sings like a nightingall. 41

DIOG. I care not; for I haue heard a nightingall sing her selfe.

SYL. Sing, sirha!

Trico singeth.

SONG

What bird so sings, yet so dos wayle? 45
O, 'tis the rauish'd nightingale!
"Iug, iug, iug, iug, tereu," shee cryes;
And still her woes at midnight rise.
Braue prick-song! ¹ who is't now we heare?
None but the larke so shrill and cleare. 50
How at heauens gats she claps her wings,
The morne not waking till shee sings!
Heark, heark, with what a pretty throat
Poore Robin red-breast tunes his note!
Heark how the iolly cuckoes sing! 55
"Cuckoe," to welcome in the spring,
"Cuckoe," to welcome in the spring!

SYL. Loe, Diogenes! I am sure thou canst not doe so much.

DIOG. But there is neuer a thrush but can. 61

SYL. What hast thou taught Manes, thy man?

DIOG. To be as vnlike as may be thy sonnes. 65

MANES. He hath taught me to fast, lye hard,² and runne away.

SYL. How sayest thou, Perim? wilte thou bee with him?

PERIM. I — so he will teache me first to run away. 71

DIOG. Thou needest not be taught, thy legges are so nimble.

SYL. How sayest thou, Milo? wilte thou bee with hym? 75

DIOG. Nay, holde your peace; he shal not!

SYL. Why?

DIOG. There is not roome enough for him and mee both to tumble ³ in one tub. 80

SYL. Well, Diogenes, I perceau my sonnes brooke not thy manners.

DIOG. I thought no lesse, when they knewe my vertues. 84

SYL. Farewel, Diogenes. Thou need-

DIOG. Nor thou haue followed Alexander, if thou hadst scraped roots.

Exeunt [Sylvius and his three sons].

[ACTUS QUINTUS.] SCENA SECUNDA.

[The street. Enter Apelles from his studio.]

APELLES (alone). I feare me, Apelles, that thine eies haue blabbed that which thy tongue durst not. What little regard hadst thou! whilst Alexander viewed the counterfeite of Campaspe, thou stoodest [5 gazing on her countenance! If he espie, or but suspect, thou must needes twice perish — with his hate, and thine owne loue. Thy pale lookes when he blushed, thy sadde countenance when hee [10 smiled, thy sighes when he questioned, may breede in him a ielosie, perchaunce a frenzye. O loue! I neuer before knewe what thou wert; and nowe haste thou made mee that I know not what my selfe am? [15 Onely this I knowe, that I must endure intollerable passions for vnknowne pleasures. Dispute not the cause, wretch, but yeeld to it; for better it is to melt with desire then wrastle with loue. Cast thy [20 selfe on thy carefull bedde; be content to lyue vnknowne; and die vnfounde! O Campaspe, I haue painted thee in my heart! Painted? nay, contrarye to myne arte, imprinted! — and that in suche [25 deepe characters, that nothing can rase it out, vnlesse it rubbe my heart out.

Exit [into the studio].

[ACTUS QUINTUS.] SCENA TERTIA.

[The street, or market-place, near Diogenes' tub. Enter two soldiers, Miletus and Phrygius, with the courtezan Lais.]

MIL. It shal go hard but this peace shall bring vs some pleasure.

PHRY. Downe with armes, and vp with legges! This is a world for the nonce! 4

LAIS. Sweete youthes, if you knew what it were to saue your sweete bloud, you would not so foolishly go about to spend it.

What delight can there be in gashinge, to make foule scarres in faire faces and crooked maimes in streight legges? as [10 though men, being borne goodlye by nature, would of purpose become deformed by follye! And all, forsooth, for a new found tearme called "valiant" — a word which breedeth more quarrelles then the sense can commendation. 16

MIL. It is true, Lays! A featherbed hath no fellow! Good drinke makes good bloud, and shall pelting ¹ words spill it? 19

PHRY. I meane to inioy the world, and to draw out my life at the wiredrawers, not to curtall it off at the cuttelers.

LAIS. You may talke of warre, speake bigge, conquer wordles with great wordes;
but, stay at home — where, in-steede [25 of alarums you shall haue daunces, for hot batteltes with fierce menne, gentle skirmishes with fayre womanne. These pewter coates canne neuer sitte so wel as satten dublets. Beleue mee, you cannot [30 conceaue the pleasure of peace vnlesse you despise the rudenesse of warre.

MIL. It is so. But see Diogenes prying ouer his tubbe. [They advance to Diogenes' tub.] Diogenes, what sayest thou to [35 such a morsel? [Points to Lais.]

DIOG. I say, I would spit it out of my mouth because it should not poyson my stomack.

PHRY. Thou speakest as thou art; it is no meate for dogges. 41

DIOG. I am a dogge, and phylosophy rates ² mee from carion.

LAIS. Vnciuill wretch, whose manners are aunswerable to thy callinge, the [45 time was thou wouldest haue hadde my company, had it not beene, as thou saidst, too deare!

DIOG. I remember there was a thinge that I repented me of; and now thou [50 haste told it. Indeed, it was to deare of nothing, and thou deare to no-bodye.

LAIS. Downe, villaine! or I wil haue thy head broken!

MIL. Will you couch? 55

[Diogenes withdraws into his tub.]

² Chides.

PHYR. Anaunt, curre! Come, sweete Lays, let vs go to some place and possesse peace. But first let vs sing. There is more pleasure in tuning of a voyce then in a volly of shotte. 60

[They sing.]¹

MIL. Now let vs make haste, least Alexander finde vs here.

Exeunt.

[ACTUS QUINTUS.] SCHÆNA QUARTA.

[The street, before the palace. From the palace enter Alexander, Hephestion, and the Page.]

ALEX. Mee thinketh, Hephestion, you are more melancholy then you were accustomed; but I perceiue it is all for Alexander. You can neither brooke this peace, nor my pleasure. Be of good cheare; though I winke, I sleepe not. 6

HEP. Melancholy I am not, nor well content; for, I know not how, there is such a rust crept into my bones with this long ease that I feare I shal not scowre it out with infinite labours. 11

ALEX. Yes, yes; if all the trauails of conquering the world will set either thy body or mine in tune, wee will vndertake them. But what think you of Apelles? [15 Did ye euer see any so perplexed? Hee neither aunswered directly to any question, nor looked stedfastly vppon anye thing. I hold my life the painter is in loue! 19

HEP. It may be; for commonly we see it incident in artificers to be inamour'd of their own workes, as Archidamus of his wooden doue, Pigmalyon of his iuorie image, Arachne of his wodden swan;— especially painters, who playing with [25 thy owne conceits, now coueting to draw a glauncing eie, then a rolling, now a wincking, stil mending it, neuer ending it, til they be caught with it; and then, poore soules! they kisse the colours with their [30 lippes, with which before they were loth to taint their fingers.

ALEX. I wil finde it out. Page, goe speedely for Apelles. Wil him to come hither; and when you see vs earnestly [35 in talke, sodenly cry out "Apelles shoppe is on fire!"

PAGE. It shalbe done.

ALEX. Forget not your lesson.

[Exit the Page.]

HEP. I maruaile what your deuce shalbe. 41

ALEX. The euent shall proue.

HEP. I pittie the poore painter if he be in loue. 44

ALEX. Pittie him not. I pray thee, that seure grauity set aside, what do you think of loue?

HEP. As the Macedonians doe of their hearbe beet, which, loking yellow in the ground, and blacke in the hand, thinke it better scene then toucht. 51

ALEX. But what do you imagine it to be?

HEP. A word, by superstition thought a god, by vse turned to an humour, by selfwil made a flattering madnesse. 56

ALEX. You are too hard-harted to think so of loue. Let vs go to Diogenes. Diogenes, thou maist think it somewhat that Alexander commeth to thee againe so soone. 61

DIOG. If you come to learne, you could not come soone enough; if to laugh, you be come to soone.

HEP. It would better become thee to be more curteous, and frame thy selfe to please. 67

DIOG. And you better to be lesse,¹ if you durst displease.

ALEX. What dost thou think of the time we haue here? 71

DIOG. That we haue little, and lose much.

ALEX. If one be sick, what wouldest thou haue him do? 75

DIOG. Be sure that he make not his phisition his heire.

ALEX. If thou mightest haue thy wil, how much ground would content thee?

DIOG. As much as you in the ende must be contented withall. 81

ALEX. What? a world?

DIOG. No; the length of my body.

ALEX. Hephestion, shal I be a little pleasant with him? 85

HEP. You may; but he will be very perverse with you.

ALEX. It skilleth not; I cannot be angry with him. Diogenes, I pray thee what doost thou think of loue? 90

DIOG. A little worsen then I can of hate.

ALEX. And why?

DIOG. Because it is better to hate the things whiche make to loue, then to loue the things which giue occasion of hate. 95

ALEX. Why, bee not women the best creatures in the world?

DIOG. Next men and bees.

ALEX. What dost thou dislyke chiefly in a woman? 100

DIOG. One thing.

ALEX. What?

DIOG. That she is a woman.

ALEX. In mine opinion thou wert neuer born of a woman that thou thinkest [105 so hardly of women. But now commeth Apelles, who, I am sure is as far from thy thought as thou art from his cunning. Diogenes], I will haue thy cabin remoued nerer to my court, because I wilbe a philosopher. 111

DIOG. And when you haue done so, I pray you remoue your court further from my cabinne, because I wil not be a courtier.

[From the studio enter Apelles accompanied by the Page.]

ALEX. But here commeth Apelles. [115 Apelles, what peece of worke haue you in hand?

APEL. None in hand, if it like your maiestie; but I am deusing a platforme ¹ in my head. 120

ALEX. I think your hand put it in your head. Is it nothing about Venus?

APEL. No, but some thing about Venus!

PAGE [shouting]. Apelles! Apelles! looke about you! your shop is on fire! 125

APEL. Ay me! if the picture of Campaspe be burnt, I am vndone!

[He starts to run; Alexander stops him.]

ALEX. Stay, Apelles. No hast. It is your hart is on fire, not your shop; and if Camp[aspe] hang ther, I wold she [130 were burnt! But haue you the picture of Campaspe? Belike you loue her wel that you care not thogh al be lost so she be safe.

APEL. Not loue her! — but your Maiestie knowes that painters in their last [135 works are said to excel themselues; and in this I haue so much pleased my selfe that the shadow as much delighteth mee, being an artificer, as the substaunce doth others, that are amorous. 140

ALEX. You lay your colours grosely! Though I could not paint in your shop, I can spy into your excuse. Be not ashamed, Apelles; it is a gentlemen sport to be in loue. [To the Page.] Call hither [145 Campaspe. [Exit the Page.] Me thinks I might haue bin made priuie to your affection; though my counsell had not bene necessary, yet my countenance ¹ might haue bin thought requisite. But [150 Apelles, forsooth, loueth vnder hand; yea, and vnder Alexanders nose! and — but I say no more.

APEL. Apelles loueth not so; but he liueth to do as Alexander will. 155

[Enter Campaspe led in by the Page.]

ALEX. Campaspe, here is newes! Apell[es] is in loue with you!

CAMP. It pleaseth your Maiestie to say so. 159

ALEX [aside]. Hephestion, I will trye her to. — Campas[pe], for the good qualities I know in Apelles, and the vertue I see in you, I am determined you shal enioy one the other. How say you, Campaspe? would you say "I"? 165

CAMP. Your handmaid must obey, if you commaund.

ALEX. Think you not, Hephestion, that she wold faine be commaunded?

HEP. I am no thought catcher, but I gesse vnhappily.² 171

ALEX. I will not enforce mariage where I cannot compel loue.

CAMP. But your Maiestie may moue a question where you be willing to haue a match. 176

¹ Consent.

² I.e. she would be "unhappily" commanded.

ALEX. Beleeue me, Hephestion, these parties are agreed! They would haue me both priest and wisse! Apelles, take Campaspe. Why moue ye not? [180 Campaspe, take Apelles. Wil it not be? If you be ashamed one of the other, by my consent you shal neuer come togeather. But dissemble not; Campaspe, do you loue Apelles? 185

CAMP. Pardon, my lord, I loue Apelles.

ALEX. Apelles, it were a shame for you, being loued so openly of so faire a virgin, to say the contrary. Doe you loue Campaspe? 190

APEL. Onely Campaspe!

ALEX. Two louing wormes, Hephestion! I perceiue Alexander cannot subdue the affections of men, though he conquer their countries. Loue falleth like dew [195 aswel vpon the low grasse as vpon the high caeder. Sparkes haue their heate, antes their gall, flyes their splene. Well, enioy one an other! I giue her thee franckly, Apelles. Thou shalt see that Alex- [200 ander maketh but a toye of loue, and leadeth affection in fetters, vsing fancy¹ as a foole to make him sport, or a minstrell to make him mery. It is not the amorous glaunce of an eie can settle an idle [205 thought in the heart. No, no; it is childrens game; a life for seamsters and scholars: the one, pricking in cloutes,² haue nothing els to thinke on, the other, picking fancies out of books, haue little els to [210 meruaile at. Go, Apelles; take with you your Campaspe! Alexander is cloied with looking on that which thou wondrest at.

APEL. Thankes to your Maiestie on bended knee; you haue honoured Apelles!

CAMP. Thankes, with bowed heart; you haue blessed Campaspe! 217

Exeunt [Apelles and Campaspe].

ALEX. Page, goe warne Clitus and Parmenio and the other lordes to be in a readines. Let the trumpet sound! strike [220 vp the drumme! and I wil presently into Persia. How now, Hephestion? is Alexander able to resiste loue as he list?

HEP. The conquering of Thebes was not so honourable as the subdueing of these thoughts! 226

ALEX. It were a shame Alexander should desire to commaund the world if he could not commaund himselfe. But come, let vs go. I wil try whether I can bet- [230 ter beare my hand with my hart then I could with mine eie.¹ And, good Hephestion, when al the world is woone, and euery countrey is thine and mine, either find me out an-other to subdue, or, of my word, I wil fall in loue! 236

Exeunt.

THE EPILOGUE AT THE BLACKE-FRYERS

Where the rainebowe toucheth the tree, no caterpillers wil hang on the leaues; where the gloworm creepeth in the night, no addar wil goe in the day: we hope in the eares where our trauails be lodged, no carping shal harbour in those tongues. Our exercises must be as your iudgment is, resembling water, which is alwaies of the same colour into what it runneth.

In the Troaine horse lay couched soldiers with children; and in heapes of many words we feare diuerse vnfitte among some allowable. But, as Demosthenes with often breathing vp the hill amended his stammering, so wee hope with sundry labours against the haire¹ to correcte our studies. If the tree be blasted that blossomes, the faulte is in the wind and not in the roote; and if our pastimes be misliked that haue bin allowed,² you must impute it to the malice of others and not our endeouour. And so wee rest in good case, if you rest well content.

THE EPILOGUE AT THE COURT

We cannot tell whether we are fallen among Diomedes birds or his horses; the one receiued some men with sweet notes, the other bitte al men with sharp teeth. But, as Homers gods conueied them into clouds whom they would haue kept from curses, and as Venus, least Adonis shuld be pricked with the stings of adders, couered his face with the winges of swans; so, we hope, being shielded with your Highnesse countenance, wee shall, though heare the neighing, yet not feele the kicking of those iades, and receiue, though no praise (which we cannot deserue) yet a pardon, — which in all humilytie we desire. As yet we cannot tell what we should tearme our labours, yron or bullyon; only it belongeth to your Majestie to make them fitte either for the forge, or the mint, currant by the stampe, or counterfeit by the anuil. For, as nothing is to be called whit[e] vnles it had bin named "white" by the firste creator, so can there be nothing thought good in the opinion of others vnlesse it be christened "good" by the iudgement of your selfe. For our selues againe, we are those torches — waxe, — of whiche, being in your highnesse handes, you may make doues or vultures, roses or nettles, lawrell for a garland, or elder for a disgrace.³

By THOMAS PRESTON

¹ Cambises, though entered for publication in 1569, may have been written several years earlier, perhaps as early as 1560. It was obviously designed for performance by a traveling troupe of professional actors (six men and two boys), and for presentation on a bare platform-stage. I agree with Professor Manly (The Cambridge History of English Literature, vi, 321) that it is difficult to identify the author, Thomas Preston, with the distinguished scholar of the same name, a fellow of King's College, Cambridge, A.B. (1557), A.M. (1561), Proctor of his college (1568), and Master of Trinity Hall (1584). Our crude writer seems to have been one of the obscure poets, possibly an actor-playwright, who in the early days of the professional drama supplied troupes with manuscripts. The play, which won great and lasting favor, is interesting as showing the popular tastes in tragedy, and hence may be profitably compared with Gorboduc. It is also interesting for the fact that Shakespeare was familiar with its lines (possibly he acted one of its rôles), and frequently laughed at its gross absurdities.

In 1569 John Alde entered the play in the Stationers' Registers, and then or shortly after published, without date, the first edition (A.); his son, Edward Alde, who succeeded to the business in 1584, issued the second edition (B.), also without date. I have reproduced the text of Edward Alde's edition from Farmer's photographic facsimile of the copy in the British Museum. I have, of course, modernized the punctuation, and I have added in brackets a few stage-directions. I do not know which copy of this edition Manly printed from, but his text shows some fifty or more different readings and spellings.

[PROLOGUE]

The Prologue entrench.

Agathon, he whose counsaile wise to princes weale ¹ extended, —
 By good advice unto a prince three things he hath commended:
 First is, that he hath government and ruleth over men;
 Secondly, to rule with lawes, eke iustice, saith he, then;
 Thirdly, that he must wel conceive he may not alwaies raigne. 5
 Lo, thus the rule unto a prince Agathon squared plaine!
 Tullie ² the wise, whose sapience in volumes great doth tell,
 Who in wisdom in that time did many men excel, —
 "A prince," saith he, "is, of himselfe, a plaine and speaking law;
 The law, a schoolmaister devine," — this by his rule I draw. 10
 The sage and wittie Seneca his words therto did frame:
 "The honest exercise of kings, men wil insue ³ the same;
 But, contrariwise, if that a king abuse his kingly seat,
 His ignomie and bitter shame in fine shalbe more great."
 In Percia there raigned a king, who Cirus hight ⁴ by name, 15
 Who did deserve, as I do read, the lasting blast of fame;
 But he, when Sisters Three ⁵ had wrought to shere his vital threed,
 As heire due, to take the crowne Cambises did proceed.
 He in his youth was trained up by trace ⁶ of vertues lore;
 Yet, being king, did cleane forget his perfect race before; 20
 Then, cleaving more unto his wil, such vice did immitate
 As one of Icarus his kind; forewarning then did hate,
 Thinking that none could him dismay, ne none his fact ⁷ could see.
 Yet at the last a fall he tooke, like Icarus to be.
 Els, as the fish, which oft had take the pleasant bait from hooke, 25
 In safe ⁸ did spring and pearce the streams when fisher fast ⁹ did looke
 To hoist up from the watry waves unto the dried land,
 Then skapte, at last by suttile bait come to the fishers hand;
 Even so this King Cambises heere. When he had wrought his wil,
 Taking delight the innocent his guiltlesse blood to spil, 30
 Then mighty Love would not permit to procecute offence,
 But, what mesure the king did meat, the same did Love commence,
 To bring to end with shame his race. Two yeares he did not raign.
 His cruelty we wil delate, and make the matter plaine.
 Craving that this may suffice now your patience to win, 35
 I take my way. Beholde, I see the players comming in.

[A COMEDIE OF KING CAMBISES.]¹

*First enter Cambises, the king, Knight, [Lord], and Councill.*²

CAMB. My Counsaile grave and sapient, with lords of legall traine, Attentive ears towards me bend, and mark
what shalbe sain;
So you likewise, my valiant knight, whose manly acts doth flie
By brute of Fame, that sounding tromp doth perce the azur sky.
My sapient words, I say, perpend,³ and so your skil delate! 5
You know that Mors⁴ vanquished hath Cirus, that king of state,
And I, by due inheritance, possesse that princely crowne, Ruling by sword of mighty force in place of great renoune.
You knowe, and often have heard tell, my fathers worthy facts, —
A manly Marsis⁵ heart he bare, appearing by his acts. 10
And what? shall I to ground let fall my fathers golden praise?
No, no! I meane for to attempt this same more large to raise.
In that, that I, his sonne, succeed his kingly seat, as due, Extend your councill unto me in that I aske of you: —
I am the king of Persia, a large and fertile
soile; 15
The Egyptians against us repugne⁶ as varlets slave and vile; Therefore I mean with Marsis hart with wars them to frequent,
Them to subdue as captives mine, — this is my hearts intent;
So shall I win honors delight, and praise of me shall go.
My Councill, speake, and, lordings, eke: is it not best do so? 20

COUNC. O puisant king, your blisful words deserves abundant praise,

¹ This is the running-title, though the title-page calls the play "a lamentable Tragedie."

² B. Councillor.

³ Weigh carefully.

⁴ Death.

⁵ Mars'.

⁶ Offer resistance.

That you in this doo go about your fathers fame to raise.

O blisful day, that king so yoong such profit should conceive,

His fathers praise and his to win from those that wold deceive!

Sure, my true and soveraigne king, I fall before you prest,¹ 25

Answer to give, as dutie mine, in that your Grace request.

If that your heart adicted be the Egyptians to convince,²

Through Marsis aid the conquest wun, then deed of hapy prince

Shall pearce the skies unto the throne of the supernal seat,

And merite there a iust reward of Iupiter
the Great. 30

But then your Grace must not turne backe from this pretenced will;

For to proceed in vertuous life employ indeavour stil;

Extinguish vice, and in that cup to drinke
have no delight;

To martial feats and kingly sport fix all your whole delight.

KING. My Council grave, a thousand thanks with hart I do you render, 35

That you my case so prosperous intirely doo tender!

I wil not swerve from those your steps
whereto you wold me train.

But now, my lord and valiant knight, with words give answer plain:

Are you content with me to go the Marsis games to try?

LORD. Yea, peerelesse prince! To aid your Grace my-selke wil live and
die. 40

KNIGHT. And I, for my hability, for feare will not turne backe,

But, as the ship against the rocks, sustaine and bide the wracke.

KING. O willing harts! A thousand thanks I render unto you!

Strik up your drums with corage great.
We wil march foorth even now!

¹ Promptly.

² Overcome, conquer.

COUNC. Permit, O king, few wordes to heer, — my duty serves no lesse; 45 Therefore give leave to Councel thine his mind for to expresse!

KING. Speake on, my Councel; what it be,
you shal have favor mine.

COUNC. Then wil I speake unto your Grace as duty doth me bind.

Your Grace doth meane for to attempt of war the manly art;

Your Grace therein may hap receive, with others, for your part, 50

The dent of death, — in those affaires all persons are alike, —

The heart courageous often times his detriment doth seeke:

Its best therefore for to permit a ruler of your land

To sit and iudge with equity when things of right are skand.

KING. My Grace doth yeeld to this your talke. To be thus now it shall. 55

My knight, therefore prepare your-selfe
Sisannes for to call:

A iudge he is of prudent skil; even he shal beare the sway

In absence mine, when from the land I do depart my way.

KNIGHT. Your knight before your Grace even heer himself hath redy prest

With willing heart for to fulfill as your Grace made request. 60

Exit [Knight].

COUNC. Pleaseth your Grace, I iudge of him to be a man right fit;

For he is learned in the law, having the gift of wit;

In your Graces precinct I do not view for it a meeter man.

His learning is of good effect — bring prooffe thereof I can;

I doo not know what is his life, — his conscience hid from me; 65

I dout not but the feare of God before his eies to be.

LORD. Report declares he is a man that to himselve is nie,¹

One that favoureth much the world, and sets to much thereby.

¹ Nigh (i.e. a man who is self-seeking).

But this I say of certainty: If hee your Grace succeed

In your absence but for a-while, he wil be warnd indeed 70

No iniustice for to frequent, no partiall
iudge to proove,

But rule all things with equitie, to win your Graces love.

KING. Of that he shall a warning have my heasts¹ for to obay;

Great punishment for his offence against him will I lay.

[Enter Sisannes.]

COUNC. Behold, I see him now agresse² and enter into place! 75

SISAM. O puissant prince and mighty king, the gods preserve your Grace!

Your Graces message came to me, your wil purporting forth;

With grateful mind I it receiv'd according to mine oath,

Erecting then my-selfe with speed before your Graces eies,

The tenor of your princely wil from you for to agnise.³ 80

KING. Sisannes, this the whole effect the which for you I sent:

Our mind it is to elevate you to great preferment.

My Grace, and gracious Councel eke, hath chose you for this cause, —

In iudgement you do office beare, which have the skil in lawes,

We thinke that you accordingly by iustice rule wil deale, 85

That for offence none shal have cause, of wrong you to appeale.⁴

SISAM. Abundant thanks unto your Grace for this benignity!

To you, his Councel, in like case, with lords of clemency!

What-so your Grace to me permits, if I therein offend,

Such execution then commence — and use it to this end — 90

That all other, by that my deed, example so may take,

To admonish them to flee the same by feare it may them make!

¹ Commands.

² Approach.

³ Learn.

⁴ Accuse.

KING. Then, according to your words, if you therein offend,
I assure you, even from my brest correction shall extend.

From Persia I meane to go into the Egypt
land, 95

Them to convince by force of armes, and win the upper hand.

While I therefore absent shall be, I doe you full permit,

As governour in this my right, in that estate to sit,

For to detect, and eke correct, those that abuse my grace.

This is the totall of my wil. Give answer
in this case! 100

SISAM. Unworthy much, O prince, am I,
and for this gift unfit;

But, sith that it hath pleas'd your Grace that I in it must sit,

I do avouch, unto my death, according to my skil,

With equity for to observe your Graces mind and wil,

And nought from it to swarve, indeed, but sincerely to stay — 105

Els let me tast the penalty, as I before did
say.

KING. Wel then, of this authoritie I give you ful possession.

SISAM. And I will it fulfil, also, as I have made profession.

KING. My Councell, then let us depart a final stay to make;

To Egypt land now forth with speed my voyage will I take. 110

Strike up your drums, us to reioyce to hear the warlike sound.

Stay you heere, Sisamnes, iudge, and looke wel to your bound! ¹

Exeunt King, Lord, and Councill.

SISAM. Even now the king hath me ex-told, and set me up aloft;

Now may I weare the bordred guard,² and lie in downe-bed soft;

Now may I purchase house and land, and have all at my wil; 115

Now may I build a princely place, my mind for to fulfil;

² Ornamental borders on garments.

Now may I abrogate the law as I shall thinke it good;

If any-one me now offend, I may demanda his blood.

According to the proverbe old, my mouth
I wil up-make.¹

Now it doth lie all in my hand to leave, or els to take, 120

To deale with iustice to my ² bound, and so to live in hope.

But oftentimes the birds be gone while one for nest doth grope.

Doo well or il, I dare avouch some evil on me wil speake.

No, truly — yet I do not meane the kings
precepts to breake;

To place I meane for to returne my duty to fulfil. 125

Exit.

Enter the Vice, [Ambidexter,] with an old capcase ³ on his head, an olde paille about his hips for harnes,⁴ a scummer ⁵ and a potlid by his side, and a rake on his shoulder.

AMB. Stand away! stand away! for the passion of God!

Harnessed I am, prepared to the field!
I would have bene content at home to have bod,

But I am sent forth with my speare and shield.

I am appointed to fight against a snaile, 130
And Wilken Wren the ancient ⁶ shal
beare.

I dout not but against him to prevaile, —
To be a man my deeds shall declare!

If I overcome him, then a butter-flie takes his part.

His weapon must be a blew-specked hen;
But you shall see me overthrow him with a fart. 136

So, without conquest, he shal go home
again.

If I overcome him, I must fight with a flie;

¹ Please (as with something delicious); see Hey-wood's Proverbs.

² B. me. ³ Box or chest; cf. hat-box.

⁴ Knightly armor.

⁵ A long ladle for removing scum from boiling liquids. This served for his sword, the potlid for his buckler, and the rake for his spear.

⁶ Banner.

And a blacke-pudding the flies weapon must be.

At the first blow on the ground he shall lie;
I will be sure to thrust him through the mouth to the knee! 141

To conquest these fellows the man I will play.

Ha, ha, ha! now ye wil make me to smile.

. 1

To see if I can all men beguile. 145

Ha! my name? My name would ye so faine know?

Yea, iwis, shal ye, and that with al speed!—

I have forgot it, therefore I cannot show.

A! a! now I have it! I have it, in-deed!

My name is Ambidexter. I signifie one 150

That with both hands finely can play;
Now with King Cambises, and by-and-by
gone.

Thus doo I run this way, and that way.

For while I meane with a souldier to be,
Then give I a leape to Sisamnes the iudge, — 155

I dare avouch you shall his destruction
see!

To all kinde of estates I meane for to trudge.

Ambidexter? Nay, he is a fellow, if ye knew all!

Cease for a while; heereafter heare more ye
shall!

Enter [as if prepared for the war] three ruffins, Huf, Ruf, and Snuf, singing.

HUF. Gogs flesh and his wounds, these warres reioyce my hart! 160

By His wounds, I hope to doo well, for my part!

By Gogs hart! the world shall goe hard if I doo not shift;

At some olde carles ² budget I meane for to lift.

RUF. By His flesh, nose, eyes, and eares,
I will venter void of all cares! 165

He is not a souldier that doth feare any doubt

If that he would bring his purpose about.

SNUF. Feare that feare list, it shall not be I.

² Countryman's.

By Gogs wounds, I will make some necke stand awry!

If I loose my share, I sweare by Gogs hart,
Then let another take up my parte! 171

HUF. Yet I hope to come the richest souldier
away.

RUF. If a man aske ye, ye may hap to say nay.

SNUF. Let all men get what they can,
not to leese I hope;

Wheresoever I goe, in eche corner I will grope. 175

AMB. What and ye run in the corner of some prittie maide?

SNUF. To grope there, good fellow, I will not be afraid.

[They spy Ambidexter.]

HUF. Gogs wounds, what art thou that with us doost mel?

Thou seemest to be a souldier, the truth to tel;

Thou seemest to be harnesssed — I cannot tel how; 180

I thinke he came lately from riding some cow.

Such a deformed slave did I never see!
Ruf, doost thou know him? I pray thee, tel me!

RUF. No, by my troth, fellow Huf, I never see him before!

SNUF. As for me, I care not if I never see him more. 185

Come, let us run his arse against the poste!

AMB. A, ye slaves! I will be with you at oste! ¹

Ah, ye knaves! I wil teach ye how ye shal me deride!

Heere let him swinge them about.

Out of my sight! I can ye not abide!
Now, goodman poutchmouth, I am a slave
with you? 190

Now have at ye a-fresh, againe, even now!
Mine arse against the poste you will run?

But I wil make you from that saying to turn!

HUF. I beseech ye hartely to be content.

RUF. I insure you, by mine honesty, no hurt we ment. 195

¹ Lie at the same inn with you; hence, be familiar with you.

Beside that, againe, we do not know what ye are.

Ye know that souldiers their stoutnes will declare;

Therefore, if we have any thing offended, Pardon our rudenes, and it shalbe amended.

AMB. Yea, Gods pittie, begin ye to intreat me? 200

Have at ye once againe! By the masse, I will beat ye!

Fight againe.

HUF. Gogs hart, let us kill him! Suffer no longer!

Draw their swords.

SNUF. Thou slave, we will see if thou be the stronger!

RUF. Strike of his head at one blow! That we be souldiers, Gogs hart, let him know! 205

AMB. O the passion of God, I have doon! by mine honestie!

I will take your part heerafter, verily.

ALL. Then come, let us agree!

AMB. Shake hands with me, I shake hands with thee.

Ye are full of curtesie, that is the best. 210
And you take great paine, ye are a mannerly guest.

Why, maisters, doo you not know me? the truth to me tel!

ALL. No, trust us; not very well.

AMB. Why, I am Ambidexter, who[m] many souldiers doo love.

HUF. Gogs hart, to have thy company needs we must prove! 215

We must play with both hands, with our hostes and host,

Play with both hands, and score on the poste; ¹

Now and then, with our captain, for many a delay,

We wil not sticke with both hands to play.

AMB. The honestest man, ye may me trust! 220

Enter Meretrix, with a staffe on her shoulder.

MER. What! is there no lads heere that hath a lust

To have a passing trul to help at their need?

HUF. Gogs hart, she is come, indeed! What, Mistres Meretrix, by His wounds, welcome to me!

MER. What wil ye give me? I pray you, let me see. 225

RUF. By His hart, she lookes for gifts by-and-by! ¹

MER. What? Maister Ruf? I cry you mercy!

The last time I was with you I got a broken head,

And lay in the street all night for want of a bed!

SNUF. Gogs wounds, kisse me, my trull so white! ² 230

In thee, I swære, is all my delight!

If thou shouldst have had a broken head for my sake,

I would have made his head to ake!

MER. What? Maister Ambidexter? Who looked for you?

AMB. Mistres Meretrix, I thought not to see you heere now. 235

There is no remedy, — at meeting I must have a kisse!

MER. What, man, I wil not sticke for that, by Gisse!

Kisse.

AMB. So now, gramercy! I pray thee be gone!

MER. Nay, soft, my freend; I meane to have one!

[She kisses him.]

Nay, soft! I swære, and if ye were my brother, 240
Before I let go, I wil have another!

Kisse, kisse, kisse.

RUF. Gogs hart, the whore would not kisse me yet!

MER. If I be a whore, thou art a knave; then it is quit!

HUF. But hearst thou, Meretrix? With who this night wilt thou lye?

MER. With him that giveth the most money. 245

¹ The door-post in a tavern on which was scored up the reckonings of the guests.

¹ Immediately.

² Dear.

HUF. Gogs hart, I have no money in purse, ne yet in clout! ¹

MER. Then get thee hence and packe, like a lout!

HUF. Adieu, like a whore!

Exit Huf.

MER. Farwell, like a knave!

RUF. Gogs nailes, Mistres Meretrix, now he is gone,

A match ye shall make straight with me: I wil give thee sixpence to lye one night with thee. 251

MER. Gogs hart, slave, doost thinke I am a sixpeny iug? ²

No, wis ye, Iack, I looke a little more smug!

SNUF. I will give her xviii pence to serve me first.

MER. Gramercy, Snuf, thou art not the wurst! 255

RUF. By Gogs hart, she were better be hanged, to forsake me and take thee!

SNUF. Were she so? that shall we see!

RUF. By Gogs hart, my dagger into her I will thrust!

SNUF. A, ye boy, ye would doo it and ye durst!

AMB. Peace, my maisters; ye shall not fight. 260

He that drawes first, I will him smite.

RUF. Gogs wounds, Maister Snuf, are ye so lusty?

SNUF. Gogs sides, Maister Ruf, are ye so crusty?

RUF. You may happen to see!

SNUF. Doo what thou darest to me! 265

Heer draw and fight. Heere she must lay on and coyle ³ them both; the Vice must run his way for feare; Snuf sting down his sword and buckler and run his way.

MER. Gogs sides, knaves! seeing to fight ye be so rough,

Defend yourselves, for I will give ye both inough!

I will teach ye how ye shall fall out for me! Yea, thou slave, Snuf! no more blowes wilt thou bide? 269

To take thy heeles a time hast thou spied?

Thou villaine, seeing Snuf has gone away, A little better I meane thee to pay!

He falleth downe; she falleth upon him, and beats him, and taketh away his weapors.

RUF. Alas, good Mistres Meretrix, no more! My legs, sides, and armes with beating be sore!

MER. Thou a souldier, and loose thy weapon! 275

Goe hence, sir boy; say a woman hath thee beaten!

RUF. Good Mistres Meretrix, my weapon let me have;

Take pittie on me, mine honestie to save! If it be knowne this repulse I sustaine,

It will redound to my ignomy and shame.

MER. If thou wilt be my man, and waite upon me, 281

This sword and buckler I will give thee.

RUF. I will doo all at your commaundement;

As servant to you I wilbe obedient.

MER. Then let me see how before me you can goe. 285

When I speake to you, you shall doo so: Of with your cap at place and at boord, ¹ —

“Forsooth, Mistres Meretrix,” at every word.

Tut! tut! in the campe such souldiers there be,

One good woman would beat away two or three! 290

Wel, I am sure customers tarry at home.

Manerly before, and let us be gone!

Exeunt [with Ruf walking in advance as a gentleman-usher].

Enter Ambidexter.

AMB. O the passion of God! be they heer still or no?

I durst not abide to see her beat them so! I may say to you I was ² in such a fright, ³

Body of me, I see the heare of my head stand upright! 296

When I saw her so hard upon them lay on, O the passion of God! thought I, she wil be with me anon!

I made no more ⁴ adoo but avoided the thrust,

² Joan, woman of light fame.

³ Beat.

² B. wis.

³ B. flight.

⁴ B. mare.

And to my legs began for to trust; 300
And fell a-laughing to my-selfe, when I was once gone.

It is wisdom, quoth I, by the masse, to save one!

Then into this place I intended to trudge,
Thinking to meete Sisamnes the iudge.

Beholde where he commeth! I will him
meet, 305

And like a gentleman I meane him to greet.

Enter Sisamnes.

SISAM. Since that the Kings Graces Mai-estie in office did me set,
What abundance of wealth to me might I get!

Now and then some vantage I atchive;
much more yet may I take,
But that I fear unto the king that some complaint will make. 310

AMB. Iesu, Maister Sisamnes, you are unwise!

SISAM. Why so? I pray thee let me agnise.
What, Master Ambidexter, is it you?

Now welcome to me, I make God a-vow!

AMB. Iesu, Maister Sisamnes, with me
you are wel acquainted! 315

By me rulers may be trimly painted.
Ye are unwise if ye take not time while ye
may;

If ye wil not now, when ye would ye shall have nay.

What is he that of you dare make exclama-
tion,

Of your wrong-dealing to make explica-
tion? 320

Can you not play with both hands? and turn with the winde?

SISAM. Beleeve me, your words draw deepe in my minde.

In collour¹ wise unto this day, to bribes I have inclined;

More the same for to frequent, of truth I am now minded.

Beholde, even now unto me suters doo proceed. 325

[Enter Small Habilitie.]

SM. HAB. I beseech you heer, good Maister Iudge, a poor mans cause to tender!

Condemne me not in wrongfull wise that never was offender.

You know right wel my right it is. I have not for to give.

You take away from me my due, that should my corps releeve.

The commons of you doo complaine from them you devocate;¹ 330

With anguish great and grevos words their harts do penetrate;

The right you sell unto the wrong, your private gain to win;

You violate the simple man, and count it for no sinne.

SISAM. Hold thy tung, thou prating knave! and give to me reward,

Els, in this wise, I tell thee truth, thy tale
wil not be heard. 335

Ambidexter, let us goe hence, and let the knave alone!

AMB. Farwell, Small Habilitie, for helpe
now get you none;

Bribes hath corrupt him good lawes to polute.

Exeunt [Sisamnes and Ambidexter].

SM. HAB. A naughty man, that wil not obay the kings constitute! 339

With hevvy hart I wil return, til God redresse my pain. Exit.

Enter Shame, with a trump blacke, [sounding a blast].

SHAME. From among the grisly ghosts I come, from tirants testy train.

Unseemely Shame, of sooth, I am, procured to make plaine

The odious facts and shameles deeds that Cambises king doth use.

All pietie and vertuous life he doth it cleane refuse;

Lechery and drunkennes he doth it much frequent; 345

The tigers kinde to imitate he hath given full consent;

He nought esteems his Counsel grave ne
vertuous bringing-up,

But dayly stil receives the drink of damned
Vices cup;

¹ "Perhaps 'to make calls or demands,' if not a misprint for derogate." (N.E.D.)

He can bide no instruction, he takes so great delight
In working of iniquitie for to frequent his spight. 350
As Fame doth sound the royal trump of worthy men and trim,
So Shame doth blow with strained blast the trump of shame on him.

Exit [blowing the trumpet].

Enter the King, Lord, Praxaspes, and Sisamnes.

KING. My Iudge, since my departure hence, have you used iudgement
right?

If faithful steward I ye finde, the same I wil requite.

SISAM. No doubt your Grace shal not once hear that I have done amis. 355

PRAX. I much reioyce to heare so good newes as this.

Enter Commons Cry running in; speake this verse; and goe out againe hastily.

COM. CRY. Alas! alas! how are the commons oppressed

By that vile iudge, Sisamnes by name!
I doo not know how it should be redressed!
To amend his life no whit he dooth frame. 360

We are undoone and thrown out of doore,
His damnable dealing dooth us so tor-
ment!

At his hand we can finde no releefe nor succour.

God graunt him grace for to repent!

Run away crying.

KING. What doleful cries be these, my lord, that sound do in mine eare? 365 Intelligence if you can give, unto your king declare.

To me it seemeth my commons al they doo lament and cry

Out of Sisamnes, iudge most cheefe, even now standing us by.

PRAX. Even so, O king, it seemd to me, as you rehcarsall made.

I doubt the iudge culpable be in some respect or trade.¹ 370

SISAM. Redouted king, have no mistrust!
No whit your minde dismay!
There is not one that can me charge, or ought against me lay.

Enter Commons Complaint, with Prooffe and Triall.

COM. COMP. Commons Complaint I represent, with thrall of dolfull state.

My urgent cause erected fourth my greefe for to dilate.

Unto the king I wil prepare my miserie to
tell, 375

To have releefe of this my greefe and fettered feet so fel.

[Kneels before Cambises.]

Redouted prince and mighty king, myself
I prostrat heere!

Vouchsafe, O king, with me to beare for this that I appeere!

With humble sute I pardon crave of your most Royall Grace,

To give me leave my minde to break before you in this place. 380

KING. Commons Complaint, keep nothing back! Fear not thy tale to tel.

What-ere he be within this land that hath not used thee wel,

As princes mouth shal sentence give, he shal receive the same.

Unfolde the secrets of thy brest, for I extinguish blame.

COM. COMP. God preserve your Royall
Grace, and send you blisfull daies,

That all your deeds might stil accord to give the god[s] the praise! 386

My complaint is, O mighty king, against that iudge you by,

Whose careles deeds, gain to receive, hath made the commons cry.

He, by taking bribes and gifts, the poore he doth oppresse,

Taking releefe from infants yong, widows,
and fatherles. 390

KING [to Sisamnes]. Untrustfull traitor and corrupt iudge, how likest thou this complaint?

Forewarning I to thee did give of this to make restraint.

And hast thou doon this divelish deed mine ire for to augment?

I sentence give, thou Iudas iudge. Thou shalt thy deed repent!

SISAM. O pusant prince, it is not so! His complaint I deny. 395

COM. COMP. If it be not so, most mighty king, in place then let me dye!

Behold that I have brought with me both Proof and Triall true,

To stand even heere, and sentence give what by him did insue.

PROOF. I, Proof, do him in this appeal: ¹ he did the commons wrong;

Uniustly he with them hath delt, his greedy was so strong; 400

His hart did covet in to get, he cared not which way;

The poor did leese their due and right, because they want ² to pay

Unto him for bribes, indeed, — this was his wanted use;

Whereas your Grace good lawes did make, he did the same abuse.

TRIAL. I, Triall, heer to verifie what Proof dooth now unfolde, 405

To stand against him in his wrong, as now I dare be bolde.

KING. How likest thou this, thou caitive vile? Canst thou the same deny?

SISAM. O noble king, forgive my fact! ³ I yeeld to thy merey.

KING. Complaint ⁴ and Proof, redresse will I all this your misery.

Depart with speed from whence you came; and straight commaund by me 410

The execution-man to come before my Grace with haste.

ALL. For to fulfill this your request no time we meane to waste.

Exeunt they three.

KING. My lord, before my Grace goe call Otian, this iudges sonne,

And he shal heare and also see what his father hath doon.

The father he shal suffer death, the sonne his roome succeed; 415

And, if that he no better prove, so likewise shall he speed.

PRAX. As your Grace hath commaundment given, I mean for to fulfil.

Step aside and fetch him.

KING. Accursed iudge, couldst thou consent to do this cursed ill?

According unto thy demaund, thou shalt, for this thy gilt,

Receive thy death before mine eyes. Thy blood it shalbe spilt. 420

[Re-enter Praxaspes bringing in Otian.]

PRAX. Beholde, O king, Sisamnes sonne before you doth appere.

KING. Otian, this is my minde, therefore to me come neere:

Thy father heer for iudgment wrong procured hath his death,

And thou, his son, shalt him succeed when he hath lost his breth;

And, if that thou dost once offend, as thou seest thy father have, 425

In like wise thou shalt suffer death No mercy shal thee save!

OTIAN. O mighty king, vouchsafe your grace my father to remit.

Forgive his fault. His pardon I doo aske of you as yet.

Alas! although my father hath your princely hart offended,

Amends for misse he wil now make, and faults shalbe amended. 430

In-stead of his requested life, pleaseth your Grace take mine!

This offer I as tender childe, so duty doth me binde.

KING. Doo not intreat my grace no more, for he shal dye the death!

Where is the execution-man him to bereave of breath?

Enter Execution.

EXEC. At hand, and if it like your Grace, my duty to dispatch, 435

In hope that I, when deede is doone, a good reward shall catch.

KING. Dispatch with sword this iudges life; extinguish fear and cares:

So. doon, draw thou his cursed skin strait over both his eares.

I wil see the office done, and that before mine eyes.

EXEC. To doo the thing my king commaunds I give the enterprise. ¹ 440

² Failed.

³ Deed.

⁴ B. Complaints.

SISAM. Otian, my sonne, the king to death by law hath me condemned,
And you in roome and office mine his Graces wil hath placed;
Use iustice, therefore, in this case, and yeeld unto no wrong, Lest thou do purchase the like death ere ever it be long.¹

OTIAN. O father deer, these words to hear,
— that you must dye by force, — Bedews my cheeks with stilled teares. The king hath no remorse. 446

The grevous greefes and strained sighes
my hart doth breake in twaine,
And I deplore, most woful childe, that I should see you slaine.

O false and fickle frowning dame, that turneth as the winde, Is this the ioy in fathers age thou me assignest to finde? 450

O dolefull day, unhappy houre, that loving childe should see His father deer before his face thus put to death should be!

Yet, father, give me blessing thine, and let me once imbrace

Thy comely corps in fouled arms, and kisse thy ancient face!

SISAM. O childe, thou makes my eyes to run, as rivers doo, by streame. 455
My leave I take of thee, my sonne. Beware of this my beame!²

KING. Dispatch even now, thou man of death; no longer seem to stay!

EXEC. Come, M[aster] Sisamnes, come on your way.

My office I must pay; forgive therefore my deed.

SISAM. I doo forgive it thee, my freend; dispatch therefore with speed! 460

Smite him in the neck with a sword to signifie his death.

PRAX. Beholde, O king, how he dooth bleed, being of life bereft!

KING. In this wise he shall not yet be left.
Pull his skin over his eares³ to make his death more vile.

A wretch he was, a cruell theefe, my commons to beguile!

Flea him with a false skin.

OTIAN. What childe¹ is he of natures mould could bide the same to see, — His father fleaed in this wise? Oh, how it greeveth me! 466

KING. Otian thou seest thy father dead, and thou art in his roome:
If thou beest proud, as he hath beene, even thereto shalt thou come.

OTIAN. O king, to me this is a glasse: with greefe in it I view Example that unto your Grace I doo not prove untrue. 470

PRAX. Otian, convey your father hence to tomb where he shall lye.

OTIAN. And if it please your lordship, it shall be done by-and-by.

Good execution-man, for need, helpe me with him away.

EXEC. I wil fulfill, as you to me did say.

They take him away.²

KING. My [lord], now that my Grace hath seen that finisht is this deed, 475 To question mine give tentative eare, and answere make with speed:

Have not I doon a gracious deed, to redresse my commons woe?

PRAX. Yea, truely, if it please your Grace, you have indeed doon so.

But now, O king, in frendly wise I counsel you in this, —

Certain vices for to leave that in you placed is: 480

The vice of drunkennes, Oh king, which doth you sore infect,

With other great abuses, which I wish you to detect.

KING. Peace, my lord! What needeth this? Of this I will not heare!

To pallace now I will returne, and thereto make good cheere.

God Baccus he bestows his gifts, we have good store of wine, 485

And also that the ladies be both passing brave and fine.

² Distress, alluding to the cross. But cf. N.E.D.
beam, sb.²

³ B. eyes.

² Since there were no stage-curtains, the actors had to make some provision for removing each
"dead" player.

But stay! I see a lord now come, and eke a valiant knight.
What news, my lord? To see you heer my hart it doth delight.

Enter Lord and Knight to meet the King.

LORD. No news, O king; but of duty come to wait upon your Grace.

KING. I thank you, my [lord] and loving knight. I pray you with me trace.¹

My lords and knight, I pray ye tel, — I wil not be offended, — 491

Am I worthy of any crime once to be reprehended?

PRAX. The Persians much doo praise your Grace, but one thing discommend,
In that to wine subiect you be, wherein you doo offend.

Sith that the night of wines effect doth oft subdue your brain, 495

My counsel is, to please their harts from it you would refrain.

LORD [to Praxaspes]. No, no, my lord! it is not so! For this of prince they tel,
For vertuous prooffe and princely facts
Cirus he doth excel.

By that his Grace by conquest great the Egiptians did convince,
Of him report abroad doth passe to be a worthy prince. 500

KNIGHT. In person of Cresus I answer make: we may not his Grace compare

In whole respect for to be like Cirus, the kings father,

In-so-much your Grace hath yet no childe
as Cirus left behinde,

Even you I meane, Cambises king, in whom I favour finde.

KING. Cresus said well in saying so. But,
Praxaspes, tel me why 505

That to my mouth in such a sort thou should avouch a lye,

Of drunkenes me thus to charge! But thou with speed shalt see

Whether that I a sober king or els a drunkard be.

I know thou hast a blisfull babe, wherein thou doost delight;

Me to revenge of these thy words I wil go wreke this spight: 510

When I the most have tasted wine, my bow
it shalbe bent, —

At hart of him even then to shoote is now
my whole intent;

And, if that I his hart can hit, the king no drunkard is;

If hart of his I doo not kill, I yeeld to thee in this.

Therefore, Praxaspes, fetch to me thy yongest son with speed. 515

There is no way, I tell thee plaine, but I wil doo this deed!

PRAX. Redoubted prince, spare my sweet childe. He is mine only ioy!

I trust your Grace to infants hart no such thing will imploy.

If that his mother hear of this, she is so nigh her flight,

In clay her corps wil soone be shrinde to passe from worlds delight. 520

KING. No more adoe! Go fetch me him!
It shalbe as I say.

And if that I doo speak the word, how dare ye once say nay?

PRAX. I wil go fetch him to your Grace; but so, I trust, it shall not
be!

KING. For feare of my displeasure great,
goe fetch him unto me.

[Exit Praxaspes.]

Is he gone? Now, by the gods, I wil doo as I say! 525

My lord, therefore fill me some wine, I hartely you pray;

For I must drinke to make my braine somewhat intoxicate.

When that the wine is in my head, O, trimly I can prate!

LORD. Heere is the cup, with filled wine, thereof to take repast.

KING. Give it me to drinke it off, and see no wine be wast. 530

Drink.

Once againe enlarge this cup, for I must tast it stil.¹

¹ Shakespeare laughs at this scene in I Henry IV, II, iv: "Give me a cup of sack to make mine eyes look red, that it may be thought I have wept; for I must speak in passion, and I will do it in King Cambyses' vein."

Drink.

By the gods, I think of pleasant wine I cannot take my fill!

Now drink is in, give me my bow and arrows from sir knight;

At hart of childe I meane to shoot, hoping to cleve it right.

KNIGHT. Behold, O king, where he doth come, his infant yong in
hand. 535

[Re-enter Praxaspes, leading in the Child.]

PRAX. O mighty king, your Grace behest with sorrow I have scand,

And brought my childe fro mothers knee
before you to appeer,

And she thereof no whit doth know that he
in place is heer.

KING. Set him up, my marke to be! I will shoot at his hart.

PRAX. I beseech your Grace not so to doo!
Set this pretence a-part! 540

Farewel, my deer and loving babe! Come, kisse thy father deer!

A grevous sight to me it is to see thee
slaine even heere.

Is this the gaine now from the king for giving counsell good, —

Before my face with such despight to spil my sons hart-blood?

O heavy day to me this is, and mother in like case! 545

YONG CHILDE. O father, father, wipe your
face;

I see the teares run from your eye.

My mother is at home sowing of a band.

Alas! deere father, why doo you cry?

KING. Before me as a mark now let him
stand! 550

I wil shoot at him my minde to fulfill.

YONG CHILDE. Alas, alas, father, wil you me kill?

Good Master king, doo not shoot at me;
my mother loves me best of all.

Shoot.

KING. I have despatched him! Down he doth fall!

As right as a line his hart I have hit. 555
Nay, thou shalt see, Praxaspes, stranger newes yet.

My knight, with speed his hart cut out and give it unto me.

KNIGHT. It shalbe doon, O mighty king, with all seleritie.

LORD. My lord Praxaspes, this had not been but your tung must be walking!

To the king of correction you must needs be talking! 560

PRAX. No correction, my lord, but councel for the best.

[The knight presents the child's heart to the king.]

KNIGHT. Heere is the hart, according to your Graces behest.

KING. Beholde, Praxaspes, thy sonnes owne hart! O, how well the same was hit!

After this wine to doo this deed I thought it very fit.

Esteem thou maist right well therby no drunkard is the king 565

That in the midst of all his cups could doo this valiant thing.

My lord and knight, on me attend; to pallace we will goe,

And leave him heer to take his son when we are gone him fro.

ALL. With al our harts we give consent to wait upon your Grace.

[Exeunt all except Praxaspes.]

PRAX. A wofull man, O Lord, am I, to see him in this case! 570

My daies, I deem, desires their end. This deed wil help me hence.

To have the blossoms of my feeld destroyed by violence!

Enter Mother.

[MOTHER.] Alas, alas! I doo heare tell the king hath kild my sonne!

If it be so, wo worth the deed that ever it was doone!

It is even so! My lord I see, how by him
he dooth weepe. 575

What ment I, that from hands of him this childe I did not keepe?

Alas! husband and lord, what did you meane to fetch this childe away?

PRAX. O lady wife, I little thought for to have seene this day.

MOTHER. O blisful babel! O ioy of womb! Harts comfort and delight!
For counce! given unto the king is this thy iust requite? 580

O hevy day and dolefull time, these mourning tunes to make!

With blubred eies, into mine armes from earth I wil thee take,

And wrap thee in mine apron white.
But, oh my heavy hart!

The spiteful pangs that it sustains wold make it in two to part,

The death of this my sonne to see! O hevy mother now, 585

That from thy sweet and sugred ioy to sorrow so shouldst bow!

What greif in womb did I retain before I did thee see!

Yet at the last, when smart was gone, what ioy wert thou to me!

How tender was I of thy food, for to preserve thy state!

How stilled I thy tender hart at times early and late! 590

With velvet paps I gave thee suck with issue from my brest,

And danced thee upon my knee to bring thee unto rest.

Is this the ioy of thee I reap? O king, of tigers brood!

Oh tigers whelp, hadst thou the hart to see this child's hart-blood?

Nature inforseth me, alas! in this wise to deplore, 595

To wring my hands. O welaway, that I should see this houre!

Thy mother yet wil kisse thy lips, silk-soft,
and pleasant white,

With wringing hands lamenting for to see thee in this plight!

My lording deer, let us goe home our mourning to augment.

PRAX. My lady deer, with heavy hart to it I doo consent, 600

Between us both the childe to bere unto our lordly place.

Exeunt [bearing the body].

Enter Ambidexter. [He addresses the audience.]

AMB. Indeed, as ye say, I have been absent a long space.

But is not my cosin Cutpurse ¹ with you in the meane-time?

To it! to it, cosin, and doo your office fine!
How like you Sisammes for using of me? 605
He plaid with both hands, but he sped il-favourdly!

The king himselfe was godly up trained;
He professed vertue — but I think it was fained.

He plaies with both hands, good deeds and ill;

But it was no good deed Praxaspes sonne for to kill. 610

As he for the good deed on the iudge was commended,

For all his deeds els he is reprehended.

The most evill-disposed person that ever
was

All the state of his life he would not let passe —

Some good deeds he will doo, though they be but few: 615

The like things this tirant Cambises doth shew.

No goodnes from him to none is exhibited,
But still malediction abroad is distributed;
And yet ye shall see in the rest of his race
What infamy he will work against his owne
grace. 620

Whist! no more words! heere comes the kings brother.

Enter Lord Smirdis, with Attendance and Diligence.

SMIR. The kings brother by birth am I,
issued from Cirus loynes;

A greefe to me it is to heare of this the king repines.²

I like not well of those his deeds that he dooth still frequent;

I wish to God that other waies his minde he could content. 625

Yong I am, and next to him; no moe of us
there be.

I would be glad a quiet realme in this his reign to see.

ATT. My lord, your good a[nd]³ willing hart the gods wil recompence,

¹ The audiences, crowded in the yard about the stage, were much troubled by pickpockets, as the early plays abundantly testify.

² Feels discontent. B. reads kings repines.

³ Added by Manly.

In that your minde so pensive is for those his great offence.

My lord, his Grace shall have a time to paire and to amend. 630

Happy is he that can escape and not his Grace offend.

DIL. If that wicked vice he could refrain, from wasting wine forbere,

A moderate life he would frequent, amending this his square.

AMB. My lord, and if your Honor it shall
please,

I can informe you what is best for your ease: 635

Let him alone, of his deeds doo not talke,
Then by his side ye may quietly walke;

After his death you shalbe king,
Then may you reforme eche kinde of thing;

In the meane-time live quietly, doo not with him deale; — 640

So shall it redound much to your weale.

SMIR. Thou saist true, my freend; that is the best.

I know not whether he love me or doo me detest.

ATT. Leane from his company all that you
may.

I, faithfull Attendance, wil your Honor
obay; 645

If against your Honor he take any ire,
His Grace is as like to kindle his fire

To your Honors destruction as otherwise.

DIL. Therefore, my lord, take good advise,
And I, Diligence, your case wil so tender

That to his Grace your Honor shalbe none offender. 651

SMIR. I thank you both, intire freends.
With my Honor stil remaine.

AMB. Beholde where the king doth come with his train!

Enter King, and a Lord.

KING. O lording deer and brother mine, I ioy your state to see,

Surmising much what is the cause you absent thus from me. 655

SMIR. Pleaseth your Grace, no absence I,
but redy to fulfill,

At all assaies, my prince and king, in that your Grace me will.

What I can doo in true defence to you, my prince, aright,

In readines I alwaies am to offer foorth my might.

KING. And I the like to you againe doo heer avouch the same. 660

ALL. For this your good agreement heer, now praised be Gods name!

AMB. [to Smirdis]. But heare ye, noble prince; harke in your eare:

It is best to doo as I did declare.

KING. My lord and brother Smirdis, now this is my minde and will:

That you to court of mine returne, and there to tary still 665

Till my returne within short space your Honor for to greet.

SMIR. At your behest so wil I doo till time againe we meet.

My leave I take from you, O king; even now I doo departe.

Exeunt Smirdis, Attendance and Diligence.

KING. Farwel, lord and brother mine! farwel with all my hart!

My lord, my brother Smerdis is of youth and manly might, 670

And in his sweet and pleasant face my hart doth take delight.

LORD. Yea, noble prince, if that your Grace before his Honor dye,

He wil succede, a vertuous king, and rule with equitie.

KING. As you have said, my lord, he is cheefe heire next my Grace,

And, if I dye to-morrow, next he shall succeed my place. 675

AMB. And if it please your Grace, O king,
I heard him say,

For your death unto the god[s] day and night he did pray;

He would live so vertuously and get him
such a praise

That Fame by trump his due deserts in honor should upraise;

He said your Grace deserved had the cursing of all men; 680

That ye should never after him get any praise againe.

KING. Did he speake thus of my Grace in such despightful wise?

Or els doost thou presume to fill my princely eares with lyes?

LORD. I cannot think it in my hart that he would report so.

KING. How saist thou? Speake the truth: was it so or no? 685

AMB. I thinke so, if it please your Grace, but I cannot tell.

KING. Thou plaist with both hands, now
I perceiue well!

But, for to put al doubts aside, and to make him leese his hope,

He shall dye by dint of sword or els by choking rope.

Shall he succeed when I am gone, to have more praise then I? 690

Were he father, as brother, mine, I swere that he shal dye!

To pallaice mine I will therefore, his death for to pursuc.

Exit [King with the Lord].

AMB. Are ye gone? Straightway I will follow you.

[Turning to the audience.]

How like ye now, my maisters? Dooth not this geere cotten? ¹

The proverbe olde is verified: "soone ripe, and soone rotten!" 695

He wil not be quiet til his brother be kild;
His delight is wholly to have his blood spild.

Mary, sir, I tolde him a notable lye!
If it were to doo againe, I durst [not] doo it, I!

Mary, when I had doon, to it I durst not stand; 700

Thereby ye may perceiue I use to play with eche hand.

But how now, cosin Cutpursse, with whom play you?

Take heed, for his hand is groping even
now!

Cosin, take heed, if you doo secretly grope;
If ye be taken, cosin, ye must looke through a rope. 705

Exit.

*Enter Lord Smirdis alone. **

[SMIR.] I am wandring alone, heere and there to walke;

The Court is so unquiet, in it I take no
ioy.

Solitary to my-selfe now I may talke.

If I could rule, I wist what to say.

Enter Cruelty and Murder with bloody hands.

CRUEL. My coequall partner, Murder, come away; 710

From me long thou maist not stay.

MURD. Yes, from thee I may stay, but not thou from me;

Therefore I have a prerogative above thee.

CRUEL. But in this case we must together abide.

Come, come! Lord Smirdis I have spide.

Lay hands on him with all festination,¹ 716

That on him we may worke our indignation!

[They lay hands upon him.]

SMIR. How now, my freends? What have you to doo with me?

MURD. King Cambises hath sent us unto
thee,

Commaunding us straightly, without mercy or favour, 720

Upon thee to bestow our behaviour,
With cruelty to murder you and make you
away.

SMIR. Yet pardon me, I hartely you pray!
Consider, the king is a tirant tyrannious,
And all his dooings be damnable and panni-
tions: 725

Favour me therfore; I did him never offend.
CRUEL. No favour at all! Your life is at an end!

Even now I strike, his body to wound.

Strike him in divers places.²

Beholde, now his blood springs out on the ground!

A little bladder of vineger prickt.³

MURD. Now he is dead, let us present him
to the king. 730

CRUEL. Lay to your hand, away him to bring.

Exeunt [bearing the body].

¹ Speed.

³ In B. this stage direction is opposite line 727.

Enter Ambidexter.

AMB. O the passion of God, yonder is a hevy Court!

Some weepes, some wailcs — and some make great sport.

Lord Smirdis by Cruelty and Murder is slaine;

But, Iesus! for want of him how some doo complaine! 735

If I should have had a thousand pound I could not forbearc weeping.

Now Iesus have his blessed soule in keeping!

Ah good Lord! to think on him, how it dooth me greeve!

I cannot forbearc weeping, ye may me believee.

Weep.

O my hart! how my pulses doo beate, 740
With sorrowfull lamentations I am in such a heat!

Ah, my hart, how for him it doth sorrow!

[He begins to laugh.]

Nay, I have done, in faith, now. And God give ye good morrow!

Ha, ha! Weep? Nay, laugh, with both ¹ hands to play!

The king through his cruelty hath made him away; 745

But hath not he wrought a most wicked deed,

Because king after him he should not proceed, —

His owne naturall brother, and having no more, —

To procure his death by violence sore?

In spight, because his brother should never be king, 750

His hart, being wicked, consented to this thing.

Now he hath no more brothers nor kinred alive.

If the king use this geere still, he cannot long thrive.

Enter Hob and Lob.

HOB. Gods hat, neighbour, come away!
Its time to market to goe!

LOB. Gods vast,¹ naybor, zay ye zo? 755
The clock hath stricken vive, ich ² think, by Laken!

Bum vay, vrom sleep cham not very well waken!

But, naybor Hob, naybor Hob, what have ye to zel?

HOB. Bum troth, naybor Lob, to you I chil tel:

Chave two goslings, and a chine of porke — There is no vatter between this and

Yorke; — 761

Chave a pot of strawberies, and a calves head —

A zennight zince,³ to-morrow, it hath been dead.

LOB. Chave a score of egges, and of butter a pound;

Yesterday a nest of goodly yong rabits I vound; 765

Chave vorty things mo, of more and of lesse, —

My brain is not very good them to expresse.

But, Gods hat, naybor, wotst ⁴ what?

HOB. No, not wel, naybor; whats that?

LOB. Bum vay, naybor, maister king is a zhrode ⁵ lad! 770

Zo God help me, and holidam, I think the vool ⁶ be mad!

Zome zay he deale cruelly: his brother he did kill,

And also a goodly yung lads hart-blood he did spill.

HOB. Vorbod of God, naybor! Has he plaid zuch a volish deed?

AMB. Goodman Hob and goodman Lob, God be your speed! 775

As you two towards market doo walke, Of the kings cruelty I did heare you talke:

I insure you he is a king most vile and parnitious, —

His dooings and life are odious and vicious.

LOB. It were a good deed zome-body would break his head. 780

HOB. Bum vay, naybor Lob, I chuld ⁷ he were dead!

¹ Fist:

² By this time the reader has learned to identify this brogue with the stage rustic.

³ Sennight since.

⁴ Knowest.

⁵ Fool.

⁶ Shrewd.

⁷ I would.

AMB. So would I, Lob and Hob, with all my hart!

[To the audience] Now with both hands will you see me play my parte. —

A, ye whorson traitorly knaves, Hob and Lob, out upon you, slaves! 785

LOB. And thou calst me knave, thou art another!

My name is Lob, and Hob my next naybor.

AMB. Hob and Lob! a, ye cuntry patches! ¹

A, ye fooles! ye have made wrong matches!
Ye have spoken treason against the kings
Grace! 790

For it I will accuse ye before his face;

Then for the same ye shalbe martyred.

At the least ye shalbe hangd, drawne, and quartered!

HOB. O gentleman, ye shal have two peare-pyes, and tel not of me!

LOB. By God, a vat gooce ² chil give thee.

I think no hurt, by my vathers soule I zweare! 796

HOB. Chave lived wel all my life-time, my naybors among;

And now chuld be loth to come to zuch wrong —

To be hanged and quartered — the greefe would be great!

LOB. A foule evil on thee, Hob! Who bid thee on it treat? 800

Vor it was thou that first did him name.

HOB. Thou lyst like a varlet and thou zaist the zame!

It was zuch a foolish Lob as thou.

LOB. Speak many words, and, by Cods nailles ³ I vow,

Upon thy pate my staffe I will lay! 805

AMB. [aside]. By the masse, I will cause them to make a fray. —

Yea, Lob, thou saist true: all came through him.

LOB. Bum vay, thou Hob,⁴ a litle would make me thee ⁵ trim!

Give thee a zwap on thy nose till thy hart ake!

HOB. If thou darest, doo it! Els, man, cry creke! ⁶ 810

I trust, before thou hurt me,

With my staffe chil make a Lob of thee!

Heer let them fight with their staves, not come neer an-other by three or foure yardes; the Vice set them on as hard as he can; one of their wives come out, and all to-beat the Vice; he run away.

Enter Marian-may-be-good, Hobs wife, running in with a broome, and parte them.

MARIAN. O the body of me! husband Hob, what meane ye to fight?

For the passion of God, no more blowes smite!

Neighbours and freends so long, and now to fall out? 815

What! in your age to seeme so stout?

If I had not parted ye, one had kild another.

LOB. I had not cared, I swere by Gods Mother!

MARIAN. Shake hands againe at the request of me;

As ye have been freends, so freends still be.

HOB. Bum troth, cham content and zaist word, neighbour Lob. 821

LOB. I am content; agreed, neighbor Hob!

Shake hands and laugh hartily one at another.

MARIAN. So, get you to market; no longer stay.

And with yonder knave let me make a fray.

HOB. Content, wife Marian; chill doo as thou doost say. 825

But busse me, ich pray thee, at going away!

Ezeunt Hob, Lob.

MARIAN. Thou whorson knave, and prickeard boy, why didst thou let them fight?

If one had kild another heer, couldst thou their deaths requite?

It beares a signe by this thy deed a cowardly knave thou art,

Els wouldst thou draw that weapon thine, like a man,¹ them to parte. 830

AMB. What, Marian-may-be-good, are you come prattling?

Ye may hap get a box on the eare with your talking!

If they had kild one another, I had not cared a pease.

¹ Fools.

² Goose.

³ By God's nailles.

⁶ Confess yourself beaten; give up.

Heer let her swinge him in her brome; she gets him down, and he her down, — thus one on the top of another make pastime.

MARIAN. A, villain! my-selfe on thee I must ease!

Give me a box on the care? that will I try. Who shalbe maister, thou shalt see by-and-by! 836

AMB. O, no more! no more, I beseech you hartily!

Even now I yeeld, and give you the maistry.

Run his way out while she is down.

MARIAN. A, thou knave! doost thou throw me down and run thy¹ way? If he were heere againe, oh, how I would him pay! 840

I will after him; and, if I can him meet, With these my nailes his face I wil greet.

[Exit.]

Enter Venus leading out her sonne, Cupid, blinde: he must have a bow and two shafts, one headed with golde and th' other headed with lead.

VENUS. Come forth, my sonne. Unto my words attentive eares resign; What I pretend, see you frequent, to force this game of mine.

The king a kinswoman hath, adorn'd with beauty store; 845

And I wish that Dianas gifts they twain shal keep no more,

But use my silver sugred game their ioyes for to augment.

When I doo speak, to wound his hart, Cupid my son, consent.

And shoot at him the shaft of love that beares the head of golde,

To wound his hart in lovers wise, his greefe for to unfold. 850

Though kin she be unto his Grace, that nature me expell,

Against the course thereof he may in my game please me wel.

Wherfore, my sonne, doo not forget; forthwith pursue the deed!

CUPID. Mother, I meane for to obey as you have whole decreed;

But you must tel me, mother deere, when I shal arrow draw, 855

Els your request to be attaind wil not be worth a straw;

I am blinde and cannot see, but stil doo shoot by gesse, —

The poets wel, in places store, of my might doo expresse.

VENUS. Cupid my son, when time shall serve that thou shalt do this deed,

Then warning I to thee wil give; but see thou shoot with speed. 860

Enter a Lord, a Lady, and a Waiting-maid.

LORD. Lady deer, to king a-kin, forthwith let us proceed

To trace abroad the beauty feelds, as erst we had decreed.

The blowing buds whose savery sents our sence wil much delight,

The sweet smel of musk white-rose to please the appetite,

The chirping birds whose pleasant tunes therein shal hear record,¹ 865

That our great ioy we shall it finde in feeld to walk abroad,

On lute and cittern there to play a heavenly harmony:

Our eares shall heare, hart to content, our sports to beautify.

LADY. Unto your words, most comely lord, my-selfe submit doo I;

To trace with you in feeld so green I meane not to deny. 870

Heere trace up and downe playing [on the lute and cittern].

MAID. And I, your waiting-maid, at hand with diligence will be,

For to fulfil with hart and hand, when you shal commaund me.

Enter King, Lord, and Knight.

KING. Come on, my lord and knight; abroad our mirth let us imploy.

Since he is dead, this hart of mine in corps I feel it ioy.

Should brother mine have raign'd king when I had yeelded breth? 875

¹ Warble.

A thousand brothers I rather had to put them all to death.

But, oh beholde, where I doo see a lord and lady faire!

For beauty she most worthy is to sit in princes chaire.

VENUS. Shoot forth, my son! Now is the time that thou must wound his hart.

CUPID. Content you, mother; I will doo my parte. 880

Shoote there; and goe out, Venus and Cupid.

KING. Of truth, my lord, in eye of mine all ladies she doth excell.

Can none reporte what dame she is, and to my Grace it tell?

LORD. Redouted prince, pleaseth your Grace, to you she is a-kin,

Cosin-iarmin,¹ nigh of birth, by mothers side come in.

KNIGHT. And that her waiting-maiden is, attending her upon. 885

He is a lord of princes court, and will be there anon.

They sport themselves in pleasant feeld, to former used use.

KING. My lord and knight, of truth I speak: my hart it cannot chuse

But with my lady I must speake and so expresse my minde.

[He calls to the lady and her attendants.]

My lord and ladyes, walking there, if you will favour finde, 890

Present your-selves unto my Grace, and by my side come stand.

FIRST LORD. We wil fulfil, most mighty king, as your Grace doth commaund.

KING. Lady deere, intelligence my Grace hath got of late,

You issued out of mothers stocke and kin unto my state.

According to rule of birth you are cosiniarmin mine; 895

Yet do I wish that farther of this kinred I could finde;

For Cupid he, that eylesse boy, my hart hath so enflamed

With beauty you me to content the like cannot be named;

For, since I entred in this place and on you
fixt mine eyes,

Most burning fits about my hart in ample wise did rise. 900

The heat of them such force doth yeeld, my corps they scorch, alas!

And burns the same with wasting heat, as Titan doth the gras.

And, sith this heat is kindled so and fresh in hart of me,

There is no way but of the same the quencher you must be.

My meaning is that beauty yours my hart with love doth wound; 905

To give me love minde to content; my hart hath you out found;

And you are she must be my wife, els shall
I end my daies.

Consent to this — and be my queen, to weare the crown with praise!

LADY. If it please your Grace, O mighty king, you shall not this request.

It is a thing that Natures course doth utterly detest, 910

And high it would the god[s] displease, — of all that is the woorst.

To graunt your Grace to marry so, it is not
I that durst.

Yet humble thanks I render now unto you,
mighty king,

That you vouchsafe to great estate so gladly would me bring.

Were it not it were offence, I would it not deny, 915

But such great honor to atchive my hart I would apply.

Therefore, O king, with humble hart in this
I pardon crave;

My answer is: in this request your minde ye may not have.

KING. May I not? Nay, then, I will! by all the gods I vow!

And I will mary thee as wife. This is mine answere now! 920

Who dare say nay what I pretend? Who dare the same withstand

Shal lose his head, and have reporte as traitor through my land.

There is no nay. I wil you have, and you my queene shalbe!

LADY. Then, mighty king, I crave your Grace to heare the words of me:

Your counsellors take of lordings wit, the lawes aright peruse; 925
If I with safe may graunt this deed, I will it not refuse.

KING. No, no! What I have said to you,
I meane to haue it so.

For counsellors theirs I mean not, I, in this respect to goe;

But to my pallasce let us goe, the mariage to prepare;

For, to avoid my wil in this, I can it not forbear. 930

LADY. O God, forgive me, if I doo amisse!
The king by compulsion inforceth me
this.

MAID. Unto the gods for your estate I will not cease to pray,

That you may be a happy queen, and see most ioyfull day.

KING. Come on, my lords; with gladsome harts let us reioyce with glee! 935 Your musick shew to ioy this deed at the request of me!

BOTH. For to obey your Graces words our Honors doo agree.

Exeunt.

Enter Ambidexter.

AMB. O the passion of me! Mary, as ye say, yonder is a royal court!

There is triumphing, and sporte upon
sporte,

Such loyall lords, with such lordly exercise, Frequenting such pastime as they can devise, 941

Running at tilt, iusting, with running at the ring,

Masking and mumming, with eche kinde of
thing,

Such daunsing, such singing, with musicall harmony, —

Beleeve me, I was loth to absent their company. 945

But wil you beleeve? Iesu, what hast they made till they were married!

Not for a milion of pounds one day longer
they would haue tarjiled!

Oh! there was a banquet royall and super-excellent!

Thousands and thousands at that banquet was spent.

I muse of nothing but how they can be married so soone; 950

I care not if I be married before to-morrow
at noone,

If mariage be a thing that so may be had.

[To one in the audience.]

How say you, maid? to marry me wil ye be glad?

Out of doubt, I beleeve it is some excellent treasure, —

Els to the same belongs abundant pleasure.
Yet with mine eares I have heard some
say: 956

“That ever I was married, now cursed be the day!”

Those be they [that] ¹ with curst wives be matched.

That husband for haukes meat ² of them is up-snatched,

Head broke with a bedstaffe, face all to-be-scratched, 960

“Knaue!” “slave!” and “villain!” a coylde ³ cote now and than, —

When the wife hath given it, she wil say, “Alas, good man!”

Such were better unmarried, my maisters,
I trow,

Then all their life after be matched with a shrow.

Enter Preparation.

PREP. With speed I am sent all things to prepare, 965

My message to doe as the king did declare.
His Grace doth meane a banquet to make,

Meaning in this place repast for to take.
Wel, the cloth shalbe laid, and all things in redines,

To court to return, when doon is my busi-
nes. 970

AMB. A proper man and also [a] ⁴ fit
For the kings estate to prepare a banquet!

PREP. What, Ambidexter? Thou art not unknowen!

A mischeefe on all good faces, so that I curse not mine owne!

Now, in the knaves name, shake hands
with me. 975

² Hawk's meat, something snatched up greedily.

³ Beaten.

⁴ Supplied from A.

AMB. Wel said, goodman pouchmouth;
your reverence I see.

I will teach ye, if your manners no better
be!

A, ye slave! the king doth me a gentleman allow;

Therefore I looke that to me ye should bow.

Fight.

PREP. Good Maister Ambidexter, pardon
my behaviour; 980

For this your deeds you are a knave, for your labour!

AMB. Why, ye stale counterly¹ villain, nothing but "knave"?

Fight.

PREP. I am sorry your maistership offended I have;

Shake hands, that betweene us agreement may be.

I was over-shot with my-selfe, I doo see.

Let me have your helpe this furniture to provide. 986

The king from this place wil not long abide.

Set the fruit on the boord.

AMB. Content; it is the thing that I would wish.

I my-selfe wil goe fetch one dish.

Let the Vice fetch a dish of nuts, and let them fall in the bringing of them in.

PREP. Clenly, Maister Ambidexter; for faire on the ground they lye. 990

AMB. I will have them up againe by-and-
by.

PREP. To see all in redines I will put you in trust;

There is no nay, to the court needs I must.

Exit Preparation.

AMB. Have ye no doubt but all shalbe wel.

Mary, sir, as you say, this geer dooth ex-cell! 995

All things is in a readines, when they come
hither, —

The kings Grace and the queene both together.

¹ Referring to the Counter (prison); jail-bird.

[To the audience.]

I beseech ye, my maisters, tell me, is it not best

That I be so bolde as to bid a guest?

He is as honest a man as ever spurd
cow, — 1000

My cosin Cutpurse, I meane; I beseech ye, iudge you.

Beleeve me, cosin, if to be the kings guest ye could be taken,

I trust that offer will never be forsaken.

But, cosin, because to that office ye are not like to come,

Frequent your exercises — a horne on your thum,¹ 1005

A quick eye, a sharpe knife, at hand a receiver.

But then take heed, cosin, ye be a clenly convayour.

Content your-selfe, cosin; for this banquet
you are unfit,

When such as I at the same am unworthy to sit.

Enter King, Queene, and his traine.

KING. My queen and lords, to take repast, let us attempt the same. 1010

Heer is the place; delay no time, but to our purpose frame.

QUEENE. With willing harts your whole behest we minde for to obey.

ALL. And we, the rest of princes traine, will doo as you doo say.

Sit at the banquet.

KING. Me think mine eares doth wish the sound of musicks harmony;

Heer, for to play before my Grace, in place
I would them spy. 1015

Play at the banquet.

AMB. They be at hand, sir, with sticke and fiddle;

They can play a new daunce, called Hey-diddle-diddle.

KING. My queene, perpend. What I pronounce, I wil not violate,

¹ A casing of horn was worn over the thumb by the cutpurse, apparently to resist the sharpe edge of the knife in cutting purses. Horn-thumb became a cant-term for a cutpurse.

But one thing which my hart makes glad I minde to explicate: ¹
 You know in court uptrained is a lyon very yong; 1020
 Of one litter two whelps ² beside, as yet not very strong.
 I did request one whelpe to see and this yong lyon fight;
 But lion did the whelpe convince by strength of force and might.
 His brother whelpe, perceiving that the lion was too good,
 And he by force was like to see the other whelp his blood, 1025
 With force to lyon he did run, his brother for to helpe.
 A wonder great it was to see that freend-ship in a whelpe!
 So then the whelps between them both the lyon did convince.
 Which thing to see before mine eyes did glad the hart of prince.

At this tale tolde, let the Queene weep.

QUEENE. These words to heare makes stilling teares issue from christall eyes.³ 1030
 KING. What, doost thou meane, my spouse? to weep for losse of any prise?
 QUEENE. No, no, O king; but, as you see,
 frendship in brothers whelp:
 When one was like to have repulse, the other yeelded helpe.
 And was this favour shewd in dogs, to shame of royall king?
 Alack, I wish these eares of mine had not once heard this thing! 1035 Even so should you, O mighty king, to brother beene a stay,
 And not, without offence to you, in such wise him to slay.
 In all assaies it was your part his cause to have defended,
 And, who-so-ever had him misused, to have them reprehended.
 But faithfull love was more in dog then it was in your Grace. 1040

KING. O cursed caitive, vicious and vile!
 I hate thee in this place!
 This banquet [now] ¹ is at an end; take all these things away.
 Before my face thou shalt repent the words that thou dost say.
 O wretch most vile! didst thou the cause of brother mine so tender
 The losse of him should greeve thy hart, —
 he being none offender? 1045
 It did me good his death to have — so will it to have thine!
 What frendship he had at my hands, the same even thou shalt finde.
 I give consent, and make a-vow, that thou shalt dye the death!
 By Cruels sword and Murder fel even thou shalt lose thy breth.
 Ambidexter, see with speed to Cruelty ye
 goe; 1050
 Cause him hither to approche, Murder with him also.

AMB. I am redy for to fulfil,
 If that it be your Graces will.²
 KING. Then nought oblight ³ my message given; absent thy-selfe away.
 AMB. Then in this place I will no longer
 stay. 1055
[whispering to the Queen] If that I durst, I would mourne your case;
 But, alas! I dare not, for feare of his Grace.

Exit Ambidex.

KING. Thou cursed Iill! by all the gods I take an othe and swear, That flesh of thine these hands of mine in peeces small could tere!
 But thou shalt dye by dent of sword: there is no freend ne fee 1060 Shall finde remorce at princes hand to save the life of thee!
 QUEENE. O mighty king and husband mine, vouchsafe to heare me speak,
 And licence give to spouse of thine her patient minde to breake.
 For tender love unto your Grace my words
 I did so frame;
 For pure love doth hart of king me violate and blame. 1065

² Dogs were often pitted against animals, especially bears, in England.

³ Shakespeare gives an amusing parody of this scene in I Henry IV, II, iv.

² B. has lines 1052-53 as one. I follow Manly's division.

³ Forget.

And to your Grace is this offence that I should purchase death?
 Then cursed time that I was queene to shorten this my breth!
 Your Grace doth know by mariage true I am your wife and spouse,
 And one to save anothers helth at trothplight made our vowes; Therefore, O king, let loving queen at thy hand finde remorse, 1070
 Let pitie be a meane to quench that cruell raging force,
 And pardon, plight from princes mouth,
 yeeld grace unto your queen,
 That amity with faithfull zeal may ever be us between.

KING. A, caitive vile! to pitie thee my hart it is not bent; Ne yet to pardon your offence it is not mine
 intent. 1075

FIRST LORD. Our mighty prince, with humble sute of your Grace this I
 crave,
 That this request it may take place, your favour for to have.
 Let mercy yet abundantly the life of queen preserve,
 Sith she in most obedient wise your Graces will doth serve.
 As yet your Grace but while with her hath had cohabitation, 1080
 And sure this is no desert ¹ why to yeeld her indignation.
 Therefore, O king, her life prolong, to ioy her daies in blisse!

SECOND LORD. Your Grace shal win im-mortall fame in graunting unto
 this.
 She is a queene whose goodly hue ² excelles
 the royall rose,
 For beauty bright Dame Nature she a large gift did dispose. 1085
 For comelines who may compare? Of all she beares the bell.³
 This should give cause to move your Grace to love her very wel.
 Her silver brest in those your armes to sing
 the songs of love, — Fine qualities most excellent to be in her you prove;

¹ Deserving.² Complexion.³ Takes precedence.

A precious pearle of prise to prince, a iewell passing all! 1090 Therefore, O king, to beg remorse on both my knees I fall;
 To graunt her grace to have her life, with hart I doo desire.

KING. You villains twain! with raging force ye set my hart on fire!
 If I consent that she shall dye, how dare ye crave her life?
 You two to aske this at my hand dooth much inlarge my strife. 1095
 Were it not for shame, you two should dye, that for her life do sue!
 But favour mine from you is gone; my lords, I tell you true.
 I sent for Cruelty of late; if he would come
 away,
 I would commit her to his hands his cruell part to play.
 Even now I see where he dooth come; it dooth my hart delight. 1100

Enter Cruelty and Murder.

CRUEL. Come, Murder, come; let us goe fourth with might;
 Once againe the kings commaundement we must fulfill.

MURD. I am contented ¹ to doo it with a good will.

KING. Murder and Cruelty, for both of you I sent,
 With all festination ² your offices to frequent. 1105
 Lay holde on the queene; take her to your
 power,
 And make her away within this houre!
 Spare for no feare; I doo you full permit.
 So I from this place doo meane for to flit.³

BOTH. With couragious harts, O king, we will obay. 1110

KING. Then come, my lords, let us departe away.

BOTH THE LORDS. With hevvy harts we will doo all your Grace dooth say.

Exeunt King and Lord[s].

CRUEL. Come, lady and queene; now are you in our handling;

In faith, with you we will use no dandling.

MURD. With all expedition I, Murder, will take place; 1115
Though thou be a queene, ye be under my
grace.
QUEENE. With patience I will you both obay.¹
CRUEL. No more words, but goe with us
away!
QUEENE. Yet, before I dye, some psalme to God let me sing.
BOTH. We be content to permit you that thing. 1120
QUEENE. Farwell, you ladies of the court,
With all your masking hue!
I doo forsake these brodered gardes²
And all the fashions new,
The court and all the courtly train 1125
Wherin I had delight;
I banished am from happy sporte,
And all by spitefull spite;
Yet with a ioyfull hart to God
A psalme I meane to sing, 1130
Forgiving all [men]³ and the king
Of eche kinde of thing.

Sing,⁴ and exeunt.

Enter Ambidexter weeping.

AMB. A, a, a, a! I cannot chuse but weepe for the queene!
Nothing but mourning now at the court
there is scene.
Oh, oh! my hart, my hart! O, my bum will break! 1135
Very greefe so torments me that scarce I can speake.
Who could but weep for the losse of such a lady?
That cannot I doo, I swaere by mine honestie.
But, Lord! so the ladies mourne, crying
"Alack!" 1139
Nothing is worne now but onely black:
I beleeve all [the]⁵ cloth in Watling Street to make gowns would not serue, —
If I make a lye, the devill let ye serue!
All ladies mourne, both yong and olde;

There is not one that weareth a points
woorth of golde.
There is a sorte for feare for the king doo
pray 1145
That would have him dead, by the masse, I dare say.
What a king was he that hath used such tiranny!
He was akin to Bishop Bonner,¹ I think verily!
For both their delights was to shed
blood,
But never intended to doo any good. 1150 Cambises put a iudge to death, — that was a good deed, —
But to kill the yong childe was worse to proceed,
To murder his brother, and then his owne
wife, —
So help me God and holidom, it is pitie of his life!
Heare ye? I will lay twenty thousand pound 1155
That the king himselfe dooth dye by some
wound;
He hath shed so much blood that his will be shed.
If it come to passe, in faith, then he is sped.

Enter the King, without a gowne, a sword thrust up into his side, bleeding.

KING. Out! alas! What shal I doo? My life is finished!
Wounded I am by sodain chaunce; my blood is minished. 1160 Gogs hart, what meanes might I make my life to preserve?
Is there nought to be my helpe? nor is there nought to serue?
Out upon the court, and lords that there remain!
To help my greefe in this my case wil none of them take paine?
Who but I, in such a wise, his deaths wound could have got? 1165
As I on horseback up did leap, my sword from seabard shot,
And ran me thus into the side — as you right well may see.

¹ Edmund Bonner, Bishop of London, who, by his cruel persecution of Protestant martyrs during Queen Mary's Reign, became odious.

A marvels chaunce unfortunate, that in this wise should be!

I feele my-selfe a-dying now; of life bereft am I;

And Death hath caught me with his dart,
for want of blood I spy. 1170

Thus, gasping, heer on ground I lye; for nothing I doo care.

A iust reward for my misdeeds my death doth plaine declare.

Heere let him quake and stir.

AMB. How now, noble king? Pluck up your hart!

What! will you dye, and from us depart?
Speake to me and ye be alive! 1175

He cannot speak. But beholde, how with Death he doth strive.

[The king dies.]

Alas, good king! Alas, he is gone!
The devill take me if for him I make any mone.

I did prognosticate of his end, by the masse! 1179

Like as I did say, so is it come to passe.
I wil be gone. If I should be found heere,

That I should kill him it would appeer.
For feare with his death they doo me
charge,

Farwell, my maisters, I will goe take barge;

I meane to be packing; now is the tide;
Farwell, my maisters, I will no longer
abide! 1186

Exit Ambidexter.

Enter three Lords.

FIRST LORD. Beholde, my lord[s], it is even so as he to us did tell!

His Grace is dead, upon the ground, by dint of sword most fel.

SECOND LORD. As he in saddle would have lept, his sword from sheath did goe,

Goring him up into the side, — his life was ended so. 1190

THIRD LORD. His blood so fast did issue out that nought could him prolong;

Yet, before he yeelded up the ghost, his hart was very strong.

FIRST LORD. A iust reward for his misdeeds the God above hath wrought,

For certainly the life he led was to be counted nought.

SECOND LORD. Yet a princely buriall he shall have, according to his estate;

And more of him heere at this time we have not to dilate. 1196

THIRD LORD. My lords, let us take him up, and carry him away!

BOTH. Content we arc with one accord to doo as you doo say.

Exeunt all [bearing out the body of Cambises].

EPILOGUE

Right gentle audience, heere have you perused
 The tragicall history of this wicked king.
 According to our duty, we have not refused,
 But to our best intent exprest everything.
 We trust none is offended for this our dooing.
 Our author craves likewise, if he have squared amisse,
 By gentle admonition to know where the fault is. 7

His good will shall not be neglected to amend the same.
 Praying all to beare, therefore, with this simple deed
 Untill the time serve a better he may frame.
 Thus yeelding you thanks, to end we decreed
 That you so gently have ¹ suffered us to proceed,
 In such patient wise as to heare and see.
 We can but thank ye therfore; we can doo no more, we! 14

As duty bindes us, for our noble Queene let us pray,
 And for her Honorable Councel, the truth that they may use,
 To practise iustice and defend her Grace eche day;
 To maintain Gods woord they may not refuse,
 To correct all those that would her Grace and Graces lawes abuse;
 Beseeching God over us she may raigne long,
 To be guided by truth and defended from wrong. 21

Amen, quod Thomas Preston.²

THE FAMOUS VICTORIES OF HENRY THE FIFTH¹
CONTAINING THE HONOURABLE BATTELL OF AGIN-COURT: AS IT WAS PLAIDE BY THE QUEENES MAIESTIES PLAYERS

London: Printed by Thomas Creede, 1598

Enter the young Prince, Ned, and Tom.

HENRY THE FIFTH. Come away, Ned and Tom.

BOTH. Here, my lord.

HEN. 5. Come away, my lads. Tell me, sirs, how much gold haue you got? 5

NED. Faith, my lord, I haue got five hundred pound.

HEN. 5. But tell me, Tom, how much hast thou got?

TOM. Faith, my lord, some foure hundred pound. 11

HEN. 5. Foure hundred pounds! Brauely spoken, lads! But tell me, sirs, thinke you not that it was a villainous part of me to rob my fathers receiuers? 1 15

NED. Why no, my lord; it was but a tricke of youth.

HEN. 5. Faith, Ned, thou sayest true. But tell me, sirs, whereabouts are we?

TOM. My lord, we are now about a mile off London. 21

HEN. 5. But, sirs, I maruell that Sir

John Old-castle comes not away. Sounds!¹ see where he comes. 24

Enters Iockey.

How now, Iockey? what newes with thee?

IOCKEY. Faith, my lord, such newes as passeth! For the towne of Detfort is risen with hue and erie after your man, which parted from vs the last night and has set vpon and hath robd a poore carrier.² 30

HEN. 5. Sownes! the vilaine that was wont to spie out our booties?

IOCK. I, my lord, euen the very same.

HEN. 5. Now, base-minded rascal to rob a poore carrier! Wel, it skills not; [35 Ile saue the base vilaines life i[f] I may. But tel me, Iockey, whereabout be the receiuers?

IOCK. Faith, my lord, they are hard by; but the best is we are a horse-backe and they be a-foote, so we may escape them. 41

HEN. 5. Wel, i[f] the vilaines come, let

¹ The Famous Victories, written before 1588, is of importance as being our earliest extant history, or chronicle play, a type which later became exceedingly popular as a result of the victory over the Spanish Armada. It is also of interest as being the inspiration for Shakespeare's splendid trilogy, I Henry IV, II Henry IV, and Henry V. Sir John Oldcastle, sometimes called Iockey, was the original of Sir John Falstaff (whom Shakespeare first named Oldecastle); and Ned and the other "evil companions" who foregathered with the young Prince at "the old taverne in Eastcheape," find their counterpart in Ned, Poins, and the rest, of the famous Boar's Head. From Tarlton's Jests we learn that the immortal Dick Tarlton, "the lord of mirth," who died in 1588, assumed the clown's part of Dericke; possibly he created the rôle. The play must have been a favorite with theatre-goers; Nash, in Pierce Penitence (1592), speaks of it in terms that imply its popularity. The text as we have it seems to have been cut down and otherwise mangled for traveling purposes; but this has not seriously affected its power to entertain.

The play was entered in the Stationers' Registers in May, 1594; our earliest edition (A.) bears the date 1598. Another edition was published in 1617. I have reproduced the text of the 1598 quarto from Farmer's photographic facsimile of the copy in the Bodleian Library. In the original many lines are set as though they were verse (as is often the case with plays printed from prompt copies); I have chosen to print these as prose. And, of course, I have modernized the punctuation and the use of capital letters, and have added, in brackets, a few stage-directions.

me alone with them! But tel me, Iockey, how much gots thou from the knaues? For I am sure I got something, for one [45 of the vilaines so belamed me about the shoulders as I shal feele it this moneth.

IOCK. Faith, my lord, I haue got a hundred pound. 49

HEN. 5. A hundred pound! Now brauely spoken, Iockey. But come, sirs; laie al your money before me. [They lay down the money.] Now, by heauen, here is a braue shewe! But, as I am true gentleman, I wil haue the halfe of this spent [55 to-night! But, sirs, take vp your bags, here comes the receiuers. Let me alone.

Enters two Receiuers.

ONE. Alas, good fellow, what shal we do? I dare neuer go home to the Court, for I shall be handg. But looke, here is the yong Prince. What shal we doo? 61

HEN. 5. How now, you vilaines! What are you?

ONE RECEI. Speake you to him.

OTHER. No, I pray speake you to him.

HEN. 5. Why, how now, you rascals! why speak you not? 67

ONE. Forsooth, we be — pray speake you to him.

HEN. 5. Sowns, vilains, speak, or Ile cut off your heads! 71

OTHER. Forsooth, he can tel the tale better then I.

ONE. Forsooth, we be your fathers receiuers. 75

HEN. 5. Are you my fathers receiuers? Then I hope ye haue brought me some money.

ONE. Money? Alas, sir, we be robd!

HEN. 5. Robd! How many were there of them? 81

ONE. Marry, sir, there were foure of them; and one of them had Sir Iohn Oldcastles bay hobbie, and your blacke nag. 84

HEN. 5. Gogs wounds! How like you this, Iockey? Blood, you vilaines! my father robd of his money abroad, and we robd in our stables! But tell me, how many were of them? 89

ONE RECEI. If it please you, there were foure of them; and there was one about the bignesse of you; — but I am sure

I so belamd him about the shoulders that he wil feele it this month. 94

HEN. 5. Gogs wounds, you lamd them fairly — so that they haue carried away your money. But come, sirs, what shal we do with the vilaines?

BOTH RECEI. I beseech your Grace, be good to vs. 100

NED. I pray you, my lord, forgie them this once.

[HEN. 5.] Well, stand vp, and get you gone. And looke that you speake not a word of it — for, if there be, sownes! Ile hang you, and all your kin! 106

Exit Purseuant[s].

HEN. 5. Now, sirs, how like you this? Was not this brauely done? For now the vilaines dare not speake a word of it, I haue so feared them with words. Now, whither shall we goe? 111

ALL. Why, my lord, you know our old hostes at Feuersham.

HEN. 5. Our hostes at Feuersham! Blood, what shal we do there? We [115 haue a thousand pound about vs, and we shall go to a pettie ale-house? No, no. You know the olde tauerne in Eastcheape; there is good wine: — besides, there is a pretie wench that can talke well; for [120 I delight as much in their toongs as any part about them.

ALL. We are readie to waite vpon your Grace. 124

HEN. 5. Gogs wounds, "wait"? we will go altogither; we are all fellowes. I tell you, sirs, and the king my father were dead, we would be all kings. Therefore, come away!

NED. Gogs wounds, brauely spoken, Harry! 131

[Exeunt omnes.]

Enter Iohn Cobler, Robin Pewterer, Lawrence Costermonger, [the watch].

JOHN COB. All is well here; all is well, maisters.

ROBIN. How say you, neighbour Iohn Cobler? I thinke it best that my [135 neighbour, Robin Pewterer, went to Pudding Lane End, and we will watch here at Billingsgate Ward. How say you, neighbour Robin? how like you this? 139

ROBIN. Marry, well, neighbours; I care not much if I goe to Pudding Lanes End. But, neighbours, and you heare any adoe about me, make haste; and if I heare any ado about you, I will come to you.

Exit Robin.

LAW. Neighbor, what newes heare you of the young Prince? 146

JOHN. Marry, neighbor, I heare say he is a toward yong Prince; for if he me[el]t any by the hie-way he will not let¹ to talke with him; — I dare not call him theefe, but sure he is one of these taking fellowes.² 151

LAW. Indced, neighbour, I heare say he is as liuely a young Prince as euer was.

JOHN. I, and I heare say if he vse it long, his father will cut him off from the crowne. But, neighbour, say nothing of that! 156

LAW. No, no, neighbour, I warrant you!

JOHN. Neighbour, me-thinkes you begin to sleepe. If you will, we will sit down; for I thinke it is about midnight. 161

LAW. Marry, content, neighbour; let vs sleepe. [They fall asleep.]

Enter Dericke rousing.

DERICKE. Who!³ who, there! who, there! 165

Exit Dericke. Enter Robin.

ROBIN. O neighbors, what meane you to sleepe, and such ado in the streetes?

AMBO. How now, neighbor, whats the matter?

Enter Dericke againe.

DERICKE. Who, there! who, there! who, there! 171

COBLER. Why, what ailst thou? here is no horses.⁴

DERICKE. O alas, man, I am robd! Who there! who there! 175

ROBIN. Hold him, neighbor Cobler.

ROBIN. Why, I see thou art a plaine clowne.

DERICKE. Am I a clowne? Sownes, maisters, do clownes go in silke ap- [r80 parell? I am sure all we gentlemen-clownes in Kent scant go so well. Sownes! you know clownes very well! Heare you, are you Maister Constable? And you be, speake, for I will not take it at his [r85 hands.

JOHN. Faith, I am not Maister Constable; but I am one of his bad officers, for he is not here. 189

DERICKE. Is not Maister Constable here? Well, it is no matter. Ile haue the law at his hands.

JOHN. Nay, I pray you, do not take the law of vs.

DER. Well, you are one of his beastly officers. 196

JOHN. I am one of his bad officers.

DER. Why, then, I charge thee looke to him! 199

COBLER. Nay, but heare ye, sir; you seeme to be an honest fellow, and we are poore men; and now tis night, and we would be loth to haue any thing adoo; therefore, I pray thee, put it vp. 204

DER. First, thou saiest true; I am an honest fellow — and a proper, handsome fellow, too! and you seeme to be poore men; therefore I care not greatly. Nay, I am quickly pacified. But, and you chance to spie the theefe, I pray you laie hold on him. 211

ROBIN. Yes, that we wil, I warrant you.

DER. [to the audience]. Tis a wonderful thing to see how glad the knaue is, now I haue forguien him. 215

JOHN. Neighbors, do ye looke about you. How now, who's there?

Enter the Theefe.

THEEFE. Here is a good fellow. I pray you, which is the way to the old tauerne in Eastcheape? 220

DER. Whoope hollo! Now, Gads Hill, knowest thou me?

THEEF. I know thee for an asse.

DER. And I know thee for a bating fellow upon Gads Hill in Kent. A boks light vpon ye! 226

THEEF. The whorson vilaine would be knockt.

DER. Villaine! Maisters,¹ and ye be men, stand to him, and take his weapon from him. Let him not passe you! 231

[They lay hands on him.]

JOHN. My friend, what make you abroad now? It is too late to walke now.

THEEF. It is not too late for true men to walke. 235

LAW. We know thee not to be a true man.

THEEF. Why, what do you meane to do with me? Sownes, I am one of the kings liege people. 240

DER. Heare you, sir, are you one of the kings liege people?

THEEF. I, marry am I, sir! What say you to it?

DER. Marry, sir, I say you are one of the kings filching people. 246

COB. Come, come, lets haue him away.

THEEF. Why, what haue I done?

ROBIN. Thou hast robd a poore fellow, and taken away his goods from him. 250

THEEFE. I neuer sawe him before.

DER. Maisters, who comes here?

Enter the Vintners boy.

BOY. How now, good-man Cobler.

COB. How now, Robin. What makes thou abroad at this time of night? 255

BOY. Marrie, I haue beene at the Counter;² I can tell such newes as neuer you haue heard the like!

COBLER. What is that, Robin? what is the matter? 260

BOY. Why, this night, about two houres ago, there came the young Prince, and three or foure more of his companions, and called for wine good store; and then they sent for a noyse³ of musitians, and [265 were very merry for the space of an houre; then, whether their musicke liked them not, or whether they had drunke too much wine or no, I cannot tell, but our pots flue against the wals; and then they drew [270 their swordes and went into the streete and fought, and some tooke one part and some tooke another; but for the space of halfe an houre there was such a bloodie fray as pass-eth! And none coulede part them, vn- [275 till such time as the Maior and Sheriffe were sent for; and then, at the last, with much adoo, they tooke them; and so the yong Prince was carried to the Counter; and then, about one houre after, there [280 came a messenger from the Court in all haste from the king for my Lord Maior and the Sheriffe — but for what cause I know not.

COBLER. Here is newes indeede, Robert! 286

LAW. Marry, neighbour, this newes is strange indeede! I thinke it best, neighbour, to rid our hands of this fellowe first.

THEEFE. What meane you to doe with me? 291

COBLER. We mean to carry you to the prison, and there to remaine till the sessions day.

THEEF. Then, I pray you, let me go to the prison where my maister is. 296

COB. Nay, thou must go to the country prison, to Newgate. Therefore, come away.

THEEF [to Dericke]. I prethie, be good to me, honest fellow. 301

DER. I, marry, will I; Ile be verie charitable to thee — for I will neuer leaue thee til I see thee on the gallowes. 304

[Exeunt omnes.]

Enter Henry the Fourth, with the Earle of Exeter, and the Lord of Oxford.

OXF. And please your Maiestie, heere is my Lord Maior and the Sheriffe of London to speak with your Maiestie.

K. HEN. 4. Admit them to our presence.

Enter the Maior and the Sheriffe.

Now, my good Lord Maior of London, [309 the cause of my sending for you at this time is to tel you of a matter which I haue learned of my Councell. Herein I vnderstand that you haue committed my sonne to prison without our leauē and li- [314 cense. What! althogh he be a rude youth, and likely to giue occasion, yet you might haue considered that he is a prince, and my sonne, and not to be halled to prison by euery subiect. 319

MAIOR. May it please your Maiestie to giue vs leaue to tell our tale?

KING HEN. 4. Or else God forbid!
Otherwise you might thinke me an vnequall iudge, hauing more affection to my sonne then to any rightfull iudgement. 325

MAIOR. Then I do not doubt but we shal rather deserue commendations at your Maiesties hands then any anger.

K. HEN. 4. Go too, say on. 329

MAIOR. Then, if it please your Maiestic, this night betwixt two and three of the clocke in the morning my lord the yong Prince, with a very disordred companie, came to the old tauerne in Eastcheape; [334 and whether it was that their musicke liked them not, or whether they were ouer-come with wine, I know not, but they drew their swords, and into the streete they went; and some tooke my lord the [339 yong Princes part, and some tooke the other; but betwixt them there was such a bloodie fray for the space of halfe an houre that neither watchmen¹ nor any other could stay them; till my brother, the [344 Sheriffe of London, and I were sent for;
and, at the last, with much adoo, we staid them. But it was long first, which was a great disquieting to all your louing subiects thereabouts. And then, my [349 good lord, we knew not whether your Grace had sent them to trie vs whether we would doe iustice, or whether it were of their owne voluntarie will or not, we cannot tell. And, therefore, in such a case, [354 we knew not what to do; but, for our own safeguard, we sent him to ward; where he wanteth nothing that is fit for his Grace and your Maiesties sonne. And thus, most humbly beseeching your Maiestie to thinke of our answer. 360

HEN. 4. Stand aside vntill we haue further deliberated on your answer.

Exit Maior [and Sherif].

HEN. 4. Ah, Harry! Harry! now thrice-accused Harry, that hath got- [364 ten a sonne which with greefe will end his fathers dayes! Oh, my sonne, a prince thou art, I, a prince, indeed — and to deserue imprisonment! And well haue they done, and like faithfull subiects. Discharge them, and let them go. 370

L. EXE. I beseech your Grace, be good to my lord the yong Prince.

HEN. 4. Nay, nay, tis no matter; let him alone. 374

L. OXF. Perchance the Maior and the Sheriffe haue bene too precise in this matter.

HEN. 4. No, they haue done like faith-full subiects. I will go my-selfe to discharge them and let them go. 380

Exit omnes.

Enter Lord Chiefe Iustice, Clarke of the Office, Tayler, Iohn Cobler, Dericke, and the Theefe.

JUDGE. Tayler, bring the prisoner to the barre.

DER. Heare you, my lord; I pray you bring the bar to the prisoner. 384

[The theefe is led to the bar.]

JUDGE. Hold thy hand vp at the barre.

THEEFE. Here it is, my lord.

JUDGE. Clarke of the Office, reade his inditement.

CLEARKE. What is thy name? 389

THEEFE. My name was knowne before I came here, and shall be when I am gone, I warrant you.

JUDGE. I, I thinke so; but we will know it better before thou go. 394

DER. Sownes, and you do but send to the next iaile we are sure to know his name; for this is not the first prison he hath bene in, Ile warrant you.

CLEARKE. What is thy name? 399

THEEF. What need you to aske, and haue it in writing?

CLEARKE. Is not thy name Cutbert Cutter? ¹

THEEFE. What the diuell need you ask, and know it so well? 405

CLEARKE. Why then, Cutbert Cutter, I indite thee, by the name of Cutbert Cutter,

May last past, in the fourteen yeare of [409

the raigne of our soueraigne lord King Henry the Fourth, for setting vpon a poore carrier vpon Gads Hill, in Kent, and hauing beaten and wounded the said carrier, and taken his goods from him — 414

DER. Oh, maisters, stay there! Nay, lets neuer belie the man! for he hath not beaten and wounded me also, but hee hath beaten and wounded my packe, and hath taken the great rase¹ of ginger that [419 Bouncing Besse with the iolly buttocks should haue had. That greeues me most.

JUDGE. Well, what sayest thou? Art thou guiltie, or not guiltie?

THEEFE. Not guiltie, my lord. 424

JUDGE. By whom wilt thou be tride?

THEEFE. By my lord the young Prince, or by my-selfe, whether you will.

Enter the young Prince, with Ned and Tom.

HEN. 5. Come away, my lads. Gogs wounds, ye villain! what make you [429 heere? I must goe about my businesse my-selfe and you must stand loytering here?

THEEFE. Why, my lord, they haue bound me, and will not let me goe.

HEN. 5. Haue they bound thee, villain? Why, how now, my lord? 435

JUDGE. I am glad to see your Grace in good health.

HEN. 5. Why, my lord, this is my man. Tis maruell you knew him not long [439 before this. I tell you, he is a man of his hands.²

THEEFE. I, Gogs wounds, that I am! Try me, who dare. 443

JUDGE. Your Grace shal finde small credit by acknowledging him to be your man.

HEN. 5. Why, my lord, what hath he done?

JUD. And it please your Maiestie, he hath robbed a poore carrier. 450

DER. Heare you, sir; marry, it was one Dericke, Goodman Hobblings man, of Kent.

HEN. 5. What! wast you, butten-breech? Of my word, my lord, he did it but in iest. 455

DER. Heare you, sir, is it your mans qualitie to rob folks in iest? In faith, he shall be hangd in earnest.¹

HEN. 5. Well, my lord, what do you meane to do with my man? 460

JUD. And please your Grace, the law must passe on him according to iustice; then he must be executed.²

HEN. 5. Why, then, belike you meane to hang my man? 465

JUDGE. I am sorie that it falles out so.

HEN. 5. Why, my lord, I pray ye, who am I? 468

JUD. And please your Grace, you are my lord the yong Prince, our king that shall be after the decease of our soueraigne lord King Henry the Fourth, whom God graunt long to raigne!

HEN. 5. You say true, my lord. And you will hang my man? 475

JUDGE. And like your Grace, I must needs do iustice.

HEN. 5. Tell me, my lord, shall I haue my man? 479

JUDGE. I cannot, my lord.

HEN. 5. But will you not let him go?

JUD. I am sorie that his case is so ill.

HEN. 5. Tush! case me no casings! Shal I haue my man? 484

JUDGE. I cannot, nor I may not, my lord.

HEN. 5. Nay, and "I shal not," say — and then I am answered!

JUDGE. No. 489

HEN. 5. No! Then I will haue him.

He giueth him a boxe on the eare.³

² Lines 456-63 are repeated in A., with the error of iest for the earnest of line 458.

³ In *Tarlton's Jest*s is recorded the following anecdote: "At the Bull [Inn] at Bishops-gate was a play of Henry the fift, wherein the iudge was to take a box on the eare; and because he was absent that should take the blow, Tarlton himselfe, ever forward to please, tooke upon him to play the same iudge, besides his owne part of the clowne: and Knel then playing Henry the fift, hit Tarlton a sound boxe indeed, which made the people laugh the more because it was he. But anon the iudge goes in, and immediately Tarlton in his clownes cloathes comes out, and askes the actors, 'What newes?' 'O,' saith one, 'hadst thou been here, thou shouldst haue seene Prince Henry hit the iudge a terrible box on the eare.' 'What, man!' said Tarlton, 'strike a iudge!' 'It is true, yfaith,' said the other. 'No other like,' said Tarlton; 'and it could not be but terrible to the iudge, when the report so terrifies me that me thinks the blow remains still on my cheeke that it burnes againe!' The people laught at this mightily."

² A man of valor (with, perhaps, a sly glance at his skill as a highwayman).

NED [drawing his sword]. Gogs wounds, my lord, shal I cut off his head?

HEN. 5. No; I charge you, draw not your swords; but get you hence; provide a noise of musitians. Away, be gone! 495

*Exeunt Ned and Tom.*¹

JUDGE. Well, my lord, I am content to take it at your hands.

HEN. 5. Nay, and you be not, you shall haue more! 499

JUDGE. Why, I pray you, my lord, who am I?

HEN. 5. You! who knowes not you? Why, man, you are Lord Chiefe Iustice of England. 504

JUDGE. Your Grace hath said truth; therefore in striking me in this place you greatly abuse me; and not me onely but also your father, whose liuely person here in this place I doo represent. And [509 therefore to teach you what prerogatiues meane, I commit you to the Fleete² vntill we haue spoken with your father.

HEN. 5. Why, then, belike you meane to send me to the Fleete! 514

JUDGE. I, indeed; and therefore, carry him away.

Exeunt Hen. 5. with the officers.

JUDGE. Iayler, carry the prisoner to Newgate againe vntil the next sises.

IAY. At your commandement, my Lord, it shalbe done. 520

[Exeunt omnes.]

Enter Dericke and Iohn Cobler.

DER. Sownds, maisters, heres adoo when princes must go to prison! Why, Iohn, didst euer see the like?

IOHN. O Dericke, trust me, I neuer saw the like! 525

DER. Why, Iohn, thou maist see what princes be in choller. A iudge a boxe on the eare! Ile tel thee, Iohn, O Iohn, I would not haue done it for twentie shillings. 530

IOHN. No, nor I. There had bene no way but one with vs — we should haue bene hangde. 533

² A well-known prison.

DER. Faith, Iohn, Ile tel thee what: thou shalt be my Lord Chiefe Iustice, and thou shalt sit in the chaire; and Ile be the yong Prince, and hit thee a boxe on the eare; and then thou shalt say, "To teach you what prerogatiues meane, I commit you to the Fleete." 540

IOHN. Come on; Ile be your iudge! But thou shalt not hit me hard?

DER. No, no.

[Iohn Cobler takes his place in the Judge's seat.]

IOHN. What hath he done? 544

DER. Marry, he hath robd Dericke.

IOHN. Why, then, I cannot let him go.

DER. I must needs haue my man.

IOHN. You shall not haue him! 548

DER. Shall I not haue my man? Say "no," and you dare! How say you? Shall I not haue my man?

IOHN. No, marry, shall you not!

DER. Shall I not, Iohn?

IOHN. No, Dericke. 554

DER. Why, then, take you that [boxing his ears] till more come! Sownces, shall I not haue him?

IOHN. Well, I am content to take this at your hand. But, I pray you, who am I?

DER. Who art thou? Sownds, doost not know thy self? 561

IOHN. No.

DER. Now away, simple fellow. Why, man, thou art Iohn the Cobler. 564

IOHN. No, I am my Lord Chiefe Iustice of England.

DER. Oh, Iohn; masse! thou saist true, thou art indeed. 568

IOHN. Why, then, to teach you what prerogatiues mean, I commit you to the Fleete.

DER. Wel, I will go; but, yfaith, you gray-beard knaue, Ile course you! 573

Exit. And straight enters again.

Oh Iohn, come, come out of thy chair. Why, what a clown weart thou to let me hit thee a box on the eare! And now thou seest they will not take me to the Fleete. I thinke that thou art one of these Worenday¹ clownes. 579

JOHN. But I maruell what will become of thee.

DER. Faith, Ile be no more a carrier.

JOHN. What wilt thou doo, then? 583

DER. Ile dwell with thee, and be a cobbler.

JOHN. With me? Alasse, I am not able to keepe thee. Why, thou wilt eate me out of doores. 588

DER. Oh Iohn! No, Iohn; I am none of these great slouching fellows that deuoure these great peeces of beefe and brewes. Alasse, a trifle serues me — a woodcocke, a chicken, or a capons legge, or any such little thing serues me. 594

JOHN. A capon! Why, man, I cannot get a capon once a yeare — except it be at Christmas, at some other mans house; for we coblers be glad of a dish of rootes. 598

DER. Rootes! why, are you so good at rooting? Nay, cobbler, weele haue you ringde.¹

JOHN. But, Dericke, though we be so poore, 602

Yet wil we haue in store a crab in the fire,² With nut-browne ale that is full stale,

Which wil a man quaille and laie in the mire.

DER. A bots on you! and be but for your ale, Ile dwel with you. Come, lets away as fast as we can. 608

Exeunt.

Enter the yoong Prince, with Ned and Tom.

HEN. 5. Come away, sirs. Gogs wounds, Ned! didst thou not see what a boxe on the eare I tooke my Lord Chiefe Iustice? 612

TOM. By Gogs blood, it did me good to see it. It made his teeth iarre in his head!

Enter Sir Iohn Old-Castle.

HEN. 5. How now, Sir Iohn Old-Castle, what newes with you?

IOH. OLD. I am glad to see your Grace at libertie. I was come, I, to visit you in prison. 619

HEN. 5. To visit me! Didst thou not know that I am a princes son? Why, tis inough for me to looke into a prison, though I come not in my-selfe. But heres [623 such adoo now-a-dayes — heres prisoning, heres hanging, whipping, and the diuel and all. But I tel you, sirs, when I am king we will haue no such things. But, my lads, if the old king, my father, were dead, we would be all kings. 629

IOH. OLD. Hee is a good olde man; God take him to his mercy the sooner!

HEN. 5. But, Ned, so soone as I am king, the first thing I wil do shal be to put [633 my Lord Chiefe Iustice out of office, and thou shalt be my Lord Chiefe Iustice of England.

NED. Shall I be Lord Chiefe Iustice? By Gogs wounds, Ile be the brauest Lord Chiefe Iustice that euer was in England!

HEN. 5. Then, Ned, Ile turne all these prisons into fence-schooles,¹ and I will endue² thee with them, with landes to maintaine them withall. Then I wil haue [643 a bout³ with my Lord Chiefe Iustice. Thou shalt hang none but picke-purses, and horse-stealers, and such base-minded villaines; but that fellow that will stand by the high-way side couragiously [648 with his sword and buckler and take a purse — that fellow, giue him commendations! Beside that, send him to me, and I will giue him an anuall pension out of my exchequer to maintaine him all the dayes of his life. 654

IOH. Nobly spoken, Harry! We shall neuer haue a mery world til the old king be dead. 657

NED. But whither are ye going now?

HEN. 5. To the Court; for I heare say my father lies verie sicke.

TOM. But I doubt he wil not die.

HEN. 5. Yet will I goe thither; for the breath shal be no sooner out of his mouth but I wil clap the crowne on my head. 664

IOCKEY. Wil you goe to the Court with that cloake so full of needles?

HEN. 5. Cloake, ilat-holes, needles, and all was of mine owne deuising; and therefore I wil weare it. 669

TOM. I pray you, my lord, what may be the meaning thereof?

² Endow.

³ A. about. A fencing match.

HEN. 5. Why, man, tis a signe that I stand vpon thorns til the crowne be on my head. 674

IOC. Or that euey needle might be a prick to their harts that repine at your doings. 677

HEN. 5. Thou saist true, Iockey. But thers some wil say the yong Prince will be "a well toward yong man" — and all this geare, that I had as leeuë they would breake my head with a pot as to say any such thing. But we stand prating [683 here too long; I must needs speake with my father. Therefore, come away.

[They cross over to the King's palace.]

PORTER. What a rapping keep you at the kings court-gate?

HEN. 5. Heres one that must speake with the king. 689

POR. The king is verie sick, and none must speak with him.

HEN. 5. No? You rascall, do you not know me? 693

POR. You are my lord the yong Prince.

HEN. 5. Then goe and tell my father that I must, and will, speake with him.

NED [drawing his sword]. Shall I cut off his head? 698

HEN. 5. No, no. Though I would helpe you in other places, yet I haue nothing to doo here. What! you are in my fathers Court. 702

NED. I will write him in my tables; for so soone as I am made Lord Chiefe Iustice I wil put him out of his office.

The trumpet sounds.

HEN. 5. Gogs wounds, sirs, the king comes. Lets all stand aside. 707

Enter the King, with the Lord of Exeter.

HEN. 4. And is it true, my lord, that my sonne is alreadie sent to the Fleete? Now, truly, that man is more fitter to rule the realme then I; for by no meanes could I rule my sonne, and he, by one word, hath caused him to be ruled. Oh my [713 sonne! my sonne! no sooner out of one prison but into another? I had thought once-whiles I had liued to haue seene this noble realme of England flourish by thee, my sonne; but now I see it goes to ruine and decaie. 719

He wepeth.

Enters Lord of Oxford.

OX. And please your Grace, here is my lord your sonne that commeth to speake with you. He saith he must, and wil, speake with you. 723

HEN. 4. Who? my sonne Harry?

OXF. I, and please your Maiestie.

HEN. 4. I know wherefore he commeth. But looke that none come with him.¹ 728

OXF. A verie disordered company, and such as make verie ill rule in your Maisties house.

HEN. 4. Well, let him come; but looke that none come with him. 733

He goeth.

OXF. And please your Grace my lord the king sends for you.

HEN. 5. Come away, sirs; lets go all together.

OXF. And please your Grace, none must go with you. 739

HEN. 5. Why, I must needs haue them with me; otherwise I can do my father no countenance:² therefore, come away.

OXF. The king your father commaunds there should none come. 744

HEN. 5. Well, sirs, then be gone — and prouide me three noyse of musitians.

Exeunt knights.

Enters the Prince, with a dagger in his hand.

HEN. 4. Come, my sonne; come on, a Gods name! I know wherefore thy [748 comming is. Oh, my sonne, my sonne! what cause hath euer bene that thou shouldst forsake me, and follow this vilde and reprobate company which abuseth youth so manifestly? Oh, my sonne, [753 thou knowest that these thy doings wil end thy fathers dayes.

He weepes.

I, so, so, my sonne, thou fearest not to approach the presence of thy sick father in that disguised sort. I tel thee, my sonne, [758 that there is neuer a needle in thy eloke but it is a prick to my heart, and neuer an ilat-hole but it is a hole to my soule; and wherefore thou bringest that dagger in thy hande I know not, but by coniecture. 763

He weepes.

HEN. 5. [aside]. My conscience accuseth me. [He kneels.] Most soueraign lord, and welbeloued father, to answere first to the last point, that is, whereas you coniecture that this hand and this [768 dagger shall be armde against your life, no! Know, my beloued father, far be the thoughts of your sonne — “sonne,” said I? an vnworthie sonne for so good a father! — but farre be the thoughts of any such [773 pretended mischiefe. And I most humbly render it to your Maiesties hand. And liue, my lord and soueraigne, for euer! And with your dagger-arme show like vengeance vpon the bodie of — “that, [778 your sonne,” I was about say, and dare not; ah, woe is me therefore! — that, your wilde slaue. Tis not the crowne that I come for, sweete father, because I am vnworthie. And those vilde and repro- [783 bate companions¹ — I abandon and vtterly abolish their company for euer! Pardon, sweete father! pardon! the least thing and most desire. And this ruffianly cloake I here teare from my backe, [788 and sacrifice it to the diuel, which is maister of al mischiefe. Pardon me, sweet father! pardon me! Good my Lord of Exeter, speak for me. Pardon me! pardon, good father! Not a word? [793 Ah, he wil not speak one word! A, Harry, now thrice vnhappie Harry! But what shal I do? I wil go take me into some solitarie place, and there lament my sinfull life; and, when I haue done, I wil laie me downe and die. 799

Exit.

HEN. 4. Call him againe! Call my sonne againe!

again? Now, Harry, happie be the time that thy father calleth thee againe! 804

[He kneels.]

HEN. 4. Stand vp, my son; and do not think thy father but at the request of thee, my sonne, I wil pardon thee. And God blesse thee, and make thee his seruant. 808

HEN. 5. Thanks, good my lord. And no doubt but this day, euen this day, I am borne new againe.

HEN. 4. Come, my son and lords, take me by the hands. 813

Exeunt omnes.

Enter Dericke [shouting at John Cobler's wife within].

DER. Thou art a stinking whore! and a whorson stinking whore! Doest thinke Ile take it at thy hands?

Enter Iohn Cobler, running.

JOHN. Derick, D[ericke], D[ericke], hearesta? ¹ Oh, ² D[ericke], neuer [818 while thou liuest vse that! Why, what wil my neighbors say and thou go away so?

DER. Shees a narrant whore; and Ile haue the lawe on you, Iohn.

JOHN. Why, what hath she done? 823

DER. Marry, marke thou, Iohn. I wil proue it, that I wil!

JOHN. What wilt thou proue?

DER. That she cald me in to dinner — Iohn, marke the tale wel, Iohn — and [828 when I was set, she brought me a dish of rootes and a peece of barrel-butter therein. And she is a verie knaue, and thou a drab if thou take her part. 832

JOHN. Hearesta, Dericke? is this the matter? Nay, and it be no worse we wil go home againe, and all shall be amended.

DER. Oh Iohn, hearesta, Iohn? is all well?

JOHN. I, all is wel. 838

DER. Then Ile go home before, and breake all the glasse windows.

[Exeunt Dericke and Iohn.]

Enter the King with his lords.

HEN. 4. Come, my lords. I see it

² A. Do.

bootes me not to take any phisick, for all the phisitians in the world cannot cure [843 me; no, not one. But, good my lords, remember my last wil and testament concerning my sonne; for truly, my lordes, I doo not thinke but he wil proue as valiant and victorious a king as euer raigned in England. 849

BOTH. Let heuen and earth be witness betweene vs if we accomplish not thy wil to the vttermost. 852

HEN. IV. I giue you most vnfaigned thanks, good my lords. Draw the curtaines, and depart my chamber a while; and cause some musicke to rocke me a-sleepe. 857

He sleepeeth. Exeunt Lords.

Enter the Prince.

HEN. 5. Ah, Harry, thrice vnhappy, that hath neglect so long from visiting of thy sicke father! I wil goe. Nay, but why doo I not go to the chamber of my sick father to comfort the melancholy soule of his bodie? [He approaches the sleep- ing king.] His soule, said I? Here is his bodie, indeed, but his soule is whereas it needs no bodie. Now, thrice accursed Harry, that hath offended thy father so much! And could not I craue [868 pardon for all? Oh my dying father! Curst be the day wherin I was borne, and accursed be the houre wherin I was begotten! But what shal I do? If weeping teares, which come too late, may suffice the negligence, neglected to some, I wil weepe day and night vntil the fountaine be drie with weeping. 873

Exit [with the crown].

Enter Lord of Exeter and Oxford.

EXE. Come easily, my lord, for waking of the king. 878

HEN. 4. [waking] Now, my lords?

OXF. How doth your Grace feele your selfe?

HEN. 4. Somewhat better after my sleepe. But, good my lords, take off [883 my crowne. Remoue my chaire a little backe, and set me right.

AMBO. And please your Grace, the crown is taken away. 887

HEN. IV. The crowne taken away! Good my Lord of Oxford, go see who hath done this deed. No doubt tis some vilde traitor that hath done it to deprive my sonne. They that would do it now would seeke to scrape and scrawle for it after my death. 894

Enter Lord of Oxford with the Prince.

OXF. Here, and please your Grace, is my lord the yong Prince with the crowne.

HEN. 4. Why, how now, my sonne! I had thought the last time I had you [898 in schooling I had giuen you a lesson for all; and do you now begin againe? Why, tel me, my sonne, doest thou thinke the time so long that thou wouldest haue it before the breath be out of my mouth? 903

HEN. 5. Most soueraign lord and wel-beloued father, I came into your chamber to comfort the melancholy soule of your bodie; and finding you at that time past all recouerie, and dead, to my thinking [908 — God is my witness — and what should I doo, but with weeping tears lament the death of you, my father? And after that, seeing the crowne, I tooke it. And tel me; my father, who might better take it [913 then I, after your death? But, seeing you liue, I most humbly render it into your Maiesties hands; and the happiest man aliuie that my father liue[s]. And liue, my lord and father, for euer! 918

[He kneels.]

HEN. 4. Stand, vp my sonne. Thine answere hath sounded wel in mine eares; for I must need confesse that I was in a very sound sleep, and altogither vnmindful of thy comming. But come neare, [923 my sonne, and let me put thee in possession whilst I liue, that none deprive thee of it after my death.

HEN. 5. Well may I take it at your Maiesties hands; but it shal neuer touch my head so long as my father liues. 929

He taketh the crowne.

HEN. 4. God giue thee ioy, my sonne! God bless thee, and make thee his seruant, and send thee a prosperous raigne! For God knowes, my sonne, how hardly I came by it, and how hardly I haue maintained it. 935

HEN. 5. Howsoeuer you came by it I know not; but now I haue it from you, and from you I wil keepe it. And he that [938 seekes to take the crowne from my head, let him looke that his armour be thicker then mine, or I will pearce him to the heart, were it harder then brasse or bol- lion. 943

HEN. IV. Nobly spoken, and like a king! Now trust me, my lordes, I feare not but my sonne will be as warlike and victorious a prince as euer raigned in Eng- land. 948

[ORDES] AMBO. His former life shewes no lesse.

HEN. 4. Wel, my lordes, I know not whether it be for sleep, or drawing neare of drowsie summer of death, but I am [953 verie much giuen to sleepe. Therefore, good my lordes, and my sonne, draw the curtaines; depart my chamber; and cause some musicke to rocke me a-sleepe. 957

Exeunt omnes.

The King dieth.

Enter the theefe.

THEEFE. Ah, God, I am now much like to a bird which hath escaped out of the cage; for so soone as my Lord Chiefe Iustice heard that the old king was dead he was glad to let me go for feare of my lord the yong Prince. But here comes [963 some of his companions. I wil see and I can get any thing of them for old ac- quaintance.

Enter Knights raunging.

TOM. Gogs wounds, the king is dead!

IOH. Dead! then, Gogs blood, we shall be all kings! 969

NED. Gogs wounds, I shall be Lord Chiefe Iustice of England.

TOM [to the thief]. Why how, are you broken out of prison? 973

NED. Gogs wounds, how the villaine stinkes! ¹

IOc. Why, what wil become of thee now? Fie vpon him, how the rascal stinkes! 978

THEEF. Marry, I wil go and serue my maister againe.

TOM. Gogs blood, doost think that he wil haue any such scab'd knaue as thou art? What, man! he is a king now. 983

NED [giving him money]. Hold thee. Heres a couple of angels ¹ for thee. And get thee gone, for the king wil not be long before he come this way. And hereafter I wil tel the king of thee. 988

Exit Theefe.

IOc. Oh, how it did me good to see the king when he was crowned! Me-thought his seate was like the figure of heauen, and his person like vnto a god. 992

NED. But who would haue thought that the king would haue changde his countenance so?

IOc. Did you not see with what grace he sent his embassage into France to tel the French king that Harry of England [998 hath sent for the crowne, and Harry of England wil haue it?

TOM. But twas but a litle to make the people beleue that he was sorie for his fathers death. 1003

The Trumpet sounds.

NED. Gogs wounds, the king comes! Lets all stand aside.

Enter the King with the Archbishop and the Lord of Oxford.

IOc. How do you, my lord?

NED. How now, Harry? [The King frowns upon him.] Tut, my lord, put [1008 away these dumpes. You are a king, and all the realme is yours. What, man! do you not remember the old sayings? You know I must be Lord Chiefe Iustice of England. Trust me, my lord, me- [1013 thinks you are very much changed. And tis but with a litle sorrowing, to make folkes beleue the death of your father greues you — and tis nothing so. 1017

HEN. 5. I prethee, Ned, mend thy maners, and be more modester in thy earmes; for my vnfeined greefe is not to be ruled by thy flattering and dissembling talke. Thou saist I am changed; so I am, indeed; and so must thou be, and [1023] that quickly, or else I must cause thee to be chaunged.

LOC. Gogs wounds, how like you this? Sownds! tis not so sweete as musicke.

TOM. I trust we haue not offended your Grace no way. 1029

HEN. 5. Ah, Tom, your former life greues me, and makes me to abandon and abolish your company for euer. And therefore, not vpon pain of death to approach my presence by ten miles space. Then, if I heare wel of you, it may be I will do somewhat for you; otherwise looke for no more fauour at my hands then at any other mans. And therefore, be [1038] gone! we haue other matters to talke on.

Exeunt knights.

Now, my good Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, what say you to our embassage into France? 1042

ARCHB. Your right to the French crowne of France came by your great grandmother Izabel, wife to King Edward the Third, and sister to Charles, the French king. Now, if the French king deny it, as likely inough he wil, then [1048] must you take your sword in hand and conquer the right. Let the vsurped Frenchman know, although your predecessors haue let it passe, you wil not; for your countrymen are willing with purse and men to [1053] aide you. Then, my good lord, as it hath bene alwaies knowne that Scotland hath bene in league with France by a sort of pensions which yearly come from thence, I thinke it therefore best to conquere [1058] Scotland; and then I thinke that you may go more easily into France. And this is all that I can say, my good lord.

HEN. 5. I thanke you, my good Lord Archbisop of Canterbury. What say you, my good Lord of Oxford? 1064

OXF. And¹ please your Maiestie, I agree to my Lord Archbishop, sauing in this: — “He that wil Scotland win must first with France begin,” according [1068]

to the old saying. Therefore, my good lord, I thinke it best first to inuade France; for in conquering Scotland you conquer but one, and conquere France, and conquere both. 1073

Enter Lord of Exeter.

EXE. And please your Maiestie, my Lord Embassador is come out of France.

HEN. 5. Now trust me, my lord, he was the last man that we talked of. I am glad that he is come to resolu vs of our answer. Commit him to our presence. 1079

Enter Duke of Yorke.

YORK. God saue the life of my soueraign lord the king!

HEN. 5. Now, my good lord the Duke of Yorke, what newes from our brother the French king? 1084

YORKE. And please your Maiestie, I deliuered him my embassage, whereof I tooke some deliberation. But for the answer, he hath sent my Lord Embassador of Burges, the Duke of Burgony, Monsieur le Cole, with two hundred and fiftie horsemen to bring the embassage.

HEN. 5. Commit my Lord Archbishop of Burges into our presence. [1093]

Enter Archbishop of Burges.

Now, my Lord Archbishop of Burges, we do learne by our Lord Embassador that you haue our message to do from our brother the French king. Here, my good lord, [1097] according to our accustomed order, we giue you free libertie and license to speake with good audience.

ARCHB. God saue the mightie King of England! My lord and maister, the [1102] most Christian King Charles the Seuenth, the great and mightie King of France, as a most noble and Christian king not minding to shed innocent blood, is rather content to yeeld somewhat to your vnreason- [1107] able demaunds — that, if fiftie thousand crownes a yeare, with his daughter, the said Ladie Katheren, in marriage, and some crownes which he may wel spare not hurting of his kingdome, he is con- [1112] tent to yeeld so far to your vnreasonable desire.

HEN. 5. Why then, belike your lord and maister thinks to puffe me vp with fifty thousand crowns a yere? No! [1117] Tell thy lord and maister that all the crownes in France shall not serue me, except the crowne and kingdome it selfe! And perchance hereafter I wil haue his daughter. 1122

ARCHB. And it please your Maiestie, my Lord Prince Dolphin greets you well with this present.

*He deliuereth a Tunne of Tennis-balles.*¹

HEN. 5. What, a guilded tunne! I pray you, my Lord of Yorke, looke what is in it. 1128

YORKE. And it please your Grace, here is a carpet, and a tunne of tennis-balles.

HEN. 5. A tunne of tennis-balles! I pray you, good my Lord Archbishop, what might the meaning thereof be? 1133

ARCHB. And it please you, my lord, a messenger, you know, ought to keepe close his message — and specially an embassador. 1137

HEN. 5. But I know that you may declare your message to a king; the law of armes allowes no lesse.

ARCHB. My Lord [Prince Dolphin], hearing of your wildnesse before [1142] your fathers death, sent you this, my good lord, meaning that you are more fitter for a tennis-court then a field, and more fitter for a carpet then the camp. 1146

HEN. 5. My Lord Prince Dolphin is very pleasant with me! But tel him that n-steed of balles of leather we wil tosse him balles of brasse and yron — yea, such balles as neuer were tost in France. The proudest tennis-court shall rue it! I, [1152] and thou, Prince of Burges, shall rue it! Therefore, get thee hence; and tel him thy message quickly, least I be there before thee. Away, priest! be gone! 1156

ARCHB. I beseech your Grace to deliuer me your safe conduct vnder your broad seale emanuel.

HEN. 5. Priest of Burges, know that he hand and seale of a king, and his word, s all one. And, in-stead of my hand [1162] and seale I will bring him my hand and sword. And tel thy lord and maister that I, Harry of England, said it; and I, Harry of England, wil performe it! My Lord of Yorke, deliuer him our safe conduct [1167] under our broad seale emanuel.

Exeunt Archbishop and the Duke of Yorke.

Now, my lords, to armes! to armes! For I vow by heauen and earth that the proudest French-man in all France shall rue [1171] the time that euer these tennis-balles were sent into England. My lord, I wil that there be prouided a great nauy of ships with all speed at South-Hampton, for there I meane to ship my men; for I would [1176] be there before him, if it were possible. Therefore come — but staie; I had almost forgot the chiefest thing of all with chafing with this French Embassador. Call in my Lord Chiefe Iustice of England. 1181

Enters Lord Chiefe Iustice of England.

EXE. Here is the king, my lord.

IUSTICE. God preserue your Maiestie!

HEN. 5. Why, how now, my lord? what is the matter?

IUSTICE. I would it were vnknowne to your Maiestie. 1187

HEN. 5. Why, what aile you?

IUST. Your Maiestie knoweth my grieffe well. 1190

HEN. 5. Oh, my lord, you remember you sent me to the Fleete, did you not?

IUST. I trust your Grace haue forgotten that.

HEN. 5. I, truly, my lord; and for reuengement I haue chosen you to be [1196] my Protector ouer my realme, until it shall please God to giue me speedie returne out of France.

IUST. And if it please your Maiestie, I am far vnworthie of so high a dignitie. 1201

HEN. 5. Tut, my lord! you are not vnworthie, because I thinke you worthie; for you that would not spare me, I thinke, wil not spare another. It must needs be so. And therefore, come, let vs be gone, and get our men in a readinesse. 1207

Exeunt omnes.

¹ A. repeats this stage-direction before and after the speech of the Archbishop.

Enter a Captaine, Iohn Cobler and his wife.

CAP. Come, come; there's no remedie. Thou must needs serue the king.

IOHN. Good Maister Captaine, let me go. I am not able to go so farre. 1211 WIFE. I pray you, good Maister Captaine, be good to my husband.

CAP. Why, I am sure he is not too good to serue the king. 1215

IOHN. Alasse, no — but a great deale too bad; therefore, I pray you, let me go.

CAP. No, no; thou shalt go.

IOHN. Oh, sir, I haue a great many shooes at home to cobbler.

WIFE. I pray you, let him go home againe. 1222

CAP. Tush, I care not. Thou shalt go.

IOHN. Oh wife, and you had beene a louing wife to me this had not bene; for I haue said many times that I would go away, and now I must go against my will. 1227

He weepeth.

Enters Dericke [with a pot-lid for a shield].

DER. How now, ho! Basillus manus¹ for an old codpeece! Maister Captaine, shall we awaye? Sownds! how now, Iohn? What, a crying? What make you [1231 and my dame there? [To the wife:] I maruell whose head you will throw the stooles at, now we are gone.

WIFE. Ile tell you! Come, ye clog-head! What do you with my potlid? [1236 Heare you, will you haue it rapt about your pate?

She beateth him with her potlid.

DER. Oh good dame!

Here he shakes her.²

And I had my dagger here I wold worie you al to peeces, that I would! 1241

WIFE. Would you so? Ile trie that.

She beateth him.

DER. Maister Captaine, will ye suffer ner? Go too, dame! I wil go backe as far as I can; but, and you come againe — Ile slap the law on your backe, thats [1246 flat! Ile tell you, Maister Captaine, what you shall do; presse her for a souldier! I warrant you she will do as much good as her husband and I too.

² A. prints this as a part of Dericke's speech.

Enters the Theefe.

Sownes! who comes yonder? 1251

CAP. How now, good fellow; doest thou want a maister?

THEEFE. I, truly, sir.

CAP. Hold thee, then. I presse thee for a souldier to serue the king in France.

DER. How now, Gads! What, doest knowes,¹ thinkest? 1258

THEEFE. I, I knew thee long ago.

CAP. Heare you, Maister Captaine.

CAP. What saist thou? 1261

DER. I pray you, let me go home againe.

CAP. Why, what wouldst thou do at home? 1265

DER. Marry, I haue brought two shirts with me, and I would carry one of them home againe; for I am sure heele steale it from me, he is such a filching fellow.

CAP. I warrant thee he wil not steale it from thee. Come, lets away. 1272

DER. Come, Maister Captaine, lets away. Come, follow me.

IOHN. Come, wife, lets part louingly.

WIFE. Farewell, good husband. 1276

[They embrace.]

DER. Fie, what a kissing and crying is here! Sownes, do ye thinke he wil neuer come againe? Why, Iohn, come away! Doest thinke that we are so base-minded to die among Frenchmen? Sownes, [1281 we know not whether they will laie² us in their church or no. Come, M[aster] Captain, lets away.

CAP. I cannot staie no longer; therefore, come away. 1286

Exeunt omnes.

Enter the [French] King, Prince Dolphin, and Lord High Constable of France.

KING. Now, my Lord High Constable, what say you to our embassage into England?

² Bury.

CONST. And it please your Maiestie, I can say nothing untill my Lords [1291 Embassadors be come home. But yet methinkes your Grace hath done well to get your men in so good a readinesse for feare of the worst. 1295

KING. I, my lord, we haue some in a readinesse; but if the king of England make against vs we must haue thrice so many moe.

DOLPHIN. Tut, my lord; although the king of England be yoong and wilde- [1301 headed, yet neuer thinke he will be so unwise to make battell against the mightie king of France.

KING. Oh, my sonne, although the king of England be yoong and wilde- [1306 headed, yet neuer thinke but he is rude by his wise counsellors.

Enter Archbishop of Burges.

ARCH. God saue the life of my soueraign lord, the King! 1310

KING. Now, my good Lord Archbishop of Burges, what news from our brother, the English king?

ARCHB. And please your Maiestie, he is so far from your expectation that nothing wil serue him but the crowne and [1316 kingdome it-selfe. Besides, he bad me haste quickly least he be there before me. And, so far as I heare, he hath kept promise; for they say he is alreadie landed at Kidcocks in Normandie vpon the [1321 Riuer of Sene, and laid his siege to the garrison-towne of Harflew.

KING. You haue made great haste in the meantime, haue you not?

DOLPHIN. I pray you, my lord, how did the king of England take my presents? 1327

ARCHB. Truly, my lord, in verie ill part. For these your balles of leather he will toss you balles of brasse and yron. Trust me, my lord, I was verie affraide of him, [1331 he is such a hautie and high-minded prince. He is as fierce as a lyon.

CON. Tush! we wil make him as tame as a lambe, I warrant you.

Enters a Messenger.

MESSEN. God saue the mightie King of France! 1337

KING. Now, messenger, what newes?

MESSEN. And it please your Maiestie, I come from your poore distressed towne of Harflew, which is so beset on euery [1341 side, if your Maiestie do not send present aide the towne will be yelded to the English king.

KING. Come, my lords, come! Shall we stand still till our country be [1346 spoyled vnder our noses? My lords, let the Normanes, Brabants, Pickardies, and Danes be sent for with all speede. And you, my Lord High Constable, I make general ouer all my whole armie; Mon- [1351 sieur le Colle, Maister of the Boas,¹ Signior Deuens, and all the rest, at your appointment.

DOLP. I trust your Maiestie will bestow some part of the battell on me. [1356 I hope not to present any otherwise then well.

KING. I tell thee, my sonne, although I should get the victory, and thou lose thy life, I should thinke my-selfe quite [1361 conquered, and the English-men to haue the victorie.

DOL. Why, my lord and father, I would haue the pettie king of England to know that I dare encounter him in any ground of the world. 1367

KING. I know well, my sonne; but at this time I will haue it thus. Therefore, come away. 1370

Exeunt omnes.

Enters Henry the Fifth, with his lords.

HEN. 5. Come, my lords of England. No doubt this good lucke of winning this towne is a signe of an honourable victorie to come. But, good my lord, go and speake to the captaines with all speed, to number the hoast of the French- [1376 men, and by that meanes we may the better know how to appoint the battell.

YORKE. And it please your Maiestie, there are many of your men sicke and diseased, and many of them die for want of victuals. 1382

¹ Qy. bowse, crossbows. According to Holinshed, Lord Rambures was "maister of the crossbowes," and this officer played a conspicuous part in the battle.

HEN. 5. And why did you not tell me of it before? If we cannot haue it for money we will haue it by dint of sword; the lawe of armes allow no lesse. 1386

OXF. I beseech your Grace to graunt me a boone.

HEN. 5. What is that, my good lord?

OXF. That your Grace would giue me the euantgard¹ in the battell. 1391

HEN. 5. Trust me, my Lord of Oxford, I cannot; for I haue alreadie giuen it to my vncke, the Duke of York. Yet I thanke you for your good will. A trumpet sounds.

How now, what is that? 1396

YORKE. I thinke it be some herald of armes.

Enters a Herald.

HERALD. King of England, my Lord High Constable, and others of the noblemen of France, sends me to defie thee [1401 as open enemy to God, our countrey, and vs; and hereupon they presently bid thee battell.

HEN. 5. Herald, tell them that I defie them as open enemies to God, my [1406 countrey, and me, and as wronfull vsrpers of my right. And whereas thou saist they presently bid me battell, tell them that I thinke they know how to please me. But, I pray thee, what place hath my Lord Prince Dolphin here in battell? 1412

HERALD. And it please your Grace, my lord and king, his father, will not let him come into the field. 1415

HEN. 5. Why, then he doth me great iniurie. I thought that he and I shuld haue plaid at tennis together; therefore I haue brought tennis-balles for him — but other maner of ones then he sent me. And, Herald, tell my Lord Prince Dolphin [1421 that I haue inured² my hands with other kind of weapons then tennis-balles ere this time a day, and that he shall finde it, ere it be long. And so, adue my friend. And tell my lord that I am readie when he [1426 will.

Exit Herald.

Come, my lords. I care not and I go to our captaines; and Ile see the number of the French army my selfe. Strike up the drumme! 1431

Exeunt omnes.

Enter French Souldiers.

1. SOUL. Come away, Jack Drummer! Come away all, and me will tel you what me wil doo. Me wil tro¹ one chance on the dice who shall haue the king of England and his lords. 1436

2. SOUL. Come away, Jacke Drummer, and tro your chance; and lay downe your drumme.

Enter Drummer.

DRUM. Oh, the braue² apparel that the English-mans hay broth ouer! I wil tel you what me ha donne. Me ha [1442 prouided a hundreth trunkes, and all to put the fine parel of the English-mans in.

1. SOUL. What do thou meane by "trunkes"?

2. SOUL. A shest, man, a hundred shests. 1448

1. SOUL. Awee, awee, awee.³ Me wil tel you what: me ha put fife shildren⁴ out of my house, and all too lite to put the fine apparel of the English-mans in. 1452

DRUM. Oh, the braue, the braue apparel that we shall haue anon! But come, and you shall see what me wil tro at the kings drummer and fife. [He throws the dice.] Ha! me ha no good lucke. Tro you. 1458

3. SOL. Faith, me wil tro at the Earle of Northumberland, and my Lord a Willowby with his great horse, snorting, farting — oh braue horse! [He throws the dice.]

1. SOL. Ha! Bur Ladie, you ha reasonable good lucke. Now I wil tro at the king himselfe. [He throws the dice.] Ha! me haue no good lucke.

Enters a Captaine.

CAP. How now! what make you here so farre from the campe? 1468

2. SOL. Shal me tel our captain what we haue done here?

DRUM. Awee, awee. 1471

Exeunt Drum[mer] and one Souldier.

¹ Throw.

³ Oui (yes).

² Magnificent.

⁴ Children.

2. SOL. I wil tel you what we ¹ haue donne. We haue bene troing our shance on the dice; but none can win the king.

CAP. I thinke so. Why, he is left behind for me! And I haue set three or foure chaire-makers a worke to make a [1477 new disguised chaire to set that womanly king of England in, that all the people may laugh and scoffe at him.

2. SOUL. Oh braue captaine! 1481

CAP. I am glad, and yet with a kinde of pitie, to see the poore king — why, who euer saw a more flourishing armie in France in one day then here is? Are not here all the peeres of France? Are not here the Normans, with their frie [1487 hand-gunnes and flaunching ² eurtleaxes? Are not here the barbarians, with their bard ³ horses and lanching speares? Are not here Pickardes, with their crosbowes and piercing dartes? The Henues, ⁴ [1492 with their cutting glaues ⁵ and sharpe carbuckles? ⁶ Are not here the lance-knights of Burgondie? And, on the other side, a site of poore English scabs! Why, take an English-man out of his warme bed [1497 and his stale drinke but one moneth, and, alas! what wil become of him? But giue the Frenchman a reddish ⁷ roote, and he wil liue with it all the dayes of his life.

Exit.

2. SOUL. Oh, the braue apparel that we shall haue of the English-mans! 1503

Exit.

Enters the King of England and his Lords.

HEN. 5. Come, my lords and fellowes of armes. What company is there of the French-men? 1506

OXF. And it please your Maiestie, our captaines haue numbred them, and, so

neare as they can iudge, they are about threescore thousand horsemen and fortie thousand footemen. 1511

HEN. 5. They threescore thousand [horsemen], and we but two thousand! They fortie ¹ thousand footemen, and we twelue thousand! They are a hundred thousand, and we fourteen ² thousand! Ten to one! My lords and louing [1517 countrymen, though we be fewe, and they many, feare not. Your quarrel is good, and God wil defend you. Plucke vp your hearts, for this day we shall either haue a valiant victorie, or a honourable [1522 death! Now, my lords, I wil that my vnele, the Duke of Yorke, haue the auant-gard in the battell; the Earle of Darby, the Earle of Oxford, the Earle of Kent, the Earle of Nottingham, the Earle of [1527 Huntington I wil haue beside the army, that they may come fresh vpon them; and I my-selfe, with the Duke of Bedford, the Duke of Clarence, and the Duke of Gloster wil be in the midst of the battell. [1532 Furthermore, I wil that my Lord of Willowby and the Earle of Northumberland, with their troupes of horsmen, be continually running like wings on both sides of the army — my Lord of Northumber- [1537 land on the left wing. Then I wil that euery archer prouide him a stake of a tre, and sharpe it at both endes; and, at the first encounter of the horsemen, to pitch their stakes downe into the ground [1542 before them, that they may gore themselves vpon them; and then, to recoyle baek, and shoote wholly altogether, and so discomfit them. 1546

OXF. And it please your Maiestie, I wil take that in charge, if your Graee be therewith content.

HEN. With all my heart, my good Lord of Oxford. And go and prouide quickly. 1552

OXF. I thanke your Highnesse.

Exit [the Earl of Oxford].

HEN. 5. Well, my lords, our battels are ordeined, and the French making of bonfires, and at their bankets. But let them looke, for I meane to set vpon them. 1557

The trumpet soundes.

Soft, heres comes some other French message.

Enter Herauld.

HERALD. King of England, my Lord High Constable and other of my lords, considering the poore estate of thee and [1562 thy poore country-men, sends me to know what thou wilt giue for thy ransome. Perhaps thou maist agree better cheape ¹ now then when thou art conquered. 1566

HEN. 5. Why then, belike, your High Constable sends to know what I wil giue for my ransome? Now trust me, Herald, not so much as a tun of tennis-bals — no, not so much as one poore tennis-ball! Rather shall my bodie lie dead in the [1572 field to feed crows then euer England shall pay one penny ransome for my bodie.

HERALD. A kingly resolution!

HEN. 5. No, Herald; tis a kingly resolution, and the resolution of a king. Here, take this for thy paines. 1578

Exit Herald.

But stay, my lords; what time is it?

ALL. Prime,² my lord.

HEN. 5. Then is it good time, no doubt, for all England praieth for vs. [1582 What, my lords! me-thinks you looke cheerfully vpon mee. Why then, with one voice, and like true English hearts, with me throw vp your caps, and for England cry, "S[aint] George!" And God and S[aint] George helpe vs! 1588

Strike, Drummer.³ Exeunt omnes.

The French-men crie within, "S[aint] Dennis! S[aint] Dennis! Mount Ioy! S[aint] Dennis!"

The Battell [within].

Enters King of England, and his Lords.

HEN. 5. Come, my lords, come! By this time our swords are almost drunke with French blood. But, my Lords, which of you can tell me how many of our army be slaine in the battell? 1593

Oxf. And it please your Maiestie, these are of the French armie slaine about ten thousand twentie-six hundred, whereof are princes and nobles bearing ban- [1597 ners; besides, all the nobilitie of France are taken prisoners. Of your Maiesties armie are slaine none but the good Duke of Yorke, and not aboute fiue or six and twentie common souldiers. 1602

HEN. 5. For the good Duke of Yorke, my vnckle, I am heartily sorie, and greatly lament his misfortune. Yet the honourable victorie which the Lord hath giuen vs doth make me much reioyce. But, staie; here comes another French message. 1608

Sound, Trumpet.

Enters a Herald, and kneeleth.

HER. God saue the life of the most mightie conqueror, the honourable King of England! 1611

HEN. 5. Now, Herald, me-thinks the world is changed with you now. What! I am sure it is a great disgrace for a Herald to kneele to the king of England! What is thy message? 1616

HER. My lord and maister, the conquered king of France, sends thee long health, with heartie greeting.

HEN. 5. Herald, his greetings are welcome; but I thanke God for my health. Well, Herald, say on. 1622

HERALD. He hath sent me to desire your Maiestie to giue him leaue to go into the field to view his poore country-men, [and] that they may all be honourably buried. 1627

HEN. 5. Why Herald, doth thy lord and maister send to me to burie the dead? Let him bury them, a Gods name! But, I pray thee, Herald, where is my Lord Hie Constable, and those that would haue had my ransome? 1633

HERALD. And it please your Maiestie, he was slaine in the battell.

HEN. 5. Why, you may see — you will make your selues sure before the [1637 victorie be wonne. But, Herald, what castle is this so neere adioyning to our campe?

HERALD. And it please your Maiestie, tis cald the Castle of Agincourt. 1642

HEN. 5. Well then, my lords of England, for the more honour of our Englishmen, I will that this be for-euer cald The Battell of Agincourt. 1646

HERALD. And it please your Maiestie, I haue a further message to deliuer to your Maiestie.

HEN. 5. What is that, Herald? say on.

HER. And it please your Maiestie, my lord and maister craues to parly with your Maiestie. 1653

HEN. 5. With a good will — so some of my nobles view the place for feare of trecherie and treason.

HERALD. Your Grace needs not to doubt that. 1658

*Exit Herald.*¹

HEN. 5. Well, tell him, then, I will come. Now, my lords, I will go into the field my-selfe to view my countrey men, and to haue them honourably buried; for [1662 the French king shall neuer surpasse me in curtesie whiles I am Harry, King of England. Come on, my lords.

Exeunt omnes.

Enters Iohn Cobler, and Robbin Pewterer.

ROBIN. Now, Iohn Cobler, didst thou see how the king did behaue himselfe? 1667

JOHN. But, Robin, didst thou see what a pollicie the king had? To see how the French-men were kild with the stakes of the trees!

ROBIN. I, Iohn, there was a braue pollicie! 1673

Enters an English souldier, roming.

SOUL. What are you, my maisters?

BOTII. Why, we be English-men.

SOUL. Are you English-men? then change your language, for the kings [1677 tents are set a fire, and all they that speake English will be kild. [Exit soldier.]

¹ A. prints this stage-direction a line above.

JOHN. What shal we do, Robin? Faith, Ile shift,¹ for I can speake broken French.

ROBIN. Faith, so can I. Lets heare how thou canst speak. 1683

JOHN. Commodeuales,² Monsieur.

ROBIN. Thats well. Come, lets be gone. [Exeunt.]

Drum and trumpet sounds.

Enters Dericke roming. After him a Frenchman, and takes him prisoner.

DERICKE. O, good Mounser! 1687

FRENCHMAN. Come, come, you vil-leaco!

DER. O, I will, sir, I will.

FRENCHMAN. Come quickly, you pes-ant! 1692

DER. I will, sir. What shall I giue you?

FRENCH. Marry, thou shalt giue me one, to tre, foure hundred crownes.

DER. Nay, sir, I will giue you more; I will giue as many crowns as wil lie on your sword. 1698

FRENCH. Wilt thou giue me as many crowns as will lie on my sword?

DER. I, marrie, will I. I, but you must lay downe your sword, or else they will lie on your sword. 1703

Here the Frenchman laies downe his sword, and the clowne takes it vp, and hurles him downe.

DER. Thou villaine! darest thou looke vp?

FRENCH. O, good Mounsier, com-partue!³ Monsieur, pardon me! 1707

DER. O, you villaine! now you lie at my mercie. Doest thou remember since thou lambst me in thy short ell?⁴ O, villaine! Now I will strike off thy head. 1711

Here, whiles he turnes his backe, the Frenchman runnes his wayes.

DER. What, is he gone? Masse, I am glad of it. For, if he had staid, I was afraid he wold haue sturd again, and then I should haue beene spilt.¹ But I will away to kill more Frenchmen. [Exit.]

Enters King of France, King of England, and attendants.

HEN. 5. Now, my good brother of France, my coming into this land was not to shed blood, but for the right of my country; which if you can deny, I am content peaceably to leaue my siege and to depart out of your land. 1722

CHARLES. What is it you demand, my louing brother of England?

HEN. 5. My secretary hath it written. Read it. 1726

SECRETARY. Item, that immediately Henry of England be crowned King of France.

CHARLES. A very hard sentence, my good brother of England.

HEN. 5. No more but right, my good brother of France! 1733

FRENCH KING. Well, read on.

SECRET. Item, that after the death of the said Henry the crowne remaine to him and his heires for-ouer. 1737

FRENCH KING. Why then, you do not onely meane to dispossesse me, but also my sonne!

HEN. 5. Why, my good brother of France, you haue had it long inough. [1742 And as for Prince Dolphin, it skills not though he sit beside the saddle.² Thus I haue set it downe, and thus it shall be!

FRENCH KING. You are very peremptorie, my good brother of England. 1747

HEN. And you as peruerse, my good brother of France.

CHARLES. Why then, belike all that I haue here is yours!

HEN. 5. I, euen as far as the kingdom of France reaches. 1753

CHARLES. I, for by this hote beginning we shall scarce bring it to a calme ending.

HEN. 5. It is as you please. Here is my resolution. 1757

CHARLES. Well, my brother of England, if you will giue me a coppie we will meeete you againe to-morrow.

HEN. 5. With a good will, my good brother of France. Secretary, de- [1762 liuer him a coppie.

*Exit King of France and all their attendants.*¹

My lords of England, go before, and I will follow you.

Exeunt Lords.

Speakes to himselfe.

HEN. 5. Ah, Hafry! thrice vnhappy Harry! Hast thou now conquered [1767 the French king, and begins a fresh supply with his daughter? But with what face canst thou seeke to gaine her loue which hath sought to win her fathers crowne? Her fathers crowne, said I? No, it is mine owne. 1773

I, but I loue her, and must craue her — Nay, I loue her, and will haue her!

Enters Lady Katheren and her Ladies.

But here she comes. How now, faire Ladie Katheren of France, what newes? 1777

KATHREN. And it please your Maiestie, my father sent me to know if you will debate² any of these unreasonable demands which you require. 1781

HEN. 5. Now trust me, Kate, I commend thy fathers wit greatly in this; for none in the world could sooner haue made me debate it, if it were possible. But tell me, sweete Kate, canst thou tell how to loue? 1787

KATE. I cannot hate, my good lord, therefore far vnfit were it for me to loue.

HEN. 5. Tush, Kate! but tell me in plaine termes, canst thou loue the King of England? I cannot do as these [1792 countries do that spend halfe their time in woing. Tush, wench, I am none such. But, wilt thou go ouer to England?

KATE. I would to God that I had your Maiestie as fast in loue as you haue [1797 my father in warres! I would not vouchsafe so much as one looke untill you had related³ all these vnreasonable demands.

² "To abandon oneself to despair?" (N.E.D.)

² Abate, reduce.

³ Qy. debated, abated (cf. l. 1779).

HEN. 5. Tush, Kate! I know thou wouldst not vse me so hardly. But tell me, canst thou loue the King of England? 1803

KATE. How should I loue him that hath dealt so hardly with my father?

HEN. 5. But Ile deale as easily with thee as thy heart can imagine, or [1807 tongue can require. How saist thou? What! will it be?

KATE. If I were of my owne direction I could giue you answere; but seeing I stand at my fathers direction, I must first know his will. 1813

HEN. 5. But shal I haue thy good wil in the mean season?

KATE. Whereas I can put your Grace in no assurance, I would be loth to put you in any dispaire. 1818

HEN. 5. Now, before God, it is a sweete wench!

She goes aside, and speaks as followeth.

KAT. I may thinke my selfe the happiest in the world that is beloued of the mightie King of England! 1823

HEN. 5. Well, Kate, are you at hoast¹ with me? Sweete Kate, tel thy father from me that none in the world could sooner haue perswaded me to it then thou; and so tel thy father from me. 1828

KAT. God keepe your Maiestic in good health.

Exit Kat.

HEN. 5. Farwel, sweet Kate. In faith, it is a sweet wench! But if I knew I [1832 could not haue her fathers good wil, I would so rowse the towers ouer his eares that I would make him be glad to bring her me upon his hands and knees. 1836

Exit King.

Enters Dericke with his girdle full of shooes.

DER. How, now! Sownes, it did me good to see how I did triumph ouer the French-men!

Enters Iohn Cobler rowing, with a packe full of apparell.

IOHN. Whoope, Dericke! How doest thou?

DER. What, Iohn! Comedeuales? aliuie yet? 1843

IOHN. I promise thee, Dericke, I scapte hardly; for I was within halfe a mile when one was kild!

DER. Were you so? 1847

IOHN. I, trust me. I had like bene slaine.

DER. But, once kild — why it tis nothing. I was foure or fue times slaine. 1850

IOHN. Foure or fue times slaine! Why, how couldst thou haue bene aliuie now?

DER. O Iohn, neuer say so! For I was cald "the bloodie souldier" amongst them all. 1855

IOHN. Why, what didst thou?

DER. Why, I will tell thee, Iohn. Euery day whan I went into the field I would take a straw and thrust it into my nose and make my nose bleed; and then I wold go into the field. And when [1861 the captaine saw me, he would say, "Peace, a bloodie souldier!" and bid me stand aside. Whereof I was glad. But marke the chance, Iohn: I went and stood behinde a tree — but marke then, Iohn — [1866 I thought I had bene safe; but on a sodaine there steps to me a lustie tall French-man; now he drew, and I drew; now I lay here, and he lay there; now I set this leg before, and turned this back- [1871 ward — and skipped quite ouer a hedge; and he saw me no more there that day! And was not this well done, Iohn?

IOHN. Masse, Dericke, thou hast a wittie head. 1876

DER. I, Iohn, thou maist see, if thou hadst taken my counsel. But what hast thou there? I thinke thou hast bene robbing the French-men. 1880

IOHN. I-faith, Dericke, I haue gotten some reparrell¹ to carry home to my wife.

DER. And I haue got some shooes; for Ile tel thee what I did: when they were dead, I would go take off all their shooes.

IOHN. I, but Dericke, how shall we get home? 1887

DER. Nay, sownds, and they take thee they wil hang thee. O, Iohn, neuer do so! If it be thy fortune to be hangd, be hangd in thy owne language, whatsoever thou doest! 1892

¹ Apparel.

JOHN. Why, Dericke, the warres is done; we may go home now.

DER. I, but you may not go before you aske the king leaue. But I know a way to go home and aske the king no leaue. 1897

JOHN. How is that, Dericke?

DER. Why, Iohn, thou knowest the Duke of Yorkes funerall must be carried into England, doest thou not? 1901

JOHN. I, that I do.

DER. Why, then, thou knowest weele go with it.

JOHN. I, but Dericke, how shall we do for to meet them? 1906

DER. Sownds, if I make not shift to meet them, hang me! Sirra, thou knowst that in euery towne there will be ringing, and there wil be cakes and drinke. Now I wil go to the clarke and sexton, and [1911 keepe a talking and say, "O, this fellow rings well!" And thou shalt go and take a peece of cake. Then Ile ring, and thou shalt say "Oh, this fellow keepe a good stint!" And then I will go drinke [1916 to thee all the way. But I maruel what my dame wil say when we come home, because we haue not a French word to cast at a dog by the way. 1920

JOHN. Why, what shall we do, Dericke?

DER. Why, Iohn, Ile go before and call my dame whore; and thou shalt come after and set fire on the house.¹ We may do it, Iohn, for Ile proue it — because we be souldiers. 1926

The trumpets sound.

JOHN. Dericke, helpe me to carry my shoes and bootes.

[Exeunt Dericke and John.]

Enters King of England, Lord of Oxford and Exeter, then the King of France, Prince Dolphin, and the Duke of Burgondie, and attendants.

HEN. 5. Now, my good brother of France, I hope by this time you haue deliberated of your answer. 1931

FR. KING. I, my welbeloued brother of England. We haue viewed it ouer with our learned counsell, but cannot finde that you should be crowned king of France. 1935

HEN. 5. What! not king of France? Then nothing! I must be king. But, my louing brother of France, I can hardly forget the late iniuries offered me when I came last to parley; the French-men had better a raked the bowels out of their [1941 fathers carkasses then to haue fired my tentes. And if I knew thy sonne, Prince Dolphin, for one, I would so rowse him as he was neuer so rowsed! 1945

FR. KING. I dare sweare for my sonnes innocencie in this matter. But if this please you, that immediately you be proclaimed and crowned Heire and Regent of France, not king, because I my-selfe was once crowned king. 1951

HEN. 5. Heire and Regent of France? That is well. But that is not all that I must haue.

FR. KING. The rest my secretary hath in writing. 1956

SECRET. [reads]. Item, that Henry, King of England, be crowned Heire and Regent of France during the life of King Charles; and after his death the crowne with all rights to remaine to King Henry of England, and to his heires foreuer. 1962

HEN. 5. Well, my good brother of France, there is one thing I must needs desire.

FR. KING. What is that, my good brother of England? 1967

HEN. 5. That all your nobles must be sworne to be true to me.

FR. KING. Whereas they haue not sticke with greater matters, I know [1971 they wil not sticke with such a trifle. Begin you, my Lord Duke of Burgondie.

HEN. 5. Come, my Lord of Burgondie; take your oath vpon my sword. 1975

BURGON. I, Philip, Duke of Burgondie, sweare to Henry, King of England, to be true to him, and to become his league-man; and that if I, Philip, heare of any forraigne power comming to inuade the said Henry, or his heires, then I, the said Philip, [1981 to send him word, and aide him with all the power I can make. And thereunto I take my oath.

He kisseth the sword.

¹ Soldiers and apprentices assumed the liberty of setting fire to houses of ill-fame.

HEN. 5. Come, Prince Dolphin, you must swear too. 1986

He kisseth the sword.

HEN. 5. Well, my brother of France, there is one thing more I must needs require of you.

FR. KING. Wherein is it that we may satisfie your Maiestie? 1991

HEN. 5. A trifle, my good brother of France: I meane to make your daughter Queene of England, if she be willing, and you therewith content. How saist thou, Kate? canst thou loue the King of England? 1997

KATE. How should I loue thee, which is my fathers enemy?

HEN. 5. Tut! stand not vpon these points. Tis you must make vs [2001 friends. I know, Kate, thou art not a litle proud that I loue thee. What, wench, the King of England!

FRENCH KING. Daughter, let nothing stand betwixt the King of England and thee. Agree to it. 2007

KATE. I had best whilst he is willing, least when I would he will not. I rest at your Maiesties commaund. 2010

HEN. 5. Welcome, sweet Kate! But, my brother of France, what say you to it?

FRENCH KING. With all my heart I like it. But when shall be your wedding day?

HEN. 5. The first Sunday of the next moneth, God willing. 2016

Sound Trumpets.

Exeunt omnes.

¹ Our first reference to George a Greene is in 1593, when Henslowe records its performance, as an old play, at the Rose by the Earl of Sussex' Men who were temporarily occupying that playhouse. The exact date of its composition is a matter of conjecture, but the year 1588 would not be far wrong. Its authorship is also a matter of conjecture. The Devonshire copy of the first quarto (now in the Huntington Library) has on the title-page two notes in early seventeenth century hands: "Written by a minister, who acted] the pinner part in it himself. Teste W. Shakespea[re]"; and below: "Ed. Iuby saith that the play was made by Ro. Gree[n]."¹ Juby was an eminent Elizabethan actor; but the two notes seem to be contradictory, for, so far as we know, Robert Greene was never a minister, and there is no evidence that he was an actor. Little faith can be put in anonymous scribblings of this character, yet there is some internal evidence supporting the attribution of the play to Greene. Unquestionably the original text has been cut down for use in provincial traveling, occasioned, we may suppose, by the plague raging from 1592 to 1594; and it may be that this mutilation explains why Greene's characteristics as a writer are not more evident in the extant version. On the other hand, the play has a virility not found in Greene.

The play was entered in the Stationers' Registers in 1595, but the earliest edition we have was issued in 1599. I have reproduced the text of this edition (A.) from The Malone Society Reprints. As a result of the mutilation of the text for traveling purposes, the verse is often corrupt, and sometimes it is hard to distinguish between the verse and prose. I have followed, in the main, the line arrangement adopted by J. C. Collins (The Plays and Poems of Robert Greene, 1905). I have also modernized the punctuation and the use of capital letters, and I have added, in brackets, stage-directions.

A PLEASANT CONCEYTED COMEDIE OF GEORGE A GREENE, THE PINNER¹ OF WAKEFIELD

[Near Brad'ford.]

Enter the Earle of Kendall, with him the Lord Bonfild [and] Sir Gilbert Armstrong; and [enter later] Iohn [Taylor].

EARLE OF KENDALL. Welcome to Bradford, martiall gentlemen!

L[ord] Bonfild, and Sir Gilbert Armstrong both,

And all my troupes, euen to my basest groomes,

Courage and welcome, for the day is ours!

Our cause is good — it is for the lands auayle; 5

Then let vs fight, and dye for Englands good!

OMNES. We will, my lord!

KENDALL. As I am Henrie Momford, Kendals Earle,

You honour me with this assent of yours.

And here vpon my sword I make protest 10
 For to relieue the poore, or dye my-selfe.

And know, my lords, that Iames, the King of Scots,

Warres hard vpon the borders of this land.

[Enter Iohn Taylor.]

Here is his post. — Say, Iohn Taylour, What newes with King Iames? 15

IOHN. Warre, my lord! Tall² and good newes, I trow;

For King Iam[il]e vowes to meete you the 26 of this month,

God willing; marie, doth he, sir.

KENDALL. My friends, you see what we haue to winne. —

Well, Iohn, commend me to King Iames, 20
 And tell him, I will meete him the 26 of this month,

And all the rest. And so, farewell.

Exit Iohn.

Bonfild, why standst thou as a man in dumps?

Courage! for, if I winne, Ile make thee duke.

I, Henry Momford, will be king my selfe; And I will make thee Duke of Lancaster, 26
 And Gilbert Armstrong Lord of Doncaster.

BONFILD. Nothing, my lord, makes me amazde¹ at all,

But that our souldiers findes our victuals scant.

We must make hauocke of those country swaynes; 30

For so will the rest tremble and be afraid, And humbly send prouision to your campe.

GILB. My Lord Bonfild giues good aduice. They make a scorne, and stand vpon the king;

So what is brought is sent from them perforce. 35

Aske Mannering else.

KEND. What sayest thou, Mannering?

MAN. When-as I shew'd your high commission,

They made this answeere —

Onely to send prouision for your horses. 40
 KEND. Well, hye thee to Wakefield; bid the towne

To send me all prouision that I want, Least I, like martiall Tamberlaine, lay waste

Their bordering countries, And leauing none aliue that contradicts my commission. 45

MAN. Let me alone, my lord; Ile make them

Vayle their plumes! For whatsoever he be, The proudest knight, iustice, or other, that gaynsayeth

Your word, Ile clap him fast, to make the rest to feare.

KEND. Doe so, Nick. Hye thee thither presently; 50

¹ Perplexed.

¹ An officer whose duty is to impound stray beasts.
² Seemly, excellent. A. has tell, and Dyce and Collins emend to I tell.

And let vs heare of thee againe tomorrowe.

MAN. Will you not remouue, my lord?

KENT. No; I will lye at Bradford all this night,

And all the next. — Come, Bonfield, let vs goe

And listen out ¹ some bonny lasses here. 55

Exeunt omnes.

[Wakefield.]

Enter the Iustice, a Townesman, George a Greene, and Sir Nicholas Mannering with his Commission.

IUSTICE. M[aster] Mannering, stand aside whilset we conferre what is best to doe. [Mannering stands to one side.] Townesmen of Wakefield, the Earle of Kendall here hath sent for victuals; [60 and in ayding him we shewe our selues no lesse than traytours to the King. Therefore let me heare, townesmen, what is your consents.

TOWNES. Euen as you please, we are all content. 66

IUSTICE. Then — M[aster] Mannering, we are resolu'd.

[Mannering advances.]

MAN. As howe? 69

IUSTICE. Marrie, sir, thus. We will send the Earle of Kendall no victuals, because he is a traytour to the king, and in ayding him we shewe our selues no lesse.

MAN. Why, men of Wakefield! are you waxen madde,

That present danger cannot whet your wits 75

Wisely to make prouision of your selues? The earle is thirtie thousand men strong in power,

And what towne soeuer him resist He layes it flat and leuell with the ground. Ye silly men, you seeke your owne decay!

Therefore send my lord such prouision as he wants, 81

So he will spare your towne, and come no ncerer

Wakefield then he is.

IUSTICE. Master Mannering, you haue your answere.

You may be gone. 85

MAN. Well, Woodroffe — for so I gesse is thy name — Ile make thee curse thy ouerthwart deniall; and all that sit vpon the bench ¹ this day shall rue the houre they haue withstood my lord's commission.

IUSTICE. Doe thy worst, we feare thee not.

MAN. See you these seales? Before you passe the towne 92

I will haue all things [that] ² my lord doth want,

In spite of you!

GEORGE A GREENE. Proud dapper Iacke, vayne bonnet to the bench ³ 95

That represents the person of the king; Or, sirra, Ile lay thy head before thy feete.

MAN. Why, who art thou?

GEORGE. Why, I am George a Greene, True liegeman to my king, 100

Who scornes that men of such esteeme as these

Should brooke the braues of any trayterous squire.

You of the bench, and you, my fellowe-friends,

Neighbours we, subiects all vnto the king, We are English borne, and therefore Edwards friends, 105

Voude vnto him euen in our mothers wombe,

Our mindes to God, our hearts vnto our king.

Our wealth, our homage, and our carcasses, Be all King Edwards. Then, sirra, we haue

Nothing left for traytours but our swordes, Whetted to bathe them in your bloods, and dye 111

Against you, before we send you any victuals.⁴

IUSTICE. Well spoken, George a Greene!

TOWNES. Pray let George a Greene speake for vs.

GEORGE. Sirra, you get no victuals here — 115

² Added by Collins.

³ I follow Collins' rearrangement of lines 95-96.

⁴ A. arranges lines 111-12 to end with "bloods" and "victuals." I follow Dyce's rearrangement.

Not if a hoefe of beefe would saue your liues.

MAN. Fellowe, I stand amazde at thy presumption.

Why, what art thou that darest gaynsay my lord,

Knowing his mighty puissance and his stroke?

Why, my friend, I come not barely of my selfe; 120

For, see, I haue a large commission.

GEORGE. Let me see it, sirra. [Takes the Commission.] Whose seales be these?

MAN. This is the Earle of Kendals seale at armes;

This, Lord Charnel Bonfield's; 125
And this, Sir Gilbert Armestrongs.

GEORGE. I tell thee, sirra, did good King Edwards sonne seale a commission against the king his father, thus would I teare it in despite of him, 130

He teares the Commission.

Being traytour to my soueraigne.

MAN. What! hast thou torne my lords commission? Thou shalt rue it — and so shall all Wakefield. 134

GEORGE. What! are you in choler? I will giue you pilles to coole your stomacke! Seest thou these seales? Now, by my fathers soule, which was a yeoman when he was aliuie, eate them. or eate my daggers poynt, proud squire! 140

MAN. But thou doest but iest, I hope.
GEORGE. Sure that shall you see before we two part.

MAN. Well, and there be no remedie, so, George. [Swallows one of the seals.] One is gone. I pray thee, no more nowe.

GEORGE. O sir, if one be good, the others cannot hurt. [Mannering swallows the other seals.] So, sir; nowe you may goe tell the Earle of Kendall, although I [150 haue rent his large commission, yet of curtesie I haue sent all his seales backe againe by you.

MAN. Well, sir, I will doe your arrant.

Exit [Mannering].

GEORGE. Nowe let him tell his lord [155 that he hath spoke with George a Greene, right¹ pinner of merrie Wakefield towne, that hath phisicke for a foole, pilles for a traytour that doeth wrong his soueraigne. Are you content with this that I haue done? 161

IUSTICE. I,² content, George;
For highly hast thou honoured Wakefield toune

In cutting of proud Mannering so short.
Come; thou shalt be my welcome ghest to-day; 165

For well thou hast deseru'd reward and fauour.

Exeunt omnes.

[Outside the "hold" kept by Musgrove.]³

Enter olde Musgroue and yong Cuddie his sonne.

CUDDIE. Nowe, gentle father, list vnto thy sonne;

And for my mothers loue,
That earst was blythe and bonny in thine eye,

Graunt one petition that I shall demaund.
OLDE MUSGROUE. What is that, my Cuddie? 171

CUDDIE. Father, you knowe the ancient enmitie of late

Betweene the Musgroues and the wily Scottes,

Whereof they haue othe
Not to leaue one aliuie that strides a lance.

O, Father, you are olde, and, wanyng, age vnto the graue. 176

Olde William Musgroue, which whilome was thought

The brauest horseman in all Westmerland,
Is weake, and forst to stay his arme vpon a staffe,

That earst could wield a lance. 180
Then, gentle father, resigne the hold to me;

Giue armes to youth, and honour vnto age.

MUS. Auaunt, false hearted boy! My ioyns doe quake

² Aye.

³ "Handoun, or Sandon Castle, off wech Sr William Musgrave and his soon Cuddy had the keepinge." — The Famous Hystory off George a Greene, chap. vi. This prose romance was apparently the source of the play, or closely related to the source.

Euen with anguish of thy verie words!
 Hath William Musgroue seene an hundred
 yeres? 185
 Haue I bene feard and dreaded of the Scottes
 That when they heard my name in any roade ¹
 They fled away, and posted thence amaine,
 And shall I dye with shame nowe in mine
 age?
 No, Cuddie, no. Thus resolute I: — 190
 Here haue I liu'd, and here will Musgroue dye.

Exeunt omnes.

[Before Grime's house.]

*Enter Lord Bonfild, Sir Gilbert Armstrong,
 M. Grime, and Bettris his daughter.*

BON. Now, gentle Grime, God a mercy for our good chere!
 Our fare was royall, and our welcome
 great.

And sith so kindly thou hast entertained
 vs,

If we returne with happie victorie 195
 We will deale as friendly with thee in recompence.

GRIME. Your welcome was but dutie, gentle lord;

For wherefore haue we giuen vs our wealth
 But to make our betters welcome when they come?

[Aside.] O, this goes hard when traytours must be flattered! 200

But life is sweete, and I cannot withstand
 it.

God, I hope, will reuenge the quarrell of my king.

GILB. What said you, Grime?

GRIME. I say, Sir Gilbert, looking on my daughter

I curse the houre that ere I got the girle;
 For, sir, she may haue many wealthy sut-
 ers, 206

And yet she disdaines them all to haue
 Poore George a Greene vnto her husband.

BONFILD. On that, good Grime, I am talking with thy

Daughter; 210

But she in quirkes and quiddities ¹ of loue
 Sets me to schoole, she is so ouerwise. —
 But, gentle girle, if thou wilt forsake
 The pinner and be my loue, I will aduance thee high.

To dignifie those haire of amber hiew, 215 Ill grace them with a chaplet made of pearle,

Set with choice rubies, sparkes,² and diamonds,

Planted vpon a veluet hood, to hide that head

Wherein two saphires burne like sparkling
 fire.

This will I doe, faire Bettris, and farre
 more, 220

If thou wilt loue the Lord of Doncaster.
 BETTRIS. Heigh ho! my heart is in a higher place —

Perhaps on the earle, if that be he [point- ing];

See where he comes, or angrie, or in loue,
 For why ³ his colour looketh discontent. 225

KENDALL [entering]. Come, Nick, followe
 me.

Enter the Earle of Kendall [and] Sir Nicholas Mannering.

BONFILD. Howe nowe, my lord! what
 newes?

KENDALL. Such newes, Bonfild, as will make thee laugh

And fret thy fill to heare how Nick was vsde. 229

Why, the iustices stand on their termes.⁴
 Nick, as you knowe, is hawtie in his words;

He layd the lawe vnto the iustices
 With threatning braues, that one lookt on another

Ready to stoope, but that a churle came in,
 One George a Greene, the pinner of the

towne, 235

And with his dagger drawne layd hands on Nick,

And by no beggers ⁵ swore that we were traytours,

Rent our commission, and vpon a braue

² Precious stones.

³ Because.

⁵ A proverbial phrase, "by no mean oaths."

Made Nick to eate the seales or brooke the stabbe.

Poore Mannering, afraid, came posting hither straight. 240

BETRIS [aside]. Oh louely George, fortune be still thy friend!

And as thy thoughts be high, so be thy minde

In all accords, euen to thy hearts desire!

BONFILD. What sayes faire Bettris?

GRIMES. My Lord, she is praying for George a Greene. 245

He is the man, and she will none but him.

BONFILD. But him! why, looke on me, my girle.

Thou knowest that yesternight I courted thee,

And swore at my returne to wedde with thee.

Then tell me, loue, shall I haue all thy faire? ¹ 250

BETRIS. I care not for earle, nor yet for knight,

Nor baron that is so bold;

For George a Greene, the merrie pinner,

He hath my heart in hold.

BONFILD. Bootlesse, my lord, are many vaine replies. 255

Let vs hie vs to Wakefield, and send her the pinners head.

KEND. It shall be so. — Grime, gramereie.

Shut vp thy daughter; bridle her affects;

Let me not misse her when I make returne.

Therefore looke to her as to thy life, good Grime. 260

GRIME. I warrant you, my Lord.

KEN. [aside to Bettris]. And, Bettris, leaue a base pinner, for to loue an earle.

*Ex. Grime and Bettris.*²

Faine would I see this pinner, George a Greene.

It shall be thus:

Nick Mannering shall leade on the battell, And we three will goe to Wakefield in some disguise. 266

But howsoeuer, Ile haue his head today!

Ex. omnes.

[Before Sir Iohn a Barley's castle.]

Enter the King of Scots, Lord Humes, with Souldiers, and Iohnie.

KING. Why, Iohnie, then the Earle of Kendall is blithe,

And hath braue men that troupe along with him?

IOHNIIE. I, marie, my liege, and hath good men 270

That come along with him;

And vowes to meete you at Scrasblesea, God willing.

KING. If good S[aint] Andrewe lend King Iam[i]e leaue,

I will be with him at the pointed day.

But, soft! — Whose pretie boy art thou?

Enter Iane a Barleys sonne.

NED. Sir, I am sonne vnto Sir Iohn a Barley, 276

Eldest and all that ere my mother had;

Edward my name.

IAME. And whither art thou going, pretie Ned?

NED. To seeke some birdes, and kill them, if I can. 280

And now my scholemaster is also gone,

So haue I libertie to ply my bowe;

For when he comes, I stirre not from my booke.

IAMES. Lord Humes, but marke the visage of this child!

By him I gesse the beautie of his mother;

None but Læda could breede Helena. 286

Tell me, Ned, who is within with thy mother?

Ned. Nought ¹ but her selfe and houshold seruants, sir.

If you would speake with her, knocke at this gate.

IAMES. Iohnie, knocke at that gate. 290

Enter Iane a Barley vpon the walles.

IANE. O, I am betraide! What multitudes be these?

IAMES. Feare not, faire Iane, for all these men are mine —

And all thy friends, if thou be friend to me.

I am thy louer, Iames, the King of Scottes,

But haply thy husbands presence wrought
it.

Therefore, sweete Iane, I fitted me to time,
And, hearing that thy husband was from
home, 301

Am come to craue what long I haue de-sirde.

NED. Nay, soft you, sir! You get no entrance here,

That seeke to wrong Sir Iohn a Barley so,
And offer such dishonour to my mother.

JAMES. Why, what dishonour, Ned? 306

NED. Though young,
Yet often haue I heard my father say,
"No greater wrong than to be made cuckold."

Were I of age, or were my bodie strong, 310
Were he ten kings, I would shoote him to

That should attempt to giue Sir Iohn the

I will goe lie ¹ at Iockie Millers house.

IANE. I, well said, Ned! Thou hast giuen

For were the ghost of Cesar on the earth, Wrapped in the wonted glorie of his honour,

He should not make me wrong my husband

But good King Iames is pleasant, as I gesse,
And meanes to trie what humour I am in;
Else would he neuer haue brought an hoste

King Iames, of all men, shall not haue my

JAMES. Then list to me: Saint Andrewe be

But Ile rase thy castle to the verie ground,
Vnlesse thou open the gate and let me in!

IANE. I feare thee not, King Iamie. Doe thy worst!

This castle is too strong for thee to scale;
Besides, tomorrowe will Sir Iohn come
home. 335

JAMES. Well, Iane, since thou disdainst
King Iame's loue,

Ile draw thee on with sharpe and deepe

For, by my fathers soule, this brat of thine
Shall perish here before thine eyes, 339

Vnlesse thou open the gate and let me in.

IANE. O deepe extremes! My heart begins to breake!

My little Ned lookes pale for feare. — Cheare thee, my boy; I will doe much for
thee.

NED. But not so much as to dishonour me.

IANE. And if thou dyest, I cannot liue, sweete Ned. 345

NED. Then dye with honour, mother, dying chaste.

IANE. I am armed.
My husbands loue, his honour, and his fame,
Ioynes victorie by vertue. Nowe, King
Iames,

If mothers teares cannot alay thine ire, 350
Then butcher him, for I will neuer yeeld.

JAMES. Why, then, he dyes.

JAMES. Who? Musgroue! The deuill he is! Come, 355
My horse!

Exeunt omnes [below].

[Skirmish within.]

*Enter olde Musgroue with King Iames pris-

MUS. Nowe, King Iames, thou art my prisoner.

JAMES. Not thine, but Fortunes prisoner.

Enter Cuddie.

CUDDIE. Father, the field is ours! Their colours we

Haue seyzed, 360
And Humes is slayne; I slewe him hand to hand.

MUS. God and Saint George!

CUDDIE. O father, I am sore athirst!

IANE. Come in, young Cuddie, come and drinke thy fill.

Bring in King Iame with you as a ghest;
For all this broile was cause he could not enter. 366

Exeunt omnes.

[Near George a Greene's wheat close outside Wakefield.]

Enter George a Greene alone.

GEORGE. The sweete content of men that lue in loue

Brecedes fretting humours in a restlesse minde;

And fansie,¹ being checkt by fortunes spite,

Growes too impatient in her sweete desires; — 370

Sweete to those men whome loue leads on to blisse,

But sowre to me, whose happe is still amisse.

Enter the Clowne.

IENKIN. Marie, amen, sir!

GEORGE. Sir, what doe you crye, "Amen" at? 375

IENKIN. Why, did not you talke of loue?

GEORGE. Howe doe you knowe that?

IENKIN. Well, though I say it that should not say it, there are fewe fellows in our parish so netled with loue as I haue bene of late. 381

GEOR. Sirra, I thought no lesse when the other morning you rose so earely to goe to your wenches. Sir, I had thought you had gone about my honest busines. 385

IENKIN. Trow, you haue hit it! For, master, be it knowne to you, there is some good-will betwixt Madge, the sousewife,¹ and I. Marie, she hath another louer.

GEORGE. Canst thou brooke any riualls in thy loue? 391

IEN. A rider! no, he is a sow-gelder and goes afoote. But Madge pointed to meete me in your wheate close.

GEORGE. Well, did she meete you there? 396

IEN. Neuer make question of that! And first I saluted her with a greene gowne,² and after fell as hard a wooing as if the priest had bin at our backs to haue married vs. 401

GEORGE. What, did she grant?

IEN. Did she graunt? Neuer make question of that! And she gaue me a shirt color wrought ouer with no counterfet stuffe. 406

GEORGE. What, was it gold?

IEN. Nay, twas better than gold.

GEORGE. What was it? 409

IEN. Right Couentrie-blew. We³ had no sooner come there but wot you who came by?

GEORGE. No; who?

IEN. Clim, the sow-gelder.

GEORGE. Came he by? 415

IEN. He spide Madge and I sit together. He leapt from his horse, laid his hand on his dagger, and began to sweare. Now I, seeing he had a dagger, and I nothing but this twig in my hand, I gaue [20 him faire words and said nothing. He comes to me and takes me by the bosome. "You hoorson slaue," said he, "hold my horse; and looke he take no colde in his feete." "No, marie, shall he, sir," [25 quoth I; "He lay my cloake vnderneath him." I tooke my cloake, spread it all along, and his horse on the midst of it.

GEORGE. Thou clowne! didst thou set his horse vpon thy cloake? 430

IEN. I; but marke how I serued him. Madge and he was no sooner gone downe into the ditch, but I plucked out my knife, cut foure hoales in my cloake, and made his horse stand on the bare ground. 435

GEORG. Twas well done. Now, sir, go and suruay my fields; if you finde any cattell in the corne, to pound¹ with them.

IEN. And if I finde any in the pound, I shall turne them out. 440

Exit Ienkin.

Enter the Earle of Kendal, Lord Bonfield, Sir Gilbert, all disguised, with a traine of men [placed in ambush].

KEND. Now we haue put the horses in the corne, let vs stand in some corner for to heare what brauing tearmes the pinner will breathe when he spies our horses in the corne. 445

Enter Ienkin² blowing of his horne.

IEN. O master, where are you? We haue a prise.

GEORG. A prise! what is it?

IEN. Three goodly horses in our wheate close. 450

GEORGE. Three horses in our wheat close! Whose be they?

IENKIN. Marie, thats a riddle to me. But they are there — veluet horses,³ and I neuer sawe such horses before. As [455 my dutie was, I put off my cappe, and said as followeth: "My masters, what doe you make in our close?" One of them, hearing me aske what he made there, held vp his head and neighed, and, after his [460 maner, laught as heartily as if a mare had bene tyed to his girdle. "My masters," said I, "it is no laughing matter; for, if my master take you here, you goe as round as a top to the pound." Another vnto- [465 ward iade, hearing me threaten him to the pound and to tell you of them, cast vp both his hecles and let such a monstrous great fart, that was as much as in his language to say: "A fart for the pound, and a fart [470 for George a Greene!" Nowe I, hearing this, put on my cap, blewe my horne, called them all iades, and came to tell you.

³ With velvet caparisons.

GEORGE. Nowe, sir, goe and driue me those three horses to the pound. 475

IENKIN. Doe you heare? I were best to take a constable with me.

GEORGE. Why so?

[IENKIN.] Why, they, being gentlemens horses, may stand on their reputation, and will not obey me. 481

GEORGE. Goe doe as I bid you, sir.

IENKIN. Well, I may goe.

The Earle of Kendall, the Lord Bonfield, and Sir Gilbert Armstrong, meete them.

KEND. Whither away, sir?

IENKIN. Whither away? I am going to put the horses in the pound. 486

KEND. Sirra, those three horses belong to vs, and we put them in; and they must tarric there, and eate their fill. 489

IENKIN. Stay, I will goe tell my master. — Heare you, master; we haue another prise! Those three horses be in your whcate close still, and here be three geldings more.

GEORGE. What be these? 495

IENKIN. These are the masters of the horses.

GEORGE. Nowe, gentlemen — I know not your degrees, but more you cannot be,¹ vnlesse you be kings — why wrong [500 you vs of Wakefield with your horses? I am the pinner, and before you passe you shall make good the trespasse they haue done. 504

KEND. Peace, saucie mate! Prate not to vs: I tell thee, pinner, we are gentlemen.

GEORGE. Why, sir, so may I, sir, although I giue no armes.

KEND. Thou! Howe art thou a gentleman? 510

IENKIN. And such is my master, and he may giue as good armes as euer your great grandfather could giue.

KEND. Pray thee, let me heare howe.

IENKIN. Marie, my master may [515 giue for his armes the picture of Aprill in a greene ierkin, with a rooke on one fist and an horne² on the other: but my master giues his armes the wrong way, for he giues the horne on his fist; and your grand- [520 father, because he would not lose his armes, weares the horne on his owne head.¹

KEND. Well, pinner, sith our horses be in, in spite of thee they now shall feede their fill, and eate vntill our leasures serue to goe. 526

GEORGE. Now, by my fathers soule, were good King Edwards horses in the corne, they shall amend the scath, or kisse the pound; much more yours, sir, whatsoever you be! 531

KEND. Why, man, thou knowest not vs. We do belong to Henry Momford, Earle of Kendal; men that, before a month be full expirde, will be King Edwards betters in the land. 536

GEORGE. King Edwards better[s]! Rebell, thou liest!

George strikes him.

BONFILD. Villaine, what hast thou done? Thou hast stroke an earle. 540

GEOR. Why, what care I? A poore man that is true is better then an earle, if he be false. Traitors reape no better fauours at my hands. 544

KEND. I, so me thinks; but thou shall deare aby² this blow. — Now or neuer, lay hold on the pinner!

Enter all the ambush.

GEORGE. Stay, my lords. Let vs parlie on these broiles. "Not Hercules against two," the prouerbe is, nor I against so [550 great a multitude. — Aside] Had not your troupes come marching as they did, I would haue stopt your passage vnto London: but nowe Ile flie to secret policie.

KEND. What doest thou murmur, George? 556

GEORGE. Marie, this, my lord: I muse, if thou be Henrie Momford, Kendals Earle, that thou wilt doe poore G[eorge] a Greene this wrong, euer to match me with a troupe of men. 561

KEND. Why doest thou strike me, then?

GEOR. Why, my lord, measure me but by your selfe: had you a man had [565 seru'd you long, and heard your foe misuse you behinde your backe and would not draw his sword in your defence, you would cashere him. Much more, King Edward is my king; and, before Ile heare him [570 so wrong'd, Ile die within this place, and maintaine good whatsoever I haue said. And, if I speake not reason in this case, what I haue said Ile maintaine in this place. 575

BON. A pardon, my lord, for this pinner; for, trust me, he speaketh like a man of worth.

KEND. Well, George, wilt thou¹ leaue Wakefelde and wend with me, Ile freely put vp all and pardon thee. 581

GEORGE. I, my lord, considering me² one thing — you will leaue these armes and follow your good king. 584

KEN. Why, George, I rise not against King Edward, but for the poore that is oppressed by wrong; and if King Edward will redresse the same, I will not offer him disparagement, but otherwise; and so let this suffice. Thou hear'st the reason why [590 I rise in armes; nowe, wilt thou leaue Wakefield and wend with me, Ile make thee captaine of a hardie band, and, when I haue my will, dubbe thee a knight.

GEORGE. Why, my lord, haue you any hope to winne? 596

KEND. Why, there is a prophecie doeth say that King Iames and I shall meete at London, and make the king vaile bonnet to vs both.³ 600

GEOR. If this were true, my lord, this were a mighty reason.

KEN. Why, it is a miraculouse prophecie, and cannot faile. 604

GEORGE. Well, my lord, you haue almost turned me. — Ienkin, come hither.

IENKIN. Sir?

GEORGE. Goe your waies home, sir, and driue me those three horses home vnto my house; and powre them downe a bushell of good oates. 611

 your traine aside? 615

KEND. Stand aside.

Exit the trayne.

GEORGE. Nowe list to me: here in a wood, not farre from hence, there dwels an old man in a caue alone, that can foretell what fortunes shall befall you, for he [620 is greatly skilfull in magike arte. Go you three to him early in the morning and question him: if he saies good, why, then, my lord, I am the formost man! We will march vp with your campe to London. 625

KEND. George, thou honourest me in this. But where shall we finde him out?

GEORGE. My man shall conduct you to the place. But, good my lords, tell me true what the wise man saith. 630

KEND. That will I, as I am Earle of Kendal.

GEORGE. Why, then, to honour G[eorge] a Greene the more, vouchsafe a peece of beefe at my poore house. You shall [635 haue wafer cakes your fill, a peece of beefe hung vp since Martilmas:¹ — if that like you not, take what you bring, for me!

KEND. Gramerciis, George.

Exeunt omnes.

[Before Grime's House.]

Enter George a Greenes boy, Wily, disguised like a woman, to M. Grimes.

WILY. O, what is loue! It is some mightie power, 640
 Else could it neuer conquer G[eorge] a Greene.

Here dwels a churle that keepes away his
 loue.

I know the worst — and if I be spied,
 Tis but a beating. And if I by this meanes
 Can get faire Bettris forth her fathers

GRI. How now! Who knocks there?
 What would you haue?

From whence came you? Where doe you dwell? 650

WILY. I am, forsooth, a semsters maide hard by,
 That hath brought worke home to your daughter.

GRIME. Nay, are you not some craftie queane
 That comes from George a Greene, that rascall,

With some letters to my daughter? 655
 I will haue you searcht.

WILY. Alas, sir, it is Hebrue vnto me To tell me of George a Greene, or any other!

Search me, good sir,
 And if you finde a letter about me, 660
 Let me haue the punishment that is due.

GRIME. Why are you muffed? I like you the worse

For that.

WILY. I am not, sir, asham'd to shew my
 face,

Yet loth I am my cheekes should take the aire — 665

Not that I am charie of my beauties hue,

But that I am troubled with the tooth-ach mouth.*]²

GRIME. A pretie wench, of smiling countenance!

Exit [Wily].

I wonder much at the Earle of Kendall,
Being a mightie man, as still he is,
Yet for to be a traitor to his king 674
Is more then God or man will well allow.
But what a foole am I to talke of him!
My minde is more heere of the pretie lasse.
Had she brought some fortie pounds to

I could be content to make her my wife.
Yet I haue heard it in a prouerbe said, 680

Lies but at home, and prooues himselfe an

How now, my wench! How ist? What, not a word? —
Alas, poore soule, the tooth-ach plagues her sore. —
Well, my wench, here is an angel ¹ for to buy thee pinnes. 685
And I pray thee vse mine house;
The oftner, the more welcome. Farewell.

Exit.

BETRIS. O blessed loue, and blessed fortune both!
But, Bettris, stand not here to talke of loue,
But hye thee straight vnto thy George a
Greene. 690
Neuer went roc-bucke swifter on the downes
Then I will trip it till I see my George.

[Exit Bettris.]

[Before the cave of the old magician, near Wakefield.]

Enter the Earle of Kendall, L[ord] Bonfield, Sir Gilbert, and Ienkin the clowne.

KEND. Come away, Ienkin.
IEN. Come; here is his house. [Calling.]
Where be you, ho?
GEORG [within]. Who knocks there? 695
KEND. Heere are two or three poore men,
father,

¹ A gold coin with a value of about ten shillings.

Would speake with you.

GEORG. Pray, giue your man leau to leade me forth.

KEND. Goe, Ienkin, fetch him forth.

IEN. Come, olde man. 700

Enter George a Greene disguised.

KEND. Father, heere is three poore men come to question

Thee a word in secrete that concernes their liues.

GEORGE. Say on, my sonnes.

KEND. Father, I am sure you heare the
newes

How that the Earle of Kendal wars against
the king. 705

Now, father, we three are gentlemen by birth,

But yonger brethren that want reuenues,
And for the hope we haue to be preferd,

If that we knew that we shall winne,
We will march with him; 710

If not, we will not march a foote to London
more.

Therefore, good father, tell vs what shall happen,

Whether the king or the Earle of Kendal shall win.

GEORGE. The king, my sonne.

KEND. Art thou sure of that? 715

GEORGE. I, as sure as thou art Henry Momford,

The one L[ord] Bonfield, the other Sir Gilbert.

KEND. Why this is wondrous, being blinde of sight,

His deepe perseuerance ¹ should be such to know vs!

GILB. Magike is mightie, and foretelleth great matters. 720

In-deede, father, here is the earle come to see thee;

And therefore, good father, fable not with
him.

GEORGE. Welcome is the earle to my poore cell,

And so are you, my lords. But let me counsell you

To leau these warres against your king,
And liue in quiet. 726

KEND. Father, we come not for aduice in
warre,

But to know whether we shall win or leese.

GEORGE. Lose, gentle lords, but not by good King Edward;

A baser man shall giue you all the foile. 730

KEND. I, marie, father, what man is that?

GEORGE. Poore George a Greene, the pinner.

KEND. What shall he?

GEORGE. Pull all your plumes, and sore dishonour you.

KEND. He! As how? 735

GEORGE. Nay, the end tries all. But so it will fall out.

KEND. But so it shall not, by my honor! Christ!

Ile raise my campe, and fire Wakefield town,

And take that seruile pinner, George a Greene,

And butcher him before King Edwards face. 740

GEORGE. Good my lord, be not offended; For I speake no more then arte reueales to me:

And for greater prooffe,
Giue your man leaue to fetch me [out] ¹ my staffe.

KEND. Ienkin, fetch him his walking staffe. 745

[Jenkin goes in and brings out George's staff.]

IEN. Here is your walking staffe.

GEORGE. Ile proue it good vpon your earcases

A wiser wisard neuer met you yet,
Nor one that better could foredoome your fall.

Now I haue singled you here alone, 750
I care not, [I],² though you be three to one.

[Throws off his disguise.]

KEND. Villaine, hast thou betraid vs?

GEORGE. Momford, thou liest! neuer was I traitor yet;

Onely deuis'd this guile to draw you on
For to be combatants. 755

Now conquere me, and then march on to London!

But [it]³ shall goe hard, but I will holde you taske.⁴

² Added by Collins.

³ Collins changes But to It.

GILB. Come, my lord, cheereley. Ile kill him hand to hand.

KEND. A thousand pound to him that strikes that stroke!

GEORGE. Then giue it me, for I will haue the first. 760

Here they fight. George kills Sir Gilbert, and takes the other two prisoners.

BONFILD. Stay, George! we doe appeale.¹

GEORGE. To whom?

BON. Why, to the king;

For rather had we bide what he appoynts,
Then here be murdered by a seruile
groome. 765

KEND. What wilt thou doe with vs?

GEORGE. Euen as Lord Bonfild wis[h]t,
You shall vnto the king;

And, for that purpose, see where the Iustice is placed.

Enter Iustice.

IUST. Now, my Lord of Kendal, where be al your threats? 770

Euen as the cause, so is the combat fallen,
Else one could neuer haue conquerd
three.

KEND. I pray thee, Woodroffe, doe not twit me.

If I haue faulted, I must make amends.

GEORGE. Master Woodroffe, here is not a place for many 775

Words.

I beseech ye, sir, discharge all his souldiers,
That euery man may goe home vnto his owne house.

IUSTICE. It shall bee so. What wilt thou doe, George?

GEORGE. Master Woodroffe, looke to your charge; 780

Leaue me to myselfe.

IUST. Come, my Lords.

Exit all but George.

GEORGE. Here sit thou, George, wearing a willow wreath,

As one despairing of thy beautious loue.
Fie, George! No more! 785

Pine not away for that which cannot be.
I cannot ioy in any earthly blisse

So long as I doe want my Bettris.

¹ Appeal to a higher judge.

Enter Ienkin.

IEN. Who see a master of mine?
 GEORGE. How now, sirra! whither away?
 IEN. Whither away? why, who doe you take me to bee? 791
 GEORGE. Why Ienkin, my man.
 IEN. I was so once, in-deede, but now the case is altered.
 GEORGE. I pray thee, as how?
 IEN. Were not you a fortune-teller to day?
 GEORGE. Well, what of that? 796
 IEN. So sure am I become a iugler.
 What will you say if I iuggle your sweete heart?
 GEORGE. Peace, prating losell! Her iel-ous father
 Doth wait ouer her with such suspicious eyes, 800
 That, if a man but dally by her feete,
 He thinks it straight a witch¹ to charme his daughter.
 IEN. Well, what will you giue me if I bring her hither?
 GEORGE. A sute of greene, and twentie crownes besides.
 IEN. Well, by your leaue, giue me roome.
 [He draws a magician's circle.]
 You must giue me something that you haue lately worne.² 806
 GEORGE. Here is a gowne; will that serue
 you?
 [Throws him the gown used in the impersonation of the old man.]
 IENKIN. I, this will serue me. Keepe out of my circle,
 Least you be torne in peeces by shee deuils.
 Mistres Bettris, once! twice! thrice! 810
He throwes the gowne³ in, and she comes out.
 Oh, is this no cunning?
 GEORGE. Is this my loue, or is it but her shadow?
 IENKIN. I, this is the shadow, but heere is the substance.
 GEORGE. Tell mee, sweete loue, what good fortune
 Brought thee hither? 815

² A regular device in witchcraft. ³ A. ground.

For one it was that fauoured George a Greene.
 BETTRIS. Both loue and fortune brought me to my George,
 In whose sweete sight is all my hearts content.
 GEOR. Tell mee, sweete loue, how camst thou from thy fathers?
 BETTRIS. A willing minde hath many slips in loue: 820
 It was not I, but Wily, thy sweete boy.
 GEOR. And where is Wily now?
 BETTRIS. In my apparell, in my chamber still.
 GEOR. Ienkin, come hither. Goe to Bradford,
 And listen out¹ your fellow Wily. — 825
 Come, Bettris, let vs in,
 And in my cottage we will sit and talke.
Exeunt omnes.

[London: the Court of King Edward.]

Enter King Edward, the King of Scots, Lord Warwicke, yong Cuddy, and their traine.
 EDWARD. Brother of Scotland, I doe hold it hard,
 Seeing a league of truce was late confirmde Twixt you and me, without displeasure offered 830
 You should make such inuasion in my land.
 The vowes of kings should be as oracles,
 Not blemisht with the staine of any breach,
 Chiefly where fealtie and homage willet it.
 IAMES. Brother of England, rub not the sore afresh; 835
 My conscience grieues me for my deepe
 misdeede.
 I haue the worst; of thirtie thousand men,
 There scapt not full fivie thousand from the field.
 EDWARD. Gramercie, Musgroue, else it had gone hard.
 Cuddie, Ile quite thee well ere we two part.
 IAMES. But had not his olde father, William Musgroue, 841
 Plaid twice the man, I had not now bene
 here.
 A stronger man I seldome felt before.
 But one of more resolute valiance

Treads not, I thinke, vpon the English ground. 845
 EDWARD. I wot wel, Musgroue shall not lose his hier.¹
 CUDDIE. And it please your Grace, my father was Fiue score and three at midsommer last past;
 Yet, had King Iamie bene as good as George a Greene,
 Yet Billy Musgroue would haue fought with him. 850
 EDWARD. As George a Greene! I pray thee, Cuddie, Let me question thee.
 Much haue I heard, since I came to my crowne,
 Many in manner of a prouerbe² say,
 "Were he as good as G[eorge] a Green, I would strike him sure." 855
 I pray thee tell me, Cuddie, canst thou informe me
 What is that George a Greene?
 CUDDIE. Know, my lord, I neuer saw the man,
 But mickle talke is of him in the country.
 They say he is the pinner of Wakefield towne; 860
 But for his other qualities, I let alone.
 WAR. May it please your Grace, I know the man too wel.
 EDWARD. Too well! Why so, Warwicke?
 WAR. For once he swingde me till my bones did ake.
 EDWARD. Why, dares he strike an earle?
 WARW. An earle, my lord! nay, he wil strike a king, 866
 Be it not King Edward.
 For stature he is framde
 Like to the picture of stouthe Hercules,
 And for his carriage passeth Robin Hood.
 The boldest earle or baron of your land 871
 That offereth scath vnto the towne of Wakefield,
 George will arrest his pledge vnto the pound;
 And who-so resisteth beares away the blowes,
 For he himselve is good inough for three.

² The phrase quoted was a common proverb.

EDWARD. Why, this is wondrous! My L[ord] of Warwicke, 876
 Sore do I long to see this George a Greene.
 But leauing him, what shall we do, my lord,
 For to subdue the rebels in the north?
 They are now marching vp to Doncaster.
Enter one with the Earle of Kendal prisoner.
 Soft! who haue we there? 881
 CUDDIE.¹ Here is a traitour, the Earle of Kendal.
 EDWARD. Aspiring traitour! how darst thou once Cast thine eyes vpon thy soueraigne
 That honour'd thee with kindenes and with fauour? 885
 But I will make thee buy this treason deare.
 KEND. Good my lord —
 EDWARD. Reply not, traitor. —
 Tell me, Cuddy, whose deede of honour Wonne the victorie against this rebell? 890 CUDDY. George a Greene, the pinner of Wakefield.
 EDWARD. George a Greene! Now shall I heare newes Certaine what this pinner is.
 Discourse it briefly, Cuddy, how it befell.
 CUD. Kendall and Bonfild, with Sir Gilbert Armstrong, 895
 Came to Wakefield towne disguisd,
 And there spoke ill of your grace;
 Which George, but hearing, feld them at his feete;
 And, had not rescue come into the place,
 George had slaine them² in his close of wheate. 900
 EDWARD. But, Cuddy, canst thou not tell Where I might giue and grant some thing
 That might please, and highly gratifie the pinner's thoughts?
 CUDDIE. This at their parting George did say to me: 904
 "If the king vouchsafe of this my seruice,
 Then, gentle Cuddie, knecle vpon thy knee,
 And humbly craue a boone of him for me."
¹ This, with the following speeches, is inconsistently put into the mouth of Cuddie, possibly as a result of the cutting of the play and the elimination of one actor. In the prose story we read: "Justyce Grymes arrived lykewyse and presented, as from George a Greene, the Earle of Kendall." In the play it should be Justice Woodroffe. ² A. him. /

EDWARD. Cuddie, what is it?

CUDDIE. It is his will your Grace would pardon them,
And let them liue, although they haue offended. 910

EDWARD. I think the man striueth to be glorious.

Well, George hath crau'd it, and it shall be
graunted,

Which none but he in England should haue gotten.

Liue, Kendall — but as prisoner;
So shalt thou end thy dayes within the tower. 915

KEND. Gracious is Edward to offending subjects.

JAMES. My Lord of Kend, you are welcome to the court.

EDWARD. Nay, but "ill come," as it fals out now;

I, "ill come," in-deede, were it not for George a Greene.

[Edward mockingly bows to James and the Earl of Kendall.]

But, "gentle king" — for so you would auerre — 920

And "Edwards betters," I salute you
both,

[He mockingly vails bonnet to them.] ¹

And here I vowe, by good Saint George,
You wil gaine but litle when your summes
are counted!

I sorc doe long to see this George a
Greene.

And for because I neuer saw the north, 925
I will forthwith goe see it;

And for that to none I will be knowen,
We will disguise our selues and steale
downe secretly,

Thou and I, King James, Cuddie, and two or three,

And make a merrie iourney for a moneth.
Away, then, conduct him to the tower. 931

Come on, King James, my heart must needes be merrie,

If fortune make such hauocke of our foes.

Ex. omnes.

[Sherwood Forest.] ¹

Enter Robin Hood, Mayd Marian, Scarlet, and Much, the Millers sonne.

ROBIN. Why is not louely Marian blithe of cheere?

What ayles my lemman,² that she gins to lowre? 935

Say, good Marian, why art thou so sad?

MARIAN. Nothing, my Robin, grieues me to the heart

But whensoeuer I doe walke abroad
I heare no songs but all of George a Greene;

Bettris, his faire lemman, passeth me. 940
And this, my Robin, gaules my very soule.

ROBIN. Content [thee].³ What wreakes it vs though George a

Greene be stoute,
So long as he doth proffer vs no seath?

Enuie doth seldome hurt but to it selfe. 945
And therefore, Marian, smile vpon thy Robin.

MARIAN. Neuer will Marian smile vpon
her Robin,

Nor lie with him vnder the green wood shade,

Till that thou go to Wakefield on a greene,
And beate the pinner for the loue of me.

ROBIN. Content thee, Marian; I will ease thy grieue; 951

My merrie men and I will thither stray.
And heere I vow that, for the loue of thee,

I will beate George a Greene, or he shall beate me.

SCARLET. As I am Scarlet, next to Little
Iohn, 955

One of the boldest yeomen of the crew,
So will I wend with Robin all along,

And try this pinner what he dares [to] do.

MUCH. As I am Much, the millers sonne,
That left my mill to go with thee — 960

And nill repent that I haue done;
This pleasant life contenteth me —

In ought I may, to doe thee good,
Ile liue and die with Robin Hood.

MARIAN. And, Robin, Marian she will goe with thee, 965

To see faire Bettris how bright she is of blee.

¹ The place is stated in the prose romance, The Famous History of George a Greene, chap. xii.

² Sweetheart.

³ Supplied by Dyce.

ROBIN. Marian, thou shalt goe with thy Robin.

[He turns to his followers.]

Bend vp your bowes, and see your strings be tight,
The arrowes keene, and euery thing be ready;

And each of you a good bat on his necke,
Able to lay a good man on the ground. 971

SCARLET. I will haue Frier Tuckes.

MUCH. I will haue Little Iohns.

ROBIN. I will haue one made of an ashen planke,¹

Able to beare a bout or two. — 975

Then come on, Marian, let vs goe!

For before the sunne doth shew the morning day,

I wil be at Wakefield to see this pinner,
George a Greene.

Exeunt omnes.

[The town of Bradford.]

Enter a Shoemaker sitting vpon the stage at worke. Ienkin to him [with a staff on his shoulder].

IEN. My masters, he that hath neither meate nor money,

And hath lost his credite with the alewife,
For anything I know may goe supperlesse to bed. 981

But, soft! who is heere? Here is a shoemaker.

He knowes where is the best ale. —

Shoemaker, I pray thee tell me,

Where is the best ale in the towne? 985

SHOOMAKER. Afore, afore; follow thy nose;

At the signe of the eggeshell.²

IENKIN. Come, shoemaker, if thou wilt,
And take thy part of a pot.

SHOOMAKER. Sirra, downe with your staffe! 990

Downe with your staffe!

IENKIN. Why, how now! is the fellow mad?

I pray thee tell me, why should I hold downe my staffe?

SHOOMA. You wil downe with him, will you not, sir?

IENKIN. Why, tell me wherefore? 995

SHOO. My friend, this is the towne of merry Bradford,¹

And here is a custome held

That none shall passe with his staffe on his shoulders

But he must haue a bout with me;

And so shall you, sir. 1000

IENKIN. And so will I not, sir!

SHOO. That wil I try. Barking dogs bite not the sorest.

IENKIN [aside]. I would to God I were once well rid of him.

SHOOMA. Now, what! will you downe with your staffe?

IENKIN. Why, you are not in earnest, are you? 1005

SHOOMA. If I am not, take that.

[Strikes him with his staff.]

IENKIN. You whoorsen cowardly scabbe, It is but the part of a clapperdudgeon²

To strike a man in the streete.

But darest thou walke to the townes end with me? 1010

SHOOMAKER. I, that I dare do! But stay till I lay in my Tooles, and I will goe with thee to the townes end

Presently.

IENKIN [aside]. I would I knew how to be rid of this fellow.

SHOOM. Come, sir; wil you go to the townes end now, sir? 1015

IENKIN. I, sir; come.

[They cross over to the other end of the stage.]

Now we are at the townes end. What say you now?

SHOOMAKER. Marry, come let vs euen haue a bout.

IENKIN. Ha! stay a little! Hold thy hands, I pray thee!

SHOOM. Why whats the matter? 1020

IENKIN. Faith, I am vnder-pinner of a towne,

And there is an order, which if I doe not keepe,

² The sign of the ale-house.

² A term of insult, of unknown origin.

I shall be turned out of mine office.

SHOOMAKER. What is that, sir?

IENKIN. Whensoever I goe to fight with any bodie, 1025

I vse to flourish my staffe thrise about my head

Before I strike — and then shew no fauour.

SHOOMAKER. Well, sir, and till then I will not strike thee.

IENKIN. Wel, sir, here is once, twice: — here is my hand;

I will neuer doe it the third time. 1030

SHOOMAKER. Why, then I see we shall not fight.

IENKIN. Faith, no. Come, I will giue thee two pots

Of the best ale, and be friends.

SHOOMAK. Faith, I see it is as hard to get water out of a flint,

As to get him to haue a bout with me; 1035

Therefore I will enter into him for some
good cheere. —

My friend, I see thou art a faint-hearted fellow,

Thou hast no stomacke to fight;

Therefore let vs go to the alehouse and drinke.

IENKIN. Well, content. Goe thy wayes, and say thy prayers 1040

Thou scapst my hands today.

Exeunt omnes.

[Near George a Greene's house, Wakefield.]

Enter George a Greene and Bettris.

GEORGE. Tell me, sweet loue: how, is thy minde content?

What, canst thou brooke to liue with George a Greene?

BETRIS. Oh, George, how little pleasing are these words! 1044

Came I from Bradford for the loue of thee
And left my father for so sweet a friend.
Here will I liue vntill my life doe end.

Enter Robin Hood and Marian, and his traine.

GEORGE. Happy am I to haue so sweet a
loue. —

But what are these come trasing¹ here along?

¹ Proceeding.

BETRIS. Three men come striking through the corne, 1050
My loue.

[George runs towards the trespassers.]

GEORGE. Backe againe, you foolish trauellers!

For you are wrong, and may not wend this way.

ROBIN HOOD. That were great shame!
Now, by my soule, proud sir, 1055

We be three tall¹ yeomen, and thou art but
one. —

Come, we will forward in despite of him.

GEORGE. Leape the ditch, or I will make you skip!

What, cannot the hie-way serue your turne,
But you must make a path ouer the corne?

ROBIN. Why, art thou mad? Dar'st thou incounter three? 1061

We are no babes, man; looke vpon our limmes.

GEO. Sirra, the biggest lims haue not the stoutest hearts.

Were ye as good as Robin Hood and his three mery men,

Ile driue you backe the same way that ye came. 1065

Be ye men, ye seorne to incounter me all at once;

But be ye cowards, set vpon me all three,
And try the pinner what he dares per-
forme!

SCARLET. Were thou as high in deedes
As thou art haughtie in wordes, 1070

Thou well mightest be a champion for the
king;

But emptie vessels haue the loudest
sounds,

And cowards prattle more than men of worth.

GEORGE. Sirra, darest thou trie me?

SCARLET. I, sirra, that I dare. 1075

They fight, and George a Greene beats him.

MUCH. How now! what! art thou downe?
Come, sir, I am next.

They fight, and George a Greene beates him.

ROBIN HOOD. Come, sirra, now to me.
Spare me not,

¹ Stout.

For Ile not spare thee!

GEORGE. Make no doubt I will be as lib-erall to thee. 1080

They fight; Robin Hood stays.

ROBIN HOOD. Stay, George! for here I doo protest,

Thou art the stoutest champion that euer I layd

Handes vpon.¹

GEORGE. Soft you, sir! by your leaue, you
lye;

You neuer yet laid hands on me. 1085

ROBIN HOOD. George, wilt thou forsake
Wakefield,

And go with me?

Two liueries will I giue thee euerie yeere,

And fortie crownes shall be thy fee.

GEORGE. Why, who art thou? 1090

ROBIN HOOD. Why, Robin Hood.

I am come hither with my Marian

And these my yeomen for to visit thee.

GEORGE. Robin Hood! Next to King Edward

Art thou leefe to me. 1095

Welcome, sweet Robin! Welcome, mayd Marian!

And welcome, you my friends!

Will you to my poore house?

You shall haue wafer cakes your fill, 1099

A peece of beefe hung vp since martlemas,

Mutton, and veale. If this like you not,

Take that you finde, or that you bring, for
me.

ROBIN HOOD. Godamercies, good George;
Ile be thy ghest to day.

GEORGE. Robin, therein thou honourest
me. 1105

Ile leade the way.

Exeunt omnes.

[Bradford.]

Enter King Edward and King Iames disguised, with two stauces [on their shoulders].

EDWARD. Come on, King Iames. Now wee are

Thus disguised,

There is none, I know, will take vs to be kings.

I thinke we are now in Bradford, 1110
Where all the merrie shoormakers dwell.

Enter a Shoormaker.

SHOOMAKER. Downe with your stauces, my friends!

Downe with them!

EDWARD. Downe with our stauces? I pray thee, why so?

SHOOMAKER. My friend, I see thou art a stranger heere, 1115

Else wouldest thou not haue questiond of
the thing.

This is the towne of merrie Bradford,
And here hath beene a custome, kept of olde,
That none may beare his staffe vpon his necke,

But traile it all along throughout the
towne, 1120

Vnlesse they meane to haue a bout with me.

EDWARD. But heare you, sir, hath the king
Granted you this custome?

SHOOMAKER. King or kaisar, none shall passe this way,

Except King Edward; 1125

No, nor the stoutest groome that haunts his court.

Therefore downe with your stauces!

EDWARD. What were we best to do?

IAMES. Faith, my lord, they are stoute fellowes;

And because we will see some sport, 1130

We will traile our stauces.

EDWARD. Heer'st thou, my friend?

Because we are men of peace, and trauellers,
We are content to traile our stauces.

SHOOMAKER. The way lyes before you; go along. 1135

Enter Robin Hood and George a Greene, disguised.

ROBIN HOOD. See, George, two men are passing

Through the towne,

Two lustie men, and yet they traile their stauces.

GEORGE. Robin, they are some pesants Trickt in yeomans weedes. — Hollo, you two trauellers! 1140

EDWARD. Call you vs, sir?

GEORGE. I, you! Are ye not big inough
to beare

¹ Cf. the Robin Hood plays. In the prose story the Robin Hood legend is much further developed.

Your bats vpon your neckes,
But you must traile them along the streetes?

EDWAR. Yes, sir, we are big inough; but here is a custome 1145

Kept, that none may passe, his staffe vpon
his necke,

Vnless he traile it at the weapons point.
Sir, we are men of peace, and loue to sleepe
In our whole skins, and therefore quietnes is best.

GEORGE. Base minded pesants, worthlesse to be men! 1150

What! haue you bones and limmes to strike a blow,

And be your hearts so faint you cannot fight?
Wert not for shame I would shrub your shoulders well,

And teach you manhood against another
time.

SHOOM. Well preacht, sir Iacke! Downe with your staffe! 1155

EDWAR. Do you heare, my friends? and you be wise,

Keepe downe your stauces,
For all the towne will rise vpon you.

GEORGE. Thou speakest like an honest quiet fellow!

But heare you me: In spite of all the swaines 1160

Of Bradford town, beare me your stauces
vpon your necks —

Or, to begin withall, Ile baste you both so
well,

You were neuer better basted in your liues.
EDWARD. We will hold vp our stauces.

George a Greene fights with the Shoormakers, and beates them all downe.

GEORGE. What, haue you any more? 1165
Call all your towne forth, cut and longtaile.

The Shoormakers spy George a Greene.

SHOOMAKER. What, George a Greene! is it you?

A plague found¹ you!
I thinke you long'd to swinge me well.

Come, George, we wil crush a pot before we part. 1170

GEORGE. A pot, you slaue? we will haue an hundred!

¹ Confound.

Heere, Will Perkins; take my purse, Fetch me a stand¹ of ale, and set [it] in the market-place,

That all may drinke that are athirst this day;
For this is for a fee to welcome Robin
Hood 1175

To Bradford towne.

They bring out the stande of ale, and fall a drinking.

Here, Robin, sit thou here; for thou art the best man

At the boord this day.

You that are strangers, place your selues where you will.

Robin, heer's a carouse to good King Edwards selfe. 1180

And they that loue him not, I would we had
The basting of them a litle!

*Enter the Earle of Warwicke with other noble men, bringing out the Kings garments;
then George a Greene and the rest kneele downe to the King.*

EDWARD. Come, masters, all fellowes!
Nay, Robin, you are the best man at the boord to-day;

Rise vp, George. 1185

GEORGE. Nay, good my liege, ill-nurturd
we were, then.

Though we Yorkshire men be blunt of speech,

And litle skild in court or such quaint fashions,

Yet nature teacheth vs duetie to our king;
Therefore, I humbly beseech you, pardon
George a Greene. 1190

ROBIN. And, good my lord, a pardon for poore Robin;

And for vs all a pardon, good King Edward.

SHOOMAKER. I pray you, a pardon for the shoomakers.

EDWARD. I frankly grant a pardon to you all.

And, George a Greene, giue me thy hand!
There is none in England that shall doe thee wrong. 1196

Euen from my court I came to see thy selfe;
And now I see that fame speakes nought but truth.

GEORGE. I humbly thanke your royall Maiestic.
That which I did against the Earle of Kendal, 1200
It was but a subiects ductie to his soueraigne,
And therefore little merit[s] such good words, EDWARD. But ere I go, Ile grace thee with good deeds.
Say what King Edward may performe,
And thou shalt haue it, being in Englands bounds. 1205

GEORGE. I haue a louely lemman,
As bright of blee as is the siluer moone;
And olde Grimes, her father, will not let her match
With me, because I am a pinner,
Although I loue her, and she me, dearely.
EDWARD. Where is she? 1211
GEORGE. At home at my poore house,
And vowes neuer to marrie vnlesse her father
Giue consent; which is my great grieve, my Lord.
EDWARD. If this be all, I will dispatch it straight; 1215
Ile send for Grime and force him giue his grant.
He will not denie King Edward such a sute.

Enter Ienkin, and speakes.

[IENKIN.] Ho! who saw a master of mine?
Oh, he is gotten into company — and ¹ a bodie should rake
Hell for companie. 1220
GEORGE. Peace, ye slaue! see where King Edward is?
EDWARD. George, what is he?
GEORGE. I beseech your Grace pardon him; he is my man.
SHOOMAKER. Sirra, the king hath bene drinking with vs,
And did pledge vs too. 1225
IENKIN. Hath he so? Kneele; I dub you “gentlemen.”
SHOOMAKER. Beg it of the king, Ienkin.
IENKIN. I wil. — I beseech your worship grant me one thing.
EDWARD. What is that?
IENKIN. Hearke in your eare. 1230

He whispers the King in the eare.

¹ If.

EDWARD. Goe your wayes, and do it.
IENKIN. Come! downe on your knees! I haue got it.
SHOOMAKER. Let vs heare what it is first.
IENKIN. Mary, because you haue drunke with the king, and the king [1235 hath so graciously pledgd you, you shall be no more called shoomakers, but you and yours, to the worlds ende, shall be called “the trade of the gentle craft.”
SHOOMAKER. I beseech your Maiestie reforme ¹ this which he hath spoken. 1241 IENKIN. I beesech your worship consume this which he hath spoken.

EDWARD. Confirme it, you would say.
— Well, he hath done it for you; it is sufficient. — Come, George, we will goe to Grime, and haue thy loue. 1247 IENKIN. I am sure your worship will abide; for yonder is comming olde Mus-groue and mad Cuddie his sonne. — [1250 Master, my fellow Wilie comes drest like a woman, and master Grime will marrie Wilie. Heere they come.

Enter Musgroue and Cuddie, and master Grime, Wilie, Mayd Marian, and Bettris.

EDWARD. Which is thy old father, Cud-
die? 1254
CUDDIE. This, if it please your Maiestie.
EDWARD. Ah, old Musgroue, rise ² vp!
It fits not such gray haire to kneele.
MUSGROUE. Long liue my soueraigne!
Long and happie be his dayes!
Vouchsafe, my gracious lord, a simple gift
At Billy Musgroues hand. 1261 King Iames at Meddellom Castle gaue me
this;
This wonne the honour, and this giue I
thee.

[He hands him a sword.]

EDWARD. Godamercie, Musgroue, for this friendly gift.
And, for thou feldst a king with this same
weapon, 1265
This blade shall here dub valiant Musgroue knight.

² A. kneele, possibly caught by the printer from the line below.

MUSG. Alas, what hath your highnes done? I am poore.

EDW. To mend thy liuing take thou Meddellon Castle,

The hold¹ of both. And if thou want liuing, complaine;

Thou shalt haue more to mainetaine thine estate. 1270

George, which is thy loue?

GEORGE. This, if please your Maiestie.

EDWARD. Art thou her aged father?

GRIME. I am, and it like your Maiestie.

EDWAR. And wilt not giue thy daughter vnto George? 1275

GRIME. Yes, my lord, if he will let me marrie

With this louely lasse.

EDWARD. What sayst thou, George?

GEORGE. With all my heart, my lord, I giue consent.

GRIME. Then do I giue my daughter vnto George. 1280

WILIE. Then shall the mariage soone be at an end.

[Throws off his disguise.]

Witness, my lord, if that I be a woman! For I am Wilie, boy to George a Greene, Who for my master wrought this subtil shift.

EDWARD. What! is it a boy? What sayst thou to this, Grime? 1285

GRIME. Mary, my lord, I thinke this boy hath

More knauerie than all the world besides. Yet am I content that George shall both haue

My daughter and my lands.

EDWARD. Now, George, it rests I gratifie thy worth. 1290

And therefore here I doe bequeath to thee, In full possession, halfe that Kendal hath; And what as Bradford holdes of me in chiefe, I giue it frankly vnto thee for euer.

Kneele downe, George. 1295

GEORGE. What will your Maiestie do?

EDWARD. Dub thee a knight, George.

¹ I imagine that Edward appoints him to be keeper of Meddellon Castle, as well as Handoun (or Sandon) Castle. The line, however, may be corrupt.

GEORGE. I beseech your Grace, grant me one thing.

EDWARD. What is that?

GEORGE. Then let me liue and die a yeoman still. 1300

So was my father, so must liue his sonne.

For tis more credite to men of base degree To do great deeds, than men of dignitie.

EDWARD. Well, be it so, George.

IAMES. I beseech your Grace dispatch with me,¹ 1305

And set downe my ransome.

EDWARD. George a Greene, set downe the King of Scots

His ransome.

GEORGE. I beseech your Grace pardon me; It passeth my skill. 1310

EDWARD. Do it; the honor's thine.

GEORGE. Then let King Iames make good Those townes which he hath burnt vpon the borders;

Giue a small pension to the fatherlesse, Whose fathers he caus'd murdered in those warres; 1315

Put in pledge for these things to your Grace;

And so returne.

[EDWARD.]² King Iames, are you content?

IAMES. I am content, and like³ your Maiestie,

And will leaue good castles in securitie.

EDWARD. I craue no more. — Now, George a Greene, 1321

Ile to thy house. And when I haue supt, Ile go to Aske,⁴

And see if Iane a Barley be so faire

As good King Iames reports her for to be.

And for the ancient custome of "Vaile Staffe," keepe it still; 1325

Clayme priuiledge from me:

If any aske a reason why, or how,

Say, English Edward vaild his staffe to you.

² A. omits speaker's name, and runs the line into George's speech. Corrected by Dyce.

³ If it please.

⁴ A town in Yorkshire.

FINIS.
